Will tell you that unless my birds were as represented publicity would do me harm instead of good. It stands to reason that there must be something special about my Leipzig Rollers, otherwise I certainly could not go on selling them year after year like I do. I have repeatedly said in these columns that my Rollers are better and cheaper than any others on the market, and to prove this I ask all intending purchasers to test one against any other sold on similar conditions. I am largest retailer of Rollers in United Kingdom, and on Feb. 3rd alone sent out 73 consignments containing nearly 200 German Canaries. This is a fact that can easily be verified, as I hold signature of Midland Railway Company for these parcels. I now have over 1,000 (one thousand) Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, flute and Nightingale notes, etc., etc., and every one guaranteed free from chipping, chopping, or other harsh notes whatever, price, 7/- and 8/- each; special Bandmaster or Schoolmasters, 10/- each. I also have a grand lot genuine Seifert contest Rollers at 12/6 and 15/- each. These are guaranteed genuine Seifert blood, and excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, etc., and their song is a cascade of ever-flowing melody. I also have 20 pure "Gluck" Rollers, fit to win contests in keenest competition immediately, price 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, and 40/- each. Genuine Gluck hens, related to above, 4/- each. I beg to draw attention of connoisseurs to these Gluck Rollers, as they are, without doubt, the finest parcel of birds ever exported from Germany. Leipzig Roller hens, 3/- each, 2 5/-; ordinary loud, free singing Hartz cocks, every bird in full, loud free song, 5/- each, 7 31/6; Hartz hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple. Special Roller singing cabinets, with folding doors and loose fronts, made especially for my Rollers, 2/6 each; ordinary singing box cages 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each. Please note every Canary is sent on a full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, on the distinct understanding that unless birds give you fullest satisfaction, and realise your every expectation, you only have to return it, and back comes the whole of your money, promptly and cheerfully, without question or comment. Read following unsolicited letters, with which I give full name and address, also date, so that sceptics may make any enquiries they think proper:—"Parkfield Gardens, Worcester, Feb. 6. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe and sound, and are doing well. Both cocks started singing same day. Shall be pleased to recommend you as opportunity occurs. Yours, Wm. Hurlston." "Ivy Bush Hotel, Pontardawe, Feb. 6th. Sir,—Pleased to inform you that contest Roller arrived safe, and am highly pleased with same. Yours, Wm. Rapsey." "King-street, Kilkenny, Feb. 6th. Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in splendid condition. I am thoroughly pleased with him; he is an excellent songster, just the bird I wanted. Thanking you for kind and prompt attention. Yours, M. McGrath." "28, Fleet-street, West Keyham, Devonport, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe, and I am well pleased with them. You will hear from me again. Yours, W. King." "12, Grange Villa, Co. Durham, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Contest Roller arrived safe, and started singing soon as unpacked, and has sung ever since. He is a beauty. Yours, W. Corker." "17, Nantyhar, Cymmer, Feb. 5th. Sir,— Received Leipzig Roller safe, and am very well pleased with him. He sang as soon as he arrived at station, and was singing all the way home, as my daughter was carrying him. He is best I ever heard, and anyone can come and see him. Yours, J. Matthews." "10, Timothy Row, Cwmbach, Feb. 4th. Sir,—Received birds safe. Thanks for sending such a fine songster, quite pleased with it. Yours, Arthur Williams." "Rose Cottage, Birnam, Perthshire, Feb. 3rd. Sir,—Roller arrived safely in 43 degrees of frost none the worse. He is singing beautifully both day and gaslight. Thanking you for nice bird. Yours, C. Morgan, Postman." "11, Cecil Street, Limerick. Sir,—It is time I thanked you for sending such a really fine Roller. He is a splendid bird, and I must say I never got such value before. He is admired by everyone who sees him. Please send following: Yours G. Manders." "Windermere, Cargate Avenue, Aldershot, Feb. 2nd. Sir—I am pleased to say Roller sent is entirely to my satisfaction, and sings nearly all day. Yours, A. Harrington." "Chatham, Feb. 1st. Sir,—Roller arrived safe. I am very pleased with him. I have had a lot of birds, but this one takes the cake. He has been singing ever since he was unpacked. Yours, G. Neve." When you take into consideration the above letters are written by persons, who apart from business transactions, are entire strangers to me, it will at once be seen that my statements are not empty clap-trap, but sound, stubborn facts, and the birds are what I claim for them, absolutely the best on the market. I am sole importer of Hans Wehers' Leipzig Rollers. Every cock bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber," and no other dealer in England can sell you one feather of this strain unless he first purchases it from me. All birds safely and warmly packed with food for 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on seven clear days' trial at my risk, during whole time; cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, whichever you prefer. Kindly note carriage on one to three birds costs 6d. only to any part of kingdom. See British Bird column for further advt.

"MORE WINNERS SOLD."

Read following, from:—Malvern Buildings, Bath, February 21st, 1910.—I write to tell you I had 2nd prize and special with the Yorkshire hen I had from you. Shall send another order soon. H. Russell to L. Dykes. Another from: 29, Woodside, Wimbledon Park, February 20th, 1910. Sir,—I am pleased to tell you I won 3rd in pair class, 23 entries, with the yellow cock you sent me paired to my own buff hen, which I described her faults, and to your judgment I feel the credit is due that I was awarded the above position. Thanking you for your honest treatment. M. M. Owen to L. Dykes. Another from: 9 and 10, Great Tower Street, London, E.C.,—Birds to hand, in good condition, and is (as usual when had from you) splendid; your selection meets with my entire approval. Shall send all future orders to you, as I sent elsewhere, and was very disappointed, losing one, and the other I had to destroy out of its misery. Am also pleased to say that every bird shown by me, and which has been in the money, I have had from you. Wm. G. Bruce to L. Dykes.

I have received scores similar to above, never published. Show and stock birds, bred from and related to my winners at all leading shows: having won during 1909-10, over 200 cash prices, three challenge cups, and numerous specials for best bird in show. Long, racy, yellow cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; buff cocks, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; pairs, matched to breed the best living at 8/6, 10/5, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; grand typical hens, with neat, narrow waists, and feathered like wax, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each, all in breeding condition, and will be worth double in a few weeks' time. All colours to select from, in Clears, Ticked, Green-marked and Cinnamon-marked, and all cocks on full song and seven in. long (some over), guaranteed cold rooms bred and kept, and in perfect health. Inspection invited at any time.

All orders sent off same day as received, carefully packed, with proper food for journey (travelling cages 3d. extra), on seven days' approval, at my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed any distance. Either for cash or deposit with Editor, or on easy payments. Full particulars, and new season's price list of Yorkshires, Norwich, Crests, Sib hens, Songsters, etc., post free.

Championship Diploma and Palace Medal.

Two 1sts, three 2nds (see report). The above successes following on my winnings at the Yorkshire Union and other leading shows, as reported week by week, prove the excellency of my strain.

I HAVE ABSOLUTELY THE FINEST STOCK of pink eyes and cinnamon marks in the Fancy, and can therefore give the greatest satisfaction. My dark eyes are also in the front rank, and should prove most useful to those who desire to breed their own winners. I have several pairs at 15/- per pair, just the thing for beginners, and will supply higher class birds equally reasonable pro rata: state wants. All on approval, cash or deposit. Address:—

Colne Rd., GLUSBURN, near Keighley.

I WILL STAND OR FALL

by the result of fair and unprejudiced public opinion on my system of doing business. My Birds and Bird appliances are no "catch-penny" items of trade. Everything I sell is sound and genuine. I give you the opportunity of a fair and honourable trial. I want no man's money with any man's grumble. I make my business friends—and (what is not always quite so easy) I KEEP THEM! My specialities in Cages, Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, etc., for all Cage-birds have something more than merely "a local habitation and a name." They are known all over the globe. They please all and disappoint none. My Foods for Cage-birds are ever sound, serviceable, and satisfactory, and my prices all-round are based on terms of both merit and moderation. I sell no rubbish. I have neither time nor room for that class of business. It will afford me pleasure to send you my 58-page Illustrated Catalogue, and if you are interested in Bird-life, this work will aid that interest. Splendid value in:

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Extracts from a lecture delivered recently by a well-known judge and breeder of Yorkshire variety cage birds:—"The highest ambition and aim of true fanciers is to breed own winners rather than acquire such by purchase. The only method to attain this desirable object is having possession of suitable and reliable stock pairs for producing such. To ensure these conditions, avoid purchasing stock from a market where all and every kind and variety of cage birds are bought and kept for purpose of resale only, as even the least expensive stock purchased or procured from a recognised and reliable breeder of the variety required is far better than paying double or more for haphazard selection from such stocks." This without comment is solid truth in a nutshell, and should be seriously considered by all intending purchasers of coming season breeders. Having had over 30 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshire varieties only, intending purchasers for such can rely on purity of breed combined with up-to-date style and quality. Personally selected and unrelated pairs from 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens from 20/- upwards; all cold-room bred, reared, and kept; all approval, cash or deposit. Full season's price list sent on receipt of stamp for reply. Old 30 years' address: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. (See previous advertisements in this paper.)

GEO. & ALBERT BROWN

LONDON'S PREMIER BIRD SELLERS.

Have sold during past twelve days 68 cocks and 84 hens, and no wholesale; every one retail. Offers this week typical Yorkshire cocks, buffs, 7/6; yellow, 8/6; variegated, 8/6; long, racy birds, in acme of condition; hens, in perfect trim, 3/-, 4/-, 5/- each. All birds are guaranteed their sex and health. Do not be misled with the cheap, narrow-bodied, Dutch birds being sold at below the original bird's price; our advice to intending purchasers is, pay the price and save being disappointed.

The Shows.

SOUTH WEST LONDON C.B.S.

The pairs show was held on February 10th at the Plough Hotel, Clapham Junction. Mr. Robson judged. The novice section was a long way in front of the champions, both in quantity and quality. Mr. Slade won medal for best pair in show with a grand pair of Yorkshires. Mr. Graham (another novice) takes the medal for second best pair, with well-balanced Norwich. Mr. Lilley takes medal for best Muling or Hybrid pairs. A number of well-known fanciers put in an appearance, and the show was a great success.

WALLASEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual night show of British birds and pairs was held in the club room, "Fairhaven," Burns Avenue, on Feb. 18th, when about 120 birds turned up in all, and made a very strong and interesting show. The points scored coupled with those scored at the young and old shows count for the aggregate over the three shows for the challenge cup and other valuable specials. Some very good pairs were on view. Britishers were not quite so strong as usual here. A few very nice Britishers were on view, however. Mr. Mallinson, the hon. secretary, does his best to cater well for the members, and their best thanks are due to him for the very able manner in which he conducts the business. Messrs. Benson, Woodman, Hadwin, Young, Holford, Thwaites, etc., put down some very nice teams. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged, with satisfactory results.

YORKS. YELL. AND BUFF HEN (5 pairs): 1, Young, pair cinn.-marks, well balanced, both very typical, in tight condition; 2, hc, Hadwin, fine pair, nice quality, etc.; 3, Benson, neat buff and well-matched yell.; vhc, Edwards; c, Griffiths. BUFF CK., YELL. HEN (5): 1, Holford, evenly-matched pair, both good style and quality; 2, 3, Hadwin, both nicely matched, former slightly better type and quality; vhc, Griffiths; hc, Edwards. YORKS. GREENS, YELL. CK., BUFF HEN (12 pairs): Very strong class of fine pairs: 1, Benson, full of type, colour, quality, evenly balanced to produce winners; 2, hc, Holford, very little, if any, behind, nice deep tone of col., good type, well mated; 3, Hadwin, well up to others; vhc, Young; c, Hodgkins. BUFF CK., YELL. HEN (10): Another very strong class: 1, Thwaites, fine col., leugth and type, good carriage and positiou; 2, Holford, slim hen, buff cock, nice size; 3, vhc, c, Benson, stuart trio of pairs; hc, Young. BORD., BUFF CK., YELL. HEN (6): 1, 2, vhc, c, Woodman, very strong quartette of well-matched pairs, ought to do owner some good; 3, hc, Hadwin, nicely-balanced, particularly former pair, in fine condition. GREEN, ETC., YELL. CK., BUFF HEN (6): 1, 2, hc, Hadwin, trio of pairs of this gentleman's noted strain, well matched to produce more winners; 3, Young, nicely-balanced, in fine condition; vhc, Bayley, green and cinnamon; c, Woodman. BUFF CK., YELL. HEN (6): 1, 3, Hadwin, another brace of pairs of very good merit, well matched; 2, vhc, hc, c, Woodman, strong quartette, nicely matched up and with luck should produce good youngsters. BRAMBLE, ETC. (6): 1, 2, 3, vhc, Woodman, Chaffinch and Bramble leading, of extra good size, quality and other merits. LINNET, ETC. (7): 1, hc, Young, extra fine Linnet leading, in rare condition all through; 2, Young, prettily-marked Twite, in nice glossy feather and condition; 3, Holford, Linnet, nice bird; vhc, c, Woodman.

WEST OF SCOTLAND BIRD CLUB.

Annual show of matched pairs held in the large hall of Nelson's Temperance Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow, on Feb. 5th. Messrs. J. Sandieson (Port Glasgow) and C. Hunter (Glasgow) acted as judges, and their awards gave every satisfaction.

LEITH O.S.

Annual table show and judging competition, held in the Liberal Club Hall, Hope-street, on February 12th, when six classes were provided, and an entry of 60 was secured, including a few notable winners. The British bird class (24 entries) was a "stinger"; the winner, a Linnet (Mr. J. Allan's) is a bird of exceptional merit. The Golden Lizard shown by Mr. J. Ross, secured the coveted honour in the A.O.V. Canary class. Mr. J. F. Dewar placed the cards, and very generously presented the society with a handsome silver cup to be competed for by the members in the judging competitions which must be won twice before becoming the winner's property. At the monthly meeting held during the judging, Mr. Dewar was heartily thanked for his generosity, and in replying, said it gave him much pleasure to do any little thing to help, as being a native of the town, he always liked to see it prospering. The members then took their turn in pairs as amateur judges. The last to finish, Mr. Wm. Alcorn, was found to be the winner, with 53 points; Mr. W. Allan second, 46 points; and Messrs. W. Dods and J. Baxter equal third, with 43 points each. The president, Mr. Lumsden, presented the cup to the winner at the close. All over the function was a great success.

CORK.

The fifth annual great national cage bird show held under the auspices of the Cork and Provincial C.B.S., took place on February 16th and 17th, at the City Hall. This hall is a most suitable one, being admirably lighted, cosy and free from draught, in all respects an ideal place. The attendance of the public was good, and the interest taken by the visitors in the exhibits was very encouraging to the officials. The entry all over was exceptionally fine, there being considerably over 400 birds, all told, which is distinctly good. The working officials are to be highly complimented upon the successful issue of the show. The society are fortunate in having two such excelleut officers as Messrs. M. O'Keeffe and S. O'Reilly, who, as the hon. secretaries, are chiefly respousible for the safe conduct of the society's affairs. Their management ou this occasion pleased everybody, and they have established their reputations for being capable and efficient organisers. Their efforts were ably seconded by the other officers, the full list of being: Committee—Mr. J. Paterson (chairman). Cork—Messrs. C. Higgins, R. Casey, R. F. Thornhill, T. C. Butterfield, J. Sheehan, P. Higgins, T. Coughlan, M. Arnstein, C. Neff, D. Buckley, A. Herbert, S. Waddy, E. Mills, and E. Butler. Provincial—Miss A. Travers, Messrs. W. J. Lee, E. J. Tighe, E. C. Dawson, J. B. D. Waugh, C. J. Mulligan, L. Birch, J. A. Hanna, J. Devins, R. M. M. Bolster. All the workers set to with a will, and while the society's destinies rest with these fanciers, exhibitors may rest assured that their birds will receive every attention while at its shows. Mr. J. Robson judged.

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The seventh list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows:—Per Hyson Green (Nottingham) C.B.S. (collection 7s., W. H. Raven, Esq., 5s.), 12s.; per Mr. W. Curry (hat-collection at meetings of Northern British B.M. and F.B.C. and Northern Yorkshire C.C.), 12s.; King's Head Rumblers' Society, 7s. 6d.; per Green Canary Association (collection 6s., and "A Lady" 1s.), 7s.; Grangemouth O.S., 6s. 10d.; Bury C.B.S., 5s.; West Stanley C.B.S., 5s.; Harrogate Linnet F.A., 3s. 6d., Burnley C.B.B.C., 3s.; Walkden C.B.S., 2s.; Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. (further donation), 2s.; City and Suburban Association of Canary Breeders, 3d. These amounts total £3 6s. 1d., and together with the sums already acknowledged, bring the aggregate subscriptions received up to £51 11s. 4d. In the list published last week Mr. A. Richardson was credited with sending 6s.; he has since written to point out that this amount was sent on behalf of the York C.B.S. of which he is the chairman. The amount credited to the City and Suburban A.C.B., viz., £1 1s., should have read £1 1s. 3d., hence the item referred to above.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

We are holding a show at our next meeting in March, writes Mr. A. E. Lloyd, secretary of the Birkenhead Canary Fanciers Association, for British birds (9 classes). Fanciers, whether members or not, will be heartily invited.

Kindly note, writes Mr. Wm. Maltby, 11, Cross Bath Road, Bramley, that I have been elected hon. secretary of the Bramley and Dis. O.S., and that all correspondence in connection with the society should in future be addressed to me.

The West Bromwich and Dis. C.B.S. are holding a table pair show at their next meeting on March 1st at the Dartmouth Hotel, at 7.30 o'clock. Mr. J. Jones (Dudley) will judge, there will be sixteen classes, and visitors will be warmly welcomed.

I am glad to tell you my pair of Norwich ("Darby and Joan"), 5th at Scottish National pair class, have started housekeeping. I set "Joan" down on three eggs on Monday last. I hope they don't turn out Scotch Fancies.—George Francis (Lowestoft).

The Bradford West C.B.A. have sent their schedules out for 1910, and the first show is to be held on February 26th. If I have overlooked any member, will he please come and enter his birds at the Red Lion Hotel? writes Mr. F. Western, secretary.

Owing to my having left Bournemouth, I am no longer secretary to the Bournemouth and Dis. C.B.A. All communications should be addressed to Mr. W. O. Brooks, Nortoft Road, who has taken over that office.—Montague E. Feltham, 123, Above Bar, Southampton.

Please thank Cage Birds' artist-in-chief, Mr. H. Norman, for me for drawing the picture of my young Yorkshire hen reproduced in last week's "C.B." I may say the bird was my first year's produce, of which I am quite proud.—F. Tebbs (Battersea Park, London, S.W.).

My Linnet, "Pride of Cumberland," the Crystal Palace winner, did not win first prize at Frizington show, as reported in your last week's issue, writes Mr. G. Wilson, as I was judging the Mules, British and foreign birds there myself, so, of course, did not show it.

The Clapham and Dis. C.B.A. are holding a pair and Finch show this Saturday (February 26th), which will be open to the public after 5 o'clock. Birds must be staged by 3.30 o'clock. The show will be held at the Avondale Hall, Clapham, and the event promises to be very successful.

Entries for our show on March 3rd and 4th, writes Mr. G. Hitchman, secretary, Wellington (Salop) Show, are extended to February 27th, and we trust exhibitors who have not yet favoured us with entries will not forget to support us.

Mr. C. W. Evans, of the Margate, Aviaries, whose advertisement appears in another column, writes us stating that he has just completed an important purchase of high-class Canaries. Birds, foods, and appliances, of every description are also included in the stock of Mr. Evans' up-to-date establishment.

A washing competition between Mr. Washbourne, of South Manchester C.B.S., and Mr. Parker, of Ardwick and Dis. C.B.S., will be held at the Boilermakers' Arms, Higher Openshaw, on February 28th, at 8 p.m., writes Mr. W. Wilson, assistant secretary, of the South Manchester C.B.S., the prize being a pair of vases given by Mr. Garbutt. The judge is Mr. A. G. Davis (Manchester).

The Welsh C.B.C. will be holding their annual general meeting in the course of a few weeks, so will all those members who have any matter to bring forward send same on at once (as per rules), as no matter can be dealt with unless it is placed upon the agenda. Nomination for officers and committee must also be sent in on or before March 5th. I shall also be pleased to receive the names and addresses, together with the subscription 3s., from any fancier residing in Wales desirous of becoming a member.—G. T. Jones, 18, Castle Street, Brecon.

It will be remembered that much interest was evoked by the exhibition at the Crystal Palace of a buff Yorkshire hen, with a cinnamon tick in one part of its body, and a green tick in another. This bird was claimed by Mr. W. Gilbert, secretary of the London and Counties O.S. We regret to say that almost immediately after Mr. Gilbert had run this beautiful bird into a show cage, preparatory to exhibiting it at the London and Counties' O.S. pair show, it was seized and killed by Mr. Gilbert's cat, which had evidently stolen into the room behind Mr. G. The loss is keenly felt by Mr. Gilbert, who had high hopes of breeding something good from the hen.

OBITUARY.

I very much regret to inform your readers, writes Mr. J. Butterworth, secretary of the Rochdale O.C., that one of Rochdale's old fanciers, Mr. Joseph Buckley, has lost his wife, who died after a very short illness. She was connected with the ladies' stall at our All-England shows for a considerable number of years. We in Rochdale shall all miss her very much.

MR. W. HUGGINS (Burnley).

It is with deepest regret, writes Mr. R. Braybrook, president of the Burnley C.B.F.A., I have to mention that we have lost one of our most respected members and fanciers in Mr. W. Huggins. He was of a most kind and genial disposition, and a born fancier, having kept the Yorkshire and Norwich Canary nearly all his life. He was laid to rest on February 21st, and was followed to the Cheapside Church by members of the society, who sent a beautiful floral tribute. He was highly respected by his fellow men, who turned up in good numbers to pay their last respects to their dear friend.

The managers have written me withdrawing the offer of the Drill Hall for our next show, writes Mr. G. T. H. Maggs, secretary of the Bristol Fanciers' Association, certain arrangements being under consideration which would prevents its being available. I must therefore withdraw the fixture from your "Dates Fixed" column for the present.

The Laisterdyke B.F.A. are holding a grand social evening for all fanciers, including members, fancier friends, and their wives, or sweethearts, writes Mr. J. E. Hudson, the secretary. So I would like fanciers to roll up in hundreds as we are engaging some very good talent. It will be held at the Railway Hotel, February 26th, at 7 o'clock.

We are holding our 7th annual pair and table show of British birds on March 1st, at our new headquarters, the "Reindeer" Hotel, Rye Lane, Peckham, writes Mr. W. Hodson, hon. secretary of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. We shall be pleased to see all old friends and fanciers, to give us a good start off in our new home. Admission is free.

We note that there is a proposal afoot to amalgamate the Nelson and the Colne and Dis. Cage Bird Societies. The matter will come up for discussion at the monthly meetings to be held by the former society on February 28th. at the Bull Hotel, Nelson, and by the latter society on March 3rd.

The Bolton and Dis. O.S. have engaged Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) and J. Walsh (Blackburn) to judge at their open show on October 14th and 15th next, and have arranged the first feather show for July 9th, Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington) to judge same, writes Mr. H. Parkinson, the secretary.

The Great Horton O.S. members are specially requested to show at the first members' show for this season, on February 26th, at headquarters, writes Mr. J. Holroyd, the secretary. Birds to be staged at 3 p.m. The cup will be on view at this show. Schedules can be had by applying to me.

Prize and sales moneys at the Palace Show, also cash specials, have been posted, writes Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the show manager. Should anyone have been overlooked, I shall feel obliged if they will write me at once. Medals and other specials will be dispatched when received from the makers and donors.

We have had the pleasure of inspecting (by the courtesy of Mr. Brighty, of Clapham) a very clever coloured drawing of a Canary, the work of Master Willie Moore (Bath). It shows considerable promise.

Dr. J. H. Rodgers (123, Radford Boulevard, Nottingham), the proprietor of "Bronchorine" (the noted remedy for colds and the like in birds), sends for our perusal a splendid testimonial to its efficacy which he has received from Mr. A. C. Hunt, of Blackwood, Mon.

The February issue of the "Avicultural Magazine"—the journal of the Avicultural Society—contains an excellent article by Mr. E. Hopkinson which is accompanied by a very beautiful full-page illustration. Other articles are from the pens of Lieut.-Col. G. A. Momber (British birds on the Riviera), Mr. T. H. Newman (The Deceptive Turtle Dove), Mr. C. Barnby Smith and Mr. F. Finn, F.Z.S.

We are informed that Mr. H. E. Tringham has resigned the secretaryship of the London and Provincial O.S., and that Mr. J. W. Ramsden (11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, S.W.) is acting as secretary pro tem.; also that the recommendation of the sub-committee for the society to withdraw from the Cage Bird Union has been accepted and acted upon by the full L. and P.O.S. Committee.

Mr. W. Rudd, the world-renowned bird specialist, of Norwich, writes us pointing out that the word "highest" which appeared a few lines above the address in his Norwich advertisement, is a printer's error, and should read "lowest." Mr. Rudd informs us that he has a splendid lot of birds at the present moment, for fuller particulars of which see advertisements under various headings.

Mr. A. Williams (Regent's Park) writes drawing attention to the fact that that well-known bird-lover the Rev. Dr. Rosslyn Bruce (of Nottingham) is to deliver a series of three lantern lectures at 8.30 p.m. on March 2nd, 9th, and 16th, in St. Anne's Church (Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.), the subject being Dante's immortal "Divine Comedy." He trusts that many Metropolitan bird-lovers will take the opportunity to hear this gifted speaker.

A very beautiful painting (measuring 16½ins. by 12ins.) accompanies the February issue of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club. It is one of Mr. H. Goodchild's, and depicts the interior of Mr. Willford's largest and beautiful outdoor aviary. Among this month's contributors to the magazine are Lieut. G. Kennedy, Capt. S. S. Flower, Messrs. R. Suggitt, W. T. Page, H. Goodchild, and H. W. Mathias. There are also a large number of interesting notes.

The City and Suburban A.C.B.'s book of rules, list of members, etc., for 1910, is more attractively got up than ever, and is beautifully printed. The programme for the year includes many lectures, competitions, shows, discussions, a cricket match, an outing, etc., all which are strictly in keeping with the go-ahead policy of this progressive institution. The secretary is Mr. V. Wynn, 22, Park Lane, London, W.

Springtime is now upon us, and lovers of nature are beginning to think of their gardens, for on the work in the spring depends the results to be obtained in the summer and autumn. Mr. Harry Barker, F.R.H.S., the well-known nursery seedsman, of Whittlesford, Cambs., it will be noticed, is offering some very great bargains in our advertising columns. This gentleman has a very extensive and old-established business, and it is with confidence that we advise all interested to write him stating their requirements and mentioning this paper. Mr. Barker offers at a very low price shrubs (box, privet, fir, laurel, etc.), very suitable for aviaries and for the use of Hybrid breeders.

Some splendid samples of bird-seeds have reached us from the Tyneside Seed Stores (65, Clayton Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne), showing very clearly that this firm has expert knowledge of the requirements of birdkeepers and their pets, and these goods should ensure them a highly satisfactory trade, seeing that bird-lovers and keepers simply teem in the neighbourhood of their business place. The "Tyno" singing mixture is a first-class blend of seeds, spoken of very highly by all who have given it a trial. In addition to very excellent Canary, hemp, and the other well-known seeds, the Tyneside Seed Stores supply sesame, cornflower, gold of pleasure, and suchlike uncommon seeds sought by birdkeepers. They also do a large business in flower and vegetable seeds of guaranteed quality. Readers should send for the fine illustrated price-list issued by this firm.

A Long Bird at a Short Price.

In our Crystal Palace Show "Gossip" a paragraph appeared to the effect that Messrs. Ambler's winning unflighted yellow had been purchased for 30s. We hear from Messrs. Amblers that there is no truth in, and no foundation for, this statement. Naturally, we very much regret that it should have been made, though our information appeared to come from an authoritative source.

Prescot and the C.B.U.

The Prescot Cage Bird Society held a meeting on February 16th, when Mr. A. Wellings submitted the facts concerning the Cage Bird Union meeting at the Palace. He said it was his duty to withhold nothing. The Prescot Society were of opinion that they could not see their way to vote the secretary to the office again; also that the sooner there was someone appointed to receive the property of the C.B.U. and reorganise it, the better, as in its present condition it gave no encouragement to its members, and they could see it was fast disappearing and would be dead before the next show season if left in its present state. Who is the treasurer for the C.B.U.? was a question asked. —A. Wellings.

Our Conundrum Competition.

USEFUL AS A MULE BREEDER.

Which is the best British bird for the beginner? Well, I have come to the conclusion that the Linnet is; first, on account of its cheapness; secondly, on account of its usefulness as a Mule or Hybrid producer; and thirdly, on account of its beautiful song, which will repay anyone for the trouble taken in moulting him, should he be unsuccessful as an exhibition specimen. And as he is of the hardbill class he is easily catered for, and five minutes a day will suffice to keep him clean and in grand condition.—M. COOK (Bournemouth West).

THE BEST SINGER.

What British bird is best for the beginner? The Brown Linnet. He is the best singer, is very cheap to buy, is easy to cater for, both in food and accommodation, and soon becomes tame, which make him an ideal pet. When house-moulted he will often breed Mules with a hen Canary, which is very often the novice's first attempt to breed a Palace winner.—FRANK JOHNSON (Stoke-on-Trent).

AN ADMIRABLE LITTLE PET.

The price of the Linnet is so very low that it is within the reach of everyone, and so is the best bird for the beginner. Its song is so sweet and varied that it appeals to all. Being so easily catered for, it takes up very little of one's time, and last, but not least, it makes an admirable little pet, and creates a general love of nature, which, to my mind, is the sweetest thing on earth.—C. SANDBACH (Altrincham).

BY FAR THE BEST.

The Goldfinch is by far the best bird for the beginner. Because he is the handsomest of all seed-eaters, takes easily to cage life, soon becomes a great pet, has got a beautiful song, produces the grandest coloured Hybrids or Mules, and with a little of the following seeds with the bath can be kept in perfect health: Hemp, teazle, rape, niger, gold of pleasure, thistle, dandelion, and a few wild seeds.—JOHN W. MITCHELL (Morley).

VERY DOCILE.

Undoubtedly the beautiful Goldfinch, the greatest favourite of all the Finch tribe, is the best bird for the beginner. The purchase price is within the means of every working-man, and that is a great desideratum. The Goldfinch is a free songster, and with a little patience becomes very docile. Beautiful in form and colour, it appeals to all. Amongst Canaries the Goldfinch is safe, and will breed freely with the Canary. The same seeds which Canaries live on, varied with wild seeds and the giving of a bath every day, will get the Goldfinch into that fine condition which is a feast for the eyes of all, and which brings out all the brilliant colours of his plumage, thus proclaiming him the best British bird for the beginner.—WALTER MALCOLME THOMSON (Moffat, N.B.).

AN IDEAL PET.

I should say the Goldfinch is the best bird for a beginner, owing to its beautiful plumage, charming song, hardy nature, muling properties, long life, the cheap bill of fare, and its clean habits. It is an attractive show bird, much sought after, easily caught (or cheaply purchased), and one has no difficulty in taming it. It is an ideal pet—a true "Yeoman of the Guard."—GEORGE JONES (Carnarvon).

IN EVERYONE'S REACH.

A Linnet is the best Britisher for a beginner, because it is in the reach of everyone's pocket to start with. To obtain a Linnet for showing purposes you must call on a bird dealer who trades mostly in British birds, and when he has a stock of fresh-caught birds in, select your own by picking out the largest one or two you can see with nice big eyes and round heads. The colour should be a nut-brown on back. The bird should have good chest marking, called pencilling; also tight feather, with good whites showing in its flights. Be sure and get the bird nice and steady, by taking him about with you into fresh company.—HORACE HASSELL (Leicester).

CHEAPLY BOUGHT AND CHEAPLY KEPT.

I say the best bird for a beginner is the Brown Linnet, as it can be purchased for a few coppers and kept quite healthy for years on canary seed and plenty of wild seed, fresh water to drink and bathe in, and a clean cage with a little gritty sand in the bottom. It will more than repay one for the trouble with its charming song.—WM. COWARD (Barrow-in-Furness).

THE BEST FOR BREEDING WITH.

In my opinion the Brown Linnet is best for the beginner, either for breeding or song. First, a field-moulted bird only costs a few coppers, a house-moulted bird costs a little more, but he is undoubtedly the best, for he is over the difficulties of "getting on to seed," etc. You also stand a much better chance of breeding with him. Second, his extreme docility; he very soon knows who attends to his wants, which are very few. Third, he is easy to breed with; even a novice can manage to breed Mules from him. Fourth, he is one of the finest songsters, even rivalling the Canary. His style is somewhat jerky, yet for variety he takes a lot of beating.—HERBERT ROSTRON (Blackpool).

A DOMESTIC PET.

The Linnet is the best bird for a beginner. I select the Linnet because of its cheapness in the first place, and secondly, when it once gets on hard seed it will develop into a domestic pet, and may reasonably turn out (when house-moulted) a good bird. If the beginner will choose a large bird, he has a chance of making something of his Linnet, without paying a "fancy" price to exhibit and secure a red card.—R. GARDNER (Ormskirk).

CHEAP AND FAIRLY PLENTIFUL.

The cock Goldfinch I consider most suitable for the beginner. In the first place it is a moderate price and fairly plentiful. Secondly, it takes kindly to cage life or aviary, has a pleasing song, and is also fairly easy to cater for. As an exhibition bird it excels. At most shows classes are provided for Goldfinch, or Goldfinch or Bullfinch, although in mixed competition it can more than hold its own.—H. S. WELCH (Smethwick).

SOON SETTLES DOWN.

I think the best British bird for the beginner is the Linnet, because it soon settles down to cage life, and is a most prolific breeder for either Mules or Hybrids. It is, too one one of the nicest little songsters we have, costs little to keep (it has a small appetite), and is satisfied with nearly any seed if it is good and sound. It is, furthermore, very attentive to its master, if properly looked to, and makes itself at home in everybody's house.—JAMES CASE (Leeds).

CONTROLLING THE CROSSES.

The cage, I think, because you can cross which breed you want to, without their parting, and pairing up the opposite way you wanted them to; and they pay attention to each other, because there are no other birds to make love to, and there is then no quarrelling.—JAMES PEASE (Leeds).

THE BEST RESULTS.

My experience in Hybrid breeding has taught me that the best results are obtained by using a good, roomy cage and a basket nest covered with small twigs of heather, and for nesting material nests of the species put together (when obtainable, of course, and pulled to pieces). In an outdoor aviary, I have heaps of eggs, and very few, if any fertile.—HY. KIDNER (Birmingham).

ALWAYS A READY MARKET.

Cages are best, in my opinion, for Hybrid breeding—3ft. long, 18in. from back to front, and 2ft. high. Place your nest-pan at one end of the cage; get some branches of heather or spruce first, and fix them round the nest-pan, so as to make them look as natural as you can. This induces them to lay their eggs. Why? Because there is always a ready market, and good prices can be obtained for good Mules and Hybrids of any kind. Get a large Mealy Redpoll cock with abundance of head colour, pair him with the largest Siberian Bullie hen, and if you succeed you will be very well pleased.—W. H. KITCHINGMAN (Barnsley).

WHERE A CAGE FAILS.

An aviary most certainly, as it provides facilities for supplying the natural wants of the birds, which a cage does not. A growing bush, a plot of green, or fresh soil, and a bath with a regular supply of water running in and out of it can be given, thus making it much nearer nature, and so much better for the birds.—WM. COWARD (Barrow-in-Furness).

ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL.

Budgerigars, as they can be taught almost anything, and are free breeders in outdoor or indoor aviaries. And a more beautiful little Forcign bird is hard to find.—MRS. HOARE (Gilfach Goch).

AMUSING TRICKSTERS.

Budgerigars, because they become so tame and affectionate if treated kindly. They also do many amusing tricks.—WM. CLEMENTS (Stepney).

NO ONE NEED COMPLAIN.

The Grey Parrot, because of its wonderful intelligence, remarkable talking powers, extreme docility, and quaint and engaging ways when tamed. No one need complain of loneliness if they have a tame Grey Parrot for company.—JAMES SPARKES (St. Helen's).

PERFECT AND FASCINATING.

The Grey Parrot. No one could desire a more perfect and fascinating bird. It becomes reconciled to close captivity, and can be taught to talk. It is ready to partake of almost anything offered it, and when kept in good health and condition will live to a grand old age, and remain a faithful pet.—J. T. MILLOTT (Mansfield).

CHEAP, YET BEAUTIFUL AND INTERESTING.

The best is the Budgerigar. It is easily kept and provided for, and does not require much food or attention, is perfectly hardy and very clean, and may be kept out of doors, even in the coldest winter, where, if allowed to, it will readily breed. Although these birds are quite cheap they are very beautiful and interesting, and with a little trouble may be easily tamed.—T. A. FRANKLIN (Bedford).

SO KNOWING.

A Parrot makes a nice pet for a lady, because it gets so knowing and so tame.—MISS ENGLISH (Alton).

MUSICAL AND AMUSING.

The Indian Shama, because of its sweet song, amusing ways, and its nice plumage. Also because it becomes in time very tame. It is also very easy to keep, and a good specimen can be secured at a fair price.—THOMAS HAYES (Preston).

Fieldfare.

First Prize at Wimbledon Show for Mr. F. W. Beard (New Wandsworth).

Question 3.—Is cage or aviary the best for Hybrid Breeding purposes—and why?

TRIED AND TRUSTED.

The cage. You can pair and part them as you require, can save more, and have greater chances of fertile eggs. The birds will also sit and hatch and rear their own broods if allowed to do so. My best results are from the cage.—J. T. MILLOTT (Mansfield).

IT ALL DEPENDS.

I think a cage the best when breeding with a Canary as one of the parents. But if with two British birds, then an aviary is best, because you can make it as natural as possible, and this is a great help where two British birds are concerned.—THOMAS HAYES (Preston).

FOR BREEDING RARE HYBRIDS.

A cage, because it is necessary to have the birds entirely under control. For breeding rare Hybrids a small room or large cage is best, provided the pair have it to themselves. It won't do to have several muling pairs together.—JAMES SPARKES (St. Helen's).

MONETARY AND OTHER CONSIDERATIONS.

I am convinced that large outdoor flight cages, about 3ft. by 16in. by 12in. deep, are the best. In the first place, there is the economic side to study. In large aviaries the birds' food bill is much larger, because it takes more to work up the birds into breeding form when they are flying about an aviary. Again, when caged just in pairs, the birds pair with each other more readily than when in aviaries, and you achieve results, as a consequence, quicker. A well-known friend of mine, who has done very fairly in getting Hybrids, advises the following: Pair a cock Linnet to a hen Bullfinch, and a cock Bullfinch (though this cross has not, to my knowledge, been got yet) or Goldie with a hen Greenfirch or Siskin, and place each pair in an outdoor double flight, with just a wire partition separating the two pairs.—E. WILLIAMS (Liscard).

A GREATER CHANCE OF SUCCESS.

The aviary. The nearer you get to the natural with your birds, the greater is the chance of success in your breeding operations; and the aviary allows this.—W. M. JOHNSON (Cleethorpes).

THE BEST AND SUREST WAY.

In my experience the best and surest way for a novice to breed a Hybrid is in an aviary. He can turn two cock Goldfinches in with one each of Bullie, Siskin, Redpoll, Greenfinch, Linnet, and Chaffinch hen. Put plenty of snug nesting places. Wicker cages are best covered all round. Make an entrance with gorse and hedge cuttings, and keep in the aviary plenty of assorted seeds and clean water. Keep a sharp look-out for eggs, which remove, and replace dummies until the third egg is laid.—J. HOARE (Gilfach Goch).

Question 4.—What foreign bird makes the best ladies' pet—and why?

SUCH A PAL!

The Parrot undoubtedly makes the best pet. It gets very tame. A lady does not usually care for a bird that is "all over the cage." In my opinion, other foreigners do not make such a pal as Polly does.—H. G. HULL (Gorleston-on-Sea).

EASILY TAMED AND SENSATIVE.

The Parrakeet, because it is so easily tamed, and so sensitive.—MISS LAURA ARMITAGE (Leeds).

MERRY LITTLE CHAPS.

The Waxbills make the best lady's pets, as these can be kept in pairs in cages or in large numbers in aviaries. There is quite a large family to choose from, including the St. Helena, Orange-cheeked, Zebra, African, Australian, Crimson-eared, Crimson-winged, etc. These are merry little chaps. They have no power of song, but are pretty and winsome.—G. KNIGHT (Lowestoft).

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

Little Robin Dear.

Little Robin you are singing
Such a pretty song,
And you are so bright and happy
All the winter long.

Though the Lark and Thrush are silent,
Waiting for the spring,
And the Swallows all have vanished,
Robin still can sing.

Now the snow so fast is falling,
And the wind blows chill,
Yet each morning you are waiting
On the window sill.

And we don't forget your breakfast;
See, the crumbs are here.
And your pretty song says "Thank you,"
Little Robin, dear.

Sent by Mabel Russon (age 8), 2, Bush Street Burnley Lane, Burnley.

*Politeness.

As I was sitting in the shed a cock Chaffinch flew into the garden. It found a patch of seed, but instead of feasting itself, it flew off and soon returned with its mate which it conducted to the seed, when they fed together.—Sent by E. Adcock (age 11), 85, Horninglow Street, Burton-on-Trent.

*The Greedy Parrot.

A gentleman early one morning heard some terrible shrieks outside his window. On looking out he saw a Parrot flying after a little Sparrow, which had some food in its mouth. This poor little Sparrow flew into the room through an open window, followed by its pursuer, which, after a struggle, the gentleman captured; whereupon the Sparrow chirped its thanks and flew out again.—Sent by Florence Shinn (age 11), 33, Edward Road, Bedford, Beds.

The Management of Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries.

By THOMAS SMITH.

Smoothness and Shagginess.

I daresay my readers are inclined to prefer the Belgian that is clothed with tight-fitting feathers, which give the bird the appearance of being "smooth as a bottle." Certainly the smooth fellow is very common, and is to be met with almost everywhere, especially since the little Belgians came into vogue. The smoothness enables one to note the actual size and shape, but when you come to breeding, the shaggy massive fellow is preferred. It has a larger, bolder appearance; fills the eye, as it were, and satisfies its owner that he has a goodly foundation upon which to build up a strain. I may be wrong, but I have a feeling that the rough feathered Belgian is also stronger than its tight-feathered brother or sister. If a shaggy feathered male or female is put to a fairly rough Scotch Fancy Canary of the opposite sex, the progeny will or ought to be bold, equipped with a portly frame, firmly set on its legs. Breeders cannot have too much stature and clothing to work upon, either in Belgian or Scotch Fancy Canaries. In both sections there are far too many prime birds, a class it cannot be expected substantial stock will come from.

Depth of Chest.

At first sight the depth of chest may seem a matter of small importance, but on close investigation it will be seen that a great deal hangs upon the having of a chest of considerable depth from the front to the tip of the shoulder. A bird with sufficient depth of chest will never be a long, shapeless specimen. And its solid quality enhances the value of the Belgian, or first cross, when it changes hands. Unfortunately the less favoured breeders of Belgians have to be content when disposing of their stock with what they can get, and that occasionally is not of much account. A better class of Belgian Canary all through would be the means of raising more winning birds than in the past; this would give rise to an uncertainty as to where winners may be found in the beginning of the show season. Needless to say, this in turn will lead to increased entries, and a healthier state of competition at the opening events.

Small Belgians.

Small Belgians are of very little use in the breeding room. They naturally produce small crosses, which are not in demand, and in point of fact, are not worth breeding. The more undersized birds are bred, the greater the probability of the descendants all along the line proving a disappointment. Of course, a small bird may be got from a large pair. A Belgian or a Scotch Fancy Canary of that kind may be safely put into stock, and it may be as good and as useful as the larger and more highly favoured bird, which shows in a very marked degree superiority of size and quality.

The body of a Belgian should be long and straight, and nicely wedge-shaped, becoming narrower until it reaches almost a point. The tail is usually straight down, and the feathers closely set, appearing to be laid right on the top of each other.

The Washing of Belgians.

Belgians are invariably fond of the water. Place a bath at their disposal, and they will rush to it, and lose no time in jumping in and splashing the water right and left, until they are completely drenched. If left to themselves they are inclined to overdo it and bring on asthma, to which the Belgian is frequently subject; and once this complaint gets a hold, it usually takes some getting rid of. Nothing worse can happen to a Belgian after it has plunged in the bath than to settle down and mope. To do so with wet feathers is pretty certain to bring on a cold, which may develop into pleurisy, pneumonia or some other dangerous malady. Should a bird get a severe drenching, it should be kept on the move, and in a warm place till the feathers are dry.

If persistently on the move, a bird will dry as speedily again as one which is permitted to sit rolled up, with its head under the wing. It is a well-known fact that a man can go out and take a good walk in the rain, and get his clothes soaked through; and yet by changing his clothing on returning home, he will feel no ill effects. It is in a measure the same with our feathered pets, with this only difference, that they cannot remove their covering, so that the next best thing for them is to shake themselves and "prune up" with their bills till they succeed in drying every feather. The time to give Belgians a bath is in the early morn in bright weather; the birds are then lively, and will make a better effort to dry themselves than the late washers. Nothing beats an early start in every phase of life. The early bird, indeed catches the worm, and has considerable advantages over the late member.

Early and Late Attendance.

The early morning, if the breeder has the opportunity, is the best part of the day in which to devote an hour or so to the stock. In daylight the stock is all alert, and in the dark mornings artificial light can be used. The birds will soon awaken, and will welcome their master or mistress. They like an early start, and they have wisdom in this respect that might be copied.

In my opinion it is preferable not to disturb pure Belgians at night time, but to let them enjoy the rest intended for them. Should the bird-room be in a city, which is subject to dark foggy days, they may get artificial light for an hour or so to have a feed and a drink of water; but in such a case special care ought to be taken in putting out the light; it should be lowered gradually, until it can be extinguished without frightening the stock.

Belgians for Scotch Fancy Breeding.

On all hands it is admitted that the Belgian Canary, as it was twenty years ago, is lost, particularly in shoulder, depth of chest, size, and substance—qualities which every fancier of this variety seeks in the building-up of the Scotch Fancy, the "King of Cage Birds." The "King" has suffered on account of the growing number of fanciers who breed this variety for the purpose of competing at club shows. Even these fanciers, however, are beginning to realise that if they are to have a proper chance in a club they have to go in for good birds, and that if they are to possess the style that will win, they have to start with a substantial Belgian.

The proper basis upon which to work is to have in each bird-room a good, large Belgian Canary, to be used in crossing with the Scotch Fancy. The demand for the Belgian Canary will only increase with its gradual decay. The best plan is to set about getting a collection of the best Belgians available, and use them for the recovery of the "grand old Belgian," which has done so much to make the Scotch Fancy Canary what it is. When I visit shows in the leading towns, and make practical and mental comparison of the handsome, substantial Belgian of the past with the puny Belgians of the present time, I cannot help asking myself why the size has gone from our birds. The system of having only one Belgian in each aviary I have no doubt has a lot to do with this falling away, and were two good Belgians kept, and an odd pair or two bred, and passed on to other breeders, the substantial, solid Belgian would be maintained. Then, instead of the miniatures of to-day we should have the large, burly, well-built Belgian upon which reliance could be placed for practical purposes.

Like a Bent Willow.

A Scotch Fancy Canary without a lot of the Belgian in it is like a bent willow, long and thin, and void of top end and that substantial appearance which heavy shoulders give to the "King of Cage Birds." Every breeder wants a right typical Scotch Fancy Canary to breed from, and that stamp cannot be got without the Belgian being bred and inter-bred with it.

Time was when it was a common saying at a show that there was far too much of the Belgian in the Scotch Fancy, and that a good percentage of the exhibits should be exhibited in a cage with one perch, which, I may explain in passing, is the class of cage used for showing a pure Belgian. A Belgian is not adapted for jumping from one perch to another, and shows best in a one-perch cage. He should be put up against a door or the wall, and the bottom of the cage should be scratched, when he will take a firm grip of the perch, and sit pulling for all he is worth, displaying the sweet head, the long neck, the well cleaned out front, and the solid back and body, which only a good Belgian possesses. A Belgian fancier possessed of the spirit which some of the old fanciers had becomes entranced as the bird by instinct gets into position, and proudly indicates by his gestures that he is a Belgian bold and true.

A Very Good Test.

We all like to see a real good Belgian. He is in every respect much superior to his near relation, the first or second cross, which is to be found in the present-day Belgian classes, quite at home in a cage with two perches (i.e., the cage used for the exhibiting of Scotch Fancies), but ill at ease when confined to a cage with only one perch. A very good test, in fact, as to whether a bird is a true Belgian or a cross from the Belgian is to run it into a cage with two perches; the first or second cross will move about freely. Belgians and crosses from the Belgians are two distinct classes of birds, and are easily distinguished by a competent judge. Neither should be passed in the class to which it does not properly belong. The judge therefore can do a great deal to keep the Belgian pure. It is really pitiful to listen to the remarks to be heard well-nigh every other Saturday: "These are not Belgians, and I am surprised that Mr. —— (who judged) placed them in a class set aside for pure Belgians." The judge, on the other hand, when spoken to, says: "What could I do? The exhibits were put before me;" i.e., presumably with the full knowledge of the executive, so that he had to place them in the order of merit. In my opinion the management should exercise a censorship, and see that every exhibit is what it is represented to be. They may say, "We have too much to do on a show day to be able to examine each cage minutely, and the judge is an expert, and well up in his own section." But what every Belgian breeder wants are classes for pure Belgians. Then, and not until then, will they be satisfied with the classes.

The Breeding of Goldfinch-Canary and Linnet-Canary Mules.

By J. BARBER.

In writing of these birds we must first understand what they are. In the first place a Mule is commonly known as a bird produced from a Canary and a British bird, and a Hybrid is a bird produced by crossing two different kinds of British birds or foreign birds.

If you have a bird which you think is a Mule, you must look and see if it shows both sides of its parentage. If you think it is a Linnet Mule, you will find it of a brownish colour, but if it is a Canary, if a green one it will be of a greenish colour, especially the under parts, and if a marked Canary you will find the marked places more green in colour than brown. If you have a Goldfinch Mule it will have a longish beak, and the face will be coloured more or less with red feathers.

If you have had a nest of Canaries from your hen Canary first, or had a cock Canary running with her before you pair her to the British bird, don't build your hopes too high if you see in one of the young the feathers are coming lightly marked or clear, as the hen Canary sometimes has a young Canary in first nest then.

Plenty of Patience Needed.

I will deal with all the drawbacks first, for if you are to succeed in mule or hybrid breeding you must be prepared for them, and have plenty of patience, and if you don't succeed the first time don't lose heart, but keep on trying till you do, as everything comes to those who wait. If you fail the first time of trying don't say "Bother Mule breeding! Who wants to buy?" etc., but try again. And another thing, don't put your birds together until they are both in breeding condition, or you will be having unfertile eggs, or none

If you are going to try for Linnet Mules, if you have not a house-moulted bird, get some Linnets, as large as possible, early in the catching season, so as to get them steady and used to cage life, and hang them so they can see their intended partner all through the winter months, and by about January turn them into a breeding cage. The double breeding cage is to be preferred. Start to give them some wild seeds. The seeds I use I find always bring them in breeding condition, viz., 1lb. of charlock, 3ozs. dandelion, ½lb. of gold of pleasure, ½lb. of maw, and 4ozs. of turnip seeds, which I give in finger drawer every day. As a staple food I give 1lb. of Spanish Canary and 1lb. of German rape seeds, with a sprinkling of lin. and teazle seeds.

When your Linnet has got used to the breeding cage, put a wire slide in the cage and turn your hen Canary in one of the compartments, and give egg food every other day, and when you see the Linnet feeding the hen through the wire slide you can draw the slide out, and then put the nest pan in cage, and supply them with some nesting material.

As the hen lays the eggs, replace them with dummy eggs, and when she has laid her last egg, and started to sit, put them back, and take the dummy ones out. Shut the Linnet away from hen by means of the wooden slide, and let her sit the eggs and rear the young by herself.

When the young ones have left the nest, and you notice the hen Canary wanting to go to nest again, take the young ones out of the breeding cage and put them in a nursery cage, and hang it on front of the breeding cage. Then draw the slide and run the Linnet in again, and supply nesting material as before, and they will finish feeding the young ones through the wires. Don't forget to keep your Linnet in condition while your hen is sitting and feeding the young ones.

In the Case of Goldie Mules.

When breeding Goldfinch Mules treat them the same as the Linnet, only give different seed to the Goldfinch. The seed should consist of 1lb. of Canary, ½lb. of hemp, ½lb. of teazle, ½lb. of lin. seeds. Give as a tit-bit in the finger drawer equal parts of inga, thistle, and maw seeds, which will soon bring them into breeding condition. This will be evident from the black mark on the beak disappearing, and the beak will be of a pinkish colour; and when singing the bird will jerk his tail. You will have plenty of time to have a nest of Canaries off your hen Canary before putting her with the Goldfinch, as the latter are late breeders

If you are going to try and breed some Hybrids, you will find the single breeding cage of a large size the best. The size I prefer is 2ft. long, ½ yard high, and 14ins. deep, with a large door at one end. I place an old nest in one end and a piece of fir tree or gorse bush in front of it, to put it out of sight as much as possible, as British birds are generally very shy breeders. You must have some Canaries paired together that will lay about the same time as your hen British bird, because you will want the Canaries to sit the eggs from your British birds. The latter will not sit on the eggs or rear the young in captivity. Have the bottom of cage covered with sawdust, or any other soft material not injurious to birds, as they are very bad for dropping their eggs when perching, and if the cage bottom consists of bare boards the eggs will be broken. Don't forget to take the eggs out of the cage as they are laid, and replace with a dummy egg, and if the birds will sit them let them do so for about a week; then take the eggs out and get the birds ready for the next lot.

When breeding Mules you must get your pairs as large as possible; you want Mules large to win, if you intend showing them. It is everybody's ambition to breed a clear or lightly marked Mule, and the Sib-bred hen is used for this purpose; but if you are breeding them for song you will find a good Roller hen Canary as good as any. One thing I advise, if you are lucky enough to breed any Mules, teach them under either a good Canary or a British bird, and then, if not good enough for showing purposes, you can sell them as songsters, or as catching birds.

Some Interesting Canary Problems Considered.

BY CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

The following is written with a view to helping fanciers who are in real difficulty and need timely assistance. The breeding season is near, and one has to be up and doing in order to ensure some measure of success whilst the birds are fresh and fit, and, having done so, give the parents a chance to rest after their labours, and recuperate before the beginning of the next important season, to wit, the moult, which will put just as severe a strain upon them as the exertions of rearing families. It therefore behoves all prudent fanciers to mentally thrash out, without loss of time, the pros and cons of their hopes and desires in the breeding-room.

It is to help fanciers to solve their difficulties that a few genuine questions which have been put to the writer from time to time, and which appear to be of common occurrence (for which reason also the replies may fairly be assumed to be of general interest to many) are here set down and solved, so that he who runs may read.

Mode of Procedure.

To give pride of place to one of the first points claiming attention, the substance of the following query is very often heard during each breeding season: "I am turning the birds into aviaries. Is there any way in which I can let them fly loose and breed, and also keep them select, supposing I bought some prize-winners?"

Upon such a question as this, and, mind you, it is really a genuine one, a small volume might be written. It is simply asking whether one can breed birds on pedigree lines, mating them according to a carefully worked-out plan of one's own after considering each bird's parentage for at least two or three generations, and, if it has been mated before, the particular points it appears to stamp most frequently upon its progeny; whether, I repeat, one can attain these objects with birds over whose mating he has absolutely no control. And, yet again, it embodies the difficult question as to whether one can hope to produce prize-winners from birds picked up haphazard, whose sole qualification may be the very doubtful one of being a prize-winner. I say doubtful here advisedly. At minor local shows even the first prize winners may be quite mediocre specimens, which would never get near the cards in fairly strong open competition, and yet may be truly described as prize-winners. It is purely a mating on sight, aided and abetted (or rather blinded and prejudiced) by the bird's performances on the show-bench rather than by its breeding and the blood it possesses.

Such an idea should, in fact, be cast to the four winds without fear of consequences. Let pedigree have first, second, and third place, at least, when balancing up points, and let "sight mating" take an inconspicuous place at the rear, or come in "nowheer." Depend upon it, "blood will tell"—no matter whether it be common blood under a more or less aristocratic exterior, or good blood under a plebeian dress, it will come out on the surface in the progeny, sooner or later, or, which is yet more likely, sooner and later, or all along the line.

Arranging a Compromise.

As regards the first part of this query, one can arrange a kind of compromise and retain a certain amount of control over the breeding arrangements whilst allowing the birds to fly loose. But one must not expect to breed many prize-winners in this way unless he is prepared to set apart a whole room or aviary to each pair or trio of breeding stock. Under any other method the amount of control one has is very small, and the keeping of a proper and reliable pedigree register is a practical impossibility. In the first of these methods the procedure would be the same as for any ordinary caged specimens, the sole difference being that each pair or trio of birds would have freedom of flight in a larger sphere than the conventional breeding cage.

But when a larger number of birds are kept together the little control one can exercise lies in the direction of colour, and size, with a still more limited control over the markings. Say, for example, one intends to put up a stock of ten or a dozen birds—that is, three cocks and seven or nine hens. In a general way the cocks should be all clear yellows or buffs, and the hens suitably ticked or marked specimens of the opposite colour. If the stock generally wants a little more size, chubbiness, or feather, this may be provided for to a certain extent by double buffing to the extent of one cock, if buff hens are being employed, or if all buff cocks, by introducing two buff hens in place of two yellows. The latter is really the best way, because it is so much easier for one to identify the young of the pair of double-buffs by ringing, or otherwise marking, the young of these hens just before they leave the nest.

In the same way if there is a lack of natural colour, a ticked or marked cock may be used in place of one of the clears, and a green, and another heavily variegated hen substituted for two of the more lightly ticked or marked specimens, the young of these hens being marked before flight for future identification. In short, the whole system resolves itself into limiting one's efforts to one particular type of birds to breed for, and to do this in groups applying the same general rules to the mating of each group as is done when one is breeding from single birds in cages. To do this one must select both cocks and hens as nearly alike as possible, and so balanced that if breeding was about to be carried out in the orthodox manner in single pairs, any one of the cocks might reasonably be put up with either of the hens.

What Price Winners?

Another frequent question put is: "What price shall I have to pay for a pair to breed prize-winners?" The form in which the question is put may vary a little from the time to time, but the substance will always be the same. As well might one ask: How much will a man want for his horse?

Replying to the question as it stands, one might say off-hand ten shillings or ten thousand shillings and be correct in both cases. The first-named sum might, under certain circumstances, buy a pair of birds that will breed winners at local shows, whilst the latter sum, huge though it may appear, would be none too much to tempt a few breeders to relinquish possession of a pair of birds which their knowledge and experience led them to believe would produce good show birds. And it is a mere truism that the breeder who has built up a strain of good birds which will produce a certain number of prize-winners each year, knows his bird and their capabilities as no other man does. He also knows the birds' value to himself, and is not likely to let them go below that value, seeing that once disposed of there is always the possibility of their breeding birds against which his own stock may have to compete. Then, also, really good bred birds capable of producing prize-winners will always be in fair demand at a certain market value. But in buying from the breeder direct it is just possible that by chance this value may be temporarily ignored. The breeder may for some reason find it necessary to make room quickly, or may have an unusually large surplus stock, or be temporarily embarrassed in other ways, all of which may tend to cause him to dispose of birds at "bargain prices" to meet any of these peculiar circumstances. But, even so, do not expect to pick up the right class of birds for a few shillings per pair.

Of the commoner varieties, one might get a fairly moderate type of bird—not the best by a long way, mark you—at from 30s. to 40s. per pair; middle-class varieties, so to speak, at 50s. or 60s. per pair; whilst really high-class varieties of moderate quality such as Crests will run up to £8 to £10 per pair. In any case, a fair judgment of the popular prices of most breeds can be formed by a careful study of the advertisement columns of CAGE BIRDS for a few weeks during the season from November to March.

To be or not to be?

Following closely upon the heels of the last question comes another somewhat similar to it: "Must I be an exhibitor at shows to be able to sell stock?"

The issues raised by this apparently simple question (undoubtedly put forth, in this case, in perfect good faith and innocence) are very far-reaching, and not without a spice of peppery contention. But of the less desirable and prejudiced features we may here observe a discreet silence; not, indeed, because of any desire to gloss over an evil; much less to give credence to the existence of any such evil save in certain minds. It is the bona fide of the query of a tenderfoot in the Fancy that alone concerns us. In most cases it would be the wisest principle to reply to such a question from such a source in the affirmative. The curiosity of prompting the question seems to me quite obviously to be expressed in some such words as these—if I buy some prize-winners and breed from them shall I be able to sell them at good prices like Mr. So-and-So without first showing any birds or making my status quo as a breeder of champions known publicly?

Of course an old and tried breeder with an enviable record will be sure to be taken as a standard worthy of emulation. This being the case, then, to avoid misleading a novice into a false conception upon the matter, the question calls for an emphatic and decisive "Yes."

It is an undoubted fact that some few ultra-champion breeders, whose birds command the highest prices, are never found in the role of exhibitors at shows. But these "shining lights" have already "gone through the mill," and have built up strains and made a reputation for themselves and their studs which enables them to rest safely upon their past victories. If the novice would enjoy similar benefits, there can be no surer way than to tread the same beaten track and prove to the Fancy his capabilities to build up and maintain strains of the highest types.

If one makes a really judicious start in the Fancy and breeds a good type of bird capable of holding its own at the average show it is easily possible for him to dispose of all the surplus stock to personal friends of a kindred spirit, or through their recommendation, and again by the aid of advertisement. But in nearly every case it will prove a very uphill task to get more than the ordinary prices usually asked for birds of average merits, and fancy prices would be almost unattainable, and the credit for the careers of the best birds disposed of will almost invariably devolve upon the one who exhibits them, so that the much-desired reputation may never become un fait accompli. It is literally equivalent to "hiding one's own light under a bushel," and the beginner whose aspirations go no farther than this would be best advised to go in for an ordinary type of singing bird, or attractive birds for pets, to supply the popular and local demand for such birds.

Beautiful, Hardy and Enduring.

THE SCARLET TANAGER (Rhamphocalus brasilius).—The superlative is still my theme, and rightly so, as to escape therefrom is impossible, even if I so desired, with such a galaxy of beauty as adorns our plate. I trust I may be pardoned, if I ask what can surpass the regal array of the Scarlet Tanager? If I may be permitted a comparison I should say he was clad in carmine and black satin, which glows and reflects and assumes (so far as is possible) a minor key under the effects of light and shade.

This species, in spite of its glorious garb, does not meet with much success on the show bench. So many rarer and equally beautiful species are now to be obtained, that the once eagerly-sought-after Scarlet Tanager is numbered among Common Foreign Birds. Yet with all this, though several have come very near success, these birds have not yet been bred in this country. However, in Germany several have succeeded in rearing young of this species. One of the chief obstacles appears to be the difficulty of getting hens. If anyone had a garden aviary of medium size, with growing bushes and undergrowth, there should be more than a probable prospect of success, and what sight could be finer than a pair of these birds disporting themselves amid the growing greenery, with the very probable prospect of their life history (home life!), being daily revealed and laid bare to our observation! Once over the hardships of importation this species is hardy and enduring. What more need I say, than that one of this species lived for over four years out of doors all the year round in my garden aviary? Though not becoming tame enough for handling, it would eat fruit in close proximity to your feet, and with its congeners, the Blue, Maroon and Superb, was an adept at catching mealworms either on the wing or when stationary on a perch. It is altogether a delightful bird either for cage or aviary. Still, it cannot compare as a pet with the Green Bulbul and others already mentioned.

To emphasise its robust vigour, I will mention in passing that a fellow aviculturist, Dr. Walker of Sheffield, had a fine specimen, which escaped from his aviaries and spent part of the summer and autumn among the fruit trees of his neighbour's gardens, not remaining in the immediate vicinity, however, the whole period. Before it was recaptured, several nights of very sharp frost were experienced; yet it was in even better condition than when it escaped. But did not the fruit fly! It was a good thing those neighbours were sympathetic.

The diet given at the head of these notes will suffice to keep them fit and in sleek condition with ordinary attention and care. The hen bird is quite soberly clad in comparison with the cock bird. Instead of glowing scarlet, she is reddish-brown. Nevertheless, she is a handsome bird, but also a "suffragette." and not easily brought into submission to her regally-clad lord and master.

A Popular Tanager.

THE SUPERB TANAGER (Calliste fastuosa).—In what numbers (for Tanagers) this lovely species is kept, and how well it deserves its popularity! Its very name, "Superb," indicates its extreme beauty. Thus my theme in this series has been uninterrupted—it has been superlative all through. It must now draw rapidly to a close. All that I have said of the preceding species is equally applicable here, with perhaps one exception. It is not so robust as Tanagra or Rhamphocalus, and the like, but is nevertheless most certainly not fragile. Many of them are in rather a debilitated condition on arrival and need careful nursing at first; but once this critical period is past, they are not delicate. And, well fed and treated, as indicated in my opening remarks, their lives are certainly not short ones.

What gems they are in an outdoor aviary during the summer months! How their refulgent plumage glistens in the sun! And especially is this true of the feathers of the crown, face and back of the neck, which glisten and scintillate like the scales of a snake.

And now my "yarn" is finished, but this paper has been somewhat of a task, for it has been written against time. Yet it has been an infinite pleasure also, as I have lived some of my experiences over again, and recalled some "departed" favourites, whose places have been filled by other species; and I venture to hope that it will impart like pleasure and interest to my readers, and also prove of some practical value.

Club Reports.

WALLASEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The British Bird and Pair show, held on February 18th, was the final show for the season's special competition. The successful competitors are: 1, S. Hadwin, 63 points; 2, T. G. Woodman, 62: 3, G. Benson, 57 (most money); 4, S. S. Holford, 57. Silver medal for novice, F. Bayley.—Wm. MALLINSON, Sec. and Treasurer.

ECCLESHILL B.F.A.

A lecture was given by Mr. J. S. Clarkson (Halifax) before the members on February 12th, the subject being "Pairing and Breeding." Mr. Clarkson dealt with the subject in a thorough businesslike manner, which can only be expected from a fancier who has devoted nearly all his life to the study of all kinds of bird life. Both young and old fanciers learnt a few good wrinkles as the result of Mr. Clarkson's lecture, and a hearty vote of thanks was given him, he suitably responding.—W. NETTLETON, Sec.

DUBLIN P.C.B. AND P.A.

Committee meeting held at 6, South Anne-street, on February 9th. Mr. Webster occupying the chair. The hon. treasurer announced a deficit of about £6 on the show, but owing to the generosity of all the committee present, the deficit was reduced to a small amount. The hon. treasurer was directed to pay the prize money. A special vote of thanks was passed to Mr. L. Hearn for a generous donation of £2 2s. towards the funds, and to Mr. J. Blood Smyth and the hon. treasurer. Messrs. McLean and Webster were appointed hon. auditors. The date of the annual show was fixed for 16th and 17th November next.

MANNINGHAM C.B.A.

Annual dinner and social held on Feb. 12th at headquarters, Mowbray Arms, where the members had a splendid repast provided by Mr. and Mrs. J Newton, and the fanciers in the district know what that means. After dinner the chair was taken by our President (Mr. A. Huddlestone), who opened the social with a few appropriate remarks. The social proved the best we have had. Madam Lee and Miss Leigh, Messrs. Bilsboro, Metcalfe, Haley, West and Gardener contributed. Our Chairman then presented the special prizes to the following winners:—Cup and gold medal, Holroyd Bros., A. Grange; 2nd medal and 3rd prize reserved for novices, T. Smith; gold medal, presented by Holroyd Bros., T. Smith; money prizes, given by our host, 10s, most points, Holroyd Bros.; 10s for best bird in each of four members' shows, Holroyd Bros. (3), Mr. Dent (1). Votes of thanks to the host and hostess, artistes, and chairman brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.—H. GRANGE, sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

The sub-committee appointed to arrange for a change of headquarters have been successful in securing the use of the large room at the "Reindeer Hotel," Rye Lane, Peckham, in which to hold their members' shows, concerts, and meetings. The "Reindeer Hotel" is almost opposite Peckham Rye Station, and within three minutes of the L.C.C. electric cars to all parts. There is a private entrance to the meeting room, and we hope to continue our very popular Bohemian concerts. We will welcome lady friends to our shows and meetings. The room has been secured for our use every Tuesday night during the year, and at a considerable saving to our working expenses. The committee have arranged the following programme for the year, and trust the members will do their utmost to support them in making the various fixtures a great success:—Mar. 1st, pair and table show of British, judge Mr. Rohson; April 5th, lecture on "The Protection of British Birdkeepers" by Mr. Allen Silver; May 3rd, lecture on "Breeding and Exhibiting of Norwich," by Mr. L. J. Richardson; June 7th, young bird show, judge Mr. T. Heath; July 5th, lecture on "Seeds," by Mr. Trower; Aug. 23rd, British bird show; Sept. 6th, washing competition and exhibition, by Mr. J. W. Cranfield; Oct. 4th, lecture, "Pedigree versus Selection," by Mr. F. Cole; Nov. 8th, annual show, judges, Messrs. Rohson and Silver; Dec. 6th, annual Bohemian concert. Many other interesting items will be arranged during the year, including a country ramble in May. W. HODSON, hon. sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

An Egg-food Making Competition.

Meeting held February 14th, with Mr. A. W. Curtis in the chair. Messrs. R. G. Jenkinson and W. J. Styles were unanimously elected members. Result of ballot for judges:—Finch Show, C. Prior; Young Bird Show—Canary Section, J. Robson; British Section, A. Silver; Annual Show—Canary Section, J. Robson; British Section, H. Norman. The payment of prize money won at pair show then took place, and special prizes were presented. Not being able to settle (under the existing rules) a special prize which two members tied for, the chairman (who was an interested member) suggested that it be given to the Wynn Commemoration Benefit Fund, which was readily agreed to. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Robson for a donation towards the expenses of the recent pair show. Votes of thanks were also accorded to the pair show stewards and Miss R. Shephard. A schedule, consisting of 25 classes, was drawn up for the British and Foreign bird show on March 12th. A collection on behalf of the British bird prosecution appeal case was made, realising £1 1s. 3d., which was sent off to Mr. G. Crabb, c o CAGE BIRDS.

The Making of Egg-food.

An egg-food-making competition then took place. Previous to commencing, it was agreed that the judging should be for method, suitability of food, cleanliness, and quickness, which should be decided by ballot by the members present. Arranged along a table were six white pudding basins, containing a hard-boiled egg, and a teaspoon, and numbered from 1 to 6. The first competitor was Mr. W. Shepherd, who informed the members in a somewhat nervous voice, that this was his first public performance. Placing a 10-inch wooden-framed wire sieve over the first basin, he commenced to rub the egg through with a wooden spoon, each rub being directed towards himself. He next took a large slice of home-made Madeira cake, informing the members that this was made fresh every day, and, being very light and palatable, was eagerly sought for, and always cleared up by his birds. This he rubbed through his fingers, afterwards adding a little maw seed before finally amalgamating the whole. The process took three minutes. In answer to a question, Mr. Shepherd said that he made his mixture up four times a day. The next member (No. 2) was Mr. G. T. Pile, who started off with a similar wire sieve, but a size smaller, using a metal tablespoon to press the egg through, but using his hands to rub through the one-day-old household bread previously cut up into squares. In the final amalgamation he used a tablespoon, as he considered that by the use of a fork there was a possible danger of verdigris lurking on the prongs, which would contaminate the food. He made this fresh twice a day. The time taken was two minutes. No. 3 competitor was Mr. T. Kelly, who caused considerable merriment by walking up the hall with a large pestle on his shoulder and a mortar under his arm. Taking a large-sized piece of household bred, three days old, he commenced to rub it through on a coarse tin grater, it going through as though it was biscuit, being so hard. He next turned this into a wedgwood ware mortar, together with a whole egg, and pounded the whole of it up with the pestle, afterwards stirring it round with a teaspoon and adding maw seed at the same time to separate it from the solid mass. Time, two minutes. Last year's winner, Mr. T. Monger, was the fourth member to demonstrate. Passing his egg through a 6-inch tin-framed wire sieve with a wooden spatula, and afterwards four Osborne biscuits, he then mixed them slightly together in the basin, finally passing the whole of it again through the sieve, finishing up with a teaspoonful of maw seed, which, in his opinion, induced the hens to feed better. Time, three minutes. No. 5 brought forth Mr. W. Sanders (another first appearance in public). Cutting up his egg in many pieces, he proceeded to pass it through an ordinary domestic 12-inch wooden-framed wire sieve with a dinner knife, and with a piece of "tin" loaf bread passed it through the sieve with his hands. This bread he had proved was far superior than the household, for it was much lighter and crumbly. To these he added a teaspoonful of castor sugar when mixing up in the basin, an addition which stimulated his birds to eat it the more readily. The bread he used was after one day's baking. He here mentioned that by passing the bread through the sieve after the egg, he did away with any further cleaning, and so saved valuable time. Time, 2½ minutes. The 6th and last competitor was Mr. J. Warwick, who used an 8-inch wooden-framed wire sieve to pass his one-day-old bread through, but the chief interest was centred in the passing of the egg with a wooden presser, through a 2-inch tin tube, 5 ins. high, with a perforated plate in the centre. This was considered quick and clean. The bread being spongy, his time was, however, longer—3¼ minutes. Ballot papers were then handed round, and after the counting by the official scrutineers, Messrs. C. C. Offord and W. Shepherd, the chairman announced that Mr. T. Monger had been declared the winner, with Mr. Shepherd runner-up. A silver and bronze medal respectively were presented to the winners by the chairman, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. T. Kelly for an interesting "colour food" making demonstration afterwards.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S.

At the annual meeting, held in Co-operative Library, on February 12th, Mr. J. Hands presided over a very large turn-out. The report and balance-sheet were considered very satisfactory, especially as the latter showed a substantial balance in hand. The officers were then duly elected, F. R. Simpson, Esq., J.P., being re-elected hon. president, and Mr. J. Hands chairman. Owing to the resignation of Mr. J. Davison as treasurer, Mr. J. W. Clark was elected in his place. Also a strong working committee was elected. Six new members were proposed, so that "things are beginning to hum" at Blaydon. We decided to hold our annual show in the Co-operative Hall on November 4th and 5th.—GEO. HAYVER, Sec.

NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

During the evening on the occasion of our pair show (Feb. 12) it was announced by Mr. S. C. Rhodes, from the chair, that the committee had unanimously decided to withdraw from the London Federation of C.B.S., after carefully considering the reports of our delegates, and the benefits derived from affiliation to that body during the past year. One or two questions were asked, and Mr. Carr, as one of the delegates, made a few remarks on the subject. Mr. J. A. Bartlett said that he fully agreed with Mr. Carr, and had nothing to add. Mr. H. Ovenden then moved, and Mr. Mallett seconded, "that the action of the committee be confirmed," and this was carried unanimously. The chairman then announced that the following fanciers had been proposed for membership during the evening:—Messrs. P. Mays and Weston (Manor Park), Mr. Reed (Leytonstone), Messrs. H. B. Rout, C. Smith, C. R. South, and Paxman (East Ham), Messrs. A. Angliss and E. Pettet (Walthamstow), Mr. A. J. Marley (Leyton), Mr. Smith (South Woodford). There being no objection raised, all were duly nominated. A hearty vote of thanks was then given to Mr. J. S. Clarke for his kindness in judging the show, to which he suitably responded.—FORSE AND SON.

LEEDS. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held February 5th. The Chairman (Mr. P. Whiteley) opened the proceedings by presenting the secretary with a purse containing 35s., as an appreciation of his services, and to pay his out-of-pocket expenses in running five successful members' shows last year. This amount does not come out of the funds of the society, but has been given voluntarily by several well-wishers. The Secretary thanked these gentlemen for their kindness and thoughtfulness. The new rules referred to in the minutes apply to members' shows, and the most important are: One which states that the six birds competing for members' specials must be starred; and another which states that when all the exhibits in one class belong to one member the points will be halved in that class. Shall we hold an open show? came next, and after a lot of discussion it was decided to wait another year before speculating. It was thought by the majority that by then the air would have cleared with respect to the Cage Bird Union, and we should then be able to get the support we used to get from our north-country friends, who we hope by then will not have their hands tied, as at present, and will be at liberty to show where they like. The syllabus for 1910 was left for the committee to deal with. After the classes for pair show to be held at headquarters on March 5th had been allotted, Mr. F. Farrar, our vice-chairman, was unanimously elected to judge all classes, and as admission is free, we hope to see a good number of visitors, and be able to make some new members at this event. Mr. G. Burns (Leeds) was elected a member, and Mr. J. Crossley (Gildersime) handed in his name for election at next meeting.—J. CHAMBERS, Hon. Sec.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Monthly meeting held January 31st, Mr. A. Towl presiding. It was decided to hold a table show for matched breeding pairs of Norwich Canaries, hybrid pairs, and various classes for British birds, at our next meeting, on February 28th. Mr. W. H. Moore will judge. Mr. J. T. Cotterill was elected hon. treasurer in the place of Mr. Metcalfe, resigned.—MOORE AND HARDING, Secs.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

In making up the points gained throughout the season in the champion Yorkshire Green Cup Competition Mr. Clayton is credited with 122 points instead of 123, which makes the difference of Mr. Clayton being beaten by Mr. Rowlands by only one point instead of two. I shall be glad if you will allow me to make this correction through your paper, and to apologise to Mr. Clayton for the mistake.—S. HADWIN, Sec.

BOLTON AND DISTRICT O.S.

Annual social held February 9th, Mr. J. Smith taking the chair. Mrs. Massey and Mr. M. Sweeney rendered songs, and concertina selections were given by Messrs. Smith, Allinson, and Turner, musical glasses by Mr. Turner, and recitations by Mr. Webster. Mr. Kilshaw presided at the piano. A hearty vote of thanks to the artistes and the chairman for their services, moved by Mr. Proctor, and seconded by Mr. Gerrard, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. —H. PARKINSON, Sec.

PUDSEY AND STANNINGLEY O.S.

A very successful and enjoyable social was held on February 12th. Mr. E. Craven, of the Bramley O.S., made a most efficient chairman, and kept the meeting well in hand. Toasts to the president (Mr. Marsh), the society, and the visitors were drunk with musical honours. Mr. Raper presided at the piano, and Messrs. Stevens, Benson, Palfreman, and Miss Richmond rendered capital songs, which were much appreciated. During the evening prizes were presented to the successful competitors for 1909 as follows: Messrs. Pawson, Butler, Richmond, Marsh, and Bracewell. Votes of thanks to Mr. Richmond for providing the vocalists, and to Mr. Craven for presiding, brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.—J. BUTLER, Sec.

NORTHERN BRITISH B.M. & F.B.C.

At a meeting held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger-street, Newcastle, business was commenced by enrolling two new members, in Mr. Noble and Mr. Smart. It was decided to amalgamate classes 1, 2, and 3, making them A.V. British and A.V. Foreign. Medals were selected, to be presented along with cups at our next meeting. Proposed by Mr. G. Taylor, seconded by Mr. C. G. Petterssen, "That we hold a table show at our next meeting, the following classes to be provided for: Field-moulted Linnet, Greenfinch, and A.V. British; also A.V. Foreign. Mr. J. Irving judge." The table show resulted as follows: BRIT.: 1, Bertram and Storey, Goldfinch; 2, Hamilton, Greenfinch; 3, Irving, Chaffinch. FOR.: 1, Petterssen, Green Avadavat; 2, Weddle, Goldfinch. Proposed by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Petterssen, that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded Mr. G. Taylor for officiating as judge, which brought a most enjoyable meeting to a close.—J. BERTRAM, Sec.

NORTHERN YORKS C.C.

Annual meeting held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger-street, Newcastle, on February 16th, Mr. J. Curry in the chair. The secretary presented the balance-sheet, which was adopted, and showed a balance in hand of 15s. 2d. The report was also adopted as read, after which the following officers were elected: President, G. W. Cuthbertson, Esq.; vice-presidents, Mrs. Irwin Dees, Dr. C. Duncan O'Neal, W. J. Taylor, Esq., T. Pearce, Esq.; chairman, Mr. J. Curry; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Shepherd; auditor, Mr. J. E. Atkinson; committee, as last year, with the addition of Messrs. F. Johnson, J. E. Atkinson, W. Tomlinson, R. Hutler, W. Curry, and C. E. Dix. It was proposed and carried that we have shields provided and engraved with holder's names for our challenge cup, the plinth for which is being given by the present holder, Mr. R. Hutler. The cups and medals, as previously announced, were presented by the chair an to the various winners. The following were admitted members: Mr. R. Stewart (Newcastle) and Mr. R. Addison (South Shields). A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Dr. O'Neal for the magnificent novice prize. Next meeting April 13th, when I will give an address on "Our Ideal."—T. C. CRAWHALL, Sec.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

Annual meeting, held on February 19th, at the Rochdale O.C. room. It was expected that there would be a good muster present to discuss the question re the type of the Lancashire, great dissatisfaction having been expressed through some of the judges placing birds at the top of the class that were not of the Lancashire type. Mr. J. Nadin, of the Rochdale club, occupied the chair, in his usual discreet way. The balance-sheet was presented; it showed a working balance for 1910 of £3 14s. 7½d. Mr. Nadin in handing the medals to the winners, said he was pleased to present the awards, as it had interested him much in noticing the struggle for same. Mr. Adams, late secretary, took the gold medal in the champion section, with 114 points; Mr. W. Lee second, 66 points (silver medal). For the bronze Mr. Hardy scored 47 points. A pleasing and noticeable feature was in the novice section, where Mr. E. T. Turner of Rochdale, secured 98 points, and carried off the gold medal. As a word of encouragement to novices, it might be stated that this is Mr. Turner's first year as an exhibitor. Second place was secured by the late and respected fancier, Mr. Fish, of Littleborough, with 76 points. The bronze medal was won by Mr. G. Fitton, 70. Seven extra silver medals were given, the winners being: Champion section, Adams (Rochdale and Frome); 2, W. Hardy (Nottingham); Novice, E. T. Turner (Manchester, Good Intent, Littleborough, and Middleton) winning all four. Application for membership was made by Mr. A. Hordern, and Mr. J. Laycock, jun., both were declared unanimously elected. The scrutineers' report was presented and passed. The chairman pointed out that the position of the society was advancing, and he would like to see still more progress made.

The Lancashire Type.

As regards the Lancashire type, or the Crest and Lancashire, the chairman said this was a very important question, and one which had been dealt with on several occasions. The type—and the only type—of the Lancashire Canary was the one that carried the horse-shoe shaped coppy, and stood erect.

Mr. Whitehead: The birds should be put down if they do not possess these qualities.—Mr. Nadin: Judges have their own opinions, and I think that if the secretaries were instructed to inform the judges, under their own patronage, and they were expected to judge according to the true type, it would help to get over the difficulty.—Mr. Fitton: Birds showing Crest properties ought to be put out of the prize money—at the bottom of the class. (Hear, hear.)—Mr. Adams: I have tried this experiment as a test under an acknowledged Lancashire judge, and he placed the bird third. I have also sent it out as a test to four other shows, and it gained three 1sts, the fourth and only occasion the bird was rightly put down.—Mr. Whitehead referred to a minute that was penned at Stockport, which read: "That any exhibit which shows signs of Norwich properly be disqualified."—Mr. Nadin: On the schedules sent out it stated "purity of race"; I think we can only refer show secretaries to draw the judges' attention to this matter.—Mr. Laycock, sen.: If they are not of the horse-shoe shape and do not stand up, what have we to breed to?—Mr. Adams: I think more care ought to be taken in the judges selected, and recommended to societies when they ask for our patronage. I move that all secretaries be furnished with a standard list for them to impress on the judges to judge for type.—Mr. Nadin: Our secretary will carry this matter forward.

It was decided to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. Fish, of Littleborough, on account of the regretted death of her husband. It was also decided that the last date for application for patronage of this society be July 11th. The next meeting will take place at the Great Eastern, Rhodes Bank, Oldham, at the end of April.

LIVERPOOL O.S.

At the show held on February 15th, the following gentlemen were elected the officials for the ensuing year:—President, Col. W. H. Walker, M.P.; vice-presidents, J. S. Clinch, Esq., Dr. O'Connell, Councillor Whitaker, and Sykes H. Gibson, Esq.; chairman, Mr. G. B. Daniels; vice-chairman, Mr. W. Hales; treasurer, Mr. E. Lawson; auditors, Messrs. Cutmore and Spinks; committee, Messrs. T. Rowlands, Deacon, Gore, Murray-Jones, Nimmo, W. Walker, W. C. Thomas, A. Coffey, and W. Douglas; secretaries, Messrs. Metcalfe and Hillmen. A large amount of correspondence was gone into and settled, with the exception of the judge for the Norwich section of open show; it was decided to let this matter stand over until we hear from the N.P.C. Messrs. R. Atherton, F. E. Hawkes, and A. J. Gregory were made members. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the judge and chairman.—METCALFE AND HILLMEN, Hon. Secs.

DERBY C.B.C.

Our postponed monthly meeting was held on February 12th at the Derwent Hotel. The balance-sheet was passed, and showed a balance in hand of £1 14s. 8d., which is on the right side. Considering we have made up a loss of £12 on our previous year's account, this is very good. The election of officers was proceeded with. The offices were all filled up with the exception of the secretary's, which was left over to the next meeting. There was a discussion on the colour food, which was used by the Norwich fanciers, and it was decided that it should all be bought through the secretary. It was also proposed and seconded that all past members be not allowed to rejoin until they have paid their levy. We shall consider whether to hold an open show this year. There is £2 in hand, which is allotted towards buying two cups, one each for the Norwich and Crest. I shall be pleased to receive any subscriptions which any friends or members may be disposed to give us for this object.—W. STEVENS, Sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM.

The first of the series of entertainments was held on Feb. 5, in the supper room of No. 1 Goth, there being a large gathering. The meeting was opened by the worthy president, Mr. Stenhouse, who in his opening speech said this was their first venture, but he hoped they would be able to hold an open show for pairs next year. He proposed the health and prosperity of the society. The secretary then asked the members to drink the health of the President, which was done in a very appreciative way. The entertainment was begun by a song by our worthy treasurer, Mr. D. McCorville. The chairman also responded with a song, and the other artistes included Messrs. Dickson, Barclay, Mackintosh, Cowan, and Cargill. The health and quick recovery of our worthy vice-president was proposed. He has been unable to be amougst us through a very severe attack of rheumatism. The health of the secretary was also proposed, and the rest of the evening passed in birdy talk. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought an enjoyable evening to a close.—J. FORD, sec.

BRIGHTON C.B.A.

Meeting held on February 9th, at King and Queen Hotel, Marlborough-place. Mr. C. Pearson in the chair. The following officers were elected: President, Capt. C. G. Tryon, M.P.; vice-presidents, The Hon. W. F. Rice, M.P., His Worship the Mayor of Brighton (Councillor E. Geere); chairman, Mr. C. Pearson; vice-chairman, Mr. H. T. Gibb; hon. secretary, Mr. A. T. Riddles, 29, Irwood-crescent, Brighton; treasurer, Mr. J. Roast; auditors, Messrs. A. Goble and W. H. Gibb; committee, Messrs. H. Jaines, G. B. Absalom, F. Small, G. Foxall, J. Boxall, G. France, R. Sharpe, F. Dandrige, A. Flook, and A. E. Bignell. It was decided to hold a table show on March 9th, at headquarters, for Canaries, British and Mules, also a judging competition and washing exhibition. Mr. Roast offered a prize for most points in judging competition throughout year, and Messrs. Boxall and France one each for 2nd and 3rd most points. Our membership is open, and I should be pleased to hear from any fanciers wishing to join; fee 2/6 per year, and 1/- entrance fee; ladies, 2/6 per year inclusive. Although this was only our second meeting, we have a membership of 37.—A. T. RIDDLES, Hon. Sec.

BOLTON AND DIST. ROLLER C.S.

At a meeting held February 8th, Mr. W. Massey gave a lecture on the tours of the Roller Canary. There was a good attendance. Mr. Massey explained at some length the different tours and the way they should be sung, also explaining the faults. He specially advised novices on the look-out for stock birds to get those with deep, hollow tours, as this was the foundation of a good bird. He also said he thought that five points for the bass was hardly enough, as it was quite as important as the hollow roll, and harder to sing. The Koller roll caused a little controversy as to what the roll really was, on account of birds getting points for the Koller where there is such a big doubt about their having the Koller at all. Mr. Massey happened to be in a position to explain this particular tour, as he had had the pleasure to have a bird lent to him for a week which had been specially imported from Germany for this particular tour. He explained that this tour was a kind of three in one, comprising the bell, bass and water glucke sung together; yet each sound could be distinctly heard. In fact, he said, if the bird were not seen, anyone would have thought there were three different birds singing at the same time. He doubted very much that this particular tour would become popular with Roller fanciers, for the tour seemed to take so much out of the bird that the other part of its song developed into faults. After a few questions a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Massey for the able manner in which he had explained the different tours, in replying to which Mr. Massey promised to give a further paper on the breeding of the Roller Canary. A most interesting evening was spent.—JAS. KELSHAW, President.

THE YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

An Interesting Account of Its Progress

The Yorkshire Canary Club was formed in 1894, and the person who would not admit that it had accomplished its purpose and thoroughly justified its existence must indeed be ignorant of the objects aimed at, or wilfully blind to indisputable facts. That it has not accomplished all of what it was or is capable of doing cannot be denied, but this charge, I contend, cannot fairly be attributed to any fault of the club itself, but rather to a certain amount of shortsightedness (no doubt pardonable to a degree) on the part of those who have been responsible for its management since its foundation.

The Objects of the Club.

What, then, were the objects in view when the club was formed? I cannot do better than answer this question in the words of Rule 2 of the club itself, which rule says: "The objects of the club shall be the encouragement of the breeding, exhibiting, and extending the classification of the Yorkshire Canary in every direction." In other words, the promoters had in view the accomplishment of what is to-day a recognised fact by thousands of fanciers (though perhaps disputed by some), viz., the enthronement of the Yorkshire as the "King of the Fancy," and whether this is absolutely correct or not must always be subject to a certain amount of difference of opinion as a result of the varying likes of individuals and districts. This apart, however, the stubborn facts as they present themselves to-day must convey to the unbiassed mind the unanswerable impression that the fondest hopes and highest ambitions of the founders of the club have been abundantly fulfilled and realised. Their commendable foresight, in this instance, at any rate, in the method adopted to bring about this result will stand to their credit so long as the Fancy remains.

What was this method? Unquestionably, the creating of popular opinion in favour of the cultivation of the Yorkshire bird in districts other than the county of its adoption. They had no misgiving or ill-conceived conception as to its unassailable popularity at home in the "Broad Acres," and were unanimously and enthusiastically of opinion that "foreign" fields were open to conquest.

Where the Club Scored.

With this aim in view, they decided to accord a very liberal share of their patronage to societies outside Yorkshire who were willing to include in their show schedules anything approaching a decent classification for the Yorkshire bird. Let it be recorded here that they were acting under no delusion in this matter. They were fully alive to the fact that this method must eventually bring about a slight weakening of their own membership roll, and thus they entailed a self-sacrifice and self-effacement commendable in the highest degree, and made more conspicuous by its regrettable rarity in individuals and societies alike. They sacrificed their own ambitions, all personal aggrandisement, and a considerable pecuniary interest on the altar of the common good for the bird of their choice. No doubt exists that through the adoption of a very conservative and parochial method the membership of the club could have been considerably augmented by the addition of many of the ever-increasing number of "outside Yorkshire" fanciers and exhibitors of this variety. But this would have been attained at the expense of the universal popularity of the bird itself—a thing most scrupulously and deliberately avoided.

What further proof of the wisdom of the methods adopted can be desired than the existence to-day of such institutions as the Southern Yorkshire, the Northern Yorkshire, the Irish Yorkshire, the Cumberland Yorkshire, and the Midland Yorkshire Canary Clubs? All are undoubtedly the result, in a great measure, of the broadminded policy adopted by the parent society, and all were welcomed by it, and their success affords unbounded satisfaction to the club which rightly claims to have made their existence not only possible but necessary.

What of the Future?

So much, then, for what the club has accomplished. But what of the future? I think it must be admitted that having seen its offspring so firmly established in the various parts of the kingdom and not having much to expect in the way of increased membership from such districts as are now so well catered for, it behoves the club to direct almost its entire efforts to the interests of its own home, and afford all possible encouragement and assistance to those societies whose members constitute almost its only means of support. This would mean that its patronage would be accorded in the main to Yorkshire societies, although, no doubt, one or two prominent exceptions would be made where it could enter into friendly rivalry with its vigorous offspring.

If, as I previously indicated, I must refer to what appears as a shortsighted policy on the part of the management in the past, I do so with the utmost reserve, knowing full well the difficulties which had to be encountered in the early days with regard to indueing societies to give what could be considered a satisfactory classification. Things are very different to-day, and I make full allowance for such. Nevertheless, the fact remains that many societies are called upon and, indeed, are anxious to provide many classes for Yorkshires, which, strictly speaking, are treated as separate and apart from those required by the Yorkshire Canary Club, although these "extra" classes are allowed to count for the club's prizes.

In 1897 there was formed what is known as the Cinnamon-marked Yorkshire Canary Club, and its phenomenal success, especially during late years, speaks volumes for the earnestness and enthusiasm of those who manage its affairs. Then, again, the year 1909 has produced what, judging by its membership roll, promises to become a power in the land in the form of the National Green-marked Yorkshire Canary Club.

Now, I contend, with a due appreciation of the merits and deserts of these varieties of Yorkshire, the Yorkshire Canary Club should have so catered for them as would have relieved their promoters of the necessity of forming a specialist club for their exclusive cultivation. To a very large extent their membership rolls are simply a duplication, and in all such cases the annual subscriptions for the three clubs is six shillings and sixpence. Taking into account the amount that could have been saved in printing expenses, management, etc., I think I am well within the mark when I say that the three clubs could have been equally well served under one management for an inclusive fee of 5s., or less. Whether these specialist clubs have now so completely captured the affections of their members as to make such an arrangement in the future impossible remains to be seen, but certain it is that such an impasse would never have been reached if the management of the Yorkshire Canary Club could have been induced to look far enough ahead to perceive and thoroughly understand the signs of the times.

However, with or without such an arrangement, the part the Yorkshire Canary Club has played in the past, and the splendid manner in which it caters for its members at present, for the modest sum of 2s. 6d. per annum, should be sufficient inducement to purely Yorkshire fanciers alone to make the membership quite double what it is at present, a figure which, I feel confident, would have been reached ere now, had it not adopted the methods of self-sacrifice to which I have previously referred. And this is just the reason why it should not have to appeal in vain for an increased membership from the ranks of fanciers resident in Yorkshire. The cultivation of a standard, the keen competitions it has inaugurated for its valuable trophies and prizes, its untiring efforts in popularising the variety throughout the entire country has made the Yorkshire what it is to-day, and created such a demand for it as to make its breeding profitable as well as pleasant. Such work cannot have had other than beneficial results to fanciers all round, and, looked at in this light, it is impossible to believe that they who have reaped and are reaping the benefits will allow the club to suffer for having so nobly fulfilled its mission.

The future is with the fanciers themselves. With an increased membership its usefulness will not only be maintained, but extended proportionately, and it is with a view to merely asking our Yorkshire fanciers for justice that I appeal to them to increase our membership on the figure at which it now stands, and which has been practically stationary for the past four years at least, viz., about 170, to somewhere within the region of 300.—JOHN GREAVES, Secretary.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

A Difficult Patient.

A Worried Reader.—It is rather unfortunate that the bird positively refuses to take just that portion of the treatment which would do it most good. Try it with the sponge cage in this way. Allow the cake to get quite stale and rather dry. Then crush up about a small teaspoonful, or rather less, add four drops of sherry, and two of cod liver oil emulsion, and rub well together, so that it will still remain in a fairly dry crumbly state, and sprinkle it with gold of pleasure. If it will not eat it, then try it with a small piece of bread sopped in milk, with two drops of the emulsion dropped on it and sprinkled slightly with fine sugar. In the drinking water try it with twelve drops of glycerine and five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine, every second day for a week, then miss a week, and repeat again for a week, as often as may be necessary. If, agaiu, it quite refuses to touch this, mix together two parts glycerine, one part each parogoric, and oxymel of squills, and a half part of tiucture of benzoin. Shake together, and give the bird two drops, direct into beak, every evening for a fortnight. Continue to follow up other instructions in last reply as to general treatment.

Skin Trouble.

Reader.—The bird seems to have been very improperly treated, and you will probably find recovery if it does take place, will be very slow. If it has not been transferred to a clean cage since coming into your possession, remove it temporarily to another cage, and well scrub out the one it occupies now with a fairly strong hot solution of carbolic fluid. Repeat it next day; when dry after this, do it over with paint, enamel, or distemper, whichever you prefer, inside, and revarnish outside. Allow it to dry thoroughly before returning the bird. Allow the bird to bathe freely as often as it likes, so long as it does not seem chilled after it. Feed on plain Canary seed only as staple. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days for the next month give the same quantity of crushed sponge cake, with a sprinkling of maw and gold of pleasure seed on it, and twice each week well mix in it as much as will cover a threepennypiece of a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash. In the drinking water give six drops of lemon juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence twice a week. Give a spray of green food daily, and keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand. Slightly anoint the bare places twice a week with warm olive oil, or a little carbolised vaseline. Do not smear feathers unnecessarily.

Cock Roller with Cold.

Miss E. Siman.—I do not remember the details of your previous query, but unless there were some peculiar circumstances connected with your birds I hardly think I could have advised you to mate the birds forthwith. A month hence would have been quite soon enough. The cock has probably caught a slight cold during the recent variable weather. Remove him quietly in the evening from the breeding cage, and cage him separately, leaving the hen to hatch and rear the young by herself. You must, however, take particular notice of her for a few hours, and during the next day, after moving the cock, and if she leaves the nest and refuses to return to it, you must return the cock, and let things take their course. When caged alone keep the cock in a cosy place, quite free from draughts or fluctuations, and give a morsel of bread sopped in milk and sprinkled with soft sugar, every second day for a week. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week. If you cannot remove him from the hen, give the mixture as above to both every half-day for a week, or until young are due to hatch; say, give it last thing at night, and replace with fresh pure water about mid day. You must stop giving it the day before young are due to hatch. You are giving far too much rape. Reduce the quantity to three parts canary to one part rape. There should be no necessity to discard the cock. He may get in good condition for the next nest.

Slow Improvement and Blindness.

M. A. L. X.—As I said before, recovery in such cases as yours is often very slow indeed. That some of them have already lost the fatty accumulations is a hopeful sign for further improvement. Those that have lost the fat you may transfer to another cage, but still let it be of good size for plenty of exercise to be taken. Give these, in addition to the diet previously advised, a morsel of ripe banana twice a week, and a pinch of rape every second day. Once a week only, give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with six drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, among each three birds. But be careful not to exceed these quantities for the present. Get a chemist to mix you the following: Tincture of gentian half ounce, aromatic sulphuric acid two drachms; and tincture of nux vomica one drachm. Be careful with this, as it is a poison. Give six drops of the mixture in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water every second day for a week, then miss a week, and repeat again if necessary for another week. Suspend the other treatment for the rest of the birds for one week, and treat them as above. Then resume the same treatment as previously advised until they, too, have quite lost the fatty accumulations, when you may complete the treatment as above for them also. It is very doubtful whether they will do much good in the breeding line this year. As regards the bird blind in one eye, if otherwise quite active, and provided the blindness is due to no organic disease, there can be no objection to mating it. It would probably breed all right.

A Question of Management.

G. H.—You seem to be pretty well over-doing things in the commisariat department, and the position of the bird in the kitchen is, in all probability most unsuitable. If you can transfer the birds to a room where the temperature is more equable, even if it is a cold one, as advised to "Whistler," that course would be most advisable. If you cannot do this you must contrive some means of keeping them fairly cosy, and at the same time free from constant extremes of heat and cold, and at the same time quite free from draughts. Exposure to the latter seems to be solely the cause of your trouble with the birds moulting. When you have duly attended to the above points, put the birds on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple. Every second day give each half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On the days when you are not giving the latter, give also either a morsel of banana, or a few grains of hemp. Four times a week give a little green food. Limit the diet to this for the present. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel two days in every three for a week, and every second day after until the moulting is stopped.

Birdroom, Variety and Illness.

T. B.—(1) Am afraid the bathroom will not make a very desirable place for bird-breeding, unless you have very efficient top ventilation to prevent steam collecting in the room when bath is in use. If bath is in regular use for hot water the steam would certainly do the birds a lot of harm, unless the above provision was made. The west wall would be best for birds if you decide to keep any there. The south will be subject to continuous draughts from stairway to fireplace. Altogether, I cannot think you will do much good with birds in this room, and cannot advise you to try the experiment. (2) Norwich are as good a breed as any for hardiness, and would succeed in the room if any breed would. If they don't succeed, no other breed will. (3) Is this bird being kept in the bath-room? If so, it is a good example for you of what you may expect to find in all birds kept there. Your feeding is also wrong. As a staple give plain canary only; every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately, and on the alternate days for the next fortnight give the same quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and gold of pleasure, and four times a week a spray of green food. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. But if kept in the bath-room you must not expect much, if any, improvement until the conditions are altered.

Making Wire Fronts, etc.

Admirer of "C. B."—Sorry your query reached just too late for a reply to be got in last issue. Had you started to make a wire front without any kind of frame, you must quickly have realised the vast convenience of having something stable to hold your punched bars in position whilst you solder the wires. There are a great variety in use, as they are nearly always made by the amateur himself, and, of course, vary to suit the taste and requirements of the individual. If you could turn up a few back numbers of the paper you will find several illustrated, with instructions for making them, which will make the matter far more clear than pages of writing. Four pieces of wood about 1in. by 1½ins., and of a suitable length to accommodate the fronts you are going to make, nailed together at the corners so as to form a true square, or rectangle, as the case may be, with saw-cuts up each side corresponding with each other, in which you press the ends of the punched bars to be held securely in the proper position whilst you insert and solder the wires, is really all you require, though you can make it as elaborate and mechanical as your patience and skill incline you. By all means enamel your sand trays. It is also an excellent plan to do them over first with one or two thin coats of shellac dissolved in methylated spirit to the consistency of thin cream. This fills the wood, and makes it impervious to the foul moisture from droppings, which soon makes the sand trays malodorous in warm weather. Either of the enamels you mention are excellent. A tin sand-tray coated with enamel would not harm the birds at all—still, I do not care for them personally, on account of the weight. If used, I should prefer leaving them in the bare state, when they could be scalded to purify them as often as needed.

Various.

P. C., Paris.—Sorry I don't know the popular term used for our tasteless pepper in your country. Most likely the book sent you, which contains an exhaustive history, will enlighten you, but I fear you will find it extremely difficult to get the article in the form we have it without importing it, on account of its being in so little request in your country for colour-feeding birds. A ready prepared food containing the correct proportions of the article for general use among Canaries when moulting is made by the firm you mention, and you could doubtless get it quite easily, to order, even if they do not stock it regularly, from the Paris branch of their establishment. I suspect the cause of dirty feet is due indirectly to wrong feeding, causing unhealthy evacuation. Feed as frequently advised in this column, and do not give hemp very frequently. Neither supply millet liberally—Canaries very rarely care about it, and much of it is not good for them. Canary seed is a long, oval, or torpedo-shaped seed of a straw colour, size about one-half that of a grain of wheat. Millet is a round, globular seed. There are several varieties, ranging in size from that of black rape to about half the size of hemp, and in colour from milky white to dark reddish brown. The white is the most frequently used for feeding small birds—chiefly foreign species. As your seasons are earlier than ours, you would probably find the beginning of March the best time for mating. Let your wild birds be your guide. A fortnight or so in advance of the usual time, when your wild birds are busy nesting generally, is a pretty safe guide.

Heavy Breathing and Moulting.

H. A. C. D.—You have apparently been rather over-doing the luxuries, and I suspect the bird's heavy breathing is largely due to an overfed condition. The moulting I imagine is due to variations between day and night temperature, if, as you say, you are quite satisfied it is not exposed to any draught. Keep him in a fairly comfortable position, where the temperature is as equable as possible, though not necessarily very high. As a staple food, give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days, give a pinch of hemp and a morsel of banana, or two small young dandelion leaves. Let him bathe as often as he likes, provided he does not seem chilled by doing so. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for three days, and afterwards give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the moulting is stopped. On the alternate during the latter part of treatment, give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus for a week. Shake well together. It may possibly be in good condition for mating by the beginning of April.

A Doubtful Case.

I. H. R.—I hardly think your hen could have been troubled with asthma, and am very sceptical indeed about her giving it to the cock in such a short time, and both cases proving so obstinate. Is there no possibility of the position in which this pair of birds were placed for breeding being exposed to cold draughts? Even if other birds did well in close proximity it is not necessarily a guarantee that this pair were not exposed to adverse influence of a localised character, which would explain both birds becoming affected about the same time. If this is not what has occurred, and the hen was affected in any way when you got her, it was probably a mild type of bird fever, and in case this should be correct, I would advise you to keep these birds and all that comes in contact with them, completely isolated from your other stock, and to restrict them as much as possible to a diet of seeds and green food. For the next month adopt the following treatment and then report result, referring to this reply. Keep them in separate cages, and be quite sure they are secure from draught and sudden fluctuations. Keep cages well strewn with clean gritty sand, clean out often, and do not use the same sand twice. Feed on plain canary as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and twice each week on the alternate days give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On each of the remaining alternate days give a spray of green food. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom Salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and afterwards give six drops each of glycerine, oxymel of squills, and four each of paregoric and chlorodyne, every second day for a week. Then miss a week and repeat it the next week.

Pairing up Yorkshires.

Answered by H. W. BATTYE.

Would you be so kind as to ask Mr. H. W. Battye what would be the results of pairing the following Yorks, and which would be the best pair? The hen is clear yellow with pink eyes, and she was bred off a clear yellow cock with pink eyes and a cinnamon ticked buff hen. The cocks are: No. 1, heavily marked green buff cock, brother to the hen; No. 2, ticked buff cock with pink eyes; No. 3, ticked buff cock with dark eyes.—DOESNOTWANTMUCH.

If you want to breed cinnamon, ticked or marked birds, No. 2 cock is the one to use; and if you want only green ticked, or dark-eyed birds, then No. 3 would be the bird to use. No. 1 I should not pair with this hen. I do not approve of such close inbreeding. But in breeding Yorkshire type (that is, shape along with position) should be your first consideration, and not having seen the three cocks you name, I cannot say what would be the probable results in regard to shape, position, quality, etc. If the hen has a weak point, say, for instance, a bit low on leg, then use the cock bird that stands best on his legs; and so on. Without seeing the birds, I do not see how I can say anything further.—H. W. BATTYE.

Brevities.

A Second Missive (Miss E. Siman).—The reply sent to your first letter will fully reply to your second as regards the removal of the cock and the ability of the hen to rear any young that may be hatched without his assistance. It would have been an advantage if you could put in a solid partition, so that the hen cannot see the cock to incite her to fight with him. You may also give three or four more doses of the medicine on consecutive evenings to the cock, which should be all that is required. Return him to the hen when the young are about twelve or fourteen days old. You would find "Canary Breeding for Beginners" very useful, 7d. post free from our manager. No need to apologise; always pleased to help readers.

A Queer Turn-up (P. T. H.).—Cannot guess at what was wrong, without some more definite information as to how it was affected. As your treatment seems to have been quite successful, the probability is that constipation was at the root of it, and your treatment was well calculated to remove this. For the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days an equivalent quantity of bread sopped in cold milk, and slightly sprinkled with soft sugar. Twice each week give also just a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, and gold of pleasure. Give a spray of green food: fresh young dandelion leaves, if obtainable, every second day. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. Continue giving the latter for a fortnight.

Removal of Cataract (S.Y.C.C. Member).—There is absolutely no means of removing the cataract save by a surgical operation, and this method is not practicable in cage-birds. Other kinds of treatment are quite futile, and, therefore, better left alone. If the bird is in good health and active, you might, if you wish, try mating her, and if she lays give the eggs to foster parents to hatch and rear. But I would strongly advise you to resist the temptation, and keep her out of the breeding cage.

Feeding Rollers (A. A.).—Your feeding is certainly not correct, but it would not necessarily account for the death of your bird. As a staple diet give three parts canary to one part summer rape, mixed together. Once a week give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake which vary now and again by giving a morsel of bread soaked in milk and slightly sprinkled with soft sugar instead. Also once a week give a small pinch of hemp, which again you may vary by substituting a pinch of maw, or inga, or gold of pleasure from time to time. Three or four times a week give a spray of green food. This is all that is really needed, and apples to both your questions.

A Bad Foot (H. C. W.).—Keep the cage-floor strewn thickly with clean sawdust, and the perches, which should be of quite soft wood and of fair size, as clean as possible, in order to keep the foot as free as possible from external dirt. Catch the bird daily, and hold foot for a few minutes in a hot solution of boracic acid; say, about a small teaspoonful of acid dissolved in four tablespoonsful of water. Use it fairly hot, but, of course, far below scalding point. If it still appears to contain fluid, after bathing on the first day, insert a clean needle between the scales, and prick it, and gently press out as much as possible of the contents. Then wash clean in the solution, wipe dry, and paint all over foot with a feather dipped in Friar's balsam. Give bird a supply of green food daily, and for a few days dissolve a piece of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea, and a crystal of sulphate of iron about one-half the size, in its drinking water.

One Kind of Consumption ("A New Reader"). There is undoubtedly consumption of a certain kind going on with the bird "who is always at the seed box and water glass," but it is not of the kind your informant meant, unless, indeed, it was some funny spirit who was pulling your leg. Give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in its water daily for three days, and after that give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. Attend to diet. Feed as frequently advised in this column, and give a little green food daily, but none that is wet, frosted, or decaying.

An Early Bird (T. R. B.).—You have paired the birds more than a month too soon, especially if yours is a cold room. But now things have gone so far you must not interfere, or try to arrest matters. Let things follow the natural course, and hope that you may catch the proverbial worm; or that success may follow success until you have the young safely on the perches. Now the birds are started breeding you must not dream of altering your arrangements to such an extent as giving the birds freedom of flight about the room from their present caged condition. All these arrangements should have been attended to before you started breeding—now they are best left alone.

Will They Breed? (H. W. H.).—Undoubtedly they will if a real pair, by being kept together in the same cage. You certainly cannot expect to do so if kept quite separate. The probability is that they will breed too early for the general good. You ought to have kept them separate until they were quite ready to begin nesting, about a month or so hence; and even now it would be advisable, if they show no signs of starting to nest, to separate them until the proper time. You would be well advised to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, from our manager.

Breeding (W.H.K.).—If the bird did not moult gradually, so that it escaped your attention last autumn, there is a probability that it will drop into moult as soon as the weather gets quite settled probably during May, if not in April. In this case your only chance to get a brood from him is to make him, if quite ready, the last week in March, so that he will send the hen to nest the first time before the moulting commences. It would be useless mating him when the moult has set in. He will be very young for mating at the time suggested, but as you are only likely to get one nest from him, this will not be of much moment. Feed as frequently advised here.

Feeding Rollers (Amateur).—I surmise you are going to breed with the birds. As a staple diet give a mixture of two parts Canary seed to one part summer rape. From now onwards give the hens a half teaspoonful of egg-food, crushed sponge cake, or bread and milk (one or other, or each in turn, but not all together), three times a week; every second day give a pinch of a mixture of hemp and inga; and on the alternate days a spray of green-food, including a fresh young dandelion leaf. Treat the cocks the same, save that the inga may be omitted, and a sprinkling of gold of pleasure added to the soft-food. In a week from now give the hens the soft-food every second day; the hemp and inga ditto; that is, on the alternate days; and one or two small dandelion leaves daily. A week later make a similar increase in the extra items given to the cocks, and continue on those lines until the end of March, or first week in April, when the birds should be in good condition for mating.

Canaries Ailing (Whistler).—It is solely due to the conditions under which the birds are kept, and you will make no really solid improvement until you alter these. Keep the birds as far away from the fire as possible, where the fluctuations of heat and cold will be at a minimum, but at the same time you must see that they are quite free from draughts. Then as soon as there comes a spell of mild weather transfer the birds altogether to the cold-room you speak of. This, also, you must see is made quite secure from draughts. Given this condition you will find the birds succeed far better than they do in the kitchen. Feed as frequently advised here, and for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, every second day. In the drinking water, on the alternating days, give twenty drops of whisky, and five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine.

A Bad Case (C.B.).—Thanks for card. Sorry my fears proved correct, and the bird had already succumbed.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Amazon Weak.

S. L. G.—The bird evidently wants toning up. You are feeding it on right lines, but the bird has not yet got over the hardships of the voyage to this country. Unless the bird has some trouble not yet fully developed, it will grow out of the weakness you mention. On the other hand, this may be the result of some contamination just beginning to be apparent. Cease the tonic and give instead Parrish's Chemical Food. Well colour the water with same. It can have as much ripe fruit as it will eat, and I should sop its biscuit in the chemical food water also. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk slops, or any kind of animal food. If there should be any signs of constipation, you must relieve same with a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia. If it should become worse, write again at once.

Hardy Seed Eaters.

St. George.—Many foreign Finches, in consequence of the hardships of importation, arrive in rather a debilitated condition, and losses are somewhat numerous amongst new purchases, unless you can procure acclimatised birds which have already been over here some time, and you must not put birds out-of-doors during the winter months unless you purchase those which have been so kept for some months. Put out of doors in May or June, they can then be left out altogether. Diet: Canary, white millet, spray millet, oats, paddy rice, with hemp and sunflower seed in small quantities. The following are all hardy: Zebra, Yellow-rumped, Ribbon, and Red-headed Finches, Rufous and Long-tailed Grassfinches, White and Grey Java Sparrows, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, Common and Green Avadavats, and Zebra Waxbills. Get "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (see advert in this column); you will find it very helpful.

Brightly Coloured Birds for Cages

"Silly Seventeen."—You do not indicate kind of cage, but if it is an all-wire one, or open wire all round, you must be careful not to place it where a draught can blow through it. In the first place you must not attempt to keep any Budgerigars, Lovebirds, or Parrakeets in your cage with Finches. You would find the small Waxbills most interesting and also meet your conditions, as they are cheap and brightly coloured. You would have room for a dozen comfortably. Hang up a few cokernut shell nests half filled with hay. The birds will use these as night shelters. Get the following: Red Avadavats, Green Avadavats, Grey, Orange-cheeked, Zebra, and St. Helena Waxbills. These would cost you from 3/6 to 7/6 per pair. You should get "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (see advert in this column); it would prove very helpful.

Green Parrot Indisposed.

J. R.—It is perfectly natural for many species of Parrots to bring up the partially digested food from the crop and then reswallow same. Ten sop is bad for all Parrots. Confine its diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, a little cooked potato (dry) may also be given. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in the cage, also water and grit. Seed mixture: Canary, white millet, oats, paddy rice, small maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, in about equal parts, well mix, and always keep a supply in the cage. This is a cheap and wholesome mixture for the species. Get a bottle each of Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food from your chemist. Give one or two doses of the magnesia—one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water, with a two-day interval between each dose. Well colour the drinking water with the Chemical Food, when not giving the magnesia. If the bird calls for sop, mix some water and Chemical Food to the colour of weak tea and sop stale household bread in same. This will do no harm and satisfy its craving. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, nor yet any kind of animal food. The condition of the bird should soon be normal.

A Debilitated Grey.

E. G.—In this case, though I have known of many Greys living very much longer than yours, I am of the opinion that the trouble is largely one of age, but undoubtedly accelerated by the "bit of everything" diet. Practically, all you can do is to keep the bowels moving freely (not loose), with occasional doses (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) of Dinneford's Magnesia, and on the days when you are not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. A few sips of very weak brandy and water (chilled) may be given occasionally as a stimulant. Do not on any account give tea, coffee, or milk slops, nor yet any kind of animal food whatever. Confine your diet to seed mixture, plain biscuits, ripe fruit (ad lib), nuts, a little boiled potato (dry) may be given, and if there is any craving for sop, moisten either a piece of plain biscuit, crust of stale household bread, or crust of dry toast in chemical food water. Also, as it has been accustomed to soft foods, a little boiled maize is permissible. Note, this only keeps fresh one day. Boil till soft, but grains should be whole. Drain off all moisture and then spot over same 10 to 20 drops of the chemical food. Keep warm, but yet where it will get light and air without draught.

Brevities.

Budgerigar Ill (E.E.).—I am afraid you can do but little for this bird. Give it frequently Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water as often as you can, so that the bird is not scoured. Follow this by giving him chemical food water to drink, but I am afraid you will not save it; still, there is a chance that you may do so, but it will be weak for some time yet. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, oats, green-food, and a little ripe apple or other fruit if it will eat it.

Birds for Outdoor Aviary (A.F.S.).—I should advise you to partition off one of the end pieces for the Budgerigars; the end with the wire front would answer best. In the other portion you could keep six to eight pairs with very good prospects of their breeding. All the birds named in our reply to "St. George" will agree together, and would do well with Bullfinches and Goldfinches, and make a really good show. If you choose to forego the Budgerigars, then you could accommodate a dozen pairs of Finches or Waxbills providing they are not larger than the Bullfinch. "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (see advert in this column) you will find very helpful.

What Bird? (Anxious to Know).—It is a Masked Grassfinch, and as there are a fair number on the market at the present time, you should have no difficulty in procuring a mate for it, or procuring other pairs.

Breeding Roseate Cockatoos (M. L.).—There should be no difficulty in inducing these birds to breed in this country. The aviary should be 12ft. long and at least 6ft. high, with only the front (to face as near South as possible) open wire netting. About 3ft. of the front should be boarded up to form a shed at one end, with a partition extending from front to within 1ft. of the back. Furnish it with branches, both stout and thin, and hang up two or three small barrels in various parts of the aviary, one enclosed in portion. You must not be discouraged if they fail to breed the first year, but leave them as undisturbed as possible, and they will ultimately settle down and do so. I should advise the keeping only of one pair.

Bites His Feathers (C.W.H.G.).—Add white millet to your seed mixture in equal bulk to the quantity of canary seed you are now using; also see that the bird gets a good supply of ripe fruit, if it will not take one kind ,try another. I have found most species of Parrots very fond of apple cores. Keep its bowels moving freely (not loose) with occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water. Spray him with quassia solution—can be procured ready for use from several of our advertisers—two or three times a week; this will help to make the plumage distasteful and also exterminate parasites if there should be any.

Lame Yellow Budgerigar (A. J. Holloway).—The bird has evidently given its foot a bad wrench, probably torn it by catching in wires of cage, and the hind toe will, I fear, drop off. Well cleanse with warm water and get rid of all humour by gentle pressure, after pricking; then paint the foot and leg with compound tincture of benzoin. If the wound should gather up again, you will have to repeat the operation. It would be advisable to give it two or three doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, with a three days' interval between each dose, one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water.

Budgerigar and Blackbird (Beginner).—(1) I do not think the Blackbird will interfere with the breeding of the Budgies at all, the latter, as a rule, being well able to look after No. 1. (2) Madagascar Lovebirds are very shy breeders in captivity, and I have always found them to agree with Budgerigars. (3) They will require the usual log or cocoanut husk, but as they are one of the few species of Parrakeets that line their nests, it will be necessary to supply them with some sticks with green bark on. This they will strip off and line their nest with. There is no reason why you should not meet with success.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

What Bird? (W. Smith).—Your description reads very like the Silky Cowbird, especially as it takes seed; but the Troupials and Hanguests all belong to one family. The Silky Cowbird is a little smaller than a Blackbird, with a bill about the same size and shape, but a little more pointed. On the other hand, if it is the Black Hangnest or Cassique, its beak is considerably larger than that of the Blackbird, is wedge-shaped, and very sharp at the point. I am of the opinion it is the first-named; if so, they are often to be purchased at 5s. each; if the latter, 30s. to 40s. I should supply ripe fruit, and soft food, as well as mealworms and seed.

Indian Ring-necked Parrakeets ("Seeunda").—I take it you are desirous of breeding these birds, and I should certainly advise you to get one with the ring round the neck already developed, as these birds mature slowly, and you may have to wait two years or more if you get quite a young bird. From memory I cannot speak as to whether the circles of young birds are dark or not, and the regular books do not record this. The few (one or two) records of breeding will require some looking up, and I do not think distinctions have been noted save that of plumage, which, as you appear to know, resembles that of the adult female. If you get two young birds, choose a large and small one, and the large bird should be one of the brightest coloured; there is usually a slight distinction this way, even when the birds are similarly coloured. If I can trace any other record, I will insert it next week.

Red Cardinals in Poor Plumage (R.E.B.).—Give these birds doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) as often as you can without scouring them. Cage them separately and wash them two or three times a week in quassia solution, thoroughly wetting the plumage. Give them ripe fruit, ad. lib., and a couple of mealworms each bird, in addition to the seed mixture. If there are any signs of parasites, you must scald out your cages and get rid of these at all costs.

What Parrots? (F.C.).—You have two, or a pair, of Roseate Cockatoos. Stop the milk sop at once and confine your diet to: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuits and nuts, a little boiled potato (dry), may be given occasionally, but on no account give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. Seed mixture: Canary, white millet, oats, hemp, paddy rice, maize, and sunflower seeds in about equal parts. Give Parrish's Chemical Food (well colour the water) regularly in the drinking water, and keep the bowels moving freely by occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia. Continue to wash with quassia solution; paint the bare parts with compound tincture of benzoin.

Finches in Poor Feather (Constant Reader).—I should advise you, if possible, to bring these birds into one of your sitting rooms, where a fire is burning most of the time. Keep them out of draught, yet where they will get light and air. For one day make their drinking water just saline with Epsom salts; follow this by lightly colouring the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. A little ripe apple, if the birds will eat it, is very wholesome at this time of year. Also give them a good supply of millet sprays. The most likely birds to breed in a cage would be Zebra Finches, Bengalese, or White Java Sparrows.

Keeping Budgerigars in Cages (Novice).—Budgerigars are a hardy species, and so long as they are kept out of draughts, require no artificial heat. There is no need to keep the sexes separate. Turn them in together, and in about a month's time bang up a husk in the most secluded corner of the cage, but with the opening towards the light. The sulphate of iron can be used to advantage as you suggest, but you must be on the look-out for constipation and check this at once, either by making the drinking water just saline with Epsom salts, or putting a little Dinneford's Magnesia therein. You would find "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. plus postage, very helpful.

Pekin Robin with Bad Eye (Daniells).—Pekin Robins are rather subject to this trouble. Get a rose-water and zinc eye solution from your chemist, and bathe the bird's eye with same. Get a pound of ants' eggs and make your soft food as follows: Two parts of your present mixture, one part of ants' eggs, one part crumbled sponge-cake, well mix, and make crumbly moist for use; also supply such kinds of ripe fruit as it will eat ad. lib. For one day only mix a few grains of Epsom salts in its drinking water, and follow this by well colouring the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food.

White Java Sparrows (H.W.).—(1) The usual seeds, Canary, white and spray millet, green-food (lettuce), or ripe apple, and a little of some good soft food mixture, or ants' eggs and crumbled sponge cake in equal parts, made crumbly moist, would suffice. (2) It would be much safest to remove the old hen, if you can do so without unduly disturbing the sitting bird; as it is, if you are sure she is not interfering with the other hen, by quizzing round the nest, etc., perhaps you had better leave them as they are. These birds are not like Canaries, and it is very unsafe procedure to leave odd birds of either sex with mated pairs.

Will Lovebirds Breed in a Cage? (A.E.F.).—Budgerigars will; and I have heard of one instance in which the Blue-winged Lovebirds successfully reared young; but your success is the more probable with the first-named. Give as large a box cage as possible, and hang up a couple of husks and leave them to themselves. "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," sixpence plus postage from this office, would help you.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Brevities.

An Aviary Floor (Crusader).—Yes; if the wire netting (small mesh) is taken underground 12 to 18in., and then turned up at the front for a few inches, like the letter L (the turned-up portion facing away from the aviary) that will keep out mice and similar pests. Glad to hear you like this year's ANNUAL so much.

Three Seed Samples (Seed-eater).—I got your note, but marked "no samples enclosed," so I presume you forgot to put them in the envelope.. It is impossible, I may say, to name all the seeds found in "wild seed mixtures" (the screenings from threshing machines).

Seed Samples (Aberdeen Anna).—I think the wild seed sent is an admirable sample, very free from dirt and mere litter. You can certainly offer it to British seed-eaters to their great benefit. I only wish I had a supply of it. I have had no experience of the use of chicory seed with Goldfinches. If, as you say, Linnets and Twites are fond of it, then it can hardly harm Goldies. Whether they will eat it or not is, of course, another matter; you can easily test it.

Hybrid Breeding (P. T. H.).—Under the conditions named you would stand a splendid chance of producing Hybrids. Do not put more than the three pairs in, however. Crowding spells failure. Privet shrubs are quite harmless; they are often stripped bare, though, by the birds. Living shrubs are by no means essential to success.

Goldfinch Ailing (A.M.).—Try the effect of a good reliable tonic. Go to a good chemist and get one ounce of syrup hypophosphite co (Fellow's syrup). Stir half-a-teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, using a glass or earthenware drinking vessel only. Give fresh daily and keep on with it for 12 or 14 days at least. Let the bird have a feed of cracked white sunflower seed daily, a little niger (and thistle if you have it), and crack his hemp seed, if necessary, to induce him to eat freely. This treatment should "buck him up." Don't forget the early daudelion.

Redpoll and Canary (Inexperienced).—Feed and treat both birds exactly as advised "Beginner" last week, and you should have no difficulty in achieving success. The Redpoll may not be ready to breed before the beginning or middle of April; it depends upon his present condition. For instance, I have a Redpoll eager to breed now. Your bird will feed the hen, sing vigorously, and no doubt chase her about the cage when ready for serious business. The simplest plan is to leave the two together "for good or ill." Don't try to force the hen Canary; still, if the first lot of eggs prove clear, console yourself with the thought that the second lot are likely to be good.

Three Matters (Novice).—(1) I have never before heard it said that a Siskin will moult with a "bih," although he is "bih-less" before the annual renewal of the plumage. Who told you this, and on what grounds? (2) The Redpoll you describe is a cock; the red on the breast is practically an infallible guide. What do you mean by "feeding for exhibition"? Do you mean the treatment during the moult? (3) It is not necessary to "sheet down" Finches when they are being moulted, though I believe in keeping the sun off those being colour-fed. Keep them in a sort of subdued (not direct) light.

In a Conservatory (P. J. B.).—The damp atmosphere (caused by the plants) is most injurious to birds, and the fluctuations of temperature, experienced in most conservatories (often very considerable) are also inimical to their well-being. I have had several friends try bird-keeping (and bird breeding) in their conservatories; some had a fair measure of success, but in their case not many plants were in the houses. In one case, where vines, palms, etc., mingled with the birds (or vice-versa), the experiment was a dismal failure.

A Mating Problem (A Navvy).—Proceed this way: Let the cock Roller fertilise the first lot of eggs, then remove him out of ear-shot of the hen, and let her sit and bring up the young by herself. When ready to go to nest a second time, put the cock Linnet in along with her. You are not then likely to experience any trouble whatever, providing the Linnet is then in form for breeding. Put the Linnet in half the double breeder, with the wire slide in between, while the hen is feeding the young—say when they are a week old.

Two Plants (W. Jeffrey).—The specimen you send is wood sage, which I have never personally offered to birds, so cannot say anything about its suitability or otherwise for that purpose. My botanical book gives the properties of wood sage as: —Bitter, aromatic, tonic; substitute for hops. Shepherd's purse is illustrated and described in CAGE BIRDS' book on "Seeds and Wild Plants for Birds." It has flat heart-shaped seed-pods, running up the stem, and carries a cluster of very tiny white flowers.

A Mule and a Yorkshire (Ignoramus).—The Finch mixture named will answer well for both birds; the hemp will not hurt the Canary, seeing that bo has space for wing exercise. You could alternate this mixture with a mixture specially put up for Canaries, and containing no hemp at all—one one day, the other the next day. Luxuries:—A little prepared egg-bread (packet, if you like) now and again, a little maw and cracked sunflower seeds, ripe fruit, seeding heads of groundsel and dandelion, chickweed and shepherd's purse.

A Linnet (J. C.).—Yes, take the bird out of the small cage, by all means. Get a 16in. Finch stock cage from one of the cage-makers advertising in our columns, or from a local shop if you know of an up-to-date one. This is the best for Linnets and other Finches. The simplest way to feed would be to use one of the packet special Linnet mixtures, sold at good class bird-seed stores. The food firm you mention has one on sale. "Pretty" cages (i.e., fancy all-wire ones) are not the best for Linnets; they suit Canaries and Mules better.

Six Short Ones (Valetta).—1. The pair can be put up as soon as the Greenfinch is ready; they can run together now, if you like. 2. Yellow mustard seed is not at all an essential; a little is relished given amongst other "wild seeds." 3.—Bran is quite harmless stuff for a cage-floor. 4.—A Greenfinch sings vigorously, flaps his wings as he takes the perches, feeds and pays other attentions to the hen, when in breeding form. 5.—Stick to Canary hens, or else keep the Goldie with the hen Greenie right through the season. 6.—A real good Goldfinch Greenfinch Hybrid is certainly a bird worth having.

Nesting Sites (P. C. B.).—A good book on bird-life would be useful; try Mr. Finn's "Bird of the Countryside," an admirable treatise. The Greenfinch builds in shrubberies and similar places, generally in evergreens. The Linnet is fond of building in gorse bushes (also heather and broom), likewise in shrubs in gardens, and the grounds of country houses. The Bullfinch also nests in the latter places, and is very fond of frequenting small woods. The Goldfinch's nest is also to be found in woodlands and secluded parks, containing oak and beech, etc., trees, though the favourite spot is a fruit tree in some orchard. The Yellowhammer frequents commons, lanes, and fields, and generally puts its nest on the ground, at the foot of a bush, or tuft of rough grass.

Treatment of Linnet (C. L. L.).—The mixture sent is quite unsuitable to give to any Linnet. It contains more niger than all the other seeds put together, and it is not advisable to give any niger seed as a regular thing. Feed as advised "Beginner" in last week's issue. I should think that the "shyness" is only natural, and due to the bird being as yet hardly settled down to captive life. I presume it was newly caught when you obtained it a few weeks ago? He will get bolder and commence to sing as he gets to know you better. Some birds are longer than others before "opening out."

In an Aviary (H. Foster).—Your aviary has one grave defect—the partly-wired roof. In such a small place the roof is best entirely covered in. It is quite possible that you would breed a Hybrid or two in it. I advise you to turn in Goldfinch, Linnet, Chaffinch, and Redpoll cocks, with Bullfinch, Bramblefinch, Siskin, and Greenfinch hens (one of each). You could also put in two or three hen Canaries and add another cock Goldie and Linnet.

Three Questions (Index).—1. A Snow Bunting would live all right in a small aviary with Finches of various kinds. It feeds almost solely on Canary seed, but should have a little made insectivorous food now and again, and a mealworm or two, live ants' eggs in season, etc. A week or so ago I dealt at length with the feeding of these birds. 2. Strictly speaking, the right time to mate birds is when the hen shows signs of desiring to go to nest. But the cock bird, of course, must also then be in breeding trim. Note the reply given "Beginner" last week. 3. Doves are not in my line. I will get Mr. Finn to answer this next week; look in his column.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 2s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. L.—Replied by post.

Miss Eva Everitt.—Reply by post.

Mr. K. M. Westley.—Replied by post.

A. Beadnall.—The specimen of worms came much too late to allow of a reply in last week's issue. Had you given me your address I should have replied to you by return of post as you seemed desirous of early advice. The worms from which your Linnet is suffering belong to the tocnic or class of tapeworms, and the specimens sent are but segments or parts of worms; there is not a complete one present. The segments, however, are quite sufficient for purposes of identification. Your bird must be badly infested with these parasites, and until the heads are expelled there can be no hope of remedying the trouble. The preparation I want you to administer I am afraid you would have a difficulty in procuring from your chemist, as it is a synthetic one; but if you will, directly on seeing this reply, send me your address, I shall be pleased to send you same fully directed and free of cost. In the meantime give night and morning in the drinking water ten drops of syrupus ferri iodid, diluting same in proportion to ten drops to every tablespoonful of water, and change same night and morning. This drug you can obtain from any chemist. Destroy all excreta and segments passed when cleaning out your cage by burning, as these contain thousands of eggs, and may serve to infect other birds you may possess. The life history of these parasites varies very much, some requiring a second host other than the bird before they are again pathogenic to birds. On the other hand, some are capable of re-infesting an already infected bird. It is a subject of great import to fanciers, and is more commonly the cause of ailments amongst birds than has yet been supposed, only not in all instances does the parasite manifest its presence as in this particular case. The subsequent treatment will be manipulative, and as I gather from your letter that the bird is fairly tame, then the result should be all that you desire.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Illustrated Ideas (C. Quinn, W. H. Temmens, F. Reynolds). We have published these before (or very similar ideas).

A Clever Parrot (Mrs. Ambler).—We shall be delighted to receive the promised photograph and account of the "doings" of your remarkably clever bird.

The Literary Competition (H. C. Brooks).—The reading and weighing of the merits of the essays occupy, as you rightly surmise, a lengthy period. We shall announce the results at the earliest possible moment.

A Black List (A.T.).—We thank you for the suggestion, but do not see that any effective purpose is served by the publication of a "black list," for we already know of a case where such a list is in existence, yet fails to keep out the "undesirables," so many aliases and addresses are open to them, unfortunately.

An Appeal (J. H. Jowett).—We thoroughly appreciate the spirit in which your letter is written, but do not think it advisable to again put this matter forward. We will notify you, as suggested, respecting the photographs; a future special issue, most likely.

German Bird Papers (J. Ludwig).—There are "Die Gefiederte Welt" (Magdeburg) and "Kanaria" (Grenzstrasse 21, Leipzig), either of which papers might suit your purpose. We do not know where they are to be bought in London. If you will send us three penny stamps we shall be glad to post you a copy of each.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficultics likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

Under the White Rose.

FIRST annual Sunday service of the Bradford East Society on the 20th inst. was a decided success, a very large number of members and friends being present. The service was pronounced Al. Mrs. Wilson Laycock contributed two solos in charming style, and the Rev. G. Hall Wallis preached a magnificent sermon on "Birds," which will be remembered by those present for some considerable time, and he paid a very pleasing compliment to our hobby in his remarks. The rev. gentleman had been laid up by sickness for above a week, and this was his first time out. He had evidently spent a lot of time in getting into touch with his subject, and it would have been a great disappointment to him if he had not been able to take his place. The chapel was well filled, and he was greatly cheered by the response to his invitation, and it is hoped he will suffer no ill effects from his attendance. There was also a record collection, and altogether it was a well-spent and pleasant evening.

TONG and District C.B.S. closed their list of members' shows on February 19th. In all ten shows had been run, and all the way through they have had good entries, the competition in all classes being very keen, the cinnamon marks in particular being very well patronised. At this last show over 60 birds were staged, many of them being of exceptional merit, and if the birds shown are a sample of what the members are to breed with, then no doubt we shall hear from some of them next season at the open shews.

BALLOT papers for the Yorkshire Union should be in the hands of all members by the time this issue appears, and any member who has not received one should communicate at once with the Union secretary, who will be pleased to forward one. Of course, this year Mr. R. Halliday vacates the position of president, and Mr. F. Hammond takes his place, moving up from the vice-presidency, and the members have a good array of true and worthy fanciers (nine in number) from whom to select a vice-president to succeed Mr. Hammond. Then as secretary, Mr. H. Hill stands again unopposed, and I am sure fanciers will agree we could not have a better. Trustees, two in number, are required, and the present two are again putting up for re-election, and two "fresh 'uns." Well, you can't get wrong, they are all O.K. for this office. Two auditors are required, and there are half a dozen to choose from, including the two retiring members, who seem to have given satisfaction, and are willing to try their best to do so again.

REVISION of rules. Please note here that the alterations to Rules 7 and 11 have been crossed, and members must use care when voting on these. The alteration to Rule 7 is opposite Rule 11, and that for Rule 11 is opposite Rule 7. The proposed alteration to Rule 7 is very important, as it deals with representation, and discretion must be exercised and care used. Then we have still another point in regard to novice classes. There is a proposal that the Yorkshire novices shall have eight classes instead of six at each show, so the novices (who number 836 against 356 champions) had better attend to their voting papers if they want this increased classification; and I suppose they do! Other revisions are on the paper, but those mentioned are most important. Then we have a few additions to rules, and I would like to mention one in particular, and that is in regard to assistant judges. This cuts both ways, and it is matter of which is the lesser of two evils? At present, say, a society holds a one-day show, with a classification of 24 to 28 classes, one judge; the official one is engaged. When entries come in, they get a "bumper," and the officials think it will be too much for one judge, and accordingly select an assistant. This assistant, perhaps, does not meet with everybody's approval; some fancier may have entered some small birds, and this man likes "big 'uns," or vice versa. Now, take the other side; if this now rule passes and a society has only one judge engaged, no matter how many entries the society receive, they cannot have an assistant, and the elected judge will have the lot to go through, and perhaps will be rushed so as to get the show open to time. Which is the better? Also, 10 new rules are embodied in the paper, and these will be gone through next week. All papers have to be returned by March 14th, so, therefore, members will have a little time to study things over.

DON'T forget the social, March 5, next Saturday, and if you intend to be there to dinner at 4 p.m., drop a posteard to the Yorkshire Union secretary. Mr. H. Hill, 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Little Horton, Bradford, so that the number to be present can be given to our host, Mr. W. H. Mitchell, Market Tavern, Bradford. "STRAIGHT 'UN."

We have decided to hold our next open show on October 7th and 8th, writes Mr. W. Howe, hon. secretary of the Wellingborough and Dis. C.B.S., and under Cage Bird Union rules.

The report of the Yorkshire Canary Society of Ireland (which has just completed its first year) shows that the success achieved has been almost remarkable, due, it is stated, to the whole-hearted co-operation of the Irish Fancy. The balance in hand is no less than £11 7s. 11d., and this in spite of the fact that over £15 was spent in the purchase of cups, staging, etc. The secretary, Mr. D. Carroll, and the other officials may well be satisfied at the excellent results

Astounding Story of a Blackbird which "Thinks."

Remarkable Incident.

This week there has been brought to our notice an extraordinary and wonderful example of bird sagacity, with an incontestable proof of the power of human kindness wields in the realm of bird life. On Wednesday afternoon, February 2nd, Mr. S. Haden, of Dudbridge, invited a representative of the "Stroud News" to his house to see a Blackbird which had taken up residence therein and considered herself so much the tenant that she had built a cosy little nest on the mantlepiece in the living room. The room, lighted by a large window, overlooks a wide expanse of garden and orchard. Mrs. Haden was busily engaged in her household duties, whilst a bright fire blazed in the range. Immediately above, by the side of the clock, was what appeared at first sight to be a ball of rags.

"Here is my beauty," said Mr. Haden, and the next moment the visitor was made aware that this seemingly useless bundle was partially hiding a hen Blackbird, which, at the sound of the voice, popped out her head inquisitively, and after a careful survey of the room, opened her mouth for food. The bird did not appear the least timid, allowing herself to be gently caressed. A closer inspection showed that the rags only formed the foundation of what was a perfect nest. Hay and straw had been used in its construction, and the inside, so Mr. Haden informed the writer—for the bird showed a decided disinclination to move—was beautifully lined with mud and contained three eggs.

Asked to account for the bird selecting such an unthought-of spot for setting up housekeeping, Mr. Haden related the following story. It was in the spring of last year that a friend, knowing Mr. Haden's fondness for birds, brought him a nest of young Blackbirds. Three of these—two males and one female—he succeeded in rearing. One of the males he gave away and the other he kept. In August, having assured himself that the female could take care of herself, Mr. Haden liberated her in the orchard. Early the next morning when he opened his back door there was the bird waiting outside. He fed her, but she refused to go away and came inside the house. Once or twice during the day she took short flights in the open, but returned at night and roosted on one of the pictures. From that day to this she had always come home for meals and to sleep. If, when she returns the door is closed, she flutters against the window, and if she is locked in the house she goes through a similar performance until the door is opened.

About a fortnight ago the bird appeared to take an extreme liking to Mrs. Haden's work basket, pulling it about with her beak and appropriating pieces of rag, etc. These were carefully deposited in the corner by the clock. For the bird's especial benefit an old curtain was torn up and this she used. Having arranged the pile to her liking, the hen made excursions abroad, coming back each time with hay and straw. The last process in the nest-making was the mud, and this she also procured. An idea of the journeys to and fro the bird made can be gathered from the fact that one day when Mr. and Mrs. Haden were sitting at dinner the bird crossed the table six times. If, upon her arrival from one of these excursions, Mr. Haden happened to be by the nest, she would first fly on to his shoulder and then on to the mantlepiece. For a week the bird has been sitting, leaving the nest occasionally for a short flight. Whilst Mr. Haden was relating these facts, Mrs. Haden went to the bird and fed her, remarking that at meal times she invariably came and took food from their fingers.

Correspondence.

The Kelty and Blairadam Show.

SIR,—I see in this week's CAGE BIRDS, in the report of the Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A., Pair show, sent you by the secretary, Mr. J. Ford, a statement to the effect that A. Cargill judged the Yorkshires; and he is credited with third prize in the Border section of the same show. He had no birds there, and has no connection with that society. I have, I may say, read CAGE BIRDS for five years, and I have had valuable information from its columns.

Cantsdam, Kelty. A. CARGILL.

The Holding Capacity of Aviaries.

SIR,—I am glad to see that Mr. Page now says he only intended his estimate to which I took exception to apply to Waxbills. This is satisfactory, as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough, because I see that he adheres to his opinion that 80 birds of this size can be kept in health in an aviary measuring 10ft. x 4ft. On this point I am compelled to join issue with him. Will any aviarist of experience come forward and say that he thinks this possible? Without considering the probability of contagious disease, always so prevalent amongst small foreigners, we may be quite sure that the weaker birds would be driven away from the seed tins, and would get nothing to eat. I am sorry to hear that Mr. P. keeps no less than 80—100 birds (many of them large) on a floor space of 292 sq. ft. This appears to me to be bad policy. At all events, I think it right to say that, though I feel sure that Mr. P. is a genuine lover of birds, his views and advice on this matter are, in the opinion of one birdkeeper at least, opposed to the best interests of aviculture. A few birds well kept, with ample flying space, will give their owner far more pleasure than a crowded aviary, be it small or large; as to the "rich man's palatial aviaries," with their paid attendant, which Mr. P. mentions with apparent envy, they probably give their owners no pleasure whatever.

ONLOOKER.

P.S.—If Mr. P. really "makes it a rule never to read letters placed over a pseudonym," he will probably miss much of interest, because many fanciers may not wish to parade their names before the public, and yet may not be without experience.

How to Steady British Hardbills

SIR,—Could some of your readers kindly give me some hints on steadying a Goldfinch and a pair of Bullfinches? Should a large or small cage be used? And is it a drawback to have the cock and hen Bullfinch in the same cage together? AMERICUS.

Prize Money and Entry Fees at Abertillery Show.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a little space in your correspondence columns in answer to Mr. D. S. Lee's letter re prize money and entry fees at Abertillery Show. We are sorry to say that we lost £30 on our late show, and this is the reason why all prize money has not been paid. If all exhibitors who won prizes at our show will wait patiently for a week or so they will receive same. Anyone else overlooked should apply to the sec. pro tem.—ALF. A New Cage Bird, etc., Society for Willington and District.

SIR,—At a well-attended meeting held in the Parish Hall, Willington, for the purpose of starting a new Cage Bird and F. and F. Society for Willington and District, it was unanimously decided that such should be formed, and that the society be called the Willington and District C.B.F.F.S., the annual subscription to be 2s. 6d. The following officers were elected:—President, Dr. E. J. Brewes; Vice-Presidents, Dr. R. E. Brown and Messrs. Jas. Johnson, L. Conlin, T. S. E. Hamblin, H. Jopling, M. Nattrass, J. W. Rutter, Ald. A. W. Elliot, and G. Nelson; Treasurer, Mr. S. T. Briggs, M.P.S.; Auditors, Messrs. E. O. Holmes and Jas. Casey. A strong committee was also appointed, composed of Fanciers. We have got the society started with a membership of fifty, so we hope all Fanciers will come forward and contribute to make it a great success. Anyone wishing particulars of membership, etc., can have same by applying to me.

Are Pedigree Rings Responsible for Cracked Eggs?

SIR,—In a short time we shall have the breeding season again upon us with its all-absorbing interests and its annoying disappointments, and it is just at this time, when some of us are giving thoughtful consideration to the causes of our feathered pets not fulfilling the expectations which we had at the commencement of our last breeding season. I myself was greatly perplexed with the following state of things: In several nests last year I noticed towards the end of incubation the shells of the eggs slightly chipped and perforated, with the result that no young came forth. To my mind the eggs were quite fertile. I have come to the conclusion that the perforation is caused by the hens in turning the eggs, catching the metal rings against the shell, so causing the loss of the young birds inside the eggs; at least, that is my theory, as none of the eggs under non-rung hens showed the same treatment. I had almost decided to dispense with metal rings, although, to my mind, it is the best and surost way of keeping a bird's pedigree. So before making my final decision I thought some more experienced fancier than myself would no doubt have noticed the same thing amongst his own birds, as I know your instructive and useful paper is read by thousands, where we, in our own little birdy circles, can only get the opinions of a few. Perhaps some breeder would kindly say if this is a general experience with rung birds or have I hit upon the wrong reason for my damaged eggs? SHERWOOD FORESTER.

Wanted: A Roller Club for West Hartlepool.

SIR,—I shall be very pleased to hear from any fanciers interested in the above-named proposal, and being a novice myself I think it would always prove a source of enlightenment to new starters if a club be formed. I think there are plenty of capable men in the district to carry a good club on. Hoping to hear of same through the medium of your paper, S. FAIREY.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—Would "Netter" kindly send me a sample of brown water-cord and also the best thread for casting fishing net? I have one half finished with 3-cord carpet thread white. Can he recommend anything better for strength or lasting? As I do not know his address I cannot write him, but will feel obliged also for address where thread can be obtained. C. BAUGH.

Two Interesting Albino British Birds.

SIR,—I noticed the other week a correspondent asking whether any other reader had seen an Albino Partridge. I may say that there is one in this village that is pure white. I have seen it very often for the last two years. There are several sportsmen who could have shot it, but would not, for they don't believe in shooting every rare bird that comes in their way, and I know they would be very sorry if it were shot. A friend of mine has also an Albino Chaffinch, which is very tame. It will come right up to his feet (when he is in his garden) and pick up crumbs and seeds. It is all white with the exception of a few flight feathers in each wing.

A LOVER OF RARE FEATHERED BIRDS.

An Appeal to the Fanciers of Glasgow and District.

SIR,—Kindly allow me through the medium of your valuable paper to make the following appeal to the fanciers of Glasgow and district. The decision of the Glasgow and West of Scotland N.M.B. and F. Bird Club, to hold no open show in future has led to a good deal of comment, the result of which has been the calling of a general meeting (of all fanciers interested) at the Good Templars' Halls, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow, on Saturday, March 12th, at 6.30 p.m., to consider the proposal of forming an association on the lines of the City of Glasgow O.A., to continue with an open show. The expense of forming such an association would be practically nil, as the Glasgow and West of Scotland Club has kindly consented to loan the whole of their open show staging free of charge. That the fanciers of Glasgow will take this opportunity of giving their opinions either for or against is the sincere wish of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Club.

How to Make and Use Egg-cake.

SIR,—In reply to an enquiry in last week's CAGE BIRDS for a recipe for making a good "Egg-Cake" I give below what Mr. F. George requires. Take four eggs, six ounces of flour, six ounces of bread crumbs, three ounces of lard or dripping, two ounces of sugar, and half a teaspoonful of salt; mix the fat well with the flour and then add the other ingredients. Stir the eggs well, beaten up, adding enough milk to moisten. Bake in a slow oven as a cake or biscuit, and preserve in a tin for use. This will keep a very long time, but it must not be kept in a damp place. WM. TODD.

SIR,—In your useful paper, CAGE BIRDS, a fellow fancier asks, "How to make and use Egg Food?" I enclose you a sample of some I made last Easter (1909). I am now getting my birds into tip-top fettle with it. At Easter time, an old-time custom prevailed here in Northumberland of giving the children of all friends a fresh egg. Some of the eggs are given fresh, some hard boiled, and some hard boiled and dyed. It would be verging on manslaughter to let the bairns eat all they get, so I obtain as many as possible for a few coppers and use them in the following manner: Eight hard-boiled eggs to 1lb of Osborne biscuits. These I grind down and thoroughly mix. Then I dry it in a moderately hot oven, stirring many times to prevent it from caking. The secret is getting the mixture perfectly dry in a crumbly state. I then jar or bottle it and use as soon as cold. To use, I take the quantity I want and simply damp it with cold water. This will not go sour, and the birds eat it readily, and from the shell to the show bench thrive and keep in grand condition on it. A little maw seed added will tempt any bird that is a bit off and soon tone him up again. If this will help my unknown friend I am amply rewarded. EDWARD FLOYD.

Many Splendid Features this Year.

It contains articles, written by experts, upon practically every phase of the hobby of bird-keeping—articles invaluable for reference purposes—articles, in fact, which will ensure "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910 becoming A TREASURED POSSESSION OF EVERY BIRD-KEEPER

CONSIDER THIS WONDERFUL LIST.

THE DISINFECTION OF BIRD ROOMS AND CAGES. By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

How disinfection should be carried out, either to prevent disease or to overcome disease when present.

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL KEEPER OF BRITISH BIRDS. By G. G. Henderson.

Tells you all about the room, the cages, the appliances, the seeds, and other foods, and gives many hints which will bring you to the front rank as a successful British bird keeper.

AN EASY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By Cornelius Hoyle.

Explains how the author has very successfully and profitably bred Canaries at a minimum cost of trouble and time to himself.

LANDMARKS OF THE FANCIERS' YEAR. By Claude St. John.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed": that is the keynote of this splendid article, which shows how, by judicious treatment beforehand, many of the troubles and ills which are the commonest cause of the failure of bird-breeders and keepers may be averted.

MULE BREEDING FROM CANARY HENS. By C. E. Truscott.

The easiest and most profitable form of Mule (or Hybrid) breeding is with the Canary hen and cock Finch. This contribution explains the best and simplest procedure to attain success in this fascinating branch of the Hybrid-breeder's art.

THE FEEDING OF FOREIGN BIRDS. By F.Z.S.

A contribution which points out how a more varied diet than is usually offered may be given to foreign birds to their undoubted benefit.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

Departures from health in the bird-room are common sources of anxiety to fanciers, and cause much racking of brains to find the best remedial agents. This unique article fully explains the properties and uses of the medicinal agents which have been proved by bird-keepers to bring successful results in combating the ailments of their pets. Broken limbs, egg-binding, fits, constipation, inflammation, moulting, bird-lice, red-mite, the care of the claws, etc., etc., are also fully dealt with.

Seven features which give the bird-keeper absolutely indispensable and invaluable information at a cost of less than one penny each.

In addition "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910 contains

A Monthly Calendar, with Tables when Eggs are due to hatch; Hints on the Formation of a Cage Bird Society; A Year with the Wild Birds; Standards and Scales of Points of Exhibition Birds; Alphabetical Directory to the Cage Bird Societies; Dictionary of Fanciers' Terms; Directory to the Bird Trade; Review of the Exhibition Year; Directory to the Judges of Cage Birds; List of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors; Useful Postal and other information; Cash Account Columns, etc. Also

A lovely coloured plate and many art, etc., illustrations of birds—Norwich, Yorkshire, Crest, Border, Lizard, etc., Canaries, Blackcap Warbler, Siskin, Gouldian Finch, Hybrids, etc.

ALL FOR SIXPENCE: Of all Newsagents or Bookstalls; OR POST FREE, 8d.

Secretaries of Societies, Bird Dealers, and others engaged in communication with Birdkeepers, should take up an Agency for retailing our Publications.

Where has the Whisky Gone?

SIR,—Kindly grant me a space in your valuable paper to reply to the above question which occurs in your issue of February 12th, and to inform the evasive correspondent, who signed her insolent letter "Justice," that I should like her to be just. When sending her the prize money, in the same letter I also sent her a form signed by me for her to claim the special (bottle of whiskey) from the giver of same. After the publication of her letter I made inquiries with the giver of the special, and to my surprise the winner of same had not made a claim, and therefore she cannot blame anybody for not having the special. On the giver's advice, I took the special with me to send to her, which was not my duty.

T. J. DAVIES, Hon. Sec.

The Norwich Plainhead in Ireland.

SIR,—In the last issue of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, there appeared a letter from "Sceptre" complaining of the bad support that societies receive from the Leinster men, particularly Dubliners. Now, Mr. "Sceptre," there is a great deal of truth in what you say, but, on the other hand, a lot can be said respecting other fanciers besides the Dublin men. It is not my intention to start tongue-thrashing people who are a great deal better than myself, but I will ask my brother fanciers to suggest a means that will unite all societies for their own common welfare. Would a Cage Bird Union of Ireland be a help? If so, I would suggest that the sooner one is formed the better for the Fancy. I understand that at the present time a few of our best fanciers are making a move to get the different societies in Ireland to pay full prize money on eight birds in each class. I would like to know what these valuable fanciers think of my suggestion. Wishing my brother fanciers a successful breeding season,

J. R. HYLAND, Dublin.

The Suggested New Varieties of Canaries.

SIR,—Among the suggested new varieties of Canary referred to in CAGE BIRDS (p. 134), one of your competitors, Mr. Samuel Anderson, makes a rather bold assertion. He states that a "Fantail" Norwich could be obtained by training the tail to grow upwards, at the same time spreading the feathers in the shape of a fan. He also states that an "Elizabethan" Yorkshire could be obtained by training the feathers to grow upwards, also cropping them to "make them grow longer." Surely this is not so? It is very doubtful if the feathers could be trained as he suggests; it is even more doubtful if "cropping" feathers would make them grow longer. But assuming it to be possible to so change the natural growth of a bird's feathers in the manner suggested, would not the offspring of such bird partake of the normal plumage? For it is, I believe, generally recognised that "acquired" characters are not transmitted from parent to offspring. Perhaps, sir, you may consider this of sufficient interest to invite the views of other of your readers on the subject. H. C. BROOKS.

SIR,—It is the treatment I received in connection with the above, and not the value of it, that I complain about. Had I been paid my prize-money I should have given a special prize to the value of 5s. to Oakengates Society. From advice I have taken on the subject I am told that Oakengates Society are still liable until I actually receive my money. After waiting about a month for my prize-money, I wrote to one of the secretaries and never received a reply from him. About a week later I wrote to the other secretary and received a postcard from him (the only communication I have yet received from him). He stated he had a witness to prove that he sent me a P.O., but gave no name. He asked me to enquire at my post office, which I did, and the postmaster at Bridgnorth told me it remained with the sender of a lost letter to make enquiries and not the person who should have received it. He gave me a lost letter form, which I sent to Mr. Brothwood, and I should think it was as little as he could have done to try and recover the letter, if it was sent. The secretaries say mine is the only complaint they have received. I might mention that before I posted my letter to CAGE BIRDS I was given the name of an exhibitor who won either a second or third prize at Oakengates Show and who had not, and has not yet, received his prize-money. This gentleman lives nearer Oakengates than I do, and I only live about eight miles away, so that there must be something wrong somewhere. The secretaries say they do not suppose it will ruin them, my withholding my support from their next show. It is foreign to my nature to wish to ruin any society, I would far rather help.

WILLIAM P. BELL.

Cutting Out Round Cage Doors.

SIR,—Would some reader kindly let me know where I could get a bit to fit the brace for cutting out round doors in show cages?

A NOVICE.

Proposed Cage Bird Society for Polmont and District.

SIR,—A meeting will be held in Ritchie's Tea Rooms, Polmont Station, on Saturday, March 5, at 7 p.m. for the forming of a Cage Bird Society. All fanciers and others interested are requested to attend.

R. L. LEITCH.

The Disqualified Yellowhammer at the Crystal Palace Show.

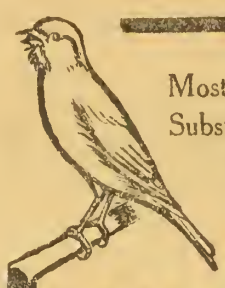
SIR,—Mr. Gale has mentioned my name in his letter, and wishes me to state if the bird was trimmed at the Isle of Man show. I cannot see where this would benefit Mr. Gale. It would not make the case at the Palace any better. The bird is a good one and if shown honestly would hold its own and not disgrace any owner. Beyond saying this I cannot interfere.

A. WELLINGS.

Can Canaries be Taught the Nightingale's Song?

SIR,—I would like to know if any of your readers have tried to teach Canaries the Nightingale's song, and with what success. I do not mean the Nightingale notes which Rollers are said (in advertisements) to have. I think real Nightingale notes would be a great improvement on the artificial song of the Roller. I don't suppose a Canary would learn the whole of the Nightingale's song, but even a part of it would be a desirable acquisition in the song of the Canary. The difficulty is to get young Canaries early enough so that they may be under tuition for the whole time the Nightingale sings. I have two Nightingales in song now, but by the time I can get some young Canaries, they will be half over their singing probably.

C. HARRISON.



"Going Light": Can it be Cured?

SIR,—On looking through CAGE BIRDS recently, I saw in the reply of Mr. Yates, in the post mortem column, that in the case of a Parrot, the bird was infested with worms, and was a complete skeleton. Is it possible that worms are the cause of the British birds "going light," and although eating all day long, continually lose flesh and becoming a complete skeleton? I have never tried the areca nut in the case of birds, as recommended by Mr. Yates, but I have in the case of dogs. I have often thought worms might be the trouble, and have tried turps on them. I shall now certainly try the areca nut when I detect any signs of their going light in future.

NIMROD.

Help Wanted from Skylark Keepers.

SIR,—I have read with interest, as I do all that appears in your valuable paper, the letter re Skylarks in answer to Mr. Knight. My Skylark was very delicate from the nest—the summer before last. I reared two nests and kept for myself a cock bird from the one and a hen from the other. Both are well through the present moult, and the cock is singing every day and hung out of doors during the greater part. He hurt the spur of one foot when quite tiny so that it is quite curved, and he can never stand upright. I should like to know if this is best left or if it would hurt the bird to cut it. Also I understand that Skylarks will sometimes mate up in a cage. Would one of your correspondents give some particulars as to how to proceed—what sized cage and what month to put them together? Does Mr. Knight think that his Skylark could have been frightened by a mouse? They will find their way into a cage, let it hang where it will, and there usually are mice in a kitchen. Blackbirds and Thrushes don't mind them, but little birds are very much afraid of them. Then why is it necessary to give mealworms or flies? I read in a certain newspaper that an eminent physician says there is no more fertile carrier of disease germs than the house-fly—typhoid and enteric fever among the diseases. I give my birds the usual soft-food. I give the Thrushes and Blackbirds barley meal, ginger and soaked bread, varied with Spratt's best chicken meal made fresh every day, a very little seed mixed (Canary with a few linseeds) and crushed oats thrown in among the sand—they like to search for these. When I wash their feet I take them very lightly in the hand, round the body, the first finger over the shoulders and between the legs; and I put the feet in a saucer of water for a few moments. If the earth has got very hard, I gently rub it between the finger and thumb of the other hand and then turn my hand over so that the bird lies on its back while I dry the feet with a soft cloth. Then I pop him back quickly into his cage for his sand bath. The birds don't like being handled. I have known of an apparently quite healthy bird dying suddenly under the process of feet-washing, but they are quite tamable other ways and like to be taken notice of. I call mine "Mousie," and if I put my head out of the upstair window when he is out of doors on the wall underneath and call him he will run to the side of the cage and pop his head through and look up at me and make such a pretty little noise. I suppose he is a good schoolmaster as my little brown Linnet sings very much like his low and softer notes. The Cuckoo sends his best respects. He is quite well, but still breaks his tail feathers as soon as they come. He will surely keep a few good tail feathers as he gets older; there are four showing nicely now, but they grow so terribly fast, he does not seem able to get the sheath off. I tried to help him with one by splitting it with a fine needle, but I was afraid to try again as I found it merely seemed to scratch it and brought the blood to the surface. Wishing you every good wish for your ninth year,

E. M. SARGEANT

The Blue Whistling Thrush.

SIR,—I see that "W.R." has been enquiring in your columns regarding the treatment of the above. I suppose by the above is meant the Himalayan Whistling Thrush. If so, I kept one in perfect health and song on the following food: Barley meal mixed with milk, snails, and soaked currants or sultanas.

Will Tame Bullfinches Breed in Captivity?

SIR,—As regards the above question, I say "Yes." And they will breed in a room with Yorkshires; only put the nests far from each other, and put one bunch of fur for the Bullfinches to nest in the corner of the room. The best nesting materials for the Bullfinch are roots of turf from an old bank; cut the roots small, and put a small turf on the floor of the room upside down for the Bullfinch to pick the fine roots to line the inside of the nest. In the breeding of Bullfinches have a fourpenny packet of Capern's mixture, half a pint of good hemp seed, and a twopenny packet of Linnet mixture. Mix these all together, and a few white sunflower seeds every other day, and give as much wild seed as you can—dandelion, chickweed, and groundsel. A suitable cage: Have a big box two yards long, one yard wide, and four feet high. Shut up one half with wood and have a bunch o ffur in the corner. Have one yard of wire netting on the front to stop cats, etc.

Late and Early Linnet Mules.

SIR,—I have been a lover of CAGE BIRDS for some time, and I thought some of the readers of the same would be interested in this account of Mule breeding. I have a Border Fancy hen and a cock Linnet, which sat five eggs on October 10, 1909, and brought me three Mules out of five eggs on October 24. These are still living and doing well. The second nest was set on November 24, 1909, and the birds brought one out of three eggs on December 7, 1909. This, too, is still living. The third nest was set on January 1, 1910, and the birds brought one out of three eggs on January 15, but this one died on January 17. The fourth nest was set on February 1, and three Mules were brought out of four eggs on February 15. These are still living and are doing well. All can be seen at my address, which is Goodwin Terrace, Blackwell Road, Carlisle.

THOMAS MORELAND.

A New Cage Bird Society for Choppington and District.

SIR,—I think your correspondent in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS is entirely at fault in respect of his assertion that the old club is disbanded. It was never more alive than at the present moment. During the three years of its existence it has gone on swimmingly, and has promises of more members and special prizes than ever before. Certainly a few of the old club members have decided to form a new society, but it is to a certain extent a private venture, it being held at a social club, and to participate in the benefits of the society, one has to be a member of the said club or an affiliate. However, as the man is not yet born who can please everybody, so is the society not formed that can please all members. It has always been the aim of the old society to do fair to each member, and it intends to carry out that idea as long as it exists, and not to have any principal members, as no matter what a man's station in life is, as "Robbie Burns" says: "A man's a man for a' that." I hope to see a good muster at the meeting on Saturday night, February 26th, at 7 p.m., at the Railway Hotel, and wish every success to the society that has fostered and encouraged the Fancy in the district. I beg to sign myself

A MEMBER AND ADMIRER OF THE OLD CLUB.

Nantwich Show Report.

SIR,—I am afraid your correspondent, Mr. A. Windsor, must have had a nightmare, and with his mind still in that perturbed state, have sat down with his "fist in his hand" to give your unfortunate and "tactless" reporter a severe slating for so foolishly venturing an adverse comment on this local novice's (Mr. Windsor's) "ideal" Norwich. Had he refrained from accusing me of unfair motives—thereby placing my honour at stake—I should probably have treated his effusion with the contempt it surely deserved, but as I cherish my honour as I do my very existence, I must say just a word or two in defence before being "despatched" by your satirical correspondent. I may say I have been a breeder of the variety in question for nearly twenty years and have been connected with the Fancy Press for the past ten years, and of the many reports I have penned during that period, this is absolutely the first time that I have been challenged on anything that I have written. The few remarks which I made in my prefactory notes (which my "tactless" mind led me to imagine would be to the benefit of the society if they choose to adopt them), viz., to bring the cage-bird section more up to present-day requirements, by increasing the classification and prize-money—which is now only—6s., 3s., 1s. 6d.—were simply made as suggestions, and could be taken for what they were worth. These are taken exception to by this gentleman, and at once dismissed by him as a "foolish and unbusinesslike remedy," etc. He deplores the fact of being at a loss as to the identity of the writer, but goes on to say, "that because he took a prize or two over the heads of some of the 'writer's pets' (whatever that may mean I know not, it's a poser), I took upon myself to act as a 'final authority' by passing an adverse comment on his bird." This, he says, is "very damaging" to the judge and the society. As regards the latter, I should very much regret it if this comment brought them any injury. I have taken an interest in this fixture for some years, and I don't think I should have troubled to have made the suggestions I did for its welfare (as I thought) if I wished to injure it. As to the judge, he is one of the oldest friends I have in the Fancy, we having known each other for many years, and I am sure he would be the last person to imagine I was doing him an injustice by any legitimate criticism on his awards. I don't know if your correspondent is trying to "pull my leg," or whether he is seeking a cheap "advertisement" for the bird in question, but from his description of it, your readers must conclude he has a veritable model of a Norwich with its many excellent points, its "unbeatable condition," and "clean as a pink" with all. What condescension on his part to admit of its being "rather long in leg, if anything." I confess I took my notes without the aid of spectacles, which might have enabled me to see all these desirable Norwich properties. I relied on my natural vision, which revealed to me a bird, narrow in head, long and narrow in body, long in tail, decidedly shallow in chest, with no substance about it. Behind it were birds of excellent type and quality, short and compact, which have won at many of the big shows this season in keen competition. Hence my "childish" comment on the winner, "surely a mistake." I was repeatedly asked the question by fanciers present: "What about the winning Norwich?" In fact, it was quite the subject of conversation among cage-bird men on both days. This is the "bias" "unfairness" and "final authority" twaddle with which this novice thought fit to rush into print. When I report a show, my remarks are based upon the exhibits, not their owners. My instructions are to give a fair, impartial, and conscientious report. These instructions I always try to carry out, and shall continue to do so. I shall never praise a bird up to the skies which I consider occupies a false position; whether it is to the likes or dislikes of its owner, I care not. Had the bird in question been worthy of its card, it would have received its full share of credit from my pen, no matter if it did belong to a novice, for I should have considered it all the more meritorious on his part to have beaten "old hands."

YOUR REPORTER.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Windsor's letter in your last issue, I think Mr. W. has gone too strong on your reporter. I think that he is a good all-round man to report a show; he understands all varieties. Now, the winner in the Norwich class was not worth a word of praise as he ought not to have been in the cards. I am not a disappointed exhibitor, but I like to see the best bird win. I have been to nearly all the leading shows in the country, but have not seen such a mistake all the season. Now, Mr. W. calls him "If a novice. If that is a novice's views of a Norwich I don't know what we shall have next. If Mr. Windsor calls his bird a "stormer," I will show either one of my birds that I had at Nantwich Show against his winner, and give him the choice of any specialist Norwich judge for £10, and will deposit the money with the Editor of CAGE BIRDS.

T. CRIMES.

SIR,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper for a few lines in defence of your reporter and his report re Nantwich Show, as I was a visitor to that show and, being a lover of a good Norwich and also of an honest show report, I cannot let Mr. A. Windsor's letter pass without a line or two on the subject. I have been a breeder of the Norwich Plainhead and a regular visitor to all the leading shows throughout Lancashire and the Midlands for some years past, and it was the first time I ever saw such a poor specimen crouching behind a first-prize card. I think Mr. Windsor quite right when he says "We Novices," for had he not been a novice, he would have kept the bird at home for singing purposes. I say the first prize Norwich at Nantwich Show was all the reporter said of it, and I think Mr. Windsor's letter a gross insult to the gentleman who reported the show, and in my opinion and in that of "a great many other visitors to the show," the reporter had ample room for supposing that a mistake had been made, for I failed to find one single good point of the many found generally in a "Typical" Norwich Plainhead.

How Nets are Made.

SIR,—I should be obliged if the good-natured fancier who signs himself "Netter" would answer me the following questions: How much netting can be made by a netter of ordinary ability in an hour, ¾in. mesh? What mesh, height, and length, should a Linnet clap net be? Which is the best net for Linnets, a come-and-go net, or a clap net?

The Championship Diploma for Best Yorkshire Canary.

SIR, I notice in CAGE BIRDS that a firm are advertising themselves as winners of championship diploma, 1909, for best bird in Yorkshire section. I claim to have won the honour, 1906, 1907, 1908, and 1909, for best Yorkshire, over all others, both Cinnamon marks and green marks. Mind you, I don't dispute that they have won diplomas in Cinnamon marks, but my wins cover all sections of Yorkshires.

Bullfinches and Hempseed.

SIR,—I have always been a great lover of the Bullfinch, and have had scores in my time, some of which lived to be fifteen and sixteen years of age, and some "went off" after a few days of confinement. But with all the birds I have had, I have never known one to "go black" from the use of hemp seed, which I have always given freely. But living in the country as I do and always have, I have always the chance of getting them plenty of green food, berries, buds, and young shoots of various kinds. I cannot say if it would have turned them black if they had had nothing but hemp seed. I am a great believer in giving them, and, in fact, all British birds, as much of their natural food as I can. I have never found that hemp seed has ever done them any harm or shortened their lives. It is always best to give them plenty when fresh caught, both soaked and dry. Also crush a few until you get the birds to feed well. Four beauties I had brought me a week ago (when the snow was on the ground) to try and "get round," as they would not feed or take anything. But as they were too far gone, they could not be saved. If they could have had plenty of hemp seed, they might have been saved.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR, With reference to the letter that appeared in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, signed "Reader," as regards blind Mules winning at shows, I have every pleasure in replying to "Reader's" request, but really I should have preferred to see his name at the foot of his letter, rather than the nom-de-plume he adopts; as the latter procedure always strikes me as hiding somewhat behind the bush. No straightforward and honest fancier need be afraid to see his name appear in the Press. As regards Guisborough Show on January 1st, at which I adjudicated, the only blind bird I detected was a Linnet, which I put out of competition. The dark Green-finch-Mule that "Reader" states is blind, and which from memory I placed second to the light Goldie-Mule shown by Mr. J. Maddison (Newcastle), did not strike me as being deficient in eyesight, as the bird took the perches quite easily when worked. Had the bird been blind at this particular fixture, he would have shown his deficiency up by clumsy movements, etc. "Reader" also refers to a letter that appeared in CAGE BIRDS, issue of January 22nd, also signed by a nom-de-plumist, saying that Mr. Houlton (who judged at Yarm Show, awarding this blind Greenie-Mule 1st prize) does not wish to enter into correspondence with his friend "Tyro" (Darlington). Mr. Houlton gave his views to "Tyro" at Stockton Show, re "Tyro's" own letter. The week after Guisborough Show, I received a letter from a certain fancier, who was exhibiting a dark Greenie-Mule in the same class as this alleged blind bird, asking particulars as to why his bird was so low down in the cards. I gave him my opinion, and full reasons of the affair. My reply to him was honest criticism. His exhibit was smaller, failing a little in colour, but of nice shape. I am afraid it is a case of a "disappointed exhibitor," judging by the reply I received after giving my views to him. Civility becomes everyone, although such is not served out on every occasion. Poor judges. I might tell both "Reader" and "Tyro" (if they are not one and the same person) that had I the class of Mules to judge over again, as I had at Guisborough, my awards would be exactly the same. When I officiate at a show as judge, what ability I possess is utilised to the best advantage; I satisfy myself and come away with a clear conscience. Blind birds do not win under me when detected. No man is infallible, and mistakes will occur at times. The Greenie-Mule at Guisborough Show, if deficient in one optic, must have been awfully clever with the other.

A CRISIS IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

The Metropolitan Sensation.

SIR, Referring to the note appearing in your last issue relative to the above, I have received a letter from Mr. J. W. Ramsden as follows (omitting formal parts):—"The Committee of the L. and P.O.S. accepted our advice and decided to withdraw from the C.B.U. I understood that you had power to act without reference to your Committee. This being so, will you send notice to the Press that both societies have withdrawn? If the notice requires my signature, I shall be pleased to add it if you will send the notices on to me." The L.C.B.A. in general meeting having given power to their sub-committee to act immediately, they have accordingly resolved to join the L. and P.O.S. in their withdrawal from the C.B.U., and I am notifying the secretary of the Union thereof.

WILLIAM H. MUGFORD,
Hon. Sec., London C.B.A.

Suggested Union of Lancashire Societies.

SIR,—I was very pleased to see in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS that some of the Lancashire societies are beginning to see that the Cage Bird Union is nothing but a farce, as the delegates' meeting at the Palace proves it to be. And I have no doubt that a Union such as your correspondent "Lancashire Union" mentions would be as beneficial to the Lancashire Fanciers as the Yorkshire Union has proved to the Yorkshire Fanciers, if worked on similar lines. If such a meeting was called no doubt the societies I am interested in would be represented there, as the majority of the members are disgusted with the workings of the C.B.U., Owing to being in a similar position to "Lancashire Union." I sign myself FIASCO.

A Stir in the Midlands.

SIR.—A meeting of the delegates for District No. 7 has been called for Saturday next, the 26th inst., at Leicester C.B.S. headquarters, Market Place, Leicester, time 4 p.m. Will you allow me through CAGE BIRDS to appeal to all the affiliated societies in this district to be represented at the meeting? It is necessary that we should decide without delay whether we wish the Union, as at present constituted, to continue.

J. H. DE MAILLET, Dis. Sec.

A Vigorous Defence.

SIR,—There seems to me to be a quite unnecessary anxiety on the part of some people as to the future of the Cage Bird Union. There is no doubt in my mind that the C.B.U. will outlive a good many of its critics, and that it is doing, and will continue to do, good, is to me perfectly clear. It only needs to have its rules (as fixed by the majority) carried out in a firm, but at the same time not arbitrary manner and the fullest publicity given to its workings. The C.B.U. has nothing to hide. The Press has always been welcome to its meetings (that is, its general business meetings). Of course, when enquiring into cases of alleged fraud it would not be fair to the accused to publish allegations that may be found unjustifiable, for no matter how innocent a man may be, if only plenty of mud is thrown some of it is sure to stick. When a man joins his local society he is expected (and he will expect himself) to abide by the rules and to see that others do the same. If the rules are not in the interests of the whole of the members, and there never was a rule framed yet that did not hit someone more hardly than others, then the obvious course is to try to get the rules altered, but altered in a manner provided for by the rules. No member of a local society would try to smash up his society simply because the rules did not agree with him individually; he would try to sacrifice his individuality in the interests of the members generally. Of course, I am writing of the man who puts his society before himself. The things that apply to a member of a society apply equally to the societies forming the C.B.U. If societies would support and help the officials (appointed by themselves) to carry out the rules (made by themselves) there would be no difficulty in making the C.B.U. a real power for good, not only in punishing evildoers, but in preventing evil-deeds being done. It is this preventative side of the C.B.U. which appeals to me a great deal more than the punishing of something actually done. I think I am right in saying that the C.B.U. has done a great deal of preventative work. Fanciers have found out since the formation of the C.B.U. that it does not pay to go wrong. Those who have tried it have had an unpleasant time of it, and the Fancy generally is much cleaner to-day than it was a few years ago. No doubt the C.B.U. has not punished all who have broken its rules, especially in the matter of members showing at non-affiliated shows; this has largely, in fact, almost entirely been because members who know of these things your colleagues always shuffle away from the point, such as packing or unpacking, or labels in members' pockets (questions I never raised) and as you know better than I can tell you Mr. "M.", exactly where this label was, you need not try to introduce any other subject to draw me from the point at issue.

LOVER OF JUSTICE.

The C.B.U. in the North.

SIR,—May I again be allowed a small space in your paper to reply to "Interested," who I see has wandered from the point at issue, namely the Siskin Canary at Newcastle Show. Now, to use his own words, he seems to be in an even more desperate state of mind, as some of this mud he speaks of has struck its mark and stuck fast. I hope it will be the means of making "Interested" tread the path a little more straight in future than he has done in the past. I asked a straight question (too straight, I suppose), and have failed to get an answer so far. Readers also will note that Mr. Currah shuffles out of it by saying "I may have heard something to satisfy me." To the correspondent who signs himself "A Member," first let me tell him that the gentleman to whom he addresses his letter has as much idea of the identity of the present writer as has this "member" himself, and I hope "Member" will act up to what he tries to make your readers believe he is, and ask that same gentleman those "pertinent questions" to his face (he has always plenty to say behind his back) when I have no doubt he will get an answer to his satisfaction. I make no mistake of your identity, and be very careful of any questions you may ask (with our worthy Editor's permission, as I have no doubt he will accommodate you) because I might give an answer and then ask some more which might prove very awkward for you to answer. Yes, Mr. "Member," this question about looks does seem rather funny, seeing I can't get an answer to it, as you and your colleagues always shuffle away from the point, such as packing or unpacking, or labels in members' pockets (questions I never raised) and as you know better than I can tell you Mr. "M.", exactly where this label was, you need not try to introduce any other subject to draw me from the point at issue.

LOVER OF JUSTICE.

SIR,—It has come to my knowledge that suspicion is resting upon certain members of Gateshead Society, in regard to the letters that have appeared in my name. I am sorry that such should be the case, and apologise. When I wrote the letters I put my own name to them, not someone else's. I am not a member of Gateshead or Newcastle Society nor have I ever been. One does not need to be a member of any society to get information, or write letters to the Press. Mr. Buck, your trumpeter, must be dead. I am afraid you have guessed wrong this time about the identity of "J. G." As regards your remarks about "muzzling," let me inform you I was not the first to use the term; a friend of yours was. Now, "N. D.," I did not insinuate that Newcastle residents who are members of Gateshead Society should not speak or vote; there were some both for and against the C.B.U. at the meeting when the vote was taken. I am told that two persons who were present at that meeting have "now" become members of the society. I would say this to you, "N. D.," the next time you write a letter put your name, just the same as your friends are saying "Twite," "Lover of Justice," and "Fate" should have done. I give this advice to "A Member" as well.

J. GRAHAM.

Can Chaffinch-Bramblefinches be Bred in a Cage?

SIR,—In your issue of February 5th a letter appeared from Mr. James Lane, re the above, and he hoped by his letter that he was able to convince "Hybrid" that the above-named cross could be bred in a cage. As "Hybrid" is rather an old hand, he takes a lot of convincing, but I am pleased to hear Mr. Lane has had fertile eggs. But that is not "raising" the birds. I have myself had similar results. As these and the cock Bullfinch Hybrid take some getting, I am, I can assure your readers, anxiously awaiting the successful results of these crosses in cages. I hope my letter and his letter will be the means of others giving their experience.

WEST BROMWICH & DIS. C.B.S.

The society hold their next meeting at headquarters, the Dartmouth Hotel, March 1st, at 7 o'clock. This is the date of our table pair show. All entries cose at 7.30 (not later), so as to enable judging to start then. Mr. J. Jones (Dudley) will judge. Sixteen classes will be provided. It has been decided that all exhibitors must state sex of all exhibits in the two selling classes, as these will not be entered for prizes. There is no limit and no entrance fee. But exhibitors must state a price for bird and cage. We are holding this show for the purpose of finding something of interest for members and friends alike. We are not charging for admission. We hope they do not fail to take this opportunity.—JENNINGS and VILES, general secs.

FORRES AND NORTHERN C.A.

Annual meeting held in the Mechanics' Institute on Feb. 14th. There was a good attendance. After the usual business the secretary submitted the annual report and abstract of accounts, which showed the association to have passed through a most successful year. Office-bearers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—Hon. president, Mr. Forrest; president, Mr. J. Robertson; vice-president, Mr. J. Russell; secretary, Mr. George S. Russell, 16, Urquhart Street; treasurer, Mr. W. Cumming; committee, Messrs. K. Maclean, J. Alexander, W. Miller, W. Dingwall, A. Campbell, A. Merchant, J. Younie, W. Fraser, J. Macgregor, and J. Urquhart. The date of show was fixed for 3rd December. It is hoped the Association will have a successful year's work.—JAS. RUSSELL.

KILMARNOCK C.B.F.C.

Annual general meeting held in Temperance Hall, February 8th. Balance-sheets had been distributed to all members. The chairman said that although we had been falling back on a smaller balance for a year or two we still had a substantial one to our credit. After several items had been gone through, Mr. W. Muir proposed, and Mr. J. Johnstone seconded, the adoption of the balance-sheet. The appointing of office-bearers was gone through, as follows:—President, Mr. W. Guthrie; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. Blair and W. Watson; committee, Messrs. J. Jones, A. Parker, W. Smith, J. Latta, A. Cooper, J. Hutchieson, W. Muir, J. Jamieson, and A. Watson; auditors, Messrs. J. Latta and A. Watson; secretary, R. McCaw. It was unanimously agreed to have full general meetings as often as could be found to give interest to members or novices throughout the year by lectures or exhibitions of hand-washing, etc.; young members are always in search of something of interest.—R. McCAW, Sec.

SELSTON AND DISTRICT F.S.

A meeting was held in the schoolroom on Feb. 19th, when a good number were present. Also a table show was held, which was of great success, there being cage birds and other stock. The chief winners of cage bird section were:—A. Scothern, who took 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes; C. Bacon, taking 1st prize and 2nd in British birds. All those wishing to become members are invited to attend next meeting, open to a radius of 5 miles. Entrance fee 1/-. Subscription 2/6.—F. MALTBY, hon. sec.

BATTERSEA & DIS. (Open) C.B.A.

Extraordinary general meeting held on February 17th, at 340, Battersea Park-road. The balance-sheet came up for discussion. A few remarks were made by the secretary and the chairman. Although it was not so good as they would have liked it to be, they said it was an improvement on last year's. The annual open show proved a success. Mr. T. Joyner proposed the adoption of the balance-sheet, which was seconded by Mr. Palmer. The post of secretary: Mr. F. Easterling said he would not hold office again. He gave many reasons, one (which is only too true) being that members put in such a poor attendance even at lectures. After a time, however, he gave way to the great satisfaction of all, and many present promised better support. The chairman, Mr. W. J. Honeysett, promised to assist in sending reports of meetings to the Fancy Press. Other office-bearers are as last year, excepting Mr. Gooch, who resigned from the committee, Mr. Hawes taking his place. The changing of headquarters: It was carried that 340, Battersea Park-road be our future headquarters. Intending members and friends, please note this change. Show dates are fixed as follows: Members' Pair, March 2nd, judge Mr. J. Robson; Young bird (open), June 18th, Mr. Robson; Annual Open, October 19th and 20th. Secretaries please note. It was decided to have lectures, cage-making and other exhibitions from time to time, which will be announced in CAGE BIRDS' club notices. It was also decided to advertise more in the Fancy Press, our open young bird show and annual show. This concluded an interesting meeting.—WILLIAM J. HONEYSETT, Chairman.

KENT COUNTY C.B.A.

A goodly number of members met at the house of a local member in Dover, on February 9th, to take part in a bird washing demonstration. Our host gave us a very cordial and warm reception. We were confronted by a bright fire, and on a large oblong table were ranged three basins for water, each about nine or ten inches in diameter, together with a generous supply of soaps, badger-hair and other brushes, and on a line above the fire were a quantity of nice, warm, soft cloths for drying and rolling up purposes. With regard to the soaps used, each had his own particular fad. The company having seated themselves round the table, our host set the ball rolling, and quickly put his subject through its tubbing, and rolled it in its drying cloth, and placed it within a safe distance from the fire in three or four minutes of starting. Mr. Reeve followed, and he, too, quickly and satisfactorily got his bird through its ablutions, and in the drying case. The next was our local champion of the art, Mr. Abbott, and the fashion in which he deftly did his work was a treat, and an education to witness. Mr. E. C. Rayner, taking off his coat and rolling up his sleeves in a very determined and workmanlike manner, next gave us a good sample of his abilities, and although this was his first attempt, he got his "man" through very creditably, and he must have profited by his close attention to the methods of his predecessors. Messrs. Austen, Hendry, and Hunt "followed suit" in the order named, and all the birds were on the perches in good time. No casualties occurred, and the demonstration was a decided success; so much so that another was arranged for March 2nd, at same time and place, to take the form of a "competition," Mr. Abbott being selected the adjudicator. The business of the monthly general meeting was gone through while the birds were drying, after which we wended our several ways homewards, having spent a most enjoyable and happy evening, our host looking as happy and contented as a "sand boy."—GEO. SANDERSON, Hon. Sec.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at headquarters, Swan and Peacock Hotel, on February 3rd. The balance-sheet was passed as read, and the society took a very good course in electing the same officials as before:—President, Mrs. H. Staveley Hill; vice-presidents, Messrs. S. H. Rhodes, Dr. O'Brien, and A. Cupiss; chairman, Mr. F. J. Weaver; vice-chairmen, Messrs. R. Willoughby and J. A. Tonks; committee, Messrs. J. Barrett, H. Rowley, H. Bryan, F. Price, and J. Millencamp. It was proposed and seconded that we still keep to our date of open show, viz., 28th and 29th October; we trust this will be satisfactory to those members who did not attend. Mr. J. Robson has been engaged to judge. I trust all members will take a little more interest in the society in future, and come to the meetings.—J. GIBBONS, Hon. Sec.

BRAMLEY AND DIS. O.S.

Special meeting held on Feb. 5th, at the New Inn, Bramley, the new headquarters, for the purpose of electing officers, Mr. Richmond in the chair. There was a good muster of members, and all were enthusiastic over our new venture, which only needs the goodwill and co-operation of all members to become a great success. We have now a nice cosy room to meet in, and I venture to say that all who attended the meeting were well satisfied. If only the members will help the officers, and work more harmoniously together, the society will soon be on as sound a footing as it has ever been. The election resulted as follows:—Chairman, Mr. W. Richmond; first vice-chairman, Mr. A. Silson; second vice-chairman, Mr. E. Craven; hon. secretary, Wm. Maltby; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. W. Benson. The following new members were elected: Messrs. W. Richmond, J. Guest, W. Steele, and W. Stephens. A vote of thanks was accorded the late secretary for past services, and he was elected a vice-president. It was decided to have a pair show on the next meeting night, March 5th, at 7 p.m. prompt. Four classes—two for clear and ticked birds, and two for heavy marked birds. Two specials will be competed for. Now, members, sink your differences, and let us have a good show and a nice meeting, as the business is important.—WM. MALTBY, hon. sec.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Adjourned annual meeting, held February 17th, Mr. Currah in the chair. At the outset the chairman read a letter in respect to the recent Wild Bird case. It was decided to open a list and invite subscriptions towards the defence of the case in a higher court. Mr. MacPartling then asked leave to the meeting to explain his position with regard to the birds which he showed at Wallsend show, and which were there protested against, the case having gone before the district committee of the C.B.U., where, on the advice of Dr. Galloway, it was held that the birds were Canarics, this view being upheld by the Cage Bird Union executive on appeal. Mr. MacPartling read out a portion of his defence dealing with the breeding of these particular birds. Mr. Vanner proposed a resolution expressing the confidence of the members in Mr. MacPartling's honesty and conviction that his birds are Mules. This was seconded by Mr. Shepherd, and carried without dissent. The meeting then proceeded to elect the officials for the ensuing year. An intimation was received from A. J. Haggie, Esq., of his inability to remain president, but it was unanimously decided to ask him to reconsider his decision. The vice-presidents were elected en bloc, with two or three additions. Mr. Currah was again elected chairman. His decision to again occupy the post was received with hearty applause. Mr. J. Shepherd is vice-chairman, this, again, was a most popular nomination. Messrs. G. Taylor and J. Curry, auditors; and Mr. T. Robson, treasurer. I was elected secretary, and will members and others kindly communicate any business to me in the future? The election of committee was postponed until our March meeting. I trust we will have a good attendance, so as to get settled down to our regular meetings shortly.—T. C. CRAWHALL, Hon. Sec., 121, St. George's-road, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

CITY OF GLASGOW O.A.

Annual smoker, held in the Bank Restaurant, Queen Street, on 18th February, President Black occupied the chair, supported by ex-president A. Jardine, ex-vice-president J. McLay, and vice-presidents Martin, J. Fairley, J. Renwick, A. Chalmers, T. Todd, J. Young, R. A. Brown (sec. of the West of Scotland Ornithological Association), A. Buchanan (pres. Glasgow, Derby), J. Fleming (sec. Glasgow Southern Association). We were also glad to see many of our old friends and fanciers present, notably Messrs. J. Knox, A. Russell, A. McLachlan, J. Park, Bennett, G. G. Aitkenhead, Nairn, McCraig, A. McMillan, A. Muir, A. Wilson. Sec. A. McDonald, with his usual tact, had all arrangements made to the smallest details, for what proved to be a most successful evening's enjoyment. President Black, in his introductory remarks, proposed the toast, "The King, Queen, and Royal Family," which was received by the large company with enthusiasm, after which the musical part of the evening was entered upon. Amongst the fanciers and friends there was some excellent talent. Our veteran friends, Messrs. J. Knox and A. Russell, although of the old school of fanciers, still take an activo part and interest in the rearing of a good Scotch Fancy. Mr. Knox's rendering of the "Lea Rig," and Mr. Russell's "Queer Folk in the Shaws" were much appreciated. Songs were also sung by Messrs. A. Muir, Todd, A. Fraser, Lochead, Phillips, A. K. Chalmers, Paton, A. Murray, D. Smith. Piano accompaniments were played by Mr. Weir, and a reading given by Mr. R. A. Brown. Humorous songs of Mr. Paton and others received a hearty reception. The first part of the musical programme being gone through, Mr. McIlwain, in a few well-chosen remarks, proposed the toast, "The City Association," coupled with the name of Vice-President Martin, who in his remarks stated that he considered it an honour to win a ticket at the city show, and touched on the point of the duty of members to render all assistance in their power to strengthen the hands of the officials, and push on the interests of the association to the highest standard of perfection. Secretary McDonald, in proposing "The Fancy Press," spoke in glowing terms of the powers of the Press, and how much they were indebted to it in many ways for the publicity given to all matters relative to the hobby of breeding and rearing of cage birds. He was pleased to see with them a representative of CAGE BIRDS in Mr. Jolliffe, who in replying thanked the company most heartily on behalf of CAGE BIRDS for their appreciative acceptance of the toast. Ex-President Jardine proposed a voto of thanks to the chairman for his able conduct. President Black, in returning thanks, said he was glad to see so many friends and fanciers, and he was glad at having that opportunity of saying that he would do everything in his power to merit their confidence and support for the progress of the association. Mr. Jolliffe proposed a vote of thanks to those who had so ably contributed to the musical part of the evening. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought what proved one of the most successful smokers of the C.O.A. all too soon to an end.—"SCOTCH FANCY."

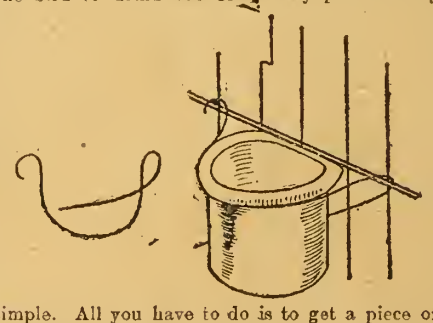
No. 386.
A Neat Cage Hanger.

Sent by Mr. W. Brooksbank, 18, Vermuyden Terrace, Goole, Yorks.

I enclose a sketch of a very simple holder to hang cages on to the walls. There is nothing looks worse, I think, than a hole through a nice cage-back and a large wire nail stuck through the backs of cages 1in. or 2ins., as I have seen them; and they are very dangerous to a bird if it flies against the nail-head. Sketch No. 1: Get a piece of cage wire 5ins. or 6ins.



long and a pair of pliers, and bend the wire in the centre like A; then measure your wire 1in. from each end, and take hold with your pliers and bend right round, like B, leaving both ends straight, like C. Now you will have the holder ready for fixing on to your cage back (Sketch 2). Then take your holder and place it on the cage-back; get a hammer and two nails or screws, and drive them through B into the top board of your cage, and the two ends (C) hold against the back of your cage, while A grips the nail on the wall and holds the weight of cage. This is very neat, and does not spoil the look of your cage.—W. BROOKSBANK.

No. 387.
An Easily-made Water Glass Holder.

Sent by Samuel McAllister, Margaret Cottage, Edward Street, Dunoon.

Below I give a sketch of a fastener for a water glass. Sometimes you see the water glass lying at such an angle that it is impossible for the bird to drink out of it. My plan is very simple. All you have to do is to get a piece of ordinary wire, and bend it to suit the glass; leave about 2½ins., and bring this round to rest on the wires, as shown in the sketch, when you will find this will bring the glass to the level.—S. MCALLISTER.

CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

An interesting and instructive evening was held on Feb. 16, when a washing demonstration was given. Messrs. Harvey, Hands, Grant, and Kilminster, each washed a specimen, and explained their methods of doing it. Afterwards several novices tried their "prentice hands," and though taking rather a long time none of the birds seemed any the worse for the ordeal. The secretary alluded to the death of Mr. May, one of the oldest members, who from physical infirmity had been unable to take an active part in the working of the society, yet had always evinced the keenest interest in it, and had done what he could to help. It was decided to send a wreath from the society. Three new members were elected, and general appreciation was expressed of the programme for the year.—A. S. TREASURE, hon. sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Usual meeting held on February 19th, in the Fawcett-street Cafe, Mr. W. F. Swan presiding over a good attendance. Mr. W. Reid proposed and Mr. A. Walker seconded that the minute relating to the Cage Bird Union, as carried at the previous meeting, be rescinded. This was carried, and the remainder of the minutes were then confirmed. It was also moved and carried that we take no action in nominating a president and secretary for the Cage Bird Union. Mr. J. Snowball placed before the members a scheme he has been working on for the purpose of placing the society in a sound financial position, which was very favourably received by the members, and we hope to have the scheme in full working order in the course of a week or two. The meeting accorded Mr. Snowhall a very hearty vote of thanks for attending, at great personal inconvenience, and explaining his scheme in such a lucid manner. The secretary was also instructed to forward a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. T. C. Crawhall, of Newcastle, for his very acceptable donation towards our funds, and we wish there were more like him. This concluded the business, and Mr. A. Walker then entertained the members to a very graphic account of the visit of the Sunderland fanciers to the Crystal Palace show, and the manner in which the "Colonel" described the visit and especially his own amusing adventures in a strange city, were most enjoyable. After the merriment, the "Colonel" received a hearty vote of thanks, which brought an enjoyable evening to a close.—W. REID, Hon. Sec.

Wild Bird Life.

The Pairing of the Birds.

St. Valentine's Day is passed, when the wild birds are supposed to choose their mates for the coming season. No doubt about this time many species begin to weed themselves out into couples, but the climatic conditions prevailing at the time are what influences them in their early or late courtships. Wild birds may be divided into two groups as regards nuptial arrangements—those that pair for life and those that seek new partners annually. Among the former are the Rooks, Jackdaws, Hawks, Starlings, Bullfinches, and our common Sparrow, besides others. Most of the Finches seek new partners each coming Spring, as do the Thrushes. It is most interesting to anyone who is about in the fields and woodlands to note how the birds gradually seek out partners among their companions. In a good many cases it is a gradual process, which commences far back in the autumn as soon as the moult is over, and the sickness incidental to that time passes. In this matter the bold Missel Thrushes are perhaps as conspicuous as any. They roam the fields in small flocks of about ten or a dozen birds. They are very shy and wary at this season, and difficult to approach; but by taking shelter along the hedgerows one can frequently get them well within range, and note that the flock is simply composed of so many birds which are gradually drifting into couples. They feed and fly in pairs, although forming a flock. Pairs of Sparrow Hawks may be seen all through the winter months circling and toying with each other in the air and around the edges of the wood before retiring to roost. Single birds are frequently seen, but these are doubtless young birds of the previous season which have not yet chosen for themselves mates, for the Hawks are slow to mature. I have seen it stated that this bold Hawk is a solitary species, and that the sexes keep apart. This may probably be so in the colder North, but here in the South pairs are not infrequent, even in the depth of winter. Since the autumn I have had three pairs under observation (all in the neighbourhood) which I could find at almost any time. In the clumps of thickets and along the taller hedgerows the sweet piping note of the gaily-coloured Bullfinch may be heard any time during the year. This low pipe is the call-note to his mate, for no two birds are more closely linked to each other "for good and all" than the plump Bullie and his equally plump wife. When the call-note is heard one has only to remain quiet for a short period, when both may be seen.

The Stonechat in Winter.

The plumage of the Stonechat in winter is not nearly so vivid as in the spring and summer. It is as well for this fellow that it is so, for his spring plumage would be much too attractive for winter wear, and expose him to many dangers.

The Raven's Stronghold.

That fast-decreasing species, the Raven, has found two or three fairly safe strongholds in Scotland. In one spot it has nested now for the past twenty years. The young birds are often destroyed, and sometimes one of the old birds is shot, but the survivor has always managed to secure another mate.

YORKSHIRES—continued.

C. MABEY.
Yorkshires; have a few hens left from his winners, from 7/6; stamp: 5, Anerley-st., Battersea.

HIRST'S
Yorkshires, been winning 20 years, clear or cinnamon-marked, own breeding; cock and hens, 7/6, 10/-, 15/-; approval: Ramsbottom-st., Accrington.

MURGATROYD'S YORKSHIRES
(late Murgatroyd and Son), Breeders over 20 years. Winning blood at reasonable prices. Cocks from 7/6 to 30/-; hens 5/- to 20/-; approval: 35, Lyttonrd., Girlington, Bradford.

BARGAINS IN HIGH-CLASS
Yorkshires, three Buff cocks, 12/6 each, two Yellow cocks 12/6 and £1 each; two Buff hens 6/6 and 7/6 each; two Yellow hens 15/- each; approval; cash or deposit: W. Mullins, Balby-rd., Doncaster.

OLIVER PRIESTLEY.
High-class Yorkshires, bred from my winning strain, cocks from 5/-; hens from 4/-; pairs from 8/1; sent on approval, cash or deposit: 121, Gaythorne-rd., West Bowling, Bradford.

L. C. CASEY.
I have some real gems of Yorkshires for sale at a reasonable price, cocks, from 7/- to 40/-, hens 5/- to 20/-; approval, cash or deposit: 7, Plimsoll-st., Bowling, Bradford.

ARTHUR HARRIS,
West Haddon, Rugby, is selling entire stock of Yorkshires, including all his noted winners at Southall, Hanley, Bristol, Wolverhampton, Cambridge, etc.; cocks, 5/-, 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; hens, 5/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; matched pairs, 15/- 20/-, 30/-, all on approval; cash or deposit with "Cage Birds."

YORKSHIRE HENS CHEAP
Related to my winners of 29 1sts and other prizes at the Crystal Palace (1909) and other principal shows; also a few cocks; approval on deposit: Apply W. Binns, 9, Albert-ter., Blackpool.

J. WILCOCK,
Having selected my breeding stock, I have some real gems to part with, either cocks or hens, all cold room bred; sent of 3 days' approval: 14, Chapel-st., Eccleshill, nr. Bradford, Yorkshire.

CUTHBERTSON'S
Yorkshires are still winning; have won during last few weeks 29 1sts, 27 2nds, and 23 3rds; have several winners for sale, and grand stock birds, all on very reasonable terms, cold-room bred, and all on approval; stamp for particulars.—G. W. Cuthbertson, Manor House, Hughington, via Darlington.

BINGHAM'S YORKSHIRES.
Challenge Cup winner 1907 and 1909, and numerous 1sts and special in open with birds bred by myself, has some real good birds for sale, cock from 7/6 to 25/-, hens from 5/- to 20/-; inspection cordially invited: 31, Nightingale-st., Darnall, Sheffield.

RECORD WINNING YORKS.
At three Dublin shows I won 16 1sts, 12 2nds, 12 3rds, and 8 specials. To make room for coming breeding season I am compelled to part with some of my winners at less than stock bird prices; cocks guaranteed standard length, from 10/- to 20/-; hens from 5/- to 10/-; all cold-room bred and kept; on approval, cash or deposit: Hawkins, Ashgrove, Queenstown.

BAILEY'S STRAIN
is hang at the top again, over all other so-called champion strains, having won this season the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea challenge trophy, and Naylor's challenge cup, at the Yorkshire shows, with fifty per cent. less entries than nearest competitor; have also won at Y.C.C. competition, Ramsden's challenge cup and Sandiford's challenge cup, only showing at eight shows, and my nearest opponent showing at ten shows, finishing at Palace with more 1sts than any other fancier in open section. I think this will convince you that the Sandy Lane stud are clear away from all others. Have few pairs same strain as above at 20/-, also few pairs extra quality from 60/- to 80/-; odd hens, either colour, feathered like paint; stamp reply: South View Terrace, Sandy Lane, Allerton, Bradford.

Winning Yorkshires.
Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

SHACKLETON'S CHAMPION YORKS.
Having won the Yorkshire challenge cup four out of five times competing, the amalgamation 25 guinea trophy, the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea trophy, the cinnamon-marked trophy, the Naylor challenge cup twice in succession, also twice championship for best cinnamon-marked, and three times championship for best Yorkshire in show Crystal Palace; my record of 28 1sts and special prizes in two successive years at Palace still stands unbeaten. I have bred more noted winners in a single season than some of the self-styled champions have bred in a lifetime. I do not buy 90 per cent. of my winners and advertise them as my own breeding. I breed my own champions, such as Paragon Perfection, thrice winner of championship for best Yorkshire in show, Crystal Palace, and scores of other prizes and specials; also Paragon Eclipse, twice winner at Palace and 50 1st and special prizes; also Paragon Victor, winner of 30 1sts and special prizes; other noted winners, too numerous to mention. I may mention that one client who had all his birds from me won 65 prizes and specials at six shows in the keenest competition; further comment would be superfluous. Having selected what I require for own use, I have for disposal some of the finest and most typical birds ever offered to the fancy; for length, style, position, and quality of feather, they cannot be equalled; cocks, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- 30/-, 40/- upwards; hens, 7/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/-, 30/- upwards; pairs, 15/6, 17/6, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- upwards; all in the pink of condition; 3 days' approval, cash or deposit, stamp for reply: Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10 guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1-, 1 6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THERE ARE TIMES
When breeders of Canaries and Hybrids find it inconvenient to cook and mince up egg for their birds. We can help them, for our
EGBISCO
which is already cooked and sterilized, only requires damping with cold water to make a reliable, efficient and genuine Egg and Biscuit Food, upon which the breeder may rely implicitly. Do not confound it with any other preparation on the market, for it resembles none of them in the least. Sold in 3d., 6d., and 1/- tins, by us, and all Corn and Bird Shops. It has been pronounced by publicly-recognised authorities to be by far the
of its kind on the market.
One trial makes constant users.

SILK'S Champion Norwich.

The prime factor of true economy is not price but

QUALITY.

Not so much what you pay as what you receive for your outlay. Cheap birds always prove the most expensive in the long run, and are really dear at any price. I

and make it my aim to supply only

FIRST-CLASS BIRDS.

It is annoying after spending your time and labour, to find that instead of spending your money profitably, you have lost by breeding with cheap and worthless birds. This strain has no equal. Matched Pairs, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/0 per pair. Single Cocks, yellow and buff, 15/6 to 40/0 each. The Finest Hens living, guaranteed breeders, yellow and buff, 12/6 to 30/6. Approval willingly, satisfaction guaranteed.

Judge A. E. SILK, Whitstable.

TO BEGINNERS.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-. Travelling cages, 3d. extra.

I want to Impress upon you the stubborn fact that I possess one of the most remarkable collections of Plainheaded Norwich ever seen, both in quantity and quality. Exhibition specimens, cocks or hens, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- up. State requirements fully and have on approval, that is the only way to be convinced. All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

NOTE FOLLOWING:—

Plainheaded Norwich Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 6/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards.

Plainheaded Norwich Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some.

of mine (whose letter is given below) so aptly remarks, the Leipzig Rollers are undoubtedly "top of the bill." If you want to possess the best singing Roller Canary it is possible to obtain, I want you to particularly peruse the letters given below, and at same time remember that you are not reading what I say, but what people say who have purchased a Leipzig Roller from me. I have repeatedly asked intending purchasers the have a Leipzig Roller from me, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhere, at any higher price, test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not far better value for money, return it to me and back comes every penny of your money. I take all risks and send every one on full week's trial on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds." I have an enormous stock now on hand, and every cock is guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or any other objectionable or harsh notes whatever, price 7s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. each; special handmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell notes, 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have grand lot of genuine Seifert contest Rollers, in magnificent condition and song, at 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each; few Seifert hens, 4/- each; these are guaranteed real Seifert strain, and are exceptionally fine and mellow in tone, and their song is like a cascade of everflowing melody. As these are the last lot of Seifert Rollers to arrive this season early application is imperative, otherwise disappointment may result. Splendid lot loud free singing Hartz cocks, every one warranted in full and vigorous song, 5/6 each, seven for 31/6; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple; Leipzig Roller hens 3/- each, 5/- couple; singing box cages, 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each; special Roller singing cabinets, with loose fronts and folding doors, made specially for Rollers, 2/6 each. Please note, following letters have not been solicited. Full name and address given in each case, and all open to inspection at any time:—"50, Lyndhurst Road, Luton, February 27th.—Sir, just a line to say I am perfectly satisfied with Roller; it sings beautifully; it was no worse for long journey; thanks for prompt despatch. —Yours, B. Rayment." "Tonge Moor, Bolton, February 28th.—Sir, received Seifert contest Roller all-right, and am highly satisfied with it.—Yours, J. Shepherd." "6, Thornton-rd., Stanwix, Carlisle, Feb. 26th.—Sir, I am quite satisfied with Roller you sent. He has started to sing, and is at it nearly all day.—Yours, J. Smith." "8, Emanuel Fold, Holton-lane, near Bolton, Feb. 24th.—Sir, received Seifert Roller in good health; he is a good bird, and no better could be got at double the money. Thanking you for honest dealings, your, W. Parkinson." "7, Batley-st., Mossley, Manchester, Feb. 24th.—Sir, birds arrived safe, and cock is very free singer.—Yours J. Gee." "40, Parker-st., Bradford, Manchester, Feb. 22nd.—Sir, please send Roller as follows; the two I had from you last December are both singing a treat; in fact, two friends came and heard them and would not rest till I had sold them one each.—Yours, J. Fisher." "Kentsford, Kentsbank, Feb. 23rd.—Sir, we are all delighted with the Roller you sent on trial a week ago; am well satisfied and thank you for straightforward dealings.—Yours, H. Hutchinson." "17, Nantylear-st., Cymmer, Port Talbot, Feb. 20th.—Sir, I am well pleased with Leipzig Roller. I never thought to get so good a bird for so little money; he is singing day and night.—Yours, J. Matthews." "8, Chapel-st., Chirton Village, North Shields, Feb. 10th.—Sir, received Roller safe and sound, and in ten minutes he showed us what he could do in way of singing, and he delighted us all: such sweet trills, a pleasure to hear; and since then he has gained the honour of 'pet of the household.' Please send following birds.—Please send following birds.—Yours, G. Hill." On October 20th Mr. Hall again writes as follows:—"Sir, birds arrived safe, and I am very pleased with them. I have had to part with the Leipzig Roller, as a friend was so delighted at his melodious song that he insisted on me letting him have it, and now I have word from him that he is simply reigning the bouschold by his winning song. I should not have parted with him, but know I can get another from you at my convenience. I am confident that if people only knew the beauty of your Rollers' song no other singing bird would be kept in their homes. —Yours, G. Hall." "Bar Hill-rd., Madeley, Staffs., Feb. 19th.—Sir, Leipzig Roller arrived safe. Please allow me to thank you for such a remarkable bird; it is a most splendid songster, and I am well satisfied. Anyone in want of a real downright good singing Canary cannot do better than have a Leipzig Roller from you, as they cannot be beaten.—Yours, S. Jackson." "17, Harcourt-st., Hopetown, Darlington, Feb. 17th.—Sir, please send following. I am delighted with Leipzig Roller cock you sent; he is a champion, and is 'top of the bill'; everyone admires him. Thanking you for such a good bird, yours, J. Rolls." "28, Oswald-terr., Gildard-rd., Leeds, Feb. 14th.—Sir, bird arrived Saturday, and has turned out as good as advertised. I am well pleased, and thank you for honest dealing.—Yours, H. Goddard." "44, Commercial-st., Abergwynfi, Feb. 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe and am well pleased with him. He is a lovely songster. I have had birds from other people, but never had such lovely birds as yours for the money. I had a Roller from your three years ago, and he has never stopped singing, not even when moulting. They are both singing together now like Nightingales.—Yours, R. Palmer." "William-st., Castlederg, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, Feb. 15th. — Sir, please send another Hartz cock; the last one I had is best singing bird ever heard in this part of country, and the Goldfinch is also singing well.—Yours, J. Keenan." Every bird is safely and warmly packed, free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time, on receipt cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded in full. If any person would like to hear one of these Leipzig Rollers sing, I shall be pleased to send one on week's trial, even if he has no idea of purchasing, providing cash is deposited with Editor and reasonable care taken of bird. I am the only importer of this particular strain, and every bird is stamped under wing "Hans Weber Leipzig," so send your orders to me to insure getting the real article. See British Bird Column for further advertisement.

THERE NOW

It's not anytbing I say, but the opinion of my thousands of customers who with one voice acknowledge my birds the best in quality, and yet the cheapest. The following are just a few of the many received last week. Just call and inspect the originals along with thousands of others. 34, Marlborough-st., Dublin, 21/2/10: Received birds in sound health; they are a grand pair, and so very cheap; thanks for the honourable way you treated me. Your methods are great credit to you.—W. Walsh. 22, Bullow-rd., Fulham, 21/2/10: The birds arrived safely; I am pleased with it, and shall certainly send to you again.—F. Hender. Newark, 22/2/10: Roller received safely; it is a good one, commenced singing on arrival; I could not have picked a better bird myself.—R. Fletcher. 62, Woodhury-st., Tooting, S.W., 21/2/10: Birds arrived safe. I am pleased with them. Thanking you for straightforward dealings.—M. Good. Stafford-st., Market Drayton, 21/2/10: Bird arrived safe, in good health; started to sing immediately. Many thanks.—T. Walker. Beacon-st., Letchfield, 21/2/10: Bird arrived safely, am very pleased with it. You do give good value for money.—F. Allsopp. 223, Camden-rd., London, N.W.: Roller received safely, a very nice bird, started singing even this morning. Carman said he was singing in the van. Thanks for prompt attention.—F. Stump. 17, Beechwood-ave., Chorlton-cum-Hardy. 21/2/10: 2 birds arrived safely; they are very satisfactory. I am so pleased.—H. Yates. 9, Murray-pl., Lamlash, 21/2/10: Received bird in good condition and very lovely, am highly satisfied with it.—W. Hislop. 2, Park-ave., Mansfield, 21/2/10: Received birds in splendid condition; am highly satisfied with them.—L. Ashby. 98, Hungerford-rd., London, N., 21/2/10: Birds arrived safe; am more than satisfied with them.—A. Lloyd. I could fill the whole of this paper with such letters from delighted customers, but the above samples will convince you that the name Storey stands for quality. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d for postage. YORKSHIRES.

"MORE WINNERS SOLD."

Read following, from:—Malvern Buildings, Bath, February 21st, 1910,—I write to tell you I had 2nd prize and special with the Yorkshire hen I had from you. Shall send another order soon. H. Russell to L. Dykes. Another from: 29, Woodside, Wimbledon Park. February 20th, 1910. Sir,—I am pleased to tell you I won 3rd in pair class, 23 entries, with the yellow cock you sent me paired to my own buff hen, which I described her faults, and to your judgment I feel the credit is due that I was awarded the above position. Thanking you for your honest treatment. M. M. Owen to L. Dykes. Another from: 9 and 10, Great Tower Street, London, E.C.,—Birds to hand, in good condition, and is (as usual when had from you) splendid; your selection meets with my entire approval. Shall send all future orders to you, as I sent elsewhere, and was very disappointed, losing one, and the other I had to destroy out of its misery. Am also pleased to say that every bird shown by me, and which has been in the money, I have had from you. Wm. G. Bruce to L. Dykes.

I have received scores similar to above, never published. Show and stock birds, bred from and related to my winners at all leading shows; having won during 1909-10, over 200 cash prices, three challenge cups, and numerous specials for best bird in show. Long, racy, yellow cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; buff cocks, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; pairs, matched to breed the best living at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; grand typical hens, with neat, narrow waists, and feathered like wax, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each, all in breeding condition, and will be worth double in a few weeks' time. All colours to select from, in Clears, Ticked, Green-marked and Cinnamon-marked, and all cocks on full song and seven in. long (some over), guaranteed cold rooms bred and kept, and in perfect health. Inspection invited at any time.

All orders sent off same day as received, carefully packed, with proper food for journey (travelling cages 3d. extra), on seven days' approval, at my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed any distance. Either for cash or deposit with Editor, or on easy payments. Full particulars, and new season's price list of Yorkshires, Norwich, Crests, Sib hens, Songsters, etc., post free.

AMBLER'S CHAMPION YORKS.

Won Palace 1910 two 1sts, 2nd, 4th, and Ramsden's special championship diploma, and 10/6 special for best Yorkshire in show; as we are only reserving a few for breeding with, we have for sale some real clinkers, wonderful length, perfect type, and full of quality and style, just the sort to breed champions; cocks, 7/6 to 50/- each; hens, 7/6 to 30/-; the most reliable strain in the Fancy; see our winnings for over 30 years; cold room bred; approval, stamp particulars: Messrs. Amblers, late of Bradford, 138, Westminster-rd., Morecambe.

BAILEY'S STRAIN

is bang at the top again, over all other so-called champion strains, having won this season the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea challenge trophy, and Naylor's challenge cup, at the Yorkshire shows, with fifty per cent. less entries than nearest competitor; have also won at Y.C.C. competition, Ramsden's challenge cup and Sandiford's challenge cup, only showing at eight shows, and my nearest opponent showing at ten shows, finishing at Palace with more 1sts than any other fancier in open section. I think this will convince you that the Sandy Lane stud are clear away from all others. Have few pairs same strain as above at 20/-, also few pairs extra quality from 60/- to 80/-; odd hens, either colour, feathered like paint; stamp reply: South View Terrace, Sandy Lane, Allerton, Bradford.

Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Extracts from a lecture delivered recently by a well-known judge and breeder of Yorkshire variety cage birds:—"The highest ambition and aim of true fanciers is to breed own winners rather than acquire such by purchase. The only method to attain this desirable object is having possession of suitable and reliable stock pairs for producing such. To ensure these conditions, avoid purchasing stock from a market where all and every kind and variety of cage birds are bought and kept for purpose of resale only, as even the least expensive stock purchased or procured from a recognised and reliable breeder of the variety required is far better than paying double or more for haphazard selection from such stocks." This without comment is solid truth in a nutshell, and should be seriously considered by all intending purchasers of coming season breeders. Having had over 30 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshire varieties only, intending purchasers for such can rely on purity of breed combined with up-to-date style and quality. Personally selected and unrelated pairs from 10/0. 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens from 20/- upwards; all cold-room bred, reared, and kept; all approval, cash or deposit. Full season's price list sent on receipt of stamp for reply. Old 50 years' address: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. (See previous advertisements in this paper.)

C. MABEY,

I WILL STAND OR FALL

by the result of fair and unprejudiced public opinion on my system of doing business. My Birds and Bird appliances are no "catch-penny" items of trade. Everything I sell is sound and genuine. I give you the opportunity of a fair and honourable trial. I want no man's money with any man's grumble. I make my business friends—and (what is not always quite so easy) I KEEP THEM! My specialities in Cages, Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, etc., for all Cage-birds have something more than merely "a local habitation and a name." They are known all over the globe. They please all and disappoint none. My Foods for Cage-birds are ever sound, serviceable, and satisfactory, and my prices all-round are based on terms of both merit and moderation. I sell no rubbish. I have neither time nor room for that class of business. It will afford me pleasure to send you my 58-page Illustrated Catalogue, and if you are interested in Bird-life, this work will aid that interest.

REGARDING YORKSHIRES.—I possess the largest stock of high-class birds to be seen in any establishment in the world, and I can supply typical cocks, all in full song, from 5/6; hens, from 3/6; matched pairs at 8/6, upwards. If you require Yorkshires at reasonable prices, remit or deposit the amount you wish to pay, and full value will be sent by return, on a full week's approval. Grand collection, including the entire bird-room contents of several leading fanciers, of the following varieties:

PLAINHEAD NORWICH,
CRESTED AND CREST-BRED,
LIZARDS & LANCASHIRES.
Seifert Rollers, Siberian Goldfinches, Goldfinch Mules, cage-moulted Goldfinches, and Linnets, and suitable Muling hens.

Five Hundred Feeding Hens, at 2/9 each, including travelling cage. If you want value for money, communicate with the original firm of E. Taylor. Usual terms.

Week's approval, and you may deposit cash. Full detailed bird price list free on application. Kindly state wants.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guinea trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

THERE'S MUCH

There is much to gain and nothing to lose by sending your order for Canaries direct to Miss Storey. The practical bird specialist. She has undoubtedly the finest collection ever seen in England. Yorkshire and Norwich Canaries of the best quality, bred from and directly related to noted winners, correct in type, tight in feather, sound in health, and in good breeding condition. Birds that will do you good service, and breed strong, healthy, typical youngsters for next season's showing. You have no need to purchase wasters that are almost useless, and breed nothing but wasters, for I offer you good quality, sound, typical birds, at half their value. Tho high quality of my birds is proved by tho many thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from my customers, praising the superiority of my stock. Just you call and inspect this wonderful collection of high-class birds; it will delight you; or let me send you any of the following, carriage paid to your door, on seven days' approval, at my sole risk. I guarantee to give you every satisfaction. Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Hartz Rollers, champion songsters, cocks, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 8/-, 9/-; St. Andreasburg Rollers, the king of all singers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; illustrated list, 1d. All Canaries carriage paid, on approval: Miss E. L. Storey, Crowle, Doncaster.

Yorkshire and Norwich Pairs, 10/-, Deposit 6/-. Balance at 1/- per week. These are the 15/- pairs sold by others. Cocks, 7/-. Deposit 4/-, Balance 1/- per week. Hens, Buff, 3/-, 3/6. Yellows, 4/- cash. Cages 3d. extra.

EDGAR BROADBENT,
THE MILLHOUSE, 57, Lime Street, Sheffield.

HIRST'S

Yorkshires, been winning 20 years, clear or cinnamon-marked, own breeding; cock and hens, 7/6, 10/-, 15/-; approval: Ramsbottom-st., Accrington.

LINDSAY'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Few champion pairs, 15/-, 20/-, to 30/-; also some slashing buff cocks, 8/- to 30/-; no better blood to be got; some can win amongst them; inspection invited; approval: 202, King James-st., Sheffield.

SHACKLETON'S CHAMPION YORKS.

Having won the Yorkshire challenge cup four out of five times competing, the amalgamation 25 guinea trophy, the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea trophy, the cinnamon-marked trophy, the Naylor challenge cup twice in succession, also twice championship for best cinnamon-marked, and three times championship for best Yorkshire in show Crystal Palace; my record of 28 1sts and special prizes in two successive years at Palace still stands unbeaten. I have bred more noted winners in a single season than some of the self-styled champions have bred in a lifetime. I do not buy 90 per cent. of my winners and advertise them as my own breeding. I breed my own champions, such as Paragon Perfection, thrice winner of championship for best Yorkshire in show, Crystal Palace, and scores of other prizes and specials; also Paragon Eclipse, twice winner at Palace and 50 1st and special prizes; also Paragon Victor, winner of 30 1sts and special prizes; other noted winners, too numerous to mention. I may mention that one client who had all his birds from me won 65 prizes and specials at six shows in the keenest competition; further comment would be superfluous. Having selected what I require for own use, I have for disposal some of the finest and most typical birds ever offered to the Fancy; for length, style, position, and quality of feather, they cannot be equalled; cocks, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- 30/-, 40/- upwards; hens, 7/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/-, 30/- upwards; pairs, 15/6, 17/6, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- upwards; all in the pink of condition; 3 days' approval, cash or deposit, stamp for reply: Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

GEO. & ALBERT BROWN,

ACKNOWLEDGED FOR GENUINE VALUE FOR MONEY.

No impositions whatever; we are commonly called by all leading exhibitors and working classes "The Straight Firm." The firm where you can hear your birds sing before buying; call and see for yourself, seeing is believing; the proof, the birds have to sing before you are allowed to purchase. Is that good enough for straight dealings? We offer this week in Yorkshire cocks, buffs, 7/6 each; yellows, 8/6; greens, 8/6; hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, each; matched pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- per pair; good, typical birds, no Dutch substitutes for the original whatever. You have tried the champion firms, now purchase from us, and compare our prices and birds; once served you will always patronise; 60 pairs sold weekly retail at the firm with a long life experience with birds, which cannot be denied. Fresh consignments every Thursday, 9.30 a.m.

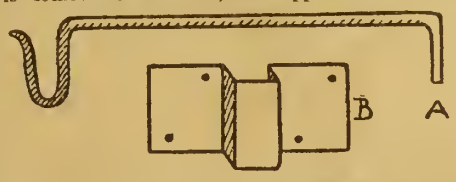
No. 388.
A Red-mite Destructor.
Sent by Mr. P. Crook, 5, Romer Street, Bolton.



Here is an idea of what I find exterminates red mite. It is a very simple contrivance, and I am sure my fellow readers would only be too pleased to give it a trial. I have tried red mite perches, traps, disinfectants, etc., but I find this idea about the best way to keep my birds free. First get an ordinary box (a Quaker oats box is a nice size), make a good fitting door, cut a round hole (A in sketch) in the bottom to allow an ordinary cake tin (about 6ins. diameter) to fit. Then place the cage or cages (seed box as well) into the box, and put a quantity of cayenne pods in the tin. Close the door and allow the whole to stand for about half an hour. This gives the red mite time to go in search of their prey, which they do in the dark. Then place an ordinary spirit lamp under the tin beneath the box and allow to burn for 15 minutes, and no red mite or other insect will survive. B shows the lamp in position. I do this about twice during the season, and the cost is only a trifle.—P. CROOK.

No. 389.
A Handy Cage Hook.
Sent by Mr. W. King, 30, Hampden Street, York.

Enclosed is a sketch of a hook which I have found very useful for a drawing-room cage. It is made of ⅛-in. round iron of convenient length to the shape shown in the sketch. The end A is somewhat flattened, the opposite or crossways to the hook. B is a clip made of hoop iron or brass to the shape shown for A to slide easily into or out of; it is then screwed to the window frame or any other handy place. If desired to hang a cage outside, an additional clip could be made and left outside, the hook being easily moved from one place to another. —W. KING.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

A Social Gathering.

A social gathering was held at the Crown Hotel, Lavender Hill, on Feb. 24th. An excellent dinner was provided, to which a goodly company sat down. Mr. F. J. Martin gave the toast of "The Association," reviewing the past year's work and commenting upon their flourishing condition and sound financial position. They had held two successful members' shows during the winter, each of which had paid. They had bought no less than five cups and medals, and still had a good balance in hand, and their future prospects looked rosy. Mr. H. Davis, one of the old school of fanciers, in proposing "The Press," drew an interesting picture of the struggles of fanciers before the coming of CAGE BIRDS. In those days a novice struggled on for years before he could even gain a common knowledge of bird management. Old fanciers kept their secrets to themselves, and reports of meetings and gatherings were few and far between. Now, however, things were entirely changed. Old fanciers freely gave of their best, and the reports of meetings and lectures not only were interesting reading but saved time and money to the struggling novice. The presentation of medals and cups then took place, the successful candidates being Messrs. G. Harwood (Yorkshires), and G. Sayteh (Borders). The following won medals, Messrs. Best, King, Mabey, Ottaway, Saytch, Harwood, and Mrs. McGregor. The association does not believe in trophies running indefinitely, so each cup is won outright during the season. Three new ones have already been purchased for competition among the members next year. During the evening a most enjoyable programme of music was got through, the principal artistes being Messrs. Starkey, Smith, Ottaway, and McGregor. Mr. Cunningham ably presided at the piano. Among the company we noticed Messrs. Tebbs, Best, Walker, Johnson, Martin, Davis, Burgess, Gallop, Ottaway and Mrs. Ottaway, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood, the able secretary and his assistant, Mr. and Mrs. McGregor, and Mr. H. Norman. The company dispersed at a late hour, having spent a most enjoyable time.

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The eighth list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows: Dr. E. Hopkinson (Gambia, West Africa), £1 1s.; per Messrs. Ewen and Anderson (Aberdeen), 18s. 6d.; Penzance F.A., 10s. 6d.; Northamptonshire Town and County Hand-in-Hand C.B.S., 10s.; per Mr. James Overend (Ravensthorpe), 9d. 3d.; per Mr. G. Linsey (Cambridge) (Messrs. G. Linsey, F. Burgess, W. Smith, and T. Mansfield, 1s. each, F. Hurry 9d., G. Thurston, W. Brown, E. Wells, E. Newman and S. Coote 6d. each), 7s. 3d.; Reigate F.A., 6s. 6d.; per Mr. A. Matthews (Bristol), 5s. 3d.; Hucknall Torkard C.B.S., 5s.; Wigan C.B.S., 5s.; Mr. Pruden (Waterloo), 5s.; Doncaster C.B.S., 4s. 6d.; Dysart C.B.S., 2s. 8d.; Southend and Southern Counties O.S., 2s. 6d.; Mr. J. Moore (London, N.), 2s.; P. W. (Newton Abbott), 1s.; B. Hope (Boston, Spa), 1s. These amounts total £5 16s. 11d., and, together with the sums already acknowledged, bring the aggregate subscriptions received up to £57 8s. 3d.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

Through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, myself and a few Dewsbury working men friends (who all are fanciers) have become acquainted with the facts of the case of Messrs. Preston and Flowers, and to show our sympathy would ask you to accept the sum of 9s. 3d. towards taking their case to a higher court. We would also tender you our thanks for the publicity you have given to the matter. We wish your paper every success for the way you insert all news to the interest of any of us fanciers.—(Signed for the subscribers), JAMES OVEREND (Dewsbury).

Allow me to express my feelings of gratitude towards CAGE BIRDS for taking such a deep interest in the matter. I corroborate all Mr. Trower's statements, and the reasoning from his intelligent pen. His chief interest whilst he was chairman of the Bird Traders' Protection Society was to promote its welfare. All weathers he was at his post every meeting night, having come a long distance. "Old Jack Flower" (as he is known in the trade) also never missed an opportunity of being present. He is the most amiable of men, and was a zealous worker in aid of the society. Know him rightly and you will find that he is one of the most honest men in the trade. I am fully convinced that if defended properly and the case thoroughly thrashed out, the two defendants will be exonerated, and justice dealt out. —J. J. HALL (late secretary of Society and Editor of "Bird Trade Journal").

Wild Bird Life.

The Advance of Spring.

"February fill dyke" is an old saying, and this year the month is keeping up its reputation; but the weather is mild with occasional gleams of sunshine, which is quite enjoyable. Spring is advancing much too rapidly. Already the fruit buds are bursting, and the varnished tips of the chestnut trees are swelling. In the open country where a few elders are crowded in the hedgerows, the green leaves are showing plainly, and along the sheltered sides of the wood, and upon the sunny banks, primroses and violets may already be gathered. The sight of the first spring flowers growing wild in the open conjures up memories of past days when we ranged the hills and woods, gathering the choicest of wild growths and seeking the homes of the feathered race. With the decline of winter the bird lover has much to look forward to. Spring brings with it many pleasures, and not the least of these is the renewing of our acquaintance with those members of the feathered race who have for a time deserted us.

Of all the birds that delight us with their presence and song around our homes the one we should miss the most is the cheery Song Thrush. All through the winter we have had intermittent bursts of birdy music, but now he is an incessant performer. At the first faint streak of light in the east he commences his morning melody, and through the whole day he can be heard everywhere. He is far in advance of the Blackbird, who seldom sings until spring is with us. But the Song Thrush is not the only performer; the Starling gurgles and whistles from the chimney top or higher trees; the Skylark soars and carols; the noisy, piercing call of the Great Tit resounds through the woods; the tune of the Linnet and the mellow twittering notes of the Greenbird are becoming quite familiar along the country side. Up to the present I have not actually seen a nest of this season's construction, but suspicious signs of early incubation are constantly being noticed. For the past few days a Starling has been flying between my garden and an old walnut tree some two hundred yards away, and at each journey he takes a grub in his beak, so he is evidently feeding something located in one of the knot holes of the old monarch. Another pair are frequently sitting side by side in another tree, or dodging in and out suitable building sites, and I am inclined to think that the wild, free notes of the bold Missel Thrush on yonder elm are not intended for human listeners.

Accident to a Blackbird.

Many wild birds die from accidents, frequently by getting entangled by the hair of animals or vegetable threads. A Blackbird was recently found fastened to a blackberry bush, where it had evidently died of starvation.

Construction of a Rook's Nest.

From the ground a Rook's nest looks a heap of sticks, but one that was thrown down recently proved to be quite different from what it appeared. Sticks certainly formed the exterior, but the inside was neatly lined with roots and rough bits of turf, the whole having a neat, cosy appearance.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

"Old Don."

We had a very nice cock Bullie which we called "Don," and a cat called "Tommy," which often looked at "Don" as if it would like him. But "Don" was quite safe for many months. Recently, however, when I was feeding him "Don" got out of his cage, and thinking he was safe chirped. At the same moment "Tommy" made a grab at, but luckily missed, "Don." I now make sure the door is fastened when I go to feed our "Don."—Sent by Sam Foster, Notting Road, Codnor, near Derby.

*A Welcome Visitor.

I am living with my grandmother in a lonely part of Gloucestershire. A Robin accustomed to feed on the crumbs thrown out during the winter of 1908 has gradually since found its way inside, and now, instead of waiting for the crumbs to be thrown out, comes in regularly and hops about the kitchen. A few weeks ago it spent the night in one of our bedrooms, and in the morning came and perched on my head. Sent by Frances Webb (age 11), Littlewood, Charfield, Gloucester.

*A Bright Idea.

I had two birds, one named Peter and the other Tom. One day Peter became ill and died. On Tom missing his comrade he also became ill, but luckily I knew how to manage him. As soon as he recovered I put a mirror in the corner of the cage, and he lived long after, for he did not know his own face from Peter's, and he thought his comrade was with him.—Sent by James McGuire (age 15), 73, Crossburn Street, Glasgow.

Twitterings.

Our First Feather show, writes Mr. J. Carlin, secretary of the Eastfield Side C.B.F.S., has been fixed for June 4th.

Owing to pressure of business I am selling all my winning British, writes Mr. A. Coffey (Liverpool). The birds have won at all the leading shows.

Our open show, writes Mr. T. G. Jeffery, hon. secretary of the Sonthall and Dis. C.B.S., will be held on December 14th, when Mr. J. Robson will judge.

Kindly note that the annual open show of the Battersea and Dis. Open C.B.A. will be held on October 19th and 20th, the same date as last year, writes Mr. W. G. Honeysett, the chairman.

Will fanciers kindly note that my address as the new secretary of the Queen's Park (Glasgow) and Dis. C.B.S. is 43, Cimcart Road, Mount Florida, Glasgow, writes Mr. Robt. Heggie.

Mr. L. Bousfield, of Bournemouth, has, we hear, purchased from Mr. L. Dykes, his buff Yorkshire hen, 4th at Crystal Palace and also his buff cinnamon marked cock, 3rd at the Palace.

The judges appointed for our annual show, to be held on December 16th and 17th, are Mr. W. B. Mackie (Aberdeen) for Norwich, Mr. D. A. Craig (Arbroath) for Crests, Cinnamons and other varieties, and Mr. Alex. Steele (Aberdeen) for Hybrids, British and foreign birds, writes Mr. J. Bryson, secretary, Aberdeen O.S.

In answer to "Nimrod," writes Mr. W. Thompson (Llanelly), my birds were going light and losing flesh, so I noticed advertised in CAGE BIRDS "Maryelino" (a bird medicine), which I tried, and my birds were cured.

Will fanciers kindly note that the headquarters of the Wolverhampton C.B.S. in future will be at Duke of York Hotel, Princess Street, meetings second Thursday in each month, at 8 p.m.?—J. GIBBONS, hon. secretary.

I have removed from Horfield to 1, Grantham Villas, Slad Road, Stroud, Gloucester, writes Mr. H. Barry, and although I have not exhibited this last season, I intend to do so this. I may say I have some very promising birds, especially a few good Brambles.

Will Barrow C.B.A. members interested in show business please attend our next meeting on March 9th, writes Mr. G. Large, the hon. secretary, as we have important matters to discuss. I hope the members will stir up a bit, and let us have a good muster.

The rule-book of the Queen's Park and Dis. Cage Bird Association includes also a list of the meetings, lectures, and shows (a capital programme), and the members' names and addresses. The secretary is Mr. J. C. Birch, 68, Ashburnham Road, London, N.W.

The Yorkshire Canary Club of Scotland have issued a neat little syllabus, in which are also included a list of the officials and the rules of the club. The programme includes lectures, a first feather show, etc. The secretary is Mr. F. Bowman, 5, Parkview, Tolleross, Glasgow.

I have resigned my position as secretary of the Southport and Dis. C.B.S. owing to my not having time to attend to it. Mr. A. Williams has been elected secretary, and in future all communications should be directed to him at 19, Halifax Road, Ainsdale.—R. BULLOUGH.

We have received a schedule of the City and Suburban A.C.B.'s British and foreign bird show, to be held on March 12th at the Church Institute, Paddington Street, Marylebone, London, W. No fewer than 25 classes are provided, and Mr. C. Prior will judge. It is expected there will be a large attendance and a record success is confidently anticipated.

The Stratton, Bude and District F.A. balance-sheet shows the cash in hand at the end of last year at £3 13s. 11d., which is distinctly good considering £25 was expended during the year on tents, penning and benching, and less than £19 was brought forward from the previous accounts. Messrs. Bohn and Welch, the secretaries, and the society are to be complimented on this result.

The Nottingham and Dis. Permanent O.S. hold a Canary washing competition, open to all comers in the clubroom, "Grapes" Inn, Platt Street, on March 12th, writes Mr. J. Walmsley (secretary). Entrance fee 7d.; admission to room free. Washing to commence at 7.30 p.m. prompt. Prizes: 1st, copper kettle; 2nd, the whole of the entrance money. Fanciers are heartily invited to see this contest, novices especially, for whose benefit it is mainly intended.

Wedding bells were again ringing on February 23rd, when the youngest son of Mr. Joe Wilcock, the veteran fancier, Mr. Joe Wilcock, jun., of Eccleshill, Bradford, was married to Miss Lilian Medley, also of Bradford, by the Rev. R. B. Mackee, at the parish church of Eccleshill. The wedding breakfast was enjoyed at the Liberal Club, Bolton Road, when a large number of guests sat down, and the afternoon and evening were passed in a happy and social manner. The presents were numerous and useful.—MRS. C. M. SUNDERLAND (Bradford).

We have secured the services of Messrs. R. Lambie (Whitburn), G. F. Adamson (Kilmarnock), and D. J. Gardner (Bathgate), to judge at our show on November 12th, writes Mr. George Smith, secretary, the Grangemouth and Dis. O.S.

We hear that the Newburgh (Fife) and Dis. Gardening Society are to have a cage-bird section at their big show, to be held on July 23rd. It will all depend upon the response received as to whether or not this section will be enlarged in the future. The secretary of the cage-bird section is Mr. Robert Campbell, 109, High Street, Newburgh, Fife.

In forwarding us a copy of the club's balance-sheet for the year ended January 31st, Mr. J. Brown, secretary of the Scottish Norwich Plainhead Club, writes: that the decrease in the balance compared with last year (a difference of 18s. 10½d.) is due to a shrinkage in the membership, which I am hoping to augment considerably during the coming season. All the same, there are considerably over a hundred members, and it says a great deal for the club that they have come out on the right side financially.

TWO SUPERB STANDARD WORKS.

"Our Canaries."

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Please accept my sincere thanks for your kindness in putting the picture of my winning Gold Lizard in CAGE BIRDS. It is a credit, both to yourself and the artist.—JOHN RUKIN (Rawtenstall).

We have elected Messrs. H. W. Battye and A. Hirst to judge at our annual open show on September 30th and October 1st, writes Mr. R. Towler, secretary of the Burnley and District C.B.B.S.

We hear that Mr. C. A. House, of Walthamstow, London, N.E., is engaged to judge at the following shows: Hastings, December 6th; Harpenden, Whit Monday; and Jersey, November 30th and December 1st.

We have received an advertisement offering Canaries from "Sleightholme Cottage," but with the name and remainder of address missing. Will the sender please write us, giving the necessary particulars?

Will secretaries please note that all communications respecting the Whittington Moor and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. E. Barber, should be addressed to me, as secretary, at Tapton View Road, Chesterfield, our late secretary, Mr. Atkins, having retired through pressure of business?

The sweet pea is perhaps the most popular flower of the present time. It can be relied upon to grow almost anywhere, will give a continuous supply of fragrant bloom right through the autumn, and is most useful to hide any ugly or unsightly corner in one's garden. Mr. E. A. Bannister, the well-known sweet pea specialist (5, Grotto Road, Twickenham), it will be noticed, is advertising in our columns, and offering seeds at very keen prices. Lovers of their gardens would do well to send for his price list, mentioning CAGE BIRDS when writing.

The 1910 programme of the Cheltenham C.B.S. includes, besides lectures and papers on all branches of the Fancy, several special events, such as an annual dinner, a question night, an outing, shows and competitions. The hon. secretaries, Messrs. A. S. Treasure and W. Pounsett (Idahoe, Oaklands Avenue, Prestbury), will be glad to supply information to anyone respecting the association.

Readers will learn with regret that Mr. A. Watson, secretary of the Grand United Metropolitan Show (and himself a cage-bird man) is still suffering from the effects of his breakdown in health last autumn. We hear, however, that he hopes to be able to attend to business matters in two or three weeks. He has had a very anxious time lately. Mrs. Watson has undergone an operation for appendicitis, and is mending but slowly. Mr. Watson regrets that there should be one or two small matters in connection with the show still unsettled. May both invalids have a speedy restoration to health, will be the wish of fanciers.

We have secured the services of the following gentlemen to act as judges at our open show on October 22nd: for Scotch Fancies, Mr. R. Wright (Greenock); for Borders, Mr. W. McAdam (Lauswade); for Yorkshires, etc., Mr. J. Goodfellow (Edinburgh); for Crest and Crestbred, Mr. H. Moreland (Falkirk); for Norwich, Mr. A. Watson (Kilmarnock); and for British birds, Mr. S. Ward (Glasgow). We have also extended our classes, hoping fanciers will take note. No expense has been spared in securing the above-named gentlemen. We are also having a lecture on "British Birds" from Mr. Bruce, of Coldstream, and a ramble in the woods and glens of Blairadam estate.—JOHN FORD, secretary, Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. E. BROTHERTON (Bradford).

It is with great regret, writes Mrs. C. M. Sunderland (Bradford), that I have to announce the sudden death of Mr. J. E. Brotherton, a fancier well known in Yorkshire circles as a genial and generous patron of the Yorkshire bird. Mr. Brotherton was a giver of many trophies, especially for the novice, and in his time was very successful on the bench. For a few years back Mr. Brotherton has not had the time to spare owing to pressure of business, but he never let his Fancy flag, and he will be greatly missed in the fanciers' circle.

Mr. ROBERT RENNIE (Govanhill).

I am sorry to have to inform you, writes Mr. Chas. C. Watson, secretary of the Govanhill and Dis. O.A., of the death of one of our members, Mr. Robt. Rennie, on February 20th. Mr. Rennie was a member for the last four years, and was a very enthusiastic fancier, doing well in the club. He was the winner of several first prizes. He won the cup and gold medal in 1908, with a very neat foul buff, the same bird being second at Paisley New Year show. He had been ill for some time, but his death came suddenly. He has left a widow but no family. His death will be much regretted by the members, as he was very popular. Before joining us he was a member of the Springburn Club. He was also at one time a volunteer—a good shot—and lifted some handsome prizes.

CAGE BIRDS' last plate of Canary Bullies was a real treat.—G. PERRINS (Longton).

The CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL is a grand advance on your former productions, and is fairly a hot 'un.—JOHN RUKIN (Rawtenstall).

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL is marvellous. Every year sees a record issue. Our Editor has good things for everybody. I wish the ANNUAL a record sale.—J. FORD, secretary, Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A.

I have sold my whole stock of Crests and feeders, writes Mr. James Veitch (Kelty), also cages and birdroom to Mr. John Ford (Kelty), as I have thoughts of going abroad. Will secretaries of shows please note?

The Gt. Horton O.S. 1910 season's shows include a first feather show on June 25th and another on July 23rd, a second feather show on October 22nd, and another on November 26th, and the usual Boxing-day show on December 26th. Particulars may be had of the secretary, Mr. J. Holroyd, 27, Kingswood Street, Gt. Horton.

Buckhaven and Dis. C.B.S. have secured the following judges for the open show on October 15th, writes Mr. W. Foster, the secretary: for Border Fancy, Mr. T. Arnott (Kirkcaldy); for Norwich, Mr. Allen Chalmers (Kirkintilloch); and for British and foreign birds, Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow). The society is in a flourishing condition, both as regards membership and finances.

Mr. J. Walsh, the noted bird specialist of Blackburn, writes us pointing out that the King Parrakeet and Grey Parrot, advertised in his "Foreign" announcement last week, should have been priced at 90s. and £7 10s. respectively, the incorrect prices which appeared being the result of a printer's error. Will readers who have received no reply to their letters please accept this explanation? Mr. Walsh writes further: "We have had a great number of inquiries for our catalogue through our advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. We have 268 applications for same this day (Monday). I think this is a record."

The Norwich Plainhead Club.

Will those societies desirous of having the patronage of the above club kindly apply for same at once, giving date of show and name of judge (if same has been appointed)? As the committee meet on March 12th, to consider applications, such applications must be sent to me before that date.—JNO. HOPKINS, hon. secretary, 126, Bury New Road, Bolton, Lancs.

At the Palace Show.

One novelty was the "Nevillian Folding Cage," which took third prize. As its name implies, it is constructed to fold into a very small space, viz., 1in., by its length and breadth, for purposes of storage and transit. In addition it has the following features claimed for it: Made of insulating materials, is antiseptic, lays flat for cleansing, is waterproof, can be cleansed with paraffin, benzoline, or soap and water, and restored to use immediately

The Breeding & Rearing of the Yorkshire Canary.

A Lecture delivered before the Bradford East O.S. on Feb. 22, by Mr. CHARLES WHITING.

About 32 members had the privilege of hearing a most entrancing lecture by Mr. C. Whiting (Bradford), a man who has had a long experience with the bird of position, the Yorkshire. Getting into the subject straight away, Mr. Whiting told of the progress that had been made with this variety since he started about twenty-five years ago. It was then a longer bird, and thicker set than that of to-day; also the feather was not as fine.

The introduction of the 6¾in. standard for Yorkshires, was a step in the right direction, for it disposed to a large extent of the too prevalent use of the Lancashire, and fanciers went in more for the position, or breed, thus giving us a bird that was much smarter than those of former years.

Ideal Pair Described.

My ideal breeding stock pair is as follows, he said: The cock should be about 7ins. long, straight, and narrow at the shoulders, with nice round head and well-filled neck, the wings well balanced, the tail long and well folded, position as near erect as possible, and the feather fine and silky. The hen should be from 6¼ to 6½ inches long, with feather like wax, and with all the other good points that I have mentioned. I do not care for over large hens, for, as a rule, they are rather sluggish, and do not nearly so well as the medium-sized ones. Of course, it will be patent to all that a fancier who has a pair or two of birds like those just described should breed something above the ordinary, and if they are not so fortunate in this respect the young ones I am sure will be good saleable birds. It is advisable to keep one or two big hens back for stock purposes alone; they come in very useful.

The Inbreeding Question.

With regard to inbreeding, he continued, I know this is a question that has caused a great amount of controversy, but I am convinced that if it is done judiciously, and not with the birds too nearly related, nor with birds that lack stamina or length, the result will be beneficial. My advice to everyone is, don't carry it too far, or disastrous results will certainly follow. I also believe in introducing a bit of fresh blood into my stock at times, and this is where one's judgment is put to the test. You can throw your stock back a long way if you do not use the greatest care in this respect.

Breeding and Rearing.

Having described somewhat minutely the stock I desire to breed from, I will deal with my method of breeding and rearing. Most people turn their thoughts to pairing their stock about the middle of March, and if the weather is at all suitable then, by about the 21st, this can be ventured; but prior to this the birds must be got into good breeding form, especially the cocks, and my plan is to give them a little egg food with a sprinkling of maw seed added about three times a week, a little hemp, and a variety of mixed seeds, with now and again a leaf of young dandelion. You must also look to the bird's claws, or you may be troubled with the eggs being punctured or spoilt.

The lecturer said he believed in the old way of taking the first three eggs away, and replacing them on the evening of the third day. The food I give when feeding the young is hard-boiled egg and soaked stale bread, with as much of the water squeezed out as possible, a little maw seed added, and as much hemp seed as they will eat along with dandelion as green food.

When the Young are Taken Away.

When the young are taken away from the parents I believe in giving them boiled rape seed, which should be well rinsed in water, and when given to the young must not be allowed to stand so very long, as it soon goes sour, especially in hot weather. When the young ones are about a month old I give them plenty of baths and hang them (in their cages) on the show cages, so that they can learn to run in and out at their own pleasure; you can train them better at this age than at any other time. Place the most promising of the young birds into show cages, and let them stop there for an hour or two, lifting them occasionally to talk to them; do this, and they will never lose the training.

We will now step over to the moulting time. This is the most critical period. I think the majority of people will agree with me here. The birds should be kept free from draughts, and must also be kept warm—without using artificial heat, of course.

When to Start Colour-feeding.

The best time to start colour-feeding the young ones is when they are about ten weeks old for the first round of birds; eight weeks for the second round, and six weeks for the third. Use the best colour food you can buy; it pays best in the long run. Most fanciers mix one pound of hot to about four pounds of tasteless or cold pepper; and I think this is the best way, as the birds seem to come through the moult with a better finish on them. It is wise to add a little sugar and a little maw seed.

If you want the birds to come out even in colour, feed them regularly, and don't miss a few days thinking it will have no effect, or the birds may come out patchy in colour. I always draw the young birds' tails when they are going well in the moult, and I draw the three outer tail feathers on each side; then, when these have grown about three-quarters of an inch, I draw the remainder. This, to my mind, allows the tail to fold more closely together. To fasten the colour I give the birds sulphate of iron in the drinkers. Also at this time give a little linseed; it will put a little extra finish on. To get my birds into show condition I give them a little yolk of egg about the size of a nut crushed, with a little maw seed added.

Mr. Whiting then told how he washed his birds for exhibition, and gave some useful advice on this important item. Always stage the birds as clean as possible, he said, and see that the cages are nice and clean as well; birds look ever so much better.

There is just one point in conclusion that I desire to touch upon. It is with regard to the pairing of birds for breeding, or selection for stock. Mr. Whiting believes that the royal road to success is by adopting a proper system of pedigree breeding, always bearing in mind that only by using the best of one's knowledge on this important point can anyone hope to be at all successful. Pair your birds, he said, judiciously, and use every possible care, always remembering that whatever object you wish to attain, only by using these methods will your ultimate success be assured.

The Chairman (Mr. G. White) then threw the subject open for discussion, and many members took the opportunity of asking Mr. Whiting's opinion on many vital questions which affect our hobby. These were answered in splendid style by the lecturer, and a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. G. R. Rushworth, seconded by Mr. H. Hill, and supported by the Chairman. Mr. Whiting suitably responded, thanking the members for their patient hearing, and for the hearty reception they had given him. I can assure Mr. Whiting, on the society's behalf, that the lecture was so brimful of interesting topics that it will not readily be forgotten by those who heard it.—H. HILL, Hon. Sec.

A NEW FIELD FOR THE CANARY BREEDER.

In our recent "Conundrum Competition" one of the questions set was: What new variety of Canary ought breeders to strive for? This brought many interesting replies, and our artist, Mr. Norman, has this week endeavoured to realise the "dreams" of some of the competitors. Taking the upper row, the first bird is an even-marked green Border, the markings being light instead of (as is usual) dark—a reversal, in fact, of the usual order of things. The figure of the "Fantail Norwich" speaks for itself, and we fancy there are few breeders who would not be glad to produce such a bird—it would create an immense sensation, and we venture to think it would "catch on" with no uncertain catch. The "Elizabethan Canary" takes its name from the suggested ruffle round the neck, open at the throat. The "Houdan Canary" (the first of the lower figures) has a headpiece not unlike that of the fowl rejoicing in the same name and a similar adornment. The "Frill-Neck Canary" is an idea for developing a bird with a frill and hood, after the style of the Jacobin pigeon. These five types offer a new field for the skill and energies of those Canary-breeders who delight in experiments. We leave them to think out "ways and means" for themselves.

Swallows and Young.

A writer in a contemporary describes how a nest of young Swallows was dislodged from its site and fell to the ground. He picked it up, and putting it in an old pot, placed it on the window-sill, where the old bird fed the nestlings and safely reared them.

Worms in Birds: Their Origin, Classification & Treatment.

By G. YATES, M.R.C.V.S.

Although not strictly bearing upon the subject of intestinal worms, yet as included in the order of round worms, is of vast interest, the syngamus trachealis. It causes gapes in birds, resulting in a large annual mortality. In the crop of birds are found twisted hair, like worms, or trichosomes, varying greatly in length, and producing impaction of the crop. Their presence is often manifested in outbreaks of an epizootic character, and on post mortem examination of infested birds they are found in immmerable numbers, either embedded or free in the mucous membrane of the gullet. They are responsible for progressive and extreme emaciation for a varying period until impaction of the gullet and crop follows, and death rapidly ensues.

In this position again are frequently found the spiroptera, rather smaller than the preceding, and inhabiting the gullet and crop, as well as the small intestines. Here they produce an inflammatory action. The symptoms are not well pronounced, and the appetite is capricious; there is dulness, drooping, rufled feathers, and quickened breathing. In the intestines the worms will be found free in the contents, manifesting their presence by an undulatory motion. When dead they may be very easily overlooked. At all times cases need great care in diagnosing their presence. This is facilitated by taking a little of the fluid from the intestine, placing it in a watch glass containing clear water, when they will be found by their swimming-like movements.

In the proventriculus, or true stomach, of birds, there are to be found a large number of worms of many varieties, each possessing its own peculiar characters, and producing within its host more or less harmful consequences. Some are comparatively rare, so here I will give but a brief history of each.

Dispharagus Nasutus.—This, in addition to affecting smaller birds, is also found in the domesticated fowl, and is so named on account of its throat or pharynx being divided into two passages, and from each side of the mouth in the female parasite there projects a nose-like papillæ, accounting for its name, which literally means large-nosed. It is found embedded in the wall of the gizzard and proventicle. It produces symptoms not easily diagnosable, there resulting great depression, and emaciation, simulating a wasting disease, the bird itself retaining a voracious appetite.

Spiroptera Hamula, or small hook, and the Physalopterus Truncatus, so called because of its puffed-up lips, have been found embedded in the gizzard and proventriculus, but no ill effects have been noticed in connection with them.

Tropisurus Inflatus and Tropisurus Fissispinus are two species of parasites found in the proventriculus. They produce local inflammations. The male parasite is threadlike, being 15 to 18 times longer than its thickness. It has its tail turned down like a keel.

Hystrichis Tricolor receives this name because part of its body is studded with hooklets. The female is white externally, the intestines are black, and the gullet red; so it is named tricolor. It has been found with the spiked portion of its body embedded in the proventriculus. It gives rise to irritation and inflammation, producing diarrhœa, emaciation, and depression.

Strongylus Nodularis is narrow in front, and its mouth is armed with three spikes. It is found embedded in the mucous coats of the proventriculus and small bowel.

Heterachis Papillosa. This, again, is a very common parasite, found principally in the cœcal part of the intestines, often in great numbers. Worms of this species, again, are occasionally found in the peritoneal cavity or body cavity outside the intestine. How they gain this position it is difficult to surmise. I have found them in this position when conducting post-mortems, and amongst my collection of parasites I have included a very fine specimen of this order. Its presence in the intestines is manifested by inappetence, emaciation, somnolency or drowsiness, with frequent sudden fits of wakefulness, and relaxation of the bowels. The ova of these worms are revealed in great masses under the microscope in the excreta. There is ulceration of the mucous membrane of the intestine, which is covered with a thick mucous. The evolution of the parasite does not need a second host, for infestation takes place from bird to bird through food soiled by the excreta of affected subjects.

The Ascaridæ are of very frequent occurrence, and are found inhabiting the intestines. They are included in the variety of round worms, and carry out their full life cycle within the one host. The birds gain the germs of the ascaridæ through the media of food and water. They are of great importance, on account of their being so commonly found, affecting all classes of birds. They distribute their ova within the intestines of their host. These, in this situation, develop and rapidly increase in number. Occasionally worms are seen to pass away with the excreta. Such should be destroyed, and surface disinfection of floor aviaries or cages should be made to prevent later reinfection or contamination of any other birds. This is a condition which ought never to be neglected, for in addition to the destruction of refuse, suitable medicinal treatment should be adopted.

The Sporozoa are a very important class of parasite. One called Coccidia is of very common distribution, affecting all classes of birds, and producing a disease known as Coccidiosis. It produces its harmful effects on some of the domestic animals, such as cattle and sheep, being responsible for a large mortality in the animal kingdom. There has also been described in birds a form of the disease affecting the skin, and producing lesions known as cutaneous coccidiosis.

Under the name of Gregarina avium intestinalis, this parasite has been found incysted in the connective tissue of the intestines of birds. They are very small, of an ovoid contour, and filled with spores. These spores, when reaching the digestive tract, with the food, gain access to the mucous membrane lining the intestines; they become encysted, and give rise to white spots throughout the length of the bowel wall. Their presence interferes with the normal physiological function of the intestines, and produce profuse diarrhœa, most difficult to arrest; there is consequent weakness and emaciation, and finally death. It is a slow, insidious disease, and appears more often in an epizootic form. These pathological changes may extend so as to involve the liver substance; there then follows disorganisation of its functions, and health becomes impaired. It has been confounded with tuberculosis of birds, the symptoms presented being a facsimile of what occurs in tuberculosis; but the lesions produced differ most markedly in their structure, and with the absence of tubercle bacillus.

Having dealt in as brief a manner as possible with the subject of worms as affecting birds, their origin, and symptoms, together with their classification, I shall now endeavour to explain to the reader the various methods of treatment to be adopted, both preventative and remedial, in dealing with these parasites.

The prescribing and administering of medicine to birds is an operation which requires the greatest possible care and skill. Drugs employed should be of a physiological standard, and the doses graduated, as in the dispensing of hœmeopathic preparations (but not hœmeopathically prescribed), to ensure safe administration to birds of all sizes and species. Medicine may be given indirectly, as by solution in drinking water, or mixed with the food, or directly, as administration by the beak. In the first method difficulties arise owing to the fact that many medicines are insoluble in water, and are not easily mixed with the food; and many owing to their unpleasant taste are not readily partaken of, and in serious cases, where inappetence is a feature, this method fails absolutely. For the direct administration of medicinal agents great care has to be exercised in the handling so as to disturb the patient as little as possible, for with careless or too rough handling many birds readily succumb. Like all other animals, they resent too energetic interference, and medicaments so applied should be dispensed in some convenient form, preferably in small pilules, globules, or palatinoids, so as to ensure a quick and speedy delivery without unduly distressing the subject. Medicines administered in liquid form in any quantity are to be condemned as causing unnecessary fright and excitement, and often resulting in choking by gaining access to the windpipe.

How I Bred My Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrids.

By the Rev. BERNARD WILTON.

The embryo Hybrid-breeder who wishes to indulge upon a very small scale in this fascinating pastime cannot, I think, do better than begin by attempting the above-named cross. The Goldfinch-Bullfinch combination is perhaps more beautiful; and all the Bullfinch crosses are, generally speaking, more valuable, but personally I have found fertile eggs more difficult to obtain from the hen Bullfinch, and even when young are hatched they are rather difficult to rear.

Of course, when a fancier is able to put up several pairs it would be folly to neglect the Bullfinch crosses, but where, as is often the case, he has only cage room for one attempt, I should strongly recommend the Goldfinch-Greenfinch.

A Successful Season.

I was successful last season in an ordinary double breeding cage, 24 inches long by 10 inches wide, with a round door leading from one compartment to the other. The cock Goldfinch I used was taken from the nest in 1905 and reared by his own parents through the cage wires until he was able to feed himself. He was steady, and a good specimen, both of which qualities, it is needless to say, make for success. I tried him first in 1906 with a hen Greenfinch which had been reared from the egg by Canaries in my own bird-room. She laid two or three eggs during the season, but made no attempt to sit, and the eggs when placed under Canaries, without exception, proved infertile.

In 1907 I tried the same Goldfinch again with another hen Greenfinch that I had caught as a fledgling with a landing-net in my garden, before it could feed itself. My wife reared it by hand until it could peck, and it has developed into a very nice specimen. This bird showed signs of wanting to build about the middle of May, but her ideas of nest-making were extremely rudimentary. She was continually carrying material about, and attacked the felt lining of the nest pan so vigorously that there was absolutely none of it left at the end of a day or two, and I was obliged to supply a new one. When she had finished building there was only the empty nest pan to show for her labours. However, she was kind enough to lay in the nest as a rule; but I should scarcely have saved an egg had not my wife paid a very early visit to the cage each morning, as she continued her building operations with such vigour until the clutch was completed, that any eggs that happened to be in the nest were pretty sure to come to an untimely end.

However, out of three clutches, about eight eggs survived, half of which proved fertile. I placed them under Canaries, as the Greenfinch, although she sat on addled Canary eggs after a fashion, generally broke one every day, and never took her responsibilities very seriously.

Worthy of Note.

With regard to the fertility of the eggs, I think it is worthy of note that the Goldfinch had been tried without success the previous year. This is only another proof of what I believe is a well-known fact with experienced fanciers, that a young Finch which is apparently quite useless for stock purposes his first year, may be a valuable bird the next. It is also interesting to note that although I spent a good deal of time in my bird-room, I never saw the Goldfinch and Greenfinch take the slightest notice of each other; and I was consequently much surprised when one of the eggs in the first nest proved fertile. The moral is, that the inexperienced Hybrid-breeder must not be in a hurry to separate a pair of birds, merely because he has observed no signs of intimacy between them. It is unfortunately equally true that the fact that two British Finches are well paired is no guarantee of fertile eggs. The conduct of my cock Greenfinches and hen Bullfinches has often led me to cherish the most sanguine hopes; but, alas! the denouement has always been found, either in yoke still transparent after a fortnight's incubation; or a microscopic fragment of shell which was the only morsel of the egg the hen Bullie spared me.

But to return to the subject in hand. Out of the four fertile eggs I obtained last year from my Goldfinch-Greenfinch, one was dead in the shell, and three hatched out. Two of these were brought up without any hitch along with young Canaries, the other along with Goldfinch-Canary Mules. The latter arrangement is preferable, when possible, as then the young will leave the nest at the same time: Mules and Hybrids being, of course, fledged two or three days sooner than Canaries. If, however, you have a good feeding Canary, the precocity of her strange chick will not make her neglect her remaining off-spring.

In order to ensure success on the show bench, the young birds must, of course, be colour-fed. Even then they will not be such effective show birds in their first year, as they will become with care during their second and third seasons. For the rest, they are extremely attractive, and docile birds, and have a sweet song, though my two cock birds were not free singers. The Goldfinch blaze, and the broad yellow band on the wings of the male birds, the combined legacy of both parents, make them extremely attractive.

Mine thrive exceedingly on a stock mixture of Canary, hemp, teazle, and a little sunflower and summer rape. In the matter of feeding, however, I think they appear to take after their mother's family, and to be ready to accommodate themselves to anything, which is another point in their favour from the novice's point of view.

ORNITHOLOGICAL ODDMENTS.

By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S.
Author of "The World's Birds."

A Lovely Lorikeet.

There have lately been imported a few very few—specimens of a Lorikeet, which is quite common in Australia, but has, so far as I know, never been brought over here before. This is the Purple-crowned Lorikeet (Glossopsittacus porphyrocephalus), a bird about equalling the size of a Starling, and with a pointed though short tail; in fact, in form and build it is a counterpart of the varied Lorikeet (Ptilosclera versicolor) in colour it is of the usual Parrot-green for the most part, but with the throat and breast of a lovely pale sky-blue, a most remarkable hue for any Parrot. There is a purple patch on the crown, a red one on the forehead, and a yellow one on each cheek, so that on the whole the combination of colours is a striking and remarkable one.

Carnivorous Kingfishers.

Speaking of the Australian birds reminds me of a very interesting note in a recent number of Mr. A. J. North's Nests and Eggs of Australian Birds, now being issued in parts. In this an observer relates how he saw a pair of the Red-backed Kingfisher (Halcyon pyrrhopygius) attack the mud jar-shaped nests of a colony of Fairy Martins (Lagenoplastes ariel), and break them away by degrees, taking turns at the work, until they could reach the eggs and young, which they devoured. They carried on these depredations day after day, and, as this Red-backed Kingfisher is a near relative of the Sacred Kingfisher (H. sanctus), and, in fact, very similar to it except for the red back, it is easily seen that raw meat is quite a natural diet to offer to such birds, though of course mice or sparrows chopped up would be better than the flesh of large animals. The specimens of the Sacred Kingfisher at the Zoo have, however, done quite well on chopped raw horse-flesh. These birds, by the way, are very impetuous in their movements. I have seen one come with such a rush at his keeper's fingers, which held a mealworm for him, that he drew blood from them as he secured the delicacy. Earthworms also are eaten by these, and other Kingfishers, which seek their prey mostly on land, so that anyone getting hold of such birds need not be at a loss how to feed them properly. I do not think, however, that meat, long continued, would suit our own fishing Kingfisher, as meat does not agree with purely fish-eating birds after a certain time, being too heavy.

The Green Peacock.

There seem to be a good many people interested in keeping Peafowl, and so I should like to draw their attention to a Peafowl which is without some of the disadvantages of the ordinary kind, although unfortunately it is not at all easy to get. This, which is the only other true species of Peacock besides the ordinary one, is the Green Peafowl of Java and Burma, the Peacock of the further East; in fact, as opposed to India, where the ordinary Peacock has its ancestral home. This Eastern species is the favourite of the Japanese, who always depict it in their art, faithfully rendering the long spear-head-shaped crest, and the scaly-looking feathering which characterise this bird. The Green Peacock loses something in beauty to the common bird in having his neck bronze-green instead of the intense blue we know so well, but every neck feather is purple at the base, and the wings are more beautiful than in most common Peacocks, being black laced with refulgent blue and green, though there is a variety of the common bird which has similarly coloured wings. The hen of the Green Peacock is far superior in appearance to that of the common bird, being of the same splendid colours as her mate, from which she scarcely differs except in having no train, and young cocks, before this appendage has grown, can only be known from hens by looking at the small patch of tiny feathers on the face, between bill and eye, which is always glossy green in cocks and rusty-brown in hens. This Peacock's voice is so subdued that it is no annoyance whatever, and the species would no doubt have become quite common in captivity, were it not for two things: one is that it is so expensive, and one Peacock is as good as another to people who don't know the difference in voice; the other is that some individuals of this species are far less hardy than common Peafowl, and that the cocks are abominably spiteful and treacherous

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Monthly meeting held at the Swan Hotel, Fountain-street, Manchester, on February 26th, Mr. A. Foulds, chairman. A good number of members and a few friends were present. After the ordinary business, two birds were put up for exhibition. Messrs. Massey and Foulds kindly explained the different tours (or rolls). A very pleasant evening was spent. Two new members were elected.—ANDREW PERCIVAL, Smithy Bridge, Hon. Sec.

QUEEN'S PK. (Glasgow) & DIS. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at Marie Stuart Halls, on February 25th, Mr. R. Thomson presiding. The pair show results were as follows: 1, 2, Edwards; 3, vhc, R. Rennie; 4, Burnside. Mr. Hunter judged. It was arranged to have a show of Muling and Hybrid pairs at next meeting, on February 25th. It was also arranged that 3 medals be presented for the 3 members with most points during year at all club shows, including table shows; points to count from next meeting. A silver cup and 3 gold medals were promised, these to be competed for at the annual club show. Two new members were enrolled.—ROBT. HUGGIE, Sec.

LONG EATON AND DIS. C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meeting, held in the Co-operative Guildroom, on Feb. 26th, it was unanimously decided that we extend our radius from five to ten miles, with a view to further encouraging the Fancy in the district, and to strengthen our ranks. The annual subscription is 4s. 4d., equal to 1d. per week, and we have the following cups for members' competition, which will, no doubt, shortly be increased in number:—Challenge cup for the best unflighted Norwich, another for Border Fancy, ditto for Buff dark crest, and a fourth for crest-bred. Table shows, etc., will be held during the season. I shall be pleased to bring any fancier's name forward for membership at our next meeting, and it will also afford me great pleasure to answer any enquiries.—A. E. WIGGINTON, Hon. sec., 94, Station Road.

BANKFOOT AND DIS. C.B.S

At Bankfoot Schools on February 22nd, a lecture on "Breeding the Exhibition Yorkshire" was given by Mr. W. A. Cowgill. It was very instructive and interesting. In connection with the lecture a pair class was arranged, so as to give the members a thorough grasp of what was required. Result: 1st, J. Taylor; 2, 3, C. Hardaker; 4, F. Helder; vhc, W. North; hc, J. Ormandroyd; c, H. Taylor. Mr. Cowgill explained the good and bad points of each pair, and the probable result of such pairing. The result of this lecture will be seen when the breeding season is over, as some of the pairs were not approved of by the lecturer, and no doubt fresh partners will be found in one or two instances. Mr. Cowgill dealt at great length on all points regarding the breeding of the show bird, also in the keeping these in condition, and gave the process of feeding, washing, and staging. Mr. C. Horsley proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was seconded by Mr. W. Ketteringham. Mr. Cowgill suitably responded.—F. GELDER, Sec.

BOURNEMOUTH AND DIS. C.B.A.

Nineteenth annual meeting held at the Quadrant Restaurant on Feb. 18th, and adjourned till the 28th; 20 members present; Mr. G. W. Jones occupied the chair. The balance-sheet as audited was presented and adopted, but, unfortunately, this showed a debit balance of £4 12s. 8d. The following officers were elected:—President, the Earl of Malmesbury; vice-presidents, the Earl of Leven and Melville, the Lord and Lady Alington, Henry Page Croft, Esq., M.P., A. Acland Allen, Esq., Dr. Hooker, J. Downing Farrer, Esq., C. H. Cartwright, Esq., and P. Wareham, Esq.; treasurer, H. Sandell, Esq.; hon. secretary, Mr. W. O. Brooke; hon. auditors, Messrs. R. N. Churcher and S. M. Davis; committee, Messrs. G. W. Jones, M. Cook, E. Leech, H. Harris, S. M. Davis, F. House, H. Goodland, G. Gerrey, E. Neale, and M. E. Feltham. Thirteen new members were elected. A revised set of rules, prepared by the newly-elected hon. sec., were, with a few minor additions, unanimously adopted. Next monthly meeting, March 9th.—W. O BROOKE, hon. sec.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

A "Smoker" was held on February 26th, in the club room at the Railway Hotel. Mr. E. Padgett occupied the chair. He never let the artistes sit idle. He called upon Mr. Coulson (Bradford) to open the ball, which he did in most favourable style. Mr. G. P. Logan, the comedian, of Bankfoot, kept the audience of about 70 in roars of laughter. We had fanciers and friends from Rodley, Bramley, Morley, and all parts. Mr. Butterfield rendered a song in a good style; Mr. Elsegood gave us a capital recitation, and Mr. Irlam a song. This was followed by Mr. Dinneson and other friends. Mr. Carter (Manningham) was the accompanist. Remarks were passed upon the secretary's good selection of artistes. Mr. Hudson, who made a few remarks, said he hoped our next event would not be a "Smoker," only, but something to eat as well. Mr. Bottomley proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman and the artistes. These gatherings, he said, did not come often enough; we ought to have more. Mr. Lambert seconded the motion. Mr. E. Padgett, the chairman, responded on behalf of himself and all the artistes. This brought the meeting to an end.—J. E. HUDSON, Sec.

CARLISLE AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, held in the Viaduct Temperance Hotel, when the balance sheet for 1909 was submitted and passed, showing a nice balance to be carried forward for another year. It was very pleasing to come out on the right side after the adversity the society met with during the last two or three years; the last two shows alone showing a deficit of nearly £12. However, by reverting to our old show date, viz., New Year's Day, and it proved to be the right thing, we had a splendid entry and a good gate, so the committee and members had every right to be pleased with themselves. We have again adopted January 2nd, and hope it will again prove satisfactory. The officers were elected for 1910, the same being: Chairman, Mr. G. Johnstone; vice-chairman, Mr. T. Reay; secretary, and treasurer, Mr. W. H. Wright; auditors, Messrs. J. Atkinson and F. F. Lawson; committee, Messrs. C. Cranston, J. Carrick, G. Dawson, D. Docherty, H. Fraser, R. Gill, J. Hutchinson, A. Harrison, W. Herring, R. Johnstone, W. McFarlane, J. H. Nixon, J. Nixon, J. J. Robson. The judges for 1910 were appointed after the terms of several gentlemen were read out, the result being: Mr. J. Patterson for Borders, Mr. J. Hopkins for Norwich and Yorks., and Mr. J. Maddison for Mules, British, and For.—W. H. WRIGHT, Hon. Sec.

CODNOR PARK AND DIS. C.B.S.

A meeting was held after the show had been open to visitors, when the rules were passed. A table show of British and Mules was arranged to be held at our next meeting, March 12th, when we hope to see fresh members. The judge's opinion of the room where we hold our meetings, etc., is that it is an ideal room. We are open to accept members within 20 miles' radius.—J. H. MITCHELL, Hon. Sec.

CHOPPINGTON & DIS. OLD C.B.S.

Meeting held Feb. 26th, at Railway Hotel; Mr. H. Seely presided. The following officers were duly elected:—President, Mr. A. Grey; vice-presidents, Messrs. B. Clark and A. Darling; chairman, Mr. H. Seely; secretary, Mr. G. H. Seely; treasurer, Mr. E. B. Atkinson; committee, Messrs. T. Rieg, H. Neal, A. Edwards, E. Edwards, A. Stevenson, and W. Archbold. We intend holding our first feather show on June 11th, and our big show on Nov. 12th. All correspondence relating to the above society must now be sent to me, 10, Third Row, Choppington Colliery, near Morpeth.—G. H. SEELY, Sec.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARY NATIONAL DERBY.

The management of this enterprising society have compiled the member-ship's card for the current year, and have circulated it among breeders of the Scotch Fancy Canary. Should any fancier have been overlooked in the distribution of the tickets, the secretary, on receipt of a post-card to his address, will be pleased to supply a membership ticket, which gives all particulars. The exhibitions under the auspices of this Association in the past have been splendid events, and the executive would like to see the next show the record. This depends upon the individual effort of members and fanciers, and the executive are confident they will do all they can in that direction.—THOS. SMITH Secretary (56, Minard Road, Glasgow).

EDINBURGH (Open) O.A.

The annual meetings have now concluded, the following business being transacted: The financial statement was submitted, the auditors reporting as to its correctness, and that the books were in a satisfactory condition. The date of our next show was fixed for December 12th. The office-bearers for the year are: President, Mr. D. Martin; vice-president, Mr. J. Dalgleish; secretary, J. R. Meikle, 51, Lothian Road, Edinburgh; paid committee, Messrs. P. McNiven and J. Robertson; honorary committee, Messrs. J. McLennan, W. Whitefield, P. Farrell, P. Blair, W. Thornton, P. West, J. Hendry, M. Petrie, J. Sinclair, G. Hope, W. Rodgers; auditors, Messrs. A. Stavert, and R. Menzies. It was decided to continue classification as formerly, viz., Scotch Fancy Section, 21 classes, 4 of which are selling classes; Belgian Section, 5 classes, one for young birds, bred in 1910. The prize money to be awarded is £1 12s. per class, divided as follows: 1st, 12s.; 2nd, 9s.; 3rd, 6s.; 4th, 3s.; 5th, 2s. The judges were elected, but we await their acceptance before publishing their names. Mr. J. McLennan, the retiring president, received the heartiest thanks for the splendid services he rendered during his tenure of office. On behalf of the executive and committee I have to state that a very special effort is to be put forth to make our show, etc., a great success, and so we confidently appeal to all fanciers to do their very best to extend to us their support, to uphold this fine old Association. Prompt settlement of prize money is one of its best features, no doubt much appreciated by the winners.—J. R. MEIKLE, Sec.

SOUTHALL AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held 21st Feb. It was decided to again hold an open show, and that Mr. J. Robson be invited to judge. The date was left to the secretary to fix up, sometime in the early part of December. One new member was elected.—T. G. JEFFERY, hon. sec.

YORKSHIRE C.S. OF SCOTLAND.

Points for cups gained at show are as follows:—Messrs. W. Birse, 150 points; W. Hawkins, 67; J. Devins, 74; P. Mulcahy, 63. Senior Cup: Messrs. J. Devins, 100 points; M. Fleming, jun., 83; P. Gillen, 69; C. J. Mulligan, 51; W. Birse, 31; P. McDonnell, 28. Ring Cup: Messrs. J. Devins, 48 points; P. Gillen, 46; Dr. Lavery, 25; Mr. M. Fleming, jun., 20. British Bird Cup: Messrs. P. Mulcahy, 37 points; W. Birse, 34. Junior Cup: Messrs. M. J. Mulligan, 82 points; J. P. Lavery, 51; D. Carroll, 31; C. Holley, 27.—D. CARROLL, Sec.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at Swan and Peacock Hotel on February 22nd, Mr. F. J. Weaver in the chair. The chief business was the change of headquarters. It was decided to take up those splendid rooms at the Duke of York Hotel, Princess-street, which is in a very prominent part of the town, being only one minute's walk from tram and train. It was also decided to hold our next meeting there on March 10th, at which a pair show (Nor., Yorks, Muling, and Hyb. pairs) will be held. Mr. J. Crundell has been engaged to judge the Canaries, and Mr. R. Willoughby the Mules and Hybrids. Will all members bring birds along? These will be staged at half-past seven, and let us have a record. Fanciers and friends invited.—J. GIBBONS, Hon. Sec.

HYSON GREEN C.B.S.

Successful table show for Norwich stock pairs and a judging competition held on Feb. 15th. The large room at headquarters was well filled with members and friends. Four new members were made. Eight pairs of birds were staged, and Mr. L. Burrows, who judged, gave every satisfaction. Mr. J. T. Birch secured 1st with a grand pair well worth walking a few miles to see; Mr. G. Hill 2nd and 3rd, with two pairs close up to the winners, ought to breed a champion; vhc, A. Barnes; hc, G. Sharp; c, Birch. The judging competition was a great success. The 1st and 2nd prizes were equally divided between G. White and G. Sharp; 3rd prize, C. Pratt. Mr. L. Burrows kindly gave the 1st prize. The members gave the 2nd and 3rd prizes in the judging competition.—W. COTTINGHAM, sec.

WATFORD AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held at Swan Inn, High-street, on February 24th, when a very good number were present. The Hon. Sec. (Mr. W. Quantrell) gave the report for the past year, which was very satisfactory. The officers for the coming year were then elected: President, Lord Hyde; Patrons, Lady Edith Villiers and the Right Hon. the Earl of Clarendon, P.C., G.C.B.; Vice-Presidents, C. Challands, Esq., R. A. Thorpe, Esq., and E. C. Oxley, Esq.; Chairman, Mr. R. J. Pretty; Vice-Chairman, Mr. R. J. Watts; Hon. Sec. and Treasurer, Mr. W. Quantrell; Hon. Auditors, Messrs. E. F. Bailey and E. A. Wright; Committee, Messrs. J. Goodall, T. Wright, W. Buckingham, W. Shirley, J. A. Groves, J. Fox, A. T. Sear, G. W. Swain, A. Tucker, A. G. Frost, Wright, and P. Chalk. Arrangements were made for the pairs matched for breeding show to be held at Victoria Junior Boys' School, March 5th. The Society, which is one of the best in the South, owes much of its success to the hard-working Secretary, Mr. W. Quantrell, and a very successful season is looked forward to.—E. A. WRIGHT.

CROYDON AND DISTRICT F.A.

A well attended general meeting of this newly-formed association was held at the St. Andrew's Club and Institute, Lower Coombe Street, on Feb. 15th, when Mr. J. Sutton presided. The chief business was to confirm the rules and put the association in thorough working order. The secretary (Mr. A. C. N. Hewens) reported that Sir Robert Hermon-Hodge, Bart., M.P., had accepted the presidency, and Mr. T. B. Mason the vice-presidency. Some 50 members had joined, and about 11 or 15 additional nominations had been received. They had received £3 14s. 6d. in subscriptions, and £2 10s. in donations, and had spent £2 13s. 11d. The rules were then considered, and it was decided that membership should be confined to persons residing within a radius of seven miles of the Croydon Town Hall. A question was raised of the notification of members of the meetings, and it was agreed to advertise in the local papers. It was decided not to bind the society to an annual show, but to leave show matters with the committee after the consent of a general meeting had been obtained. The committee also have power to expel, after investigating the case, any member making himself obnoxious or behaving in a manner detrimental to the association, and in order to safeguard the association the following words were added to the rule:—"All decisions arrived at by the committee are subject to no appeal at law."

MALTON NORTON AND DIS. F.S.

Annual meeting held on February 16th at the George Hotel. Mr. J. Ehor Jackson was elected to the chair, and there was a good attendance. The report and balance-sheet for 1909 were given by the secretary, Mr. G. M. Horsley. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, congratulated the members on the excellent work done during the past twelve months. They had increased their balance at the bank. During the thirteen years of their existence they had never had to appeal twice for subscriptions, nor hold a concert or a jumble sale—and he hoped they never would. (Applause.) The motion was seconded by Mr. Bulmer, and carried. The donors of prizes and the subscribers were thanked, on the motion of Mr. J. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Middleton; and the treasurer (Mr. J. Potter) and the auditors (Messrs. J. Jackson and R. G. Lucas) were thanked, on the motion of Mr. E. Anderson, seconded by Mr. W. Brown, sen. A special vote of thanks was also given to Mr. Lucas for his services as auditor for several years on his approaching removal from the town. The Secretary read a letter from the Hon. Mrs. Behrens accepting the presidency for another year, and Mr. T. Blanchard proposed that lady's re-election, which was seconded by Mr. Dixon, and carried. The vice-presidents were re-elected, as was Mr. J. Potter, the treasurer. Messrs. J. Jackson and G. W. Suggitt were elected auditors. The Chairman proposed the re-election of Mr. G. M. Horsley as secretary, and complimented him highly on the way in which he carried out the duties of the post. Mr. W. Brown seconded, and this was carried unanimously. Mr. Horsley returned thanks, and urged the committee to work on the show days and give greater assistance in that way than one or two of them had done. The following were elected by scroll on the committee:—Messrs. J. E. Jackson, J. Kitching, W. Brown, sen., W. H. Brown, jun., J. W. Middleton, A. F. Balme, J. Wilson, G. W. Milson, C. Vessey, A. Anderson, W. Wilson, W. Warren, J. Wardill, A. Irving Parke, and C. Dixon. The next show was fixed for November 10th.

HASTINGS UNITED C.B.S.

A special general meeting, held on February 23rd, at the Royal Oak Hotel, when the president, Mr. E. E. Clarke, presided over one of the best attended meetings ever held. It was decided to withdraw from the Cage Bird Union. The annual open show was fixed for November 1st and 2nd. Mr. J. Robson was again elected to judge. A members' show was also fixed for December 6th and 7th, with Mr. C. A. House for judge, at the Silverhill Assembly Rooms. First feather shows are arranged for the following dates: May 25th, June 22nd, July 20th, and an evening show on October 12th. Special prizes will be given to members making most points throughout the five.—A. E. GODDEN, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH METROPOLITAN F.A.

At a committee meeting held on February 9th, at the Clarence Hotel, Jeffrey's-road, Clapham, S.W., it was decided that a fund be opened with the object of providing a cup for each section of the Fancy, including one for the cage bird section for competition among the members at the annual shows. Any member, fancier or friend, feeling desirous of helping cup fund, should send all donations, whether large or small, to the hon. secretary, Mr. Harold J. Heppell, No. 11, Wyndham-road, Camberwell, S.E., who will be pleased to receive and acknowledge same. Meetings held the first and third Wednesdays in the month, at 8 p.m., at the above-named hotel. Fanciers and friends invited.—J. A. ROBERTS, Assist. Hon. Sec.

NORTHAMPTON (H.-in-H.) C.B.S.

At our monthly meeting on Feb. 22nd, it was decided to open the society to the whole of Northamptonshire, so that for the future it will be named The Northamptonshire Hand-in-Hand Town and County C.B.S. This step has been brought about by several fanciers wishing to join us, who live in the neighbouring districts. Another special feature of the business was as regards our nest feather show, which takes place on June 11th. Mr. J. Robson was unanimously elected as judge. At this meeting we had the pleasure of electing five new members, which is a good start for the new year, viz.: Messrs. G. Daniels, F. Smith, F. Freeman, A. E. Dunkley, and T. Freeman. A donation of 10s. was granted by the society to the Preston and Flowers Fund. This concluded a most successful evening.—A. W. LAW, sec.

WINDHILL O.S.

Annual tea and social held on February 19th, in the concert-room at the Blue Bell Hotel, the headquarters. The Entertainment Committee: Messrs. H. Bailey (chairman), R. W. Alderson, G. H. Walton, J. Martin, with Mr. J. Cook as secretary, had everything in good order, with tea on tables at 5 p.m. The concert commenced at 7.30, and there was not a dull moment right to the close. Mr. R. W. Alderson (the president) was in the chair for the concert. Mr. Evens, from Leeds, was a very enjoyable comedian, and Messrs. Walker, Rhodes, Nickolson, Spinerey, and Beaver with songs and recitals made up a good programme, which the company, about 100 strong, enjoyed to the full. Mr. M. Broadley proposed that we give our best thanks to the host and hostess. This was seconded by Mr. H. Martin and carried with musical honours. The numbers were larger both at the tea and social than for a year or two, and the committee hope that the members will attend the meetings better than during the last twelve months.—GARNETT and COOK, Secretaries.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

After Mr. Whiting's lecture on Feb. 22nd, the members settled on having six members' shows for the coming year; particulars of same will be published later. The special list was opened by the secretary. Result: A two-guinea marble clock, also a one-guinea barometer and a one-guinea miniature rose bowl. Our president, Mr. E. Suddards, who on previous occasions has been the society's mainstay, and whose generosity has been unlimited, gave the magnificent sum of £3 10s., to be allotted as the society considered best. Eight other specials were promised, bringing the grand total up to £10 on this, the first night of the inception of the fund. The list will be kept open until the latter part of the year. The enthusiasm that marked the after proceedings was remarkable, and when one considers this society has led the van in this respect during the four years it has been formed, and is forging ahead of all previous achievements, it can be said that the welfare of the members is the society's main object. Seven new members have been made at the last two meetings. Any fancier desirous of joining will be welcomed, and will be eligible to compete for all the specials at the members' shows. The first show will be for young birds on June 11th.—H. HILL, 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Little Horton, Bradford.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Adjourned annual general meeting, held at headquarters, the Feathers Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, on February 24th. Present: Messrs. J. Robson, F. Wyse, H. J. Hawes, J. Dobson, A. Plumbridge, A. C. Askew, G. Thurling, C. T. Maxwell, R. A. Newby, T. R. Trower, J. Dewhurst, G. E. Weston, and J. P. Carr. The following gentlemen were elected officers for the year: Mr. J. Robson (chairman), Mr. J. Dewhurst (vice-chairman), Mr. T. R. Trower (hon. treasurer), P. J. Nicholls, Esq. (hon. solicitor), Mr. C. Cooper, and Mr. Allen Silver (auditors), and Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr (joint secretaries). This concluded the business of the annual general meeting. A committee meeting was held, Mr. J. Robson in the chair. Letters were read from Messrs. Crisp, Best, Askew, and Hawes. Mr. Cooper's proposition to amend Rule 17 was carried. Rule now reads: "All members competing for the club Hardbill Cup must send on to the secretaries of the N.B.B. and M.C. a duplicate copy of their entry form at each show, giving names and classes of the birds entered for the cup competition; the points claimed by a member to have been scored by his nominated birds must also be forwarded to the secretaries of the club for their verification within seven days of the holding of the show. The word "Cup" must also be printed in catalogue if same appear on entry form. Mr. Trower put before the committee a scheme with a view to increasing the membership of the club, viz., of the allotting of twenty silver medals, at twenty shows not held under the patronage of the club. This was unanimously adopted, and the following rule to govern the allotting of these medals, and same to appear in show schedules—silver medal given by the National British Bird and Mule Club, Hon. Secs., Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr, 2, Broad Street Station, E.C., to be awarded to the best bird in the Hybrid and British sections at this show (open or members' classes), on the condition that the winner of the said medal becomes a member of the N.B.B. and M.C. The committee of the N.B.B. and M.C. reserving the right of approving the election to membership. Mr. G. Mortlock, of Stoke Newington, was elected to membership.—PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR, Secs.

WEST STANLEY AND DIS. C.B.S.

At a meeting held on March 12th, at headquarters, the following officials were appointed for the ensuing year:—President, A. Chrisp, Esq.; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Laugsdale and W. J. Taylor; chairman, Mr. W. Butler; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Emmerson; treasurer, Mr. J. Hunter; secretary, W. Elliott; assistant-secretary, Mr. R. Peart. The society is to be congratulated upon securing that prominent breeder and exhibitor, Mr. W. Butler for their chairman. It is intended, as usual, to hold a nest feather show in June, and an annual show in January, 1911. I wish all members a very prosperous breeding year, and many more to follow. — W ELLIOTT, sec.

DENTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Adjourned general meeting and lecture held at headquarters, Denton Brotherhood, off Stockport Road, on Feb. 21st, when a good number of fanciers were present. We enrolled 15 members. The election of officers resulted: President, Dr. Duigenan; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. Collins, J. Marsden, T. Blease, R. A. Watson, N. Stansfield, J. Harrison, R. Garley; committee, Messrs. T. Rowbotham, F. Andrew, J. Royds, S. Bleasc, B. Moore, and H. Fairclough; chairman, Mr. E. Marlor; treasurer and secretary, Hopwood Bros. A capital programme for 1910 has been arranged; it includes lectures, table shows, washing demonstrations, cage making, etc. This being our first year, we are working hard, and leaving no stone unturned in trying to make ours one of the best societies going. We are not holding a first feather show, but are having two big shows in October and January. We have engaged Mr. Booth, of Hyde (Scottish National judge) to judge our show in October. We have lots of specials promised for this first show, including medals, drying cages, show cages, photo frames, pictures (framed), seeds, etc., all to go to novices. We are working our annual show in three sections—champion (open to all members), novice who has never won three firsts in open, and novice who has never before staged a bird. Messrs. N. Stansfield and T. Mason judged the first pair show (Nor. and Yorks.) held at this meeting. Both gentlemen afterwards delivered lectures, for which they were heartily thanked.—W. HOPWOOD, sec.

WHITTINGTON MOOR & DIS. C.B.S.

A very interesting function took place at headquarters, The Victoria Hotel, on February 16th. The principal item on the programme was the presentation of a beautiful gold medal to our esteemed secretary, Mr. A. Atkins, who is obliged to give up the work on account of other business, but who will always be willing to give our newly appointed secretary, Mr. E. Barber, a helping hand. Mr. Roe, our president, occupied the chair, and in presenting Mr. Atkins with the medal, spoke in very glowing terms of the good work the secretary had done for the society, and referred to the healthy and honest way he had discharged his duties. Mr. Atkins, amidst cheers, responded. Coun. Dodd also spoke of the abilities of Mr. Atkins, and said he was not only respected by the members, but also by the exhibitors, who always gave him the greatest praise for the way he conducted the shows. Very pleasing remarks were also made by Messrs. Thorpe, Smith, and Hulley. Later we had mandoline selections, songs, etc. The rooms were kindly lent by our host, and member, W. Smith, Esq., who is always ready to do his utmost for the Fancy, to be at the call of the most prosperous cage bird society in the district. A bird-washing competition took place for three grand money prizes, given by Messrs. W. Smith and J. Fretwell. The entries were numerous, and were very ably judged by Mr. D. Hulley: Mr. Roe 1st, Mr. Buck 2nd, Mr. Atkins 3rd. A very interesting evening ended with a vote of thanks to all who had taken part.—E. BARKER, Sec.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Usual monthly meeting held at headquarters, the Swan and Peacock, Wolverhampton, on Feb. 24th, when a room full of members turned up to "have a go" at judging a few birds brought by Messrs. T. J. Smith, Harper, Crouch, Turpin, and the secretary. All the birds have done well for their respective owners, and it was a treat to have the pleasure of listening quietly to a few of the best birds bred in the Midlands last year. Each member was supplied with a judging-sheet, and judged each bird in turn, after which notes were compared and a discussion followed on the various tours, which proved highly interesting. After the business part of the evening, and just before the birds were judged, our President, Mr. Max Jacquemin, who was in the chair, sprung a surprise on the secretary (yours truly) by making me a present on behalf of the members, of a handsome meerschaum pipe and pouch, the silver shield on the pouch being suitably engraved. In a neat speech, Mr. Jacquemin said no end of kind things about me, which I am sure I never deserved, and I take this opportunity of again thanking our members, and especially those who had subscribed and were unable to get to the meeting. I cannot express how much I appreciate the kindly thought that prompted their action, and can only assure them that so long as I am in the position I am I shall strive to merit a continuance of their goodwill. Four new members were enrolled, viz., Messrs. J. Jones (Ockre Hill), Cox (Bilston), Ball and Wistance (Wolverhampton). Next meeting last Thursday in March at Hole-in-the-Wall, Bilston; a few birds will be brought for judging, and it is anticipated we shall have another interesting meeting.—J. H. WILLOWS, hon. sec.

BOLTON WOODS C.B.S.

The annual dinner and concert were held on Feb. 19th at the society's headquarters, Victoria Hotel. An excellent dinner was provided by the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. H. Shepherd. There were about 150 people present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent, which was presided over by Councillor Percy L. Craven, Esq., assisted by Mr. W. B. Atkinson, the society's chairman. Councillor Craven presented the prizes to the winners for 1909, which consisted of the following:—First prize for highest number of points, Mr. L. Dykes; silver cup and electro-plated teapot. This is the fourth time in succession Mr. Dykes has won the cup; the other he won outright. This new one he has won again in the very keenest of competition, as our members are determined not to lose this cup as soon as they have lost the old one. Councillor Craven passed some very pleasant remarks to Mr. Dykes. He also announced that he would give a medal (value £1) to be competed for as an extra prize. Mr. Dykes also in his reply said he would give a prize of equal value to that of Councillor Craven's, which was greeted with loud applause. The next was Mr. J. Hutton for a gold (society's) medal as second prize. Mr. Hutton has also this year won a medal in open shows of the Yorks. Union. In his reply he remarked that he would be after the prizes offered by Mr. Dykes and Mr. Craven. The next prize went to Mr. E. Shepherd; it was a splendid timepiece. He, too, has won a Yorks. Union gold medal. The fourth prize was won by Mr. C. Bloomfield, who was unable to be present. After these pleasant proceedings, Mr. Craven offered each gentleman a cigar and the ladies anything they might choose, and he begged leave to retire, as he was in indifferent health, and was going away for a complete rest, and would have eleven hours' journey before him. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. H. J. Chittenden, who made some pleasing remarks in respect to the good work done by Councillor Craven on the City Council. He also instructed the gentleman how he could assist the fanciers by the office he held. The vote of thanks was seconded by Mr. M. Skirrow, who said that not much had been left him to say. He hoped Councillor Craven would give his medal for the novice section, as he was one of them, and had had the bad luck to be beaten by one point last year. After passing the vote of thanks we sang "He's a jolly good fellow." Mr. Craven thanked everyone. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing. All the artistes were very good. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess for the way in which they had catered for us was carried. The host (Mr. H. Shepherd) suitably replied, and hoped we should improve each year. Singing the National Anthem concluded the proceedings.—M. SKIRROW, sec. (Please write on one side of paper only.—ED.)

RUTHERGLEN AND DIST. O.A.

One of the most successful meetings was held in the Rechabites' Institute on Feb. 21st. Mr. Livingstone gave an interesting and practical paper on Norwich Plainheads. He answered all criticisms, which were remarkably few. Mr. McAulay promised to give a washing exhibition on March 21st. Date of young bird show was arranged for July 2nd. A new member was admitted.—V. JOHNSON, sec.

STRATTON, BUDE AND DIS. F.A.

Annual meeting held at Bude on Feb. 15th; the chair was taken by Mr. W. Waddon Martyn, J.P., C.C. The balance-sheet was passed. Mr. C. H. Carney was elected president. The hon. treasurer (Mr. E. H. Bridgman) and the hon. secs. (Messrs. H. J. Bohn and S. J. Welch) were also re-elected. Five open classes for cage birds were arranged for. Seventh annual meeting at Bude on August 1st, 1910. —BOHN and WELCH, secs.

PENZANCE AND DIS. F.A.

The eleventh annual meeting was held at the Rechabite Hall on Feb. 21st, when Mr. Ernest Michell (chairman) presided over a good attendance. The Hon. Secretary read a number of letters of congratulation from exhibitors on the way the show was managed, also upon the prompt payment of prize-money. He also read his report, which showed we had 716 entries at the annual open show, an increase of 179 on last year's; also there was an increased membership. The Hon. Treasurer read the balance-sheet, which showed a balance of £19 8s. in hand. The following officers were elected:—President, Sir Clifford J. Cory, Bart., M.P.; vice-presidents, Col. Cornish, Major Harvey, D.S.O., Messrs. A. K. Barnett, J. H. Tonking, J. V. Thomas, J. P. Milton, P. T. Chirgwin, W. H. Coulson, J. Scobell Armstrong, S. G. Bazeley, C. E. Veaning, W. Badgery, E. Hall, W. Bazeley, and W. Colenso. Re-elected: Chairman, Mr. E. Michell; vice-chairman, Mr. J. C. Rogers; hon. treasurer, Mr. G. H. Hall; hon. secretary, Mr. J. Pearce Sampson; hon. auditor, Mr. T. H. L. Perry; hon. auctioneer, Mr. A. Robinson. The following were elected Cage Bird Committee:—Messrs. W. C. Bodinnar, W. H. Batten, J. Carne, R. Gendall, C. Rosking, W. Fox, T. Treganowen, W. H. Warren, S. O. Watkins, and D. Williams. It was proposed to hold the annual open show on the same dates as last year, November 9th and 10th. Decided, to wait to see what steps the Cage Bird Union take to reform itself before deciding to hold the show under their rules. It was resolved to vote 10s. 6d. from the funds to the Defence Fund for the Preston and Flowers British bird case. Decided, to hold first feather shows for members. The election of four new members brought the business to a close.—J. PEARCE SAMPSON, hon. sec., 4, Parade Street.

WIMBLEDON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Annual meeting was held during the holding of the pair show on February 14th. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided, and there was a large attendance of some 50 or 60 members. At the outset the chairman explained that they only intended to transact purely formal business and then adjourn the election of officers, the presentation of the report and accounts, and the revision of the rules. Four new members, one lady and three gentlemen, were elected, and two gentlemen were nominated for membership. The secretary announced that the judging competition had been won by Mr. G. Baker, with 49 points, and the chairman then presented the lucky winner with a clock, the prize which had been given for the member gaining the highest number of points at all the competitions during the year. The second was Mr. L. G. Owen, with 34 points, and the third Mr. A. W. Reade, with 30. The secretary reported that he had received a letter from the secretary of the London C.B.A. informing the Society that they had been adjudicated the third prize winners of the United Kingdom Cage Bird Championship, and had pleasure in enclosing a cheque for £2, the prize they had won. The chairman said their thanks were due to those members who had so kindly made up the team, and whose action had resulted in an addition, deducting the entry fee of 10s., of 30s. to the funds. The number of points gained was 67, the L.C.B.A., the winners, making 82, and the Liverpool O.S., the second prize winners, 81. The secretary announced that CAGE BIRDS had opened a fund to test in a higher court the decision of a magistrate recently arrived at in a case having reference to the protection of wild birds, which is said, if it stands, to be the death-blow to the hobby of keeping British birds, and the decline of the British bird section at shows. A collection for the fund was made, which realised 12s. 6d.

A YORKSHIRE FANCIER CELEBRATES HIS PALACE WIN.

To celebrate the success of Mr. H. H. Towers at the recent Crystal Palace Show, a party of business gentlemen (numbering 24) with whom he is in the habit of travelling to and from Bradford, arranged to have a dinner, which was duly held on Friday evening last, February 25th, at the Market Tavern, Bradford, writes Mr. H. Martin (Shipley). An excellent repast was served up by the host, and the guests (who by the way were mostly non-fanciers) enjoyed themselves so much that it was decided to make it an annual event. Nearly every village and town on the Midland Railway between Skipton and Bradford was represented in the party. The menu card and programme was most striking, and will certainly be greatly treasured by all present.

The design on the menu-card.

After the dinner the rest of the evening was spent in a convivial manner. The health of Mr. Towers was drunk with musical honours, and hearty wishes were unanimously expressed that he would be even more successful in the future. Mr. Arthur Lee (Francis Willey and Co., Bradford) was the chairman. The musical portion of the programme was of a very high order, whilst the "unmusical" was equally successful, there being not a dull moment from beginning to end. The great wrestling match ("scratch as scratch can") duly took place with disastrous results to the referee. The "early train" serenaders, though not exactly a musical success, provided plenty of enjoyment. Songs were excellently rendered by Messrs. W. Mason (Bingley), M. Speight (Wibsey), T. Kelly (Crosshills), and W. Greenwood (Steeton); humorous songs and recitations by Messrs. A. Hart (Leeds), and W. Richardson (Bradford). Mr. W. Aldridge (Bradford) was the accompanist, whilst all the rest of the party contributed to the programme in one form or another. The time for the "last train" arrived all too soon.

Under the White Rose.

BRADFORD has suffered another severe loss by the death of one of its noted fanciers, Mr. J. E. Brotherton, who died very suddenly on Friday morning last, February 25th. Mr. Brotherton had been in the Fancy a considerable time, and at one period kept a very large number of birds. He was one of the trustees of the Yorkshire Union, and his name figures on the ballot paper issued last week, where he offered his services for the same office. The news of his death comes as a severe shock, as he had been in the company of several fanciers only a short time previously. The Fancy in general will have every sympathy with his wife and family.

GREAT HORTON O.S. held a very successful members' show on Saturday last, and great interest was centred therein, this being the first show in the series for the "Silver Cup" which has been purchased for these shows. The cup was on view and greatly admired, being quite unique and very massive in design. The competition for such a trophy is sure to be keen.

FOLLOWING last week's notes on the Y.U. ballot paper, we come to the new rules. No. 1 is in regard to novice birds, and the novices will easily settle this matter. No. 2 deals with a suggestion for the Y.U. year book, containing all schedules for the shows, and is a very good idea. No. 3 is a rule that should certainly be passed, as it may very easily be required at any time, and would simply be settling a point of difference should it arise. No. 4 is in regard to voting, doing away with plurality of votes. No. 5 is another for the novices, and is in regard to the price of their exhibits. Shall it be no limit? Well, this has its drawbacks. Nos. 6 and 7 are in regard to judges, and will require no small amount of study to see where the benefit will come in. Aren't the Yorkshire men competent to judge? And cannot a reporter do justice? No. 8 is—well! least said soonest mended, in my opinion. No. 9 is a rule to get first feather shows running again, and would doubtless be of great benefit during what is now a close season. No. 10, that the Y.U. pay delegates' travelling expenses, is only just, and should be brought about.

I HEAR that there was a little jollification at the Market Tavern on Friday evening last, in honour of a certain fancier's (Mr. H. H. Towers) great wins at the late Palace Show, and if the menu and concert are anything to go by, I am sure it must have been really good. This "do" was got up really by non-fancier friends of the fortunate one. The illustrated menu card is rather amusing; done by a non-fancier, who has never known what an exhibition bird is like!

THE Social and Prize Distribution of the Amalgamated Societies, to be held to-day, promises to be the most successful of the series. For the dinner over 120 names are already booked, and the Market Tavern promises to be packed with fanciers. So don't be late; dinner at 4 p.m. prompt; no waiting. The O.N.P.C. hold their second annual general meeting at 3 p.m. Social and prize distribution to commence at 5.30.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

GLASGOW & W. OF SCOTLAND CLUB

Monthly meeting and pairs' show held in the Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow, on Feb. 15th, the president, Mr. J. L. Burnett, in the chair. After the usual business, the pairs' show was proceeded with, and the following were the winners: Canary pairs, Messrs. A. Sloan, J. McLay, F. Bowman, R. Foster, J. Campbell, A. Geddies, and W. Crawford. Hybrid pairs, Messrs. M. Donaghy, R. Watson, F. Taylor, A. Sloan, and J. Black. The judges were Messrs. A. Chalmers, J. Lappin, and S. Ward. Five new members were elected.—ROBT. WATSON, sec.

DYSART C.B.S.

Meeting held in Normand Memorial Hall on Feb. 26th, there being a full attendance of members. The first business was the appointment of a secretary. Owing to business reasons, Mr. James Logan could not see his way to take it. After a deal of debating, the President, Mr. John S. Harris, took over the office on the condition that Mr. J. Logan give him whatever assistance he required. Mr. D. Walker was re-elected president, Mr. T. Davidson vice-president, and Mr. A. Watson treasurer. After the nomination of eight popular judges, the secretary was instructed to write them for their terms. Before the meeting closed the past secretary put round the hat in support of the Wild Bird Fund. There being no other business, the meeting was closed.—JOHN J. HARRIS, hon. sec.

SOUTHEND & SOUTHERN C.O.S

Special meeting held on February 23rd. In the absence of Mr. Pattrick, Mr. W. Jeffries occupied the chair. The most important business was the Sec's and Auditors' reports on the last year's working. The reports show a profit of £4, the first time in the club's history that it has made a profit. Considering that three other important fixtures were held the same day, viz., Canbridge, Hastings, and Swansea, the annual show entry was most satisfactory—350 against 315 in 1908. One pleasing feature about the open show was that every member received full prize money, as against half prize money in other years. All open prize money was paid out during the show, with one or two exceptions. Mr. Brown (Auditor), in giving his report, said the accounts were very satisfactory. On the motion of Mr. Bunning, seconded by Mr. Hutson, the balance-sheet was passed. Proposed by Mr. Franks, and seconded by Mr. Jeffries, that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded Mr. Brown for the excellent way in which he had carried out his duties as auditor, also for the very lucid report he had given, the same to be recorded in the minutes. The open show dates were then considered, but not settled definitely. With several minor alterations to rules, the meeting closed. Will all "away" members please note that a copy of the balance-sheet will be forwarded to them in due course.—W. FRANKS, Sec.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the querics refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope,

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Weak on Legs.

A. B. C., Middlesbro'.—The hen is certainly not a promising subject for breeding. I almost doubt her surviving until the season begins, and your diet is the most likely cause for her condition. Keep her on a staple of plain canary seed now, and every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days give twice each week the same quantity of crushed sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed; and on two other days a small piece of bread and milk slightly dusted with soft sugar. Twice a week, on days when you give the rape, give also a pinch of a mixture of equal parts of hemp, inga, linseed, and teazle. Every second day give a spray of green food, preferably a leaf of dandelion. Keep cage free from red mite, strewn with clean gritty sand, and free from any draught. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, for three consecutive days, and afterwards give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight. Continue this treatment for a month, save for the medicines, which cease giving at the times named.

Wheezy Since Moulting.

R.A.G.—You probably allowed the bird to contract a chill in some way whilst moulting. Had you said where or how you kept him, I might have suggested the cause. See he is fully protected from all cold draughts, is not exposed to rapid fluctuations of heat and cold, nor hung near a window, or over, or near, any light burning in the evenings. Feed on a staple of three parts Canary to one part summer rape seed mixed together. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, linseed, and gold of pleasure seeds. Every second day for a fortnight give a small piece—about the size of a hazel nut—of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped on it, and dusted over with soft sugar. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of syrup of rhubarb for two consecutive days, and after this give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards.

The Old, Old Trouble.

Enthusiastic Lad.—Sorry you are so soon getting disgusted with the old trouble. Your opinion that it is impossible to keep birds without having them wheezy, physical wrecks, is only true when the birds are kept under unhealthy conditions. Neither is the complaint infectious, so as to spread from one bird to another in an adjoining cage, but you must surely see that when several cages are stacked together, except it be in a few rare instances, the birds are all subject to the same influences, good or bad, and when one bird can no longer resist these influences, and succumbs to the inevitable, the probability is the remainder are soon destined to follow. The one great point is the hygiene of your hobby. See the cages are always scrupulously clean, free from insect pests, in a bright airy position where the air is always pure and fresh, but at the same time totally free from draughts, and not exposed to the heat and fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Naturally, this position will not be in or near a window, nor high up against a ceiling. Until you have assured all these healthful surroundings, treatment with drugs and nostrums is worthless. Proper feeding, also, must be attended to. Better get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our Manager, for general information. Meanwhile, feed affected birds on plain Canary seed as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days the same quantity of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Three times a week give a little green food. Keep them on this diet for a fortnight. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three, and every second day during the next week.

Three-pointed.

C.C.C.—(1) If you mean to prepare these for mating, you seem to be feeding quite liberally enough without further additions. But you do not say how often or how much of the different foods you are using. The staple seed diet may be a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. This obviates the necessity for giving rape separately. Every second day now give about half a teaspoonful per bird of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga. On the alternate days give the same quantity of egg-food, with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed mixed in it. A crisp young leaf of dandelion should be given daily, if obtainable. This should be amply sufficient to bring the birds into the best possible condition for mating at the end of the month. (2) If you well sand the cages as suggested, they will do very nicely from one Saturday until the next. But there can be no possible objection to sifting the contents of the sand tray and retaining only that which is clean mid-way between the regular weekly cleaning day. (3) Carbolic disinfectant in the proportion of one ounce (two tablespoonfuls) of carbolic fluid to two gallons of water. If you cannot obtain this readily, you would find Izal even a better (and certainly safer) thing to use.

Bald Canary.

Wylde Green.—The bird is probably old, and it is doubtful whether you will be able to make the least improvement in it. If you could look up a few back numbers you would find many similar cases dealt with in detail. Your feeding is not very suitable. As a staple diet, give two parts canary to one part summer rape. Twice each week give half a teaspoonful only of the seed mixture as an extra; once a week a similar quantity of the egg bread, or as a variant of this give a small piece of bread sopped in milk and sprinkled with soft sugar. Every second day give a spray of green food. Once each week dust the egg bread or bread and milk, as the case may be, with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash. In the drinking water give twice a week as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and ten drops of lemon juice. Allow it to bathe quite freely; see its cage is perfectly free from red mites; and slightly anoint the bare places with warm olive oil twice a week; but do not overdo this last, and smear the surrounding feathers. Continue this treatment for several weeks, and report result in, say, two months hence.

Malformed Feathers.

Rofey.—The bird's age is much against improvement. Still, you may try what a few weeks of the following treatment will do. At the same time, you must not expect a perfect cure until the bird has had another general moult. See the cage is kept in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily very high, nor yet on the cold side. Let it be in a well-ventilated position, where the air is always pure and fresh, free from rapid fluctuations, and see that red mites are kept at bay. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and give separately twice a week a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts linseed and inga, and on two other days give half a teaspoonful, not more, of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Give a spray of green food every second day. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice and as much Epsom salts every second day for a week as will cover a sixpence, and during the next week six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel. Stop the medicines after this, but continue to give the same diet for at least a month or six weeks.

Four Doubts.

X Rays.—(1) I suspect your hens are mostly Buffs, with perhaps a sprinkling of pale Yellows. Many Yellow birds show a few buff feathers about the back, neck, and sometimes on the breast, but if there is any general or regular spreading of these feathers in patches, even if the pure yellow shows in patches here and there, they are probably Buffs. If you have any that show only a small area of buff in the aggregate, I should advise you to mate them with Yellows, if they are of good size and carry plenty of feather. On the other hand, if they have none too much feather, and are on the small side, I should go back to Buffs again. It all depends upon the birds' size and feather, and how they have been bred. If you could give me more particulars on this point, I could give you more definite advice. (2) This hen is in high breeding condition and anxious to mate. That is all that is wrong. Feed her plainly, and give a pinch of Epsom salts in the water three times in one week. (3) No harm would result if the parents have not been previously inbred, and these birds are strong and robust, and of good size. Still, the practice is not to be commended unless there is some definite object in view. (4) Yes. Feed the same as you would for young Canaries, with a larger supply of green food, hemp, and rape.

Exterminating Red-mite.

No Nom-de-plume.—When the new cage is ready, give the bath daily for three or four days, and stir in the water a small teaspoonful of quassia essence, or soak a few of the chips in the water overnight. This will be a safeguard against the birds carrying any mites, though there is really very little danger of this, as the mites do not live upon the birds. What you must guard against most particularly is putting the new cage in the position occupied by the old one, or putting the seed box or any other appliance from the old one on to the new one, until all these places and articles have been thoroughly treated. You have probably omitted to deal with the wall, nail, etc., on which the old cage hung, or your previous operations must have been more effective. In dealing with the old cage, if the size allows of it, put it bodily into a copper and boil it for a quarter of an hour. If this is impracticable, saturate it a few times at intervals of a day or so with a solution of a tablespoonful of carbolic fluid in a quart of hot water, working it well into all the joints and crevices with a paint brush. After this, re-distemper, paint, and varnish. Do not forget to treat the position occupied by the cage and all appliances in the same drastic manner.

Building Aviary, etc.

N.E.R. Co.—The only difference I would suggest is that you use feather-edge boards for the outer shell instead of flooring deal, as this should give an outer wall more impervious to damp, etc. Otherwise, your method is very good. The roof, of course, should be water-tight, and have a nice margin of overhanging eaves to prevent the rain dropping in. The position is a very good one, and if you propose letting the birds fly loose there should be no necessity for artificial heat. If you prefer making provision for it, however, it will be cheaper to do so now whilst building the house, and I should advise you to add just a small shelter at one end sufficiently large to hold a small boiler and an oil stove, or gas burner if practicable, to heat it, the boiler to be connected with hot water pipes running into and around the aviary, which may be added if desired later. If the birds are to be kept in cages, the whole structure should be enclosed, but well ventilated, and the number will depend upon the amount of internal space you have. If flying loose, then about one-third of the space should be open, except for a roof, another third partly enclosed, say, solid roof and front, and the remainder fully enclosed but always with a free passage for the birds to the other portion. About 60 birds would be its full capacity, or for breeding purposes, twelve hens and four cocks. Common Germans, Border Fancy, or Norwich would be the best breeds.

Brevities.

Turning White (Frank Hambrook).—Continue treating the birds as advised in last reply for another two or three weeks, and then report result, at the same time enclosing a few feathers from one of the birds which you say are turning white. I may then be able to say something more definite about them, but at present I don't quite understand what this phenomenon really is.

Hen Laying (H. Lucas).—I doubt whether you will be able to keep this hen back any longer in the kitchen. Therefore, if the cock is in fairly stout song, you had better feed her a trifle more liberally and mate her in about a week or ten days after laying the last egg. If she seems to be in very fresh condition, mate her in a week after laying; otherwise allow the longer period to elapse. Glad to hear the cock has made so much improvement.

Roller Organ (Regular Subscriber).—I should imagine the two closing notes of the organ you describe are correct in not vibrating, as you term it. Your best course, however, would be to get a good judge of the Rollers' song to hear it, if possible, and give you an opinion. If the notes are bad or incorrectly rendered, you would certainly be most ill-advised to try to rectify them yourself. It is too ticklish a job for anyone, save those who understand the mechanism, as well as the Rollers' song, and what it is desired to teach the bird.

Birdlime (Ralph Harrison).—Fancy your query should have been marked for British bird expert. However, you can make good birdlime by simmering linseed oil over a slow fire until it is of the requisite consistency and stickiness. Test it occasionally when it begins to thicken by smearing a little on a stick and dipping it in cold water to cool it, and trying the holding power between the thumb and finger. The operation is not a nice one, and is accompanied by a disquieting odour. You can thin what you have, if it is made as above, with a small quantity of Stockholm tar.

Mate for Norwich (E. J. C.).—You should get a clear hen of the opposite colour to the cock—thus, if you have a variegated yellow cock, you want a clear buff hen to mate with him, and vice versa. As you omit any mention of the colour of the variegated cock, in case you do not know the difference between yellow and buff, you will find the latter a paler kind of yellow, due principally to absence of colour in the tips of the webs of the feathers, which gives a frosted or white powdery appearance to the plumage, especially noticeable about the neck, back, wings, butt, and breast.

Canary Queries should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "Heuse's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

A Greedy Bird (E.C.).—The fact of the bird being quite lively and in good condition is sufficient proof that her continual eating is no disease. Although she seems to be always eating, you will doubtless find on close observation that she does not get through a vast amount of food after all each day. Still, you can very easily turn her attention from more solid sustenance by supplying her with a fair-sized spray of green food daily, which will also help to prevent any ill-effect from her constant visit to the seed box.

Swollen Feet (H. C. W.).—Thanks for further details. In all probability the swellings are due to bacillary infection, which may be indirectly due to using a too coarse and sharp, gritty sand. Continue the treatment with these slight alterations. In addition to the iron and soda in the water, give six drops of dilute sulphuric acid, and give this mixture three times a week; also paint the feet with Friar's Balsam every second day for a week or fortnight in addition to the bathing. You may do one foot each day, instead of both together. Limit the diet mainly to canary and rape, with green food daily; add only a small scrap of bread and milk or a few crumbs of sponge cake once a week.

About a Crest (Crest-wrong).—I fear the cause is that it is blind in the one eye, if not both. If only the one eye is affected now, it may possibly pick up and fill a clutch of eggs before the other one fails, but as a rule they take months to get fully accustomed to the condition, and by that time both eyes get involved. Bathe the eye daily with a solution of a teaspoonful of boracic acid in a teacupful of hot water. Use it lukewarm, about one ounce at once, and mix in it five drops of laudanum. You may also dissolve five grains of sulphate of zinc in one ounce of rose water, add five drops of laudanum, and drop one or two drops on the eye after bathing each day. Stop bathing when the water condition is cured. Feed rather liberally, and give twenty-drop doses of chemical food in the water for a time. See it does not get constipated.

Cinnamon Crests (Bert).—Your idea is by no means a new one, and you may rest assured it will not be quite such an absurdly simple process as you evidently imagine. Your first step will answer as well as anything. Mate the largest and heaviest feathered, sound-coloured, pure self cinnamon with a good typical Crested hen; if bred from double Crests, so much the better. From the progeny of this pair mate a green or green-marked cock which shows the best all-round Crest qualities with the original Crested hen, and the best Crested hen showing cinnamon colour mate back to the male parent. It may be a few years before a cinnamon-coloured cock turns up among the cross-breds, and until this happens you must keep working back to the cinnamon every year, choosing for the purpose only those birds which approach most nearly to the Crest variety in type, and that favour the cinnamon as much as possible in colour. But don't expect your ideal to turn up the first year.

Burnt Toes (J.O.C.K.).—Yes, I should say the injury you describe will certainly prevent the bird breeding successfully. It would be only a charitable deed to get a chemist or your medical man to chloroform it, as it will never have anything better than a miserable existence.

Points of Dutch Frill (A. Cooper).—Sorry I have not the proposed standard of perfection handy just now. Will look it up, and give you the information next week. In a word, its chief and most notable points exist in its curiously curled and arranged plumage.

Seed Samples (R. M. Davies).—A few samples of seeds seem to have got accidentally mixed up this week. I cannot be quite sure who belongs to which. These, I fancy, are yours in four small square envelopes. One, marked No. 3, Spanish canary, is of fair size, but very poor quality. No. 4, ditto, rather sweeter than 3 but very small, and of poor quality. No. 5, ditto, is smaller still, but cleaner and sweeter, and preferable, notwithstanding its being extremely small. No. 8, summer rape, I have marked as being practically the same as No. 2, which is missing.

Other Samples.—Three samples in small oblong packets, all marked No. 2: German summer rape, is a very fair average sample. Giant Spanish Canary, is very small and thin, but sweet and of fair average quality, apart from its small size. Dutch hemp, a large number of very badly damaged grains, which might have been damaged in post; therefore, no fair criticism can be made.

Still More Samples (J.M.B.).—Canary, is a very fine sample of excellent size and quality. German rape, a nice seed of very fair quality. Hemp, another excellent sample of good sound seed.

Concerning Germans (J. T., Horsforth).—(1) Gopio is a kind of bread or plain cake used by some German breeders to prepare the egg food instead of the ordinary fermented household bread. Sorry I do not know where you could get it in this country. Personally, I think you would find a plain biscuit, such as the Osborne, quite as good in every respect. (2) Write the Secretary, J. W. Norris, Esq., 31, Scylla Road, Peckham Rye, London, S.E., who will give you all the information you require about B.R. Canary Club.

Yellow or Buff? (Puzzled).—Am afraid you have not followed these replies very closely, or you would have seen the difference given several times. If you look through the replies this week you will find full details in one or two at least. Buff is practically a yellow which has the extreme tips of its feathers white, giving it a frosted or powdery appearance. The hen you describe is a ticked bird. She will make a suitable mate for the clear cock if suitable in other respects besides colour. The young will be ticked and clears, with perhaps a few lightly variegated.

Best Breeding Cage (E. E. M., Wimbledon).—I do not consider the cage the most suitable under all conditions. Being open all round and thus giving free access to draughts from every quarter, it is only suitable for use in a room or position where draughts are absent. A box cage of fair size, kept in a bright position, is far more generally suitable. Enamelled tin cages I consider too cold, and prefer wooden ones. In a single breeding cage of box type no wire slide is used. In the double breeder the slide is necessary when it is wished to make two compartments to separate the cock from the hen, or the young from their parents. The use of the platform in the cage you mention is to place the nest box upon, and the space underneath it is intended for a nursery for the first brood when the hen starts nesting again.

About Breeding (T. McCulloch).—There is no reason why you should not mate the Yorkshire to the Canary from the Canary Islands. I should imagine the latter is probably a pure domestic-bred. If you take advantage of a bright mild interval in the weather about a month hence to move them to the spare room, there will be no danger of throwing them into moult. The diet is by no means ideal, and you would do well to gradually bring it a little near to that frequently advised here. The position also is most risky, and you must take very particular precautions that the birds are not exposed to draughts through the window prior to moving them to the spare room, otherwise your idea of breeding will be somewhat abortive. You cannot tell whether the hen is too old to breed until you have tried her. Some hens breed much longer than others, and if yours is healthy, bright, and active, there is no reason why she should not breed.

Mating for Type (D. A. J.).—I fear I cannot help you from your present letter; to do so necessitates either a personal inspection of the birds, or a detailed description of the typical characteristics. In mating for type, endeavour to so balance the failings of one bird by corresponding merits in its mate as to get as nearly as possible the sum total of points of an ideal bird distributed between the two. I can only advise you as to mating for colour now, and even then I cannot definitely say the results will be quite as anticipated, without knowing whether there is much cinnamon blood in the clear and ticked birds. If no cinnamon blood is present, mate the clear yellow cock with the ticked buff hen, the buff ticked cinnamon cock with a clear yellow pink-eyed hen, and the cinnamon hen with a self-cinnamon yellow. This necessitates getting two more birds. If you are not inclined to do this, then replace the cinnamon hen with a clear pink-eyed bird as above-mentioned.

What to Do (Hopeful).—If the cinnamon hen is all clear yellow, save for the cinnamon colour on head, I should advise you to keep this as a mate for the Goldfinch, and when the proper time for mating arrives put these two together in a space by themselves to breed Mules, and hope for the desirable light Mule to turn up a trump card. But if the cinnamon has much cinnamon colour about the body, I should prefer mating the Roller hen with him. The Norwich cock you should mate with the two remaining hens, after selecting the one to mate with the Goldie, and if they fly loose about the aviary, as I presume is the case, hang up four nest boxes or pans, and do not put them close together. If the Roller hen is chosen for the Norwich, it would be an advantage if you could remove the young cocks as soon as they can do for themselves, and train them for singing under a good Roller. They should then develop into very fair songsters.

To Lessen the Work (Novice).—(1) I have known very successful results from breeding with several cocks and hens flying loose in a room, and as the writer you refer to also seems to have had very good results there is no reason why you should not by adopting a similar method, and following the instructions given. In the matter of perches, however, I fancy the space referred to was much overcrowded, and I should have at least two feet between them. (2) The Goldfinch and Canary must be kept alone in a breeding cage. (3) Place the nest pans in a variety of positions, to give the hens some range of choice, and do not have them near together. Also see that you have more nest pans hung about than there are hens to choose, to avoid quarrelling. For six hens put in ten or twelve nest pans. (4) It is quite possible to rear the young on the food you mention.

Cinnamon Crests (Bert).—Your query was among a batch that was delayed in transit, and reached too late for a reply last week. You will find it dealt with in this issue. Yes, cinnamon blood has certainly been put into Crests, some years ago, but is not common. I think you will find the matter referred to in the other reply.

Moving Quarters (T. H. Druett).—Your sketch shows only one door to the room, and you omit to say whether the window opens or not. If the window does not open it would be advisable to have a small ventilator with cover inserted in the bottom of the door, to allow of free ingress of fresh air. If steam from the bath-room, and dampness, are not allowed to enter the room, and this arrangement made for free passage of fresh air without having to keep the door ajar, the room should answer very well as a bird-room. You should keep the birds now well away from any fire or other source of heat, but avoid all draughts, until the end of the month, and then take advantage of an interval of fine, mild weather to make the change. If you do this, there should be no necessity to do without fires before removing the birds, although you may, if you wish, as an additional precaution, keep low fires for the last day or two before the removal.

Two Norwich Hens (Novice, Cheshire).—Give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple diet. Twice each week give about half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and linseed, and on each of the remaining days a spray of watercress or other green food. Limit the diet to this for a fortnight. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence two days in every three for a week, and in the second week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. If not quite right in that time repeat the two weeks' treatment in the same order. If you cannot get green food give a grape with the skin broken, but no other fruit.

Loss of Song (Novice, Essex).—As you refer to one of the birds as a Mule cock, yet say you intend breeding with them, I can only assume you are unaware of the fact that Mules are, in practically all cases, sterile, and therefore useless as breeders. As you have changed the room it is quite possible the bird's loss of song is due to being in a colder room, and if very much so, you will probably find the birds in moult when this appears. You should have waited until the end of this month at least before changing the room. Stop the egg-food for a week or so, and give instead a half-teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed every second day. If not better in a week write again, and say how they are.

Aged Canary (A.K.).—Sorry, but I fear your bird is but going under to the weight of his years. In addition to the plain seed diet frequently recommended here, give him a scrap of bread and milk, about the size of a hazel nut, three times a week for a month, and each time drop two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkle it with gold of pleasure seed. Give a little green food, or ripe banana, three times a week. In the drinking water give six drops of lemon juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. After this you may give twenty-drop doses of chemical food in the water three times a week for a month as a strengthening tonic.

Injured Mandible (J.K.).—I should not feel much inclined to breed with a bird in any case which needed its seed cracked to enable it to feed. Whether you should make the attempt or not depends upon the nature of the sore which has formed a hole right through the lower mandible. Are there any jagged ends of wires about cage or feeding holes which could have caused it accidentally, or is the cage so infested with red mites that they are the indirect cause? Look well to these points. Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean, and smear the sore with a zinc ointment every second day. In the drinking water give it a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon juice three times a week. Report progress in a fortnight, and say how long sore has been there, and if you have any ideas how it originated—whether accidentally or otherwise, I mean.

Asthma (Sparrow).—You will, I think, do no good with the first-named bird, and it certainly will not be fit to breed with. Keep both birds in a dry, comfortable place, not overheated, nor yet cold, free from all foul air and draughts, but well ventilated. Feed on a plain seed diet, and in addition give the first bird a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day for a month. On the alternate days give a morsel of green food or ripe banana. In the drinking water give fifteen drops of a mixture of equal parts glycerine, oxymel of squills, paregoric, and chlorodyne, every second day for a week at a time; then miss four or five days, and go on again. When very bad, you may dilute a little with an equal quantity of glycerine, and give one drop in the beak twice a day. Any chemist will make you the mixture. Treat the other the same, but a fortnight should suffice to cure this one. If the first bird is no better in a month, it would be more merciful to chloroform it than keep it on in misery.

A Trio (Paddy).—(1) Three parts Canary to one part summer rape mixed as staple. A small pinch of hemp, or inga, teazle, or maw, occasionally as a treat, say, about once a week. Half a teaspoonful of crushed biscuit or sponge cake once a week. A spray of green-stuff three times a week now, and daily a little further on. (2) "a" Canary, is rather small and thin, but sweet, and of fairly good quality. "b" Canary, not quite so well ripened, but practically the same as "a." The price may be left to decide choice. Rape, a very good sample of summer rape. Hemp, "a," very nice sample, of good, sound seed; "b," a decidedly poor sample. (3) Am afraid this "cock" is a "wrong 'un." It will probably prove a hen.

After the Plague (Bob).—There will probably be a certain amount of risk of the infection lurking still in the room or cages, so I would advise you to begin in quite a small way, and with inexpensive birds, and proceed cautiously. Am afraid you have missed a fine opportunity of stamping out the disease; you should have turned the cages out and exposed them to every ray of sunshine possible during the months they have lain idle, and washed them out with carbolic fluid every month or so, leaving the final re-painting and varnishing until about this time. It is quite possible they may be perfectly safe, but you should test them with cheap stock before speculating. Consult the article on disinfectants in the new CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL.

To Breed a Good Singer (W. L. Westerman).—Do not place any reliance on the hen you have for breeding. Get a robust, healthy, 1909 Roller hen to mate with the cock, and get them both in a good fresh condition, as you will find described in the book sent you, before putting them together. About the end of March will be early enough to mate them. As regards the other hen, try what two or three weeks of the following treatment will do for her. Feed on plain canary only as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Four times a week give a spray of green food, and, if possible, a small leaf of dandelion each time. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and during the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day.

Bleeding at Mouth (W.G.H.).—The bird ruptured a blood vessel, and I scarcely expect it will have survived until now. If it has, however, keep it as quiet as possible for a time, feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and give a tiny morsel of bread and milk, slightly dusted with soft sugar each day for a fortnight or so. Give a spray of green-food daily. In the drinking water give four drops each of tincture of steel and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a week. See that it does not become constipated.

Ailing Crest (Clarrie).—The bird may have got a chill. See it is not exposed to any draughts at all, and withhold the bath until better. In addition to the staple diet, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day and on the alternate days, the same quantity of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Twice a week give a pinch of equal parts of hemp and inga. Stop the bread and milk. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, six of glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together every second day for a week. If not quite well then, continue it for another week. Give the above dietary for a fortnight at least.

Soft Moult (Miss C., Glasgow).—See the bird is not exposed to rapid extremes of heat and cold, and is not near or over any lights that burn in the evening. Continue your staple mixture, and for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful, only, of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of hemp, and two small leaves of dandelion. If the latter are unobtainable substitute a morsel of ripe banana. In the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and until the feathers cease dropping out.

Ailing Crest-bred (P. Harriss).—The hen has probably been accustomed to more warmth than you say you give. However, do not increase your temperature now, as the weather will be rapidly growing milder. Keep the bird in the coolest part of your room. Give half a teaspoonful of rape every second day for a week, and every day afterwards until she has nested. On the alternate days in the first week give a tiny morsel of bread and milk, sprinkled slightly with soft sugar. Stop the mixture of hemp, inga, linseed, and rape, and give instead a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga twice a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and after this give ten drops of glycerine, and five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine, every second day for a week.

Two Cocks (Spivinix).—I hardly think there is much the matter; indeed, it seems as if they were vying with each other in trying to appear the best candidates for any possible feathered feminine that comes that way. Anyway, you may bathe the feet and legs of No. 1 in a very warm and fairly strong solution of boracic acid—say, a small teaspoonful of acid in half a teacupful of hot water. After bathing for a few minutes, dry gently, and smear on the least amount of cold cream, or zinc ointment. Also give both birds half a teaspoonful of fluid magnesia every second day for a week, and twice during the week give a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar.

In High Condition (Health).—So long as your bird keeps in such fine condition and song, do not begin to doctor or pamper him at all. He is probably a youngster, and has a foretaste of the coming spring in his blood. Your feeding is good, and beyond giving a tiny scrap of bread soaked in milk and sprinkled with a little soft sugar occasionally if he should show any signs of exhaustion, but not more than once a week, I would not advise you to alter it. You might let him bathe every second day in a short time, and daily if he likes in summer. See he is kept free from draughts, sudden fluctuations from heat to cold; don't bang his cage in a window, nor where the air is sometimes heated and impure, and let him have pure, fresh air always. A wooden cage is preferable to a japanned one, generally, but fancy carvings are not to be recommended; they afford too much harbour for red mites.

Bare-Necked (X.Y.Z.).—You cannot do better than persevere with the treatment advised in last reply for another three or four weeks. If there is any probability of the feathers being reproduced before next moulting season, they should be well in evidence by the end of that time. I cannot say it is a wise course to attempt to breed with the birds; particularly if no improvement is apparent after this treatment. She may, however, breed successfully. The chief point to consider is that such birds very rarely rear anything but wastrels, and to breed with them is simply perpetuating a strain of physically unfit birds.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Feeding a "Talker."

W. J. Holmes.—I should plump for the Magpie as the best talker; you want to obtain a young bird (hand-reared, if possible). It can be kept outdoors through the winter, and needs a very big cage—one can be made which is excellent in every way out of a planoforte packing case, though this, of course, is exceptionally large. Broom-stick handles make fine perches. A very simple and economical method of feeding is to utilise table scraps largely. As a stock food, you could use broken-up dog biscuits, or puppy cakes, or "Mclox" (or other dog meal), with coarse crissel, say two parts of either of the former to one part of the latter (by measure). Soak with hot water, giving it crumbly moist, and mixing with it table scraps, cooked meat, and potatoes, greens, gravy, etc. Give a few trapped mice, young and old Sparrows, and the like (even young frogs, if you can capture them), but not over much raw meat. You will find them very accommodating in the matter of food. Eggs (raw and cooked), nuts (cracked), of various kinds, peas, berries, fruit, worms, beetles, grubs, and butter, are other things they will eat.

Feeding a Yellowhammer.

Beginner.—I have very frequently dealt with this matter. All the Buntings feed very much alike. The only "stock mixture" you will need is plain Canary seed. Few Yellow Buntings will eat any quantity of other seeds, though small oats, wild seed mixture, rape, cracked hemp, coarse oatmeal, maw, and one or two other seeds, will be picked over, and a few eaten, while some get to like crushed sunflower, and safflower. To make a little variety in the diet, it is best to give a feed of soaked ants' eggs frequently, and live insect food (mealworms, flies, scoured gentles, small beetles, and grubs generally), according to season. Fresh (live) ants' eggs are relished exceedingly. "Shop" ants' eggs (get the best quality only) are well liked if soaked in a little new milk, drained on a cloth, and then given the birds; this helps to bring them into condition. It is well to mix a sprinkling of a good insectivorous food among the ants' eggs, gradually increasing the quantity, as in this way Buntings (other species, too) can be got to eat it readily; and it is very good for them. Green food these birds are not keen on, but you can always offer them a sprig of whatever you may happen to have in the place.

The Bullfinch-Chaffinch Cross.

F. J. W. S.—The Bullfinch-Chaffinch Hybrid has never yet been bred and exhibited. It is well worth trying for, as any young produced (if cocks) would be of great value and highly interesting. I have a pair up myself; but hen Bullie to cock Chaffinch, seems to me the mating most likely to succeed. Have never had any luck when trying to breed from the cock Bullie. Are you quite sure that the statements made to you by the catcher are actually correct? Still, I have had cock Bullies "pair," and pair very often, but the eggs have always been absolutely clear. It is a very early instance; but whether the "record" in that direction I cannot say. I have two hen Bullies which have been very anxious to go to nest for several weeks past; when house-moulted they often want to start housekeeping far earlier than they would do if in a wild state.

Concerning the Redpoll.

C. C. C.—(1) If a Redpoll sings freely and vigorously, it is a sure cock; a red breast is also a sure sign. The hen is generally greyer in colour. (2) Birds often "go off" a certain item of diet for a time; try the mealworms again in a week or so's time. No cause for alarm if the bird seems healthy in itself. (3) A Redpoll, whether the Mealy or the Lesser, should be managed on much the same lines as the Linnet. One of the best possible seed mixtures is: Canary three parts, teazle two parts, summer rape and charlock one part each, linseed half a part, by measure. Also give a little hemp and maw seed now and again, and a little niger, too, while wild seed mixture is very much relished. Seeding green food, such as shepherd's purse, chickweed, knotgrass, plantain, etc., is very good for them, and these things, too, require to be given more freely during the breeding season and the moult than at any other period. These wild seeding plants should be gathered fresh as often as possible, and the more minute, crawling insect life there is about them the better for the birds. Redpolls also like thistle and hardheads.

Linnet Muling.

Trio.—Have given several lengthy replies on the breeding of Linnet-Mules recently; several good articles also have been published. One in the "Annual" you would find very useful. (1) This seed mixture is very good of its kind, but not one that I should use personally when Mule breeding; note answer to question three. (2) This is a nice sample of full-kernelled, clean canary seed. (3) Yes; you ought to breed Mules all right in this single breeding cage. The best mixture now is: Canary and teazle four parts each, summer rape two parts, charlock one part, and linseed one part. Give a good pinch of hemp one day, maw the next, and inga the next. You should gather shepherd's purse, flowering groundsel, chickweed, dandelion, etc., whenever obtainable. All these are very valuable in getting one's birds into high breeding condition. The hen Canary ought not to have the same mixture as the Linnet, although when actually breeding this will not matter. Plain canary seed should be given her, and about a teaspoonful of summer rape on alternate days. When not giving the rape, let her have half a teaspoonful of hemp; alternate the latter with the same quantity of maw and inga mixed (equal parts). This will give variety, and be quite "forcing" enough. A little egg food twice or thrice a week can be commenced now. But be guided by the condition of your Linnet; you don't want the hen to commence laying eggs before he is "rank," or they will of a certainty be clear. His beak will be blue-black, and his song very vigorous and free when he is in right breeding condition. Pleased to answer any further questions.

Brevities.

The Redpoll (A Reader).—You want to know the difference between an ordinary Redpoll and a "Lesser Redpoll." Well, there is none, for the Lesser is the bird which all fanciers, I think, would term the "ordinary" Redpoll. At any rate, it is the common one, for the Mealy Redpoll (the much larger and lighter coloured species) is, comparatively, very rare in England.

A Colour-Food Matter (W. R.).—If the seed (Canary, hemp, sunflower, linseed, etc., etc.) is cracked in a seed-mill, the sweet pepper can be rubbed in amongst it. The birds will get quite sufficient of the colour-food, as you will be able to tell by their excreta. Cannot understand your failure with pepper and soft food. I get excellent results from that combination. The combined egg-bread and pepper can be rubbed amongst the cracked seed. I often adopt this method.

Floor of Aviary (K. M.).—It will not injuriously affect the feet or beaks of birds if the aviary floor is of brick or stone. Your experience proves my contention that it is always better to entirely roof over small aviaries. You must arrange fairly large, shallow boxes (pans) of gritty sand somewhere under cover. All seed-eaters need grit; and many birds delight in dust baths.

Feeding a Goldfinch (M.T.).—Your Goldie will thrive well on any good maker's packet Goldfinch mixture (see advertisement columns). As "tit-bits" offer occasional feeds of cracked white sunflower seed and a good wild seed mixture, which has had a little thistle seed added to it. Give him the opportunity to bathe on all fine days; in cold weather keep him out of draughts whilst he is wet. Seeding dandelion, groundsel tops, likewise seeding chickweed and shepherd's purse, are well liked by Goldfinches.

A Mule and a Goldie (T.F.T.)—1, The Mule now in a cross moult will come into good plumage in about six weeks, and then soon get into full song. You are treating him very well indeed. 2. Give this Goldie half a teaspoonful of syrup of buckthorn, stirred into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Leave on cage for 24 hours. Then give plain water for 24 hours, after which repeat the dose of buckthorn. This should put him to rights. Give a change of diet—niger (if he is not having it), thistle, cracked sunflower, etc.

Identity of Bird (C. H. J.).—The bird you have caught is a male Reed Bunting, common all over England, but not generally known, as this species only visits human habitations under stress of severe weather. No particular value; they are advertised quite cheaply in our columns. Their song is very curious, but personally I do not think it at all pleasant. I have never heard of hybrids being produced by it; a hen Yellow Bunting would be a suitable bird for a mate.

Cock Bullie—Hen Canary (G. G. Pearson).—I have never heard of any Hybrids being shown which were bred from the cock Bullie, the hen generally being used as the most likely bird of the two. Still, the mating is worth trying by way of experiment. The cock Bullie will soon come into condition if you allow him a little sunflower seed (cracked, if necessary) daily, with a little hemp, maw and wild seed mixture, now and again. Likewise he must have plenty of early flowering and seeding heads of dandelion, and young leaves, also chickweed, shepherd's purse, groundsel, etc.

Three Seed Samples (Seed-eater).—1. Wild poppy seed (a kind of maw seed) will not harm birds if occasionally given to them. 2 and 3. These are samples of the usual "type of "wild seed mixtures" (farmers' screenings), but they are not really good—in fact, the percentage of mere waste (litter and rubbish) is much higher than usual. Birds would no doubt find acceptable items when picking them over. Wild seed mixtures are not harmful to Canaries in any way (given in moderation), but are not much used by fanciers of these birds.

Deaths in an Aviary (D. Wallice).—The only satisfactory means of ascertaining the cause of the deaths is to submit a body for examination to Mr. Yates (see post-mortem column). I could not pretend to guess at it, but may, perhaps, hazard the suggestion that they failed to find either the food or the water. Would that be likely? Eating paint containing white lead would kill birds. Give the mule a little Epsom salts in the water, enough to make it taste saline. Ivy, privet, box, fir, "Xmas trees," holly, and evergreens generally are suitable for aviaries.

Opinion on an Aviary (Young Catcher).—An open-wire table-aviary is about the worst possible place into which you could put either fresh-caught Linnets or Goldfinches. They would knock about terribly therein. If you want to put them in a large cage, choose a box-patterp flight cage, of an extra good width (front to back), with perches in plenty at the back, high up, on to which they can retire and secure privacy, which is what newly-caught birds require, until they have become used to the conditions of captivity. You might possibly be able to utilise your open aviary if you covered it all over, except at front, and placed it in a quiet corner of the room.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Ring-neck with Swelling.

A.T.C.—Your letter reads as if your bird had been getting a bit of everything, and birds so fed usually get into a very bad way. Confine your diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts in variety, plain biscuit, stale crust of household bread, or dry toast. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. Give several doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water), with two or three days between each dose. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Bathe the eye with a rose-water and zinc eye solution, and keep the nostrils well cleansed with diluted glyco-thymoline. A few sips of very weak brandy and water (chilled) two or three times daily will act as a useful stimulant. Keep the bird warm and out of draught, yet where it will also get light and air. If there should be no improvement in about a fortnight, you had better repeat query, and please give full details as to previous dietary and nature of swelling under the eye. In the case of any aggravation of the present symptoms write again at once with fullest possible details. Seed mixture: Canary and white millet seed two parts each, and one part each hemp, dari, paddy rice, oats and sunflower seed, well mix, and always keep a tin of this mixture in the cage, also a piece of clean cuttlefish.

Cockatoo in Poor Plumage.

M.L.—I do not gather whether the bird is plucking itself or not, but rather that you assume so, as the damage was done before they came into your possession. The principal thing to regulate is the diet; confine it to the following:—Seed mixture: Canary and white millet seed two parts each, and one part each hemp, sunflower, maize, dari, oats, and "paddy" rice, well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, stale crust of household bread, and boiled potato (dry), not necessarily all together, but so as to keep up a varied diet. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food. Procure a bottle each of Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food. Put one teaspoonful of the magnesia into each ounce of the bird's drinking water, for one day only, and then repeat this as necessary to keep the bowels moving freely, but not loose. Well colour drinking water with the chemical food when not giving the magnesia. You might draw the stumps, two or three every other day, till all are extracted. As soon as the weather is more genial and open the bird will be better in an aviary. Spray the bird twice weekly with quassia solution, both as a precaution against parasites, and to make the plumage distasteful. Supply it with wood and cuttlefish to chew up.

Gouldians and Cordon Bleus.

F.S.—Gouldians and Cordon Bleus are unsatisfactory things as new purchases; losses are both numerous and disheartening, and, coming to hand at this season, complicates matters still more, and I much fear you will lose them, not from your treatment, but from the hardships of importation, and possibly (especially the Cordons) from some infection contracted en route. Continue your present treatment, and, in addition thereto, get a few nuts' eggs, pick all the sticks, etc., away from these, and then use them with an equal bulk of crumbled sponge cake—take a small portion and scald with boiling milk; if they will eat this, it will certainly help. If you can get them to take a little ripe fruit of any kind, this also will be good for them. I should also put a few grains of Epsom salts, or preferably a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia, in the drinking water for one day only. If your convenience permits, a fly round the room daily would be of great benefit to the Gouldians, and also the others; they would return to the cage when hungry for food. If the birds should be very weak, a little (very weak) brandy and water, with just the chill off, may be given as a stimulant. Keep strictly out of draught, yet where they will get light and air—an even temperature will be an advantage.

Budgerigars for Outdoor Aviary.

Amateur.—I get so many queries that I cannot call to mind the full details of your previous query. Most certainly the Budgerigars will do well in your outdoor aviary, but they will soon eat up any growing bushes or plants there may be therein. They will let nothing grow but grass and weeds, and these you will have to sow each year. Three pairs of Budgerigars would be sufficient to start with. Procure each pair, if possible, from a different source, and see that you get large and well-feathered birds. As regards the C.P. aviary, Zebra Finches would breed therein, but I should only put in one pair in such confined quarters. If they do not quarrel they usually interfere with each sufficiently to upset all successful nesting operations. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" very helpful. (See advert in these columns.)

Alexandrines and Ring-necks.

"Foreign Breeder."—Yes, both are hardy species, do not need artificial heat, but, like all species of birds, must be protected from draught. The best procedure would be to divide your 16-ft. aviary into two flights of 8 ft. each, and put a pair in each, after furnishing the flights with some branches of varying thickness, including one or two quite stout ones, and a small barrel in each, hung high up, longtitudinally. You should stand a good prospect of success this year, if you fit up the place at once for them, but do not be disappointed if this should not be the case, as many species of Parrakeets take a year to settle down before attempting nesting operations; but one pair having already bred in the cage makes success very probable indeed with this pair. Your diet is ample and very satisfactory. Hope you'll have luck. Don't omit to keep up the supply of cuttlefish and old mortar rubbish.

Brevities.

Bringing Birds from Russia (J.H.).—I do not know of any difficulty likely to occur; so far as I know, no law stands in the way, and if your friend can get them comfortably on board on the other side, he will experience no difficulty in landing them on this side.

What Book? (A. Hallatt).—In a week or two's time CAGE BIRDS will have ready for sale the very book you require, dealing fully with the keeping of all the popular Parrots. Look out for the announcement, which will duly appear in our columns.

Will it Answer? ("Wesley").—Yes, a pair of Budgerigars should do well in the pen; I should, however, give them two husks, as most species of birds prefer to have a choice of nesting places. The husks should be hung longtitudinally with the openings towards the light. Well furnish the back and ends of aviary with branches; pea-sticks answer well for the purpose. When procurable, free from frost and not sodden with wet, keep up an unlimited supply of flowering or seeding grass. Also supply Canary and white millet seeds, a few oats, and a little of such ripe fruit as they fancy; apple is usually much favoured. A millet spray occasionally is welcome change in their menu.

Birds for Aviary (A. Taylor).—It is very difficult giving a reply unless the conditions are given me. What is your aviary, size, etc.—is it indoors or out? Cutthroats, Bronze Mannikins, Zebra Finches, Green and Grey Singing Finches, and Avadavats would all agree together, providing they were not too crowded. Diet: Canary and white millet seeds, oats, millet sprays, green-food, grit, cuttlefish, and water for drinking and bathing.

What Parrot? (Parrot Lover).—It has probably been improperly fed. Give me a few more details, how you are feeding, and, if possible, how it had been fed by its present owner. Keep it out of draught, yet where it will get light and air. For one day only make its drinking water just saline with Epsom salts, and repeat the dose after an interval of three days. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: Seed mixture, see other replies in this issue; ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, dry crust household bread, grit, cuttlefish and water. A little Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water at this juncture will be advantageous.

What Parrot? (W.A.P.).—You have the ordinary Ring-necked Parrakeet, and I am surprised you have not succeeded in teaching it to talk before this. These birds require to be petted, talked to, and made a fuss of generally, and, as a rule, they soon respond, and pick up a vocabulary, though some individuals are much more teachable than others. You must make a fresh start on these lines, keep him where he will hear plenty of conversation, yet not where he will get scared. Diet: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuit; keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage, and do not give any sops or messes.

Cutthroats with British Finches (Judex).—Yes, Cutthroats would agree with the Goldfinch and Greenfinch in an indoor aviary, providing they were in not too confined quarters. Canary, white millet, and spray millet, with green-food and grit, is about all they require, save a little soft food when they have young to feed. It all depends on your space; if not too crowded, Zebra Finches, Java Sparrows, Avadavats, Waxbills of all sorts, Long and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches, and Bronze and Magpie Mannikins will agree in the same aviary with British Finches. I could give you more definite advice if you would give me size of aviary and the general conditions under which you would have to keep them.

Red-headed Finches ("Volucris").—Your friend is one of the lucky ones, for with most aviarists the experience is abundance of eggs and scarcely any hatched out, though some few have bred them fairly freely. Yes, they will take almost as many insects as you like to give them, and will, if given the opportunity, feed their young almost entirely upon gentles and other small insects—at any rate, for the first week. I am afraid I can only advise you to give them as much room as possible, and do not overdo the live food while they are engaged in incubation, but give it freely as soon as the young are hatched—not more than 18 pairs, at the outside, if you wish to meet with much breeding luck.

Birds for Crystal Palace Aviary (F.W.L.).—Of small Waxbills it would hold a dozen, and these wee mites are brightly coloured, and also have sweet little songs; the Goldfinch would agree with these, as also would a Grey Singing Finch, a plainly clad but very sweet songster. The Budgerigars sooner or later would break the legs and wings, and otherwise mutilate the Finches; they are quite unsafe together even in large aviaries. The following would make a nice series: Zebra, Grey, St. Helena, and Orange-cheek Waxbills, and Green Avadavats, with your Goldfinch and a Grey Singing Finch. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" very helpful—see advert. in this column.

About Budgerigars ("C.C.C.").—(1) These are hardy birds, and if they can only get reasonable exercise, are better in a cold room, without any artificial heat whatever. The change from a warm room to a cold one should not be too sudden; make the change the first mild genial day you get, when the weather appears fairly settled—that is, so far as it is possible to tell. (2) A few oats occasionally make a wholesome and agreeable change. (3) The large cage made from a box will be the best. (4) Put a coating of some pale blue distemper on the interior: a coating of Brunswick Black on the exterior, will make the whole look very neat. (5) None, but if the birds care for it, a few pieces of "broken biscuit" can be thrown down for them. (6) Put in two husks, and there is then nothing more to do. (7) See reply to "Wesley." (8) Condy's Fluid.

Cock Plucking Hen (R. Blackman).—Such occurs at times with all species of birds, and it is a vice in individual birds, and I am afraid there is no remedy for it, and I should advise your trying to make an exchange with someone, probably change of surroundings, etc., would effect a cure with him, or, if you could put them up a small outside flight, about as large again as your cage, with a shelter box in one corner, the habit would probably soon disappear. If you could run up a place, say, 4 ft. long by 2½ to 3 ft. deep and 4 ft. high, with wire-netting only at front, you would get more pleasure from the birds than you do at present, and you could also keep a pair of Budgerigars with them. Your diet is satisfactory.

Breeding Green Singing Finches in a Cage (A. Alden).—I know of one or two instances, but the greatest drawback to breeding with this attractive species is that as a species they seem addicted to egg-eating in captivity. That has been my experience mostly, though I have reared young of this species, and a similar experience has been the lot of many other prominent aviarists I am acquainted with. The sexual distinctions are very slight, the hen being similar in colour markings, but the hues of her plumage are not quite so intense. A cage half as large again would make success more probable than the one you have at present; but, even with this, success is not hopeless. I should suggest hanging up one of the Hartz travelling cages in one corner of the cage, cutting away one of the bars for an entrance hole, supplying them with some long hay, and then leave them to take their own course.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

P.J.B.—Replied by post.

J.G.—Death arose from hæmorrhage of the lungs both of which were in a highly congested condition.

F. Holmes.—The bird received by me was in a state of decomposition, which rendered it useless for purposes of post-mortem examination, so that any attempt to discover the cause of death was rendered futile. In the event of any further loss will you instruct the purchaser to forward them on to me direct, as putrificative changes rapidly occur after death, and so obliterate the real nature of the disease.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

A Report (G.H.B.).—A report of the February 3rd fixture reached us last week, and will be found printed in this issue.

A Collection (G. Reed).—Many thanks. (J.C.B.). Also accept our hearty thanks.

A Letter (C. Parnell).—Your letter has been duly forwarded. All the addresses of judges of cage birds will be found in "Cage Birds' Annual."

Hardheads (G. Davidson).—Your parcel reached us all right, but the gentleman mentioned has been recently unwell.

The Roller Canary (Constant Reader).—We shall be able to supply a booklet on the Roller Canary (in our "Nutshell" series, price 2d.) in about a fortnight's time, and we think this will meet your requirements.

A Skylark Society (E. N. Smith).—The secretary of the Midland Counties Skylark Society is Mr. W. Martin, Grosvenor Road, Aston, near Birmingham. You will find particulars of practically all societies in "Cage Birds' Annual."

A Court Case (J. W. Goldsmith).—Thanks for your letter. This man was "brought to book" through our agency. Sorry to hear that you were one of his victims. Your suggestion shall receive our consideration, but we very much doubt whether the idea would be widely approved.

A Sectional Cage (Flight Breeder).—The article concerning the cages which could be used in sections, or as one large flight, appeared in the 1907 Birthday Number, which is now entirely out of print. You will find it included in full in "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages," published at these offices, price 2/- (or post free 2/3).

Norwich Plainheads at Auchterarder Show (James Kerr).—We really do not think it quite fair of you to "bait" Mr. McLay for what, after all, was merely an unfortunate way of expressing himself in his capacity as reporter. In our mind, and we feel sure, in the minds of our readers, there was not the slightest insinuation that the birds you showed were not your own property.

A Water Bottle (Reader).—You can buy a water fountain suitable for an aviary from any of the advertisers using our appliance columns; they are very cheap. If you arrange a wire holder so that a bottle can be turned upside down in a fairly shallow dish, the "lip" being about half-an-inch from the bottom of the dish, this makes a good "self supplying" fountain when the bottle is filled with water.

Illustrated Ideas (W. H. Walker).—We think that a still better idea is to use glass drinkers with rounded corners; these present no difficulty in the cleaning. (R. Carrol).—This is a useful hint, but hardly comes within the scope of our "Illustrated Idea" column. (B. Wharton).—Possibly this is in our artist's hands; will enquire. (H. G. Chadwick) —Have given this before. (D. E. Jones).—We have, from time to time, illustrated a great number of seed-hoppers, water tins, etc., of a similar nature. (J. H. Flshwick).—We have given this kind of removable perch before (for use at water holes, etc.), and numbers of readers send it in from time to time. (J. McBurney).—We do not quite understand your sketch, but may say that we have given the method of putting a screw through the wire catch of the show-cage door, which seems very similar. (T. Craighill).—This left-hand door has been fitted to many stock cages which we have seen

A Recipe Wanted for a "Conditioner."

SIR,—I wish to thank your kind correspondent, Mr. W. C. McIntosh, for replying to my enquiry re "Conditioner" in CAGE BIRDS, February 12. It is the very recipe I required, and intend this time to see it is safe. Also will Mr. Holder and others please accept my thanks for so kindly writing on the same recipe? I will also take Mr. McIntosh's advice re cuttings.

G. P. MORGAN.

Stupendous!

SIR,—I have just noticed that in my article in last issue, in the second paragraph under sub-heading, "What Price Winners?" I am made to say ten thousand shillings would be none too much to tempt a few breeders to dispose of a pair of birds. I rather fancy the poor "comp." is responsible for this bloated price, as what I had in mind, and intended writing was "one" thousand shillings. If I really wrote "ten" for "one" it was a slip of the pen, which I trust you will correct, lest it should prove too much of a wet blanket, and damp the ardour of enthusiastic but not over-rich fanciers, whose one desire is to become possessors of a pair of the best. It is a small error in written language, but makes all the difference between fifty pounds and five hundred pounds, and I am afraid breeders are rare indeed who would not be sorely tempted by an offer of the latter sum for a pair of their best birds.

CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SIR,—I notice in Mr. W. P. Bell's reply that he states the Secretary has a witness, but gives no name. I might mention I was the witness, and I helped in sending off prize money, and I can truthfully say I saw the 5s. P.O. enclosed, also the letter posted to Mr. Bell, and I was more than surprised when my attention was called to his letter.

A. W. MITCHELL.

SIR,—Mr. Bell, in his letter re the above, says we did not give the name of the witness who saw the postal order enclosed in his letter. For his information we are pleased to give it, viz., Mr. A. W. Mitchell. We stated in our letter that his was the only complaint received, and we still adhere to that statement. If there are any others who have not received their prize money, as Mr. Bell says, why haven't they complained to us? It would be more gentlemanly, and would do the society less harm than by talking to other people about it. It is quite true that Mr. Bell sent a lost letter form, but as our letter had been sent six weeks previously, we thought it would be impossible to trace it. After this explanation, and our witness's statement, if Mr. Bell still thinks we have not sent the prize money (5s.) we will gladly pay him the money out of our own pockets, as we certainly cannot debit the society again. We are sorry Mr. Bell has not received the money, but this is our explanation of the matter.

A. BROTHERWOOD Secs.

A New Society for Choppington and District.

SIR,—A very enthusiastic meeting was held on February 26th, when the Barrington and Choppington Social Club C.B.A., was formed with 35 members and several more wished to join after the meeting. A good deal of business was got through, and the office-bearers were chosen as follows: President, Mr. G. Waugh (Newcastle); vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Cowan, T. Morris, and J. Huntley; secretary, Mr. W. Woollett, Barrington; treasurer, Mr. E. Peel; chairman, Mr. J. Douglas; committee, Messrs. T. Dixon, R. Rowell, T. Griffiths, J. Paxton, J. Beverage, J. Anderson, J. Crackett. Mr. James McNally gave the fanciers present a very hearty welcome on behalf of the members of the social club, and made an ideal chairman. After the business he contributed to the harmony of the evening with a capital song. After others had given us some songs, a very enthusiastic meeting was brought to a close.

W. WOOLLETT, Sec.

SIR,—In reply to "A Member and Admirer of the old Society," I don't think there is any admiration when he has to hide under a nom-de-plume. He should have shown his admiration when he had the horse in the stable; but he recognises now that he has been too long in closing the stable door, and the horse has gone. He says I am at fault in saying that the old club is disbanded, whereas it is more alive than ever. There was not much life at the meeting when the club was disbanded, as no one present would take up the secretaryship. Also, the new club was a private venture. Just look, "Admirer," at the report of the Barrington and Choppington Social Club C.B.A. We have 17 of the old members in this club already, and there were only 24, and some of them have not as yet been notified of the situation. Where did "Admirer" get his information from when he says that to be a member one has to be a member or affiliate of the said club? To prove this false, we have now four members who are neither members of nor are they affiliated to any social club, nor have they ever been, and anyone in the district is at liberty to join this new society on or before the April meeting. Just you watch the horse in the future, "Admirer," and get in as many specials as you can, and keep a good hold of the horse's head for fear this new one bolts. This is my last reply to anyone who dares not disclose his identity.

The Scotch Fancy Canary in South Africa.

SIR,—I thought the following letter might interest you and your many readers, as the sale referred to is the result of the good reports in your paper, CAGE BIRDS, of the shows I have been winning at this season. Anyone can see the original copy at my address. I take your paper in every week, and advertise in it when I have any birds to sell.

J. LITTLE.

DEAR MR. LITTLE,—
I received the birds to hand in splendid condition, not a wrong feather in any of them, which is very good considering the distance, and the time it took them to do it—just one month from November 15th to December 15th. I am very pleased with them, they are a clean and healthy lot. I have had several lots from England, but I am sorry to say one or two cages were empty by the time they reached Durban. Enclosed find postal order for one pound (£1), which I think will cover the extra expense you have been put to; that will be £13 10s. in all I have sent you. They have cost me close on £20 to land. I had them insured, which cost more than the freight. I don't mind that, now I have got them safe in my birdroom. They ought to hold their own on the show bench, as they haven't the same competition here as they would have at home. I will write and let you know what luck I have in the breeding season. Hoping these few lines will find you enjoying the best of health, (Signed) T. FISHER.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR.—In answer to Mr. J. C. Barnes' letter that appeared in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, I think that Mr. Barnes' memory serves him badly, as he says the dark Greenfinch Mule that I referred to he placed second to Mr. J. Maddison's Newcastle light Goldie Mule. This, I think, could not be, as the Mule I referred to was in the dark Mule class. This being the case, the Goldie Mule should have been disqualified as not being eligible to compete on account of its being a light one. If Mr. Barnes cares to look up CAGE BIRDS for January 8th, he will find that the two Mules he has referred to are in separate classes. Mr. Maddison's light Goldie Mule winning in the light Mule or Hybrid class, the dark Greenie Mule could not be second in this class. But from memory I think the class I referred to was won by Howe's dark Greenie Mule, and the second was Mr. Cuthbertson's Linnet Mule; and the Greenie Mule referred to was blind. The Mule, I think, is certainly blind in one eye, as it was disqualified at Hull, also at Darlington; and it has since then been stated in the show reports to be blind in one eye. He also refers to a certain exhibitor showing another dark Greenie Mule in the same class, and asking why his bird was so low in the cards. I may say that I have had the pleasure of seeing two gentlemen this week-end, and they thought they were the ones he was referring to, and said they asked Mr. Barnes if the Mule was wet when judged, as they thought that might be the reason it was so low in the cards, being an awful bird for washing.

A Twenty-three Year Old Parrot Lays Eggs.

SIR,—I have an Australian Parrot which has recently laid two eggs. This bird is 23 years old, and we have had her for nearly that period. I think this is quite an unusual thing, for a bird to lay after being so long in confinement.

Concerning a Queck's Roller Organ.

SIR,—Having recently purchased a Queck's Roller Organ, second-hand, I am not sure if the last two notes before the pause are correct, as they come out quite a clear note, instead of vibrating same as the others at the commencement of the song. Should they be so or not? And could any of your numerous Roller fanciers give me any idea how to rectify the same?

The Yorkshire Prize Distribution

A Record Gathering Anticipated.

SIR,—For the benefit of those desirous of attending the dinner and prize distribution this Saturday, March 5, I would just like to say that there is every prospect of the event being a record in every respect. A number bordering on three figures have already sent in their names to be present at the dinner, which will be served at 4 o'clock prompt. Those who have booked tickets in advance will be expected to take their seats at the table as near to time as possible, in order to avoid disappointment, and order what refreshments they require before the dinner is served. Mr. D. Sunderland will have charge of the toast-list, and act in the capacity of host. The social evening and prize distribution is timed to commence at 5.30, and a capital programme has been arranged by the committee, excellent talent has been engaged, and everything points to a most successful and enjoyable event, with Mr. D. Sunderland officiating as chairman. The secretaries of the specialist clubs are timed to meet at 2.30 to unpack and arrange the prizes. The committee desire to extend a hearty invitation to all who wish to attend. Dinner, 1s. 6d. per head. Social and prize distribution free.

Are Pedigree Rings Responsible for Cracked Eggs?

SIR,—Kindly allow me to give my opinion concerning the above in answer to Sherwood Forester's letter. I have for eleven years used Canary rings, and I have never had any trouble in any shape or form. The rings are put on the young birds when they leave their parents, and are never removed. I have seen some rings much better than others. My reason for your cracked eggs is that your stock birds, cock and hen, had long claws which wanted cutting. If this is not the fault, then I should think that the hen is cramped in her nest pan for want of room to perform her duties. A most suitable nest pan is one unglazed, five inches over the top, two inches at the bottom, and one and three-quarter inches in depth. The hen can then sit with her head just over the rim of pan, and her tail just over the same; she can move quite easy, and also turn her eggs without the use of her legs or beak, which she is bound to do if cramped up in her nest. These readers who do not know will find this a good way of doing it. Get a piece of cardboard five inches square; cut two holes in it large enough to put your finger through about two inches apart. Put your bird's legs through the holes, set it over a cup filled with warm water, let the claws soak and then wash them clean, and with a pair of small scissors take the claws one at a time and cut them. You will see a small red vein running down the claw. Do not cut within an eighth of an inch of it, or you will cause it to bleed; you will also stand a chance of making your bird a cripple. Choose daylight to do the above work. Special attention as to their long claws should be given to stock pairs before putting them up for breeding. A beak and long claws are responsible for many troubles during the breeding season—young birds thrown out of the nest on to sand tray, also eggs and nest together are not unusual.

ALBERT BURTENSHAW.

SIR,—I should like to say a few words to Sherwood Forester on Are Pedigree Rings Responsible for Cracked Eggs. I have been a breeder for over 35 years, and have used rings for the greater part of that period, and have never found them the cause. At one time my bird room was a long narrow one, and when I sat watching my birds I was within 2ft. of the cages, and in a good position to see all that happened, the birds being very tame with being in such closed quarters. About this time I had a lot of bulged or cracked eggs, but I watched until I found the cause, and it was this: my nest pans were pretty deep ones, and I have seen the hens turning the eggs (I suppose you are aware that they turn them with the beak or side of the face), and get them nearly half way up the nest and then let them go; the consequence is that they roll against the others and are cracked. I saw one hen do it one day. I got her off the nest and I found two of the eggs bulged, and, mind you, this hen had no ring on at the time, therefore I could not lay the blame on that. I then knew I had found the cause, as I had clipped the claws and cut the beaks if they were at all sharp. I got some very shallow nest pans and put the others away, and from that day to this I have had very few cracked eggs. I should advise Sherwood Forester to do as I did—look to the birds' beaks and claws, and also see to the nest pans. Don't give the birds too much material to make the nest on; also use a pad to line inside of pan. Also perhaps the rings had flanges on. Now the rings I use are without, and I do not favour them with anything standing out, as perhaps they have a tendency to indent the eggs. But look to the above also, and I think you will have no reason for complaint. Perhaps someone else has been troubled in the same way, and yet has not used rings; but, anyway, mine is a bit of advice which costs nothing, and perhaps will do someone good.

PEDIGREE RINGS.

Can Canaries be Taught the Nightingale's Song?

SIR,—Kindly allow me through your valuable paper to answer C. Harrison's letter about Canaries taking Nightingales' notes. I have been a British bird fancier for about 40 years, and I say that they can be taught if it is begun when they are young. I am sorry to hear that he has no young ones yet, but I am proud to say that out of seven hens I have two sitting and four sets of young, which were hatched on Feb. 24th, and the week following. And all are doing well. I have two sittings of Germans, one of Yorkshires, and three of rose cock Linnets and German hen. I have seen many statements in your paper about how to get Mule birds, but all I have to say to your readers is that when nature comes in time, as we all know that breeding young birds late is like sending your children to school with no teacher to teach them. I have been like it myself; I have had some Mules and nothing to teach them, for when the old birds ought to have been teaching my young they have been in the moult. But this year I shall be nicely in time, as I have two grand Linnets (one rose and one thorn), and they are grand as songsters for Mules, and I am going to let them teach my young. I wish every reader of CAGE BIRDS knew how to rear them as well as I do, and if any one wishes to know I will reply to them as I have never had any bother with my young. Wishing CAGE BIRDS and its readers every success,

WILLIAM E. PRIESTLEY.

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—I was pleased on opening my CAGE BIRDS on Friday morning to read the report of the Lancashire C.A. at Rochdale, and to read the discussion on the type of the bird I love so well. They say there is great dissatisfaction over the judges placing in the money birds that are not the right type. Well, it has taken fanciers 20 years to my knowledge to find it out. But I will forgive them for all that. I am delighted to see that Rochdale is making a move at last. I have waited for it to come for a great many years. Now it seems too good to be true. To Messrs. Nadin, Whitehead, Fitton, Laycock, and Adams allow me to say "Thank you" for trying to stamp out birds showing the Norwich cross. I should like it to have been last year; then it would have saved me a bit of money, as I had quite given up ever seeing the Lancashire judged to the true type except at Rochdale and Manchester shows. I made up my mind to go in for Crest breeding, and have now bought a nice lot of stock birds which I never should have done had the Lancashire C.A. come out sooner. I see it also reads that the coppy must be of the horse-shoe shape, and the bird stand erect. How many more times are we to be told (as Mr. Whitehead says) that birds should be put down that do not possess these qualities? I say hear, hear to that. Mr. Nadin goes on to say that judges have their own opinions. All Lancashire exhibitors know my opinion. I say that there should not be different opinions when there is only one type of Lancashire, that is the type laid down by Mr Nadin, and if judges will not judge to the type without fear of losing future engagements, I say wipe them out. Mr. Nadin goes on to mention purity of race. When I mentioned purity of race some time ago in one of my letters on the Lancashire, one of the so-called judges laughed at me. Perhaps he has laughed also at Mr. Nadin. Yes, the purity of race is something we have not seen for this last 20 years in the Lancashire.

E. FULLER.

Birmingham and District Remains Loyal.

SIR,—Will send full particulars of District meeting of C.B.U. (No. 7) in time for next week's paper. Delegates unanimously decided to stick to the Union, and special steps are to be taken to stop members exhibiting at non-affiliated shows in the district. Meeting lasted two hours, and a great deal of business was got through.

J. H. DE MAILLET,

The Metropolitan Sensation.

SIR,—Since you have been good enough to open your columns to report the above, perhaps you will be kind enough to do likewise to others who wish to air their views on the same. How will it affect the C.B.U.? How will it affect the smaller affiliated societies in the South? What is the position of the latter in trying to fix up their annual show dates without the C.B.U., as before the so-called "sensation"? There are societies that cater well for the Fancy in every way, and are anxious to meet the requirements of all concerned to make the show a success, and sacrifice many things to do it. These questions I put to those who are responsible for the present situation. Speaking for the C.B.U., it has justified its existence in many ways. It has been the means of getting together a larger body of fanciers than has ever been known before (in my opinion), ensured larger shows, and weeded out many evil doers; consequently the Fancy must necessarily be healthier even under its present miserable management. Therefore, what can the C.B.U. do under sound, up-to-date management? But who is responsible for the position in which the C.B.U. find themselves? The meeting at the Palace was out of order, as well as the agenda, and that unfortunate man, the Secretary, found himself unable to report progress. Hence the "sensation," which I predicted long ago. What is the object in view? What will the answer be? At first sight of this great "Metropolitan Sensation," one would think all societies would withdraw in the South, and your columns be filled up, Sir. But not one have I seen yet, and I hope, on principle, that all affiliated societies will seriously think first and give it the utmost consideration before withdrawing from the C.B.U. I suggest all districts have meetings at once (those of the London districts jointly), and lose no time in discussing who is to be the governing body for the South—the C.B.U., or is it to be a London Federation, or none at all? I pen these few lines with the greatest respect for all whom they may concern, and by reason of the position that I hold at present I must keep in the shade of

THE APPLE TREE.

SIR,—At last we have got a sensible letter published on the C.B.U. affair in that of Mr. Hadwin in your last issue. I think if the carping critics who have been writing lately on the matter would use their energies in trying to put the present Union on a sound basis (and all are bound to admit that it has been the means of doing useful work in the Fancy) their time would be better spent in the interest of exhibitors. With regard to the letters re a Lancashire Society, I fail to see how such could be worked. The writers seem to lose sight of the fact that the Yorkshire fanciers are nearly all confined to one variety of birds, which is the means of making their union more solid than would be the case with a so-called Lancashire Union. What we want is every member of the Union to rally round and be loyal, and appoint officials who have the interests of same at heart, and then we shall have a society second to none.

REASON.

SIR,—I am the late secretary of the Hanley and District C.B.S., so I must say that while in that position I could not see where our belonging to the Cage Bird Union benefited our society. We paid our money and we got no returns. It guarantees you nothing, and gives you nothing. I know this, that we should have made more members if there had not been a Cage Bird Union. It pays an exhibitor not to be a member, because he can show anywhere he likes, and he has his freedom, which every man likes; so how can you build up a Union under these conditions? I say it is not unity, it is compulsion. When you are running an open show a secretary must watch every penny, and it is very annoying to know that he has got to send the Cage Bird Union fee, knowing that there will be no return therefor. No, you stand to win or lose just the same as if there were no C.B.U. What is wanted is an understanding amongst secretaries to do a bit for one another in the way of receiving schedules and delivering them to their members at their meetings to save each society postage, anything between 10s. and £1. And there are other ways in which we could help one another. I thought it was in this direction that the C.B.U. was going to benefit the Fancy when it was started, but I soon found out differently. But as far as it has gone I cannot see much that it has done—only pay the officials and work 1909 at a loss. I see in this week's CAGE BIRDS that the Secretary of the No. 7 District is calling a meeting at Leicester. I wonder what society such as ours is going to advance its representative about 15s. for his expenses to attend at that meeting? If you could see any return for your money it would be another thing. I conclude hoping your valuable paper will be open to discuss this matter.

C. J. ROBINSON.

SIR,—May I be allowed a little space in your valuable paper as regards the "vigorous defence" which I think the Cage Bird Union stands badly in need of at the present time. I do not think it is going to outlive its critics, for as matters stand at present it looks as if nothing can save the Union. I am a member of both the Manchester and Stockport societies, and delegate for the latter to the C.B.U., and I have often thought a national society too unwieldly for the cage bird Fancy. I think if we Lancashire fanciers could start a Union after the style of the Yorshire Union it would be well, as they seem to know how to deal with the wrong-doers, which should be one of any society's endeavours. I cannot myself see any other work which the C.B.U. has accomplished, and I think the Fancy could be managed better by each county having its own Union, the Specialist Clubs to look after their own varieties. Now, Mr. Hadwin, a few fanciers, like yourself and "Lancashire Union," will be a real live Union. I recognise that we must have a ruling, and it is my intention to move at the next meetings of the above-named societies their withdrawal from the C.B.U. That we may substitute a good County Union is the wish of

W. MCKAIL.

The C.B.U. in the North.

SIR,—May I be allowed a small space for comment on the letter which appeared in your issue of the 12th from Mr. James Johnston? I am out on the identical lines J. J. assumes himself to be, and I "cannot" allow this to pass before your readers without comment, because if J. J. received no injustice at the above show, he has been doing a very great injustice to some of its officials, between the show and the time he wrote that letter, and he is surely "forgetting" himself when he says he had forgotten all about the matter until he saw it brought forward in your journal, as from what I have overheard J. J. say (and various other individuals), he has not failed in any opportunity whenever and wherever it occurred to ventilate his grievance over the injustice (or supposed injustice) which he received at Newcastle Show, and also to couple certain individuals' names with his insinuations. My advice to J. J. is, the next time he receives an injustice at any show (as he must have done at this one, or why did he say things that ought to have been left unsaid?) is to see it righted on the spot. Don't go away and ventilate your "wrongs" at every opportunity. If you had done what you say, "Lover of Justice" should have done ("if" he is a member), you certainly would have shown yourself in a better light than by the way you acted after "Lover of Justice" (whoever he may be) was trying to see you righted.

CONSTANT READER.

SIR,—In spite of James Johnston's reply in your issue of February 12th, "Lover of Justice" is not yet satisfied, and he congratulates himself upon the fact that he has discovered (I was going to say another "comet"), but it is only the identity of a member, and then goes on to prove that it is only another "mare's nest." Let me tell "Lover of Justice" that I have never seen this label referred to, and that I was not in the show till some time after the judging was finished. I think I can guess who it is that "Lover of Justice" wants to "get at," and I suspect that it is simply a piece of malice If "Lover of Justice" chooses to play for high stakes, he ought to be prepared to abide by the consequences of his own mistakes and not try to blame others. I promised to ask "Lover of Justice" a few questions, but seeing the decision of the Cage Bird Union Council meeting at the Crystal Palace, re the sensational Mule case, I think it would be too bad for me to add anything to what he has already suffered, so I will simply follow "J. Graham's" example and assure him that I am not a member of the Newcastle Society, nor of the Sunderland Society, nor have I ever been Phonograph Record of the Linnet's Song.

SIR,—It is with regret I have to answer the letter of Mr. A. Cargill in regard to his name being mentioned as judge of Yorkshires, and third with Borders at our Pair show. I may state that he has no connection with the above society, and it must have been an error of the printer, for it should have read, "S." Cargill. I wish CAGE BIRDS prolonged success.

A Hint About Mousetraps.

SIR.—As to the kind of mouse-traps for use in bird-rooms or aviaries, never use that called "The Little Nipper" or the "Certainty," which are strong spring traps, and kill the mice all right, but we have had one of our best birds killed instantaneously through alighting on one of the these traps. Always use the good old-fashioned style of box mouse-trap, which is quite harmless to the birds, and also to your fingers when setting.

R. CARROLL.

A Lizard Canary Club for the Northern Counties.

SIR,—Will you again kindly allow me to state that it is proposed to form a Northern Lizard Canary Club for the Counties of Durham and Northumberland. I would be glad if any fancier who intends to join and has not already sent me his name and address, would do so as soon as possible, so that a meeting may be called and officers elected. It is hoped that the club will be thoroughly representative of the two counties, and not confined to one particular district.

W. REID, 14, Plantation Road, Pallion, Sunderland.

The Proposed Open Show in Glasgow.

SIR.—I observe from Mr. Bowman's letter in your columns that it is suggested to have another open show in Glasgow on the lines of the City's Show. But beyond that no particulars are given. I hope the promoters have counted the cost to the Fancy before proceeding further. Would another show help the City of Glasgow? We all know that, controlled by efficient management, the City of Glasgow Show is the best in Scotland, and fanciers should take care of that institution. In my opinion one good open show for cage birds is enough for a town, and I would counsel fanciers to support it, and not be carried away. Is there something undisclosed behind all this? If so, everytbing should be explained ere any move is made.

The Norwich Plainhead in Ireland.

SIR,—In your issue of the 19th ult., I notice a letter from "Sceptre" re the Norwich Plainhead in Ireland. It would be very interesting to know what "Sceptre" wants to get at. To say the least of it, his letter seems to be a parable from first to last. Now if "Sceptre" could see his way to be a little more explicit, I for one would very much like to see another letter from him explaining exactly what he would have the North of Ireland fanciers do. He says he noticed that Holywood, Co. Down, are thinking of starting a society. "My word," it would be very interesting to know where he noticed it, for it certainly was nover published that Holywood was thinking of starting a society. For his information I beg to inform him that Holywood has not only thought, but has started a society, and a very good and strong one at that. Now, "Sceptre," let us hear from you as early as possible, and if your cause is worthy of support you may at least rely on MAYPOLE.

SIR,—Will you allow me a small space in CAGE BIRDS in reply to J. R. Hyland. This gentleman asks his brother fanciers to suggest some means whereby a reconciliation may come about with clubs in Ireland. Well, if my memory serves me correctly, last season a memorial was got up by some of the leading fanciers in Ireland to try and do what Mr. Hyland now suggests, and to try and get those who were the cause of disunion, etc., removed; but I am sorry to say that a party drew up another document opposing same, and placing confidence in the guilty ones. Well, we have seen the result, and those who were the great men have very much disappointed their supporters, and have suffered defeat both as regards finance and otherwise. But I am very glad now that they see their mistake when they are sorely bitten. They now call for a reconciliation, which I am afraid will never come to pass with the club of which Mr. Hyland has the honour to hold the secretarial reins, as all our confidence is lost in this club, and I see no future before them but to wind up. I wish all Irish fanciers, and our CAGE BIRDS, too, a record season.

A Lovebird and Its Vocabulary.

SIR,—The following concerning a talking Lovebird may be interesting to your readers. My bird was bought about the end of last October from Mr. H. Lewis, Handsworth. We called it "Little Budge," and were rather surprised one evening in January to hear it repeating same. Since then it has been taught to say "Pretty Polly" and "Sweet Dick." It also makes a noise like kissing which it picked up from a Grey Parrot, and a few Canary notes. It is most amusing, and makes an ideal pet with its winning ways. Oftentimes we mistake its "sweet" for the Canary's.

G. P. MORGAN.

An Aged Grey Parrot.

SIR,—Since sending you the note respecting the Bullfinch cock pairing off with hen Chaffinch at this early part of the year for recently caught birds, I have been to see a Parrot, all grey with red tail, which has been in the owner's possession for the last 36 years, and was informed that relatives (or friends of theirs) had one in their possession, and could trace it back for 90 years. This bird died about 12 months ago. Would that constitute a record for a Parrot? The Grey I saw this afternoon is in splendid plumage and talks and mimics well.

F. J. WEAIRE.

[Ninety years is a ripe old age, certainly, but that veteran and respected fancier, Mr. Jos. F. Hills, of Sudbury, Suffolk, has in his possession a cockatoo (Lemon-crest) which we believe can give even this Methusalah amongst Parrots a few years, and a beating. When we last saw it, this bird seemed lively enough to last another century.—Editor.]

How to Steady British Hardbills

SIR,—Beauty of plumage, softness of voice, quickness of instinct, remarkable cleverness, proved docility, tender affection, are all united in the Goldfinch, and if it were rare, or if it came from a foreign country, it would then be valued as it deserves to be. I find the best way to steady a bird is to place it on the table in front of you, keep handling the cage, and talk to the bird. The bird's instinct soon teaches it that you mean it no harm. In a week or two of this treatment tho bird soon settles down, and commences singing away, thus repaying you for the trouble and patience you have bestowed on your pet. This I find applies to any bird. I have a Japanese cage, and if I want to make a bird steady I put the bird in and hang cage on a line stretched across the room. When I am at home I place him on the table again. This cage is an open wire one. My method acts like magic. The wildest bird I find always makes the best songster, and the bird that sulks at first is the one that lives in confinement. You can let cock and hen Bullfinch face each other on table for three or four days and then put both together; at night is the best time.

Wanted, a Roller Club for West Hartlepool.

SIR,—I wish "Roller Novice" and S. Fairey every success in forming a Roller Club for the Hartlepools, and would be pleased to become a member. If there are not enough fanciers at present to successfully carry on a Roller Club, I propose we join the Hartlepools C.B.S. Mr. Woodhead, the hon. sec., I feel sure, would do his best to make a Roller Section a success. The Making of Egg-food.

SIR,—Under the heading of "Club Reports," the City and Suburban A.C.B., I was highly amused at the account given of the egg-food making competition, all the competitors using sieves or other contaminating influences in the making of the food. Really I should have thought that Twentieth Century fanciers knew better. I think I could easily have secured first prize with the following method:—"Drop the egg in a white glazed marmalade (1lb) pot, put crumbs from a slice of bread in, and stir with a strong fork until the whole becomes a moist, crumbly mass." I have an idea that a teaspoonful of maw seed helps the mixing, while the hens relish it, and eat it more readily. If fanciers tried the above method they would look upon sieves as abominations.

Prize Money and Entry Fees at Abertillery Show.

SIR,—I entered two birds at the above-named show, held on December 8. I received destination labels only. Thinking cage tallies were lost through the post or otherwise I classified the two birds as entered, enclosed a postcard stating I had not received any tallies and forwarded my birds. They returned home wearing 1st and 4th prize cards. On looking up the report of CAGE BIRDS, Mr. Parfitt was credited with winning 1st in class 22 in which my light Mule won. I dropped a postcard to the secretary explaining the error. Also put same through CAGE BIRDS' "Twitterings" the following week, and Mr. Parfitt has not, to my knowledge, said anything to the contrary. Not hearing from any source the prize-money of show in question had been paid out, I wrote to the secretary for some explanation, referring to the error which had taken place Failing to get a reply, I wrote again on February 10, and up to time of writing this I have had no reply. Could Mr. Payne kindly inform me as to whether No. 4, in class 22, won first or not? I hope this will meet the eye of one of the committeemen, and further that he will have some respect for the society and reply if they cannot say.

The Recent Suspensions by the Yorkshire Union.

A Sensational Letter.

SIR,—In last week's CAGE BIRDS I see that I am expelled from the Yorkshire Union, I believe, for borrowing and lending birds for exhibition, and still the man whom I borrowed from has gone Scot free. I think the Union, or rather the Council, have been hard upon me in this matter. I was very sorry indeed when I saw the announcement in CAGE BIRDS. Some have been exonerated from all blame (when there was nobody there to accuse them). Now, I know for a fact that Mr. X has borrowed more birds on two separate occasions than I have lent and borrowed in all my life. Then take Mr. Y, even I have borrowed one bird from him. And I am not by myself in the matter. I could go on all down the list and accuse every man if needs be. But I should like to ask Mr. A why he did not object to the birds that were borrowed and shown at Halifax Show when he went there to object instead of going six weeks back and objecting to a certain bird that belonged to a certain man? He knew that all the six birds that were shown in Mr. B's name were not his bona-fide property, for he knew perfectly well that Mr. B had only two birds of his own and here he was showing six. Then, again, why did not he object to Mr. B at the City of Bradford Show, where he picked up a Yellow Hen and told a gentleman who was with him that that bird was not the property of Mr. B, but belonged to Mr. C? Then I should like to ask Mr. A if ever he himself showed a Green-marked Cock (that came from Mr. C) before it was his bona-fide property? I should also like to ask Messrs. D and E how many times certain birds have first been in one bird room and then back again home? Perhaps these birds did not know who was master. Then I should like to ask Messrs. Q. and R. why the latter got a Yellow Hen from C, handed it over to Q all the show season, after which the bird disappeared? And I should like to ask Mr. R if he did not accuse Mr. S of having borrowed a bird from Mr. T? Did Mr. R ever lend Mr. C a bird to show? Then, again, how many times has Mr. R washed Mr. B's two birds when he was showing three, four, five, and six? I should like to ask them all to speak the truth, just for once, and make a clean breast of it, and perhaps the Council will deal leniently with us all if we will all promise to do better in the future. I should also like to remind the Secretary, Mr. H. Hill, that two persons were overlooked in the matter.

HENRY KAYE.

(There is an old saying that when certain gentlemen fall out, honest men get their own. Whether this proverb has any application to the above case we do not know, but Mr. Kaye's allegations are of so startling a character that we cannot (in the interests of the public) consign them entirely to the waste-paper basket, but we feel that we ought to suppress the names of the fanciers whom Mr. Kaye so vigorously attacks.—EDITOR.)

A Six-compartment Cage Problem.

SIR,—I wonder if any of your readers would be so kind as to give me a few hints on making a cage? I want to make a six compartment cage for breeding purposes (two compartments side by side and consequently three tiers high), and when I have finished, to be able to turn it all into one flight. I would like a few hints on how to make the bottoms of each compartment; whether I will want both sand trays and bottoms, or only just sand trays. Yonr excellent paper, I think, is the best one that is published, and if anybody missed getting your last Birthday Number, they have missed a grand treat.

G. WRIGHT.

The Scottish Plainhead Club Show Cages.

Does the Cage Secure the Award?

SIR,—Allow me to say to my fellow members that when I heard that there is to be "a packed general meeting" for the express purpose of upsetting the cage question, I felt it my duty to put forward the notice of motion which is given on voting paper, and I appeal to those members who have the best interests of the club at heart to give it their support. Were any member found guilty of giving the numbers of his exhibits to a judge, he would very justly be expelled the club. Yet the equivalent of this is done by certain members who exhibit in cages of special make and colouring, and known to the judges (whom they usually exhibit under), as well as are the owners themselves. These cages are a good deal less in size than the Club cage. They thereby take a mean advantage of their fellow members by exhibiting in smaller cages. They are also content to forego the right of competing for all Club specials rather than lose the identity of their exhibits through adopting the Club cage. It is generally admitted that the "cage" often secures the award. The reason for this "packed meeting" must be quite apparent from the foregoing. They wish to secure all the privileges of specials, while retaining the identity of their cages to the detriment of their fellow members. Are men of this principle worthy of membership?

Among the Hand-looms and Birds at Skelmanthorpe.

SIR,—Having during the past few months promised a friend escort on a visit to Skelmanthorpe to see the making of pile fabrics (mostly tablecloths) on the hand-looms, with a good chance of seeing a few birds also, we started on a recent Saturday. We were met by appointment by Mr. E. Radley, and a friend of his, Mr. Senior. The latter lives near the station, so we popped in to have a peep at his birds. Yorkshires, of course, were the variety kept, and he is the possessor of a very nice lot, grand type, and not a frill in the room; the hens in particular were a nice lot. The only thing we could find fault with was the size of the cock birds. They may breed a trifle on the short side, but every bird that gets long enough will win, and, without doubt, there will be no rough ones. Proceeding a little further (round a few dozen gable ends and corners, and up a few "snicketts") we reached Mr. E. Radley's place. This gentleman works with his birds, his establishment consisting of a nice-sized outbuilding, containing a large hand-loom and a very neat and good stock of cages. His birds are all splendid typical Yorkies, some of the hens being very big ones, and smart for all that. Across the room near the birds is a very heavy old oak beam, as hard as iron; you can't drive a nail into it, for the nail bends before it gets an inch in. Now we turned round to the loom, and the owner showed us the working of it. Friend Senior took the boy's part of "wiring," but after a while Mr. Radley says, "Come on, 'straight 'un,' let's see thee have a go at t'wires." Well, I had a go, but it took me about ten times too long to get the first in right. However, after a few more tries, I "tumbled" to the way they had to be manipulated, and have got promise of a job at seven and a tanner a week, should I ever want one. One thing I thought, and that was how fine it must be to be able to be with and see your stock during the daily "grind." Next we called in to see Mr. Radley, sen., who is also a hand-loom weaver, and a birdy man, but his stock is, I should say, as vastly different from the Yorkshire as possible, viz., Crests, which are kept in a place built at the gable end of his house, a grand room, all the cages stacked against the house wall and plenty of light on them; but, the owner said, rather apt to get too warm in summer. With this stock of Crests and Crest-breds I was simply delighted, such size and immense heads, but the best Crests had been cut ready for the breeding season. This gentleman won the diploma last year for his variety at the Palace, and he was greatly disappointed that the classes had been cancelled this year. Next we trudged off round a few more corners to the place where Mr. W. Radley does his "weyving," and after inspecting and chatting about the four looms in this building (or rather buildings) we had the pleasure of seeing another loom in motion, turning out material worth about 15s. to 20s. per yard. We next returned to Mr. Radley's house, calling on the way to see the new building put up by Mr. Beaumont (one of last year's novices) for his birds, a well-built brick place, good light, nice height, well finished off, and with a heating apparatus arranged (hot water, with fire outside) to thoroughly dry the place to get it ready for the birds; if it will not suit the birds, two full-sized hand-looms can be put in and use made of it this way. Evidently Mr. B. can see a little further than the end of his nose. We were sorry it had got too dark for us to see his stock. After accepting Mr. Radley's hospitality over the tea-table, we wended our way to the headquarters of the Skelmanthorpe Society, which consists of a wooden building on the roadside, with the name over the door, and also a lifelike painting of a Yorkshire Canary (very much over standard length!) But, unfortunately, the place was deserted, and perhaps it was better so, for had the "naughty boys" who had had to go to Bradford, to appear before the "Y.U. jury," have got back, there might have been some arguments, and hot ones too. As my friend is never happy except he has a good long walk, I had perforce to study him a little, therefore we set out, accompanied by Mr. E. Radley, as far as the heights of Shelley, where we parted, he to return to his "mountain fastness," and we to trudge to Huddersfield, where we entrained, reaching home at 10 p.m., after a very enjoyable and instructive (both for business and pleasure) afternoon, and our best thanks are due to the gentlemen concerned.

EAST BOWLING AND DIS. B.F.A.

Very successful members' show held on Feb. 26th in St. John's School, Paley Road. In the 16 classes provided, 112 birds were staged. There were some grand birds on view now the Union shows have finished, and there was keen competition for points. In the open section, Messrs. Casey, Clark, Firth, and Gledhill were the principal prize-winners, and Messrs. Booth, Day, Padgett, and Calloway in the novice section. Mr. J. Bailey (Sandy Lane) placed the cards, and his awards gave entire satisfaction.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Pair show and meeting held on February 22nd, in Duncan's Rooms, 71, London-Street, Glasgow, a large number of members being present. The members decided to appoint club judges at all open shows accepting the patronage of the club. The following twelve were duly elected:—Messrs. A. Hendry, J. B. Paterson, T. Penman, R. B. Gibb, F. Bowman, C. Martin, E. Barron, J. C. Sinclair, W. Hyndford, A. R. Baird, D. F. Webster, and G. McRobbie. No member will be allowed to judge more than one show each season. The clubs accepting patronage will have power to appoint either of these judges, and will be liable for travelling expenses only. It was also decided to deduct an average of points from each member to enable those members appointed as judges to be on equal terms when counting for club specials. The following gentlemen kindly offered specials for this season's competition: Gold enamelled medal for runner-up to challenge bowl, Mr. T. Penman; gold enamelled medal, for most points gained by a novice at three shows, Dr. C. Syson; sanitary breeding cage, value 7s. 6d., for second most points gained by a novice, Mr. T. Penman. Mr. W. B. Cobb, secretary United Kingdom Belgian C.A., who was present at the meeting, also offered a silver medal, and left allocation of same in hands of the club. Pair show winners:—

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second annual show of pairs matched for breeding, held in the splendid large room at the Lord Palmerston, Dartmouth Park, on February 26th. The hon. secretary was placed in a somewhat awkward position at the last moment, owing to Spencer Hall, the usual meeting place of the society, being required for an important event, but owing to the kindness of the proprietor of the Lord Palmerston, what might have been a failure was averted. Mr. Law, the hon. secretary, did everything he could to ensure success under the difficult circumstances, and he did it well, having everything in readiness by ten o'clock. Judging was completed and catalogues of awards ready before two o'clock. Willing and valuable assistance was rendered during judging by those old fanciers, Messrs. Shakespeare and J. Oldaker; and this in itself was sufficient to ensure smoothness in the arrangements. Close upon 120 pairs were staged, and some splendid quality was to be found amongst the exhibits, making competition exceedingly keen and judging no easy task. There were close upon 20 specials, in addition to the points challenge cup, so that the battle was fierce. The special winners were Messrs. Lovegrove and Lovegrove (2), C. W. Law, W. Knight, E. T. Bush, H. T. Jones, G. T. Pile (3), Mrs. Giddy, H. J. Hyde (2), E. J. Gill, J. Trigger (2). In the evening the show was well patronised, and praise was general. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

AYLESBURY AND DIS. F.A.

The members held their first annual show in the Co-operative Hall, on February 24th. For some time past the fanciers have been making earnest efforts to establish an association on a sound basis, and have gathered round them a large number of influential personages. Messrs. R. J. C. Fountain and F. Inch are the hon. secretaries; Mr. F. W. Hone, treasurer; Messrs. H. Wilson and W. White, auditors; and the committee consists of Messrs. F. Bowler, F. Barrett, F. C. Bates, F. C. Bowler, J. Clarke, F. Carter, C. J. Clarke, H. Fisher, W. J. Pallett, C. Rodwell, F. Rayner, J. Stephens, G. Webb, F. West. The hall is a capital one for a show, and the arrangements were ably carried out, the committee working with zeal and perseverance from the opening to closing of show. A large number of local people visited the exhibition, and it was pronounced a success. Upwards of 60 specials were awarded. Quality was excellent, particularly in Norwich, Mr. Inch being most successful in this section. British made a fine collection. It is in contemplation to hold an open show. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

CARDIFF AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual members' show, held at Naish's Royal Stores, on February 23rd. Over 160 entries were staged, which was highly satisfactory, and a compliment to the judges, Messrs. Jones, Banks, and Ford, the two latter officiating in this capacity for the first time. The quality of the exhibits was of a high order, and in the British and Foreign bird section a very nice variety confronted the visitors, many of whom had not visited a show before. Special for best bird in show was won by Mr. Thorne with a Troupial.

CLAPHAM AND DIS. C.B.A.

The pair show was held at the Avondale Hall, Clapham, on February 26th, when some very good birds were staged in both sections; in all, some 90 birds faced the judges. Mr. Morris's Norwich pair looked very promising, likewise Mr. Masters' birds in the Yorkshire classes. Mr. Priest's birds in the Goldie-Canary class were very likely mulers. The Britishers were of capital quality, if not over-strong in numbers; the Bunting class especially, Mr. Graham staging a Yellow Bunting that may be expected to give a good account of itself later. Mr. Francis' Goldfinch was a big-faced bird. Mr. Vale's Chaffinch was a stormer for colour, dense blue cap, good flights, but was beaten by Mr. Carter's noted Bramble looking very well. The Twite class brought out some good specimens, also a couple of promising Siskins. The honours in the small insectivorous class went to a very fine Pied Wagtail, exhibited by Mr. Sandy, and the larger insectivorous fell to Mr. Vale's Starling, a fine glossy chap, very tame. Mr. Vale placed the cards in the Canary classes, and Mr. Alleu Silver officiated in the British class.

LINCOLN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second table show held at the Arcade on Feb. 3rd. There were 44 entries in eight classes, which made a very nice show. Some grand birds were placed before the judges, and it is very gratifying to note the great improvement in the birds possessed by the Lincoln fanciers generally, and I am sure Lincoln will be heard of in some of the open shows this year. The cards were placed by two members, and every satisfaction was given, Mr. G. H. Boucher judging the Canarics and Mr. J. Hawkins the British birds and Mules.

ORMSKIRK C.B.S.

The third annual show of breeding pairs took place on February 14th, in the club-room attached to the headquarters (the Buck i' th' Vine Hotel). The number of entries was in excess of last year's, with a marked improvement in quality. Norwich were a nice, level, well-matched lot. Yorks and Greens contained some grand birds, with plenty of length, style and nerve. That Borders are advancing in this district was clearly seen by the quality staged here. Hybrid classes again secured the most entries, competition being always very keen in this section, which contained some promising and well-selected pairs. Mr. R. Hunter (Ormskirk) handled the birds in a most careful manner, and his awards were well received. Will members, and local fanciers especially, kindly note that the annual meeting takes place on March 7th, at headquarters, at 8 p.m.

CREWE AND DISTRICT O.S.

Show held in the ante-room, Co-operative Hall, on Feb. 19th. A good display of 110 birds was on view, and amongst them were to be seen some really fine birds. In one or two instances good birds had to stand down a peg or two through being wet, and others soft and out of feather. Taken all round, it was a very creditable show. Mr. Hancocks and his lieutenant (Mr. Heaton) had all arrangements in apple-pie order. Competition was rather keen, and chief honours were shared by most of the exhibitors. The light was very good, and the awards were made in fine time, and prize-lists of awards on sale by 1 p.m. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged, and everyone seemed pleased with his work.

ROCHDALE O.C.

The 29th annual British and Foreign Bird show was held in the splendid rooms, York-place, Yorkshire-street, on February 19th. Some of the best British and Foreign birds were ou exhibition; 56 birds in 8 classes, all confined to members. There were plenty of good birds out of the money. Mr. L. Butterworth (Rochdale) placed the birds, and he had his work cut out. The show was well patronised during the day, and the visitors commented very favourably on it.

LONDON AND COUNTIES O.A.

Annual show of pairs matched for breeding held at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell, on February 19th, when close upon 50 pairs were staged, including birds of excellent quality, well matched for breeding purposes. Mr. W. Gilbert, the hon. secretary, had the birds staged, and everything in readiness in good time, and Mr. Geo. Gardner, who judged, had his task completed, and cards were up by mid-day. Specials were won for best Norwich pair, by Mr. A. Austin; Yorkshires, Mr. G. T. Pile; Cinnamons, Mr. R. J. Pretty; A.O.V., Mr. G. Thurling; Goldie and Canary, Mr. G. T. Pile; Linnet and Can., Mr. G. WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Show held Feb. 14th at 6, The Broadway. It was the largest of its kind ever held by the Society, and, indeed, was one of the best that has been held in and around London this season, and says much for the great enterprise of the energetic secretary, Mr. H. Smith, who works so hard and untiringly. There were no fewer than 106 entries—more than 200 birds—as against 68 last year. The Yorkshires were a grand lot, and would be difficult to beat at any show. In the champion class there were as many as 26 entries, and in the novice class the record entry of 23, both classes being very hot. There was also a capital show of Crests, Border Fancy, and Finches. Mr. J. Robson judged. A large crowd was present all the time, the fair sex, if anything, predominating.

CHAMP. SECTION.—NOR.: 1, 2, Mrs. Smith. YORKS.: 1, c, Wheeler; 2, vhc (2), Rorke; 3, Mrs. Whittome; hc, Mrs. Gill, H. Smith. AMAT. SECTION.—NOR.: 1, vhc, Priest; 2, 3, hc, c, Dixon. LARKHALL C.B.A.

A very successful show of pairs was held in the Miners' Hall on February 12th. The quality, especially in the Mule and Hybrid pair classes, was excellent, and the record entry of 61 pairs speaks well for the healthy state of the society and for the popularity of Mr. Dan Hamilton, who made the awards.

BIDEFORD.

The Bideford fanciers have formed a Cage Bird Society, and held their first open show on February 23rd. Many were the congratulations on their first venture, which was a decided success, and augurs well for the future. Thirty-three classes were provided, and entries came up well. Some classes contained 24 entries, and there were money specials nearly in every class. The show was held in Mill-street, in the late Mr. Pound's Assembly Hall, an ideal one for a bird show—plenty of light and free from draught, with good ventilation. The exhibits were staged in three tiers the whole length of the hall. The exhibits were put down in the pink of condition. Mr. Greenaway makes an ideal secretary, and with a good working committee the work was soon got over. The gate was a good one, the sales numerous, and the prize money paid the same afternoon, which speaks well for the society. Judging was over in fine time, and the cards soon put up. Mr. Dix (Barnstaple) judged.

NOR. COL. FED.: 1, spl, 2, 3, Hughes, real good birds. NON-FED.: 1, spl, 2, 3, Taylor and Son, three bonny birds, 1st lovely yell. of nice shape and quality; 4, French. YORKS. It was agreed to hold another table show on March 12th; three classes—Linnet, Greenfinch, and A.O.V. British, all field-moulted. A special will be given for best in each class by Messrs. J. Hamilton, T. Sorbie, and W. Melvin; also a special by Mr. K. Wallace for best Yellowhammer, and a special by Mr. J. Whitelaw for most points. Mr. W. Johnson has agreed to judge.—WM. MELVIN, assist.-sec.

GRANTHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The second annual members' pair show was held on February 19th, at headquarters, Black Dog, Watergate. There was a large increase in entries, and competition was strong in all classes, many good birds being staged. Special for best pair shown hy a novice, was won by Mr. Eldred with a nice pair of Yorkshires. Messrs. Kirkby, Parsons, Kettle, Lowther, and Starr, staged some very nice Britishers, which were much admired. Local fanciers wishing to join should write the secretary, Mr. W. E. Allen, Alexandria-road, as our next show will start for a grand lot of medals for most points. Mr. Barnes kindly judged.

YORK C.B.S.

A very successful members' show was held at headquarters, All Saints' Schoolroom, North-street, on February 14th. In the 20 classes provided, 119 birds were staged. Some exceptionally fine Norwich were shown by Messrs. Humphreys, Shorney, and Wright. The Yorkshire classes were especially good. The British bird classes were really a show in themselves. The Glossy Starling belonging to Mr. F. B. Sissons, and the champion Snow Bunting belonging to Mr. T. Boyle, were both much admired, and all agreed these were two of the best seen for some time. Foreign birds are, as a rule, very scarce at a members' show, but here some beauties were shown by Mr. Zimmerman. The Cinnamon Canary in this district is not extensively kept, and those shown by Mr. A. Richardson and Mr. T. Wright were a great attraction. The management was in the hands of the committee and the secretary, Mr. A. Waud. The judges had a difficult task, but their decisions gave general satisfaction. During the evening the show was well patronised.

BOOKLET FREE.
Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, 'Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. A REAL EYE-OPENER

That is what everybody is saying about

FOR 1910.

With its splendid series of timely and instructive articles, beautiful illustrations, and the

Many Special Features this Year.

CONSIDER THIS WONDERFUL LIST.

THE DISINFECTION OF BIRD ROOMS AND CAGES. By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL KEEPER OF BRITISH BIRDS. By G. G. Henderson.

Tells you all about the room, the cages, the appliances, the seeds, and other foods, and gives many hints which will bring you to the front rank as a successful British bird keeper.

AN EASY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By Cornelius Hoyle.

Explains how the author has very successfully and profitably bred Canaries at a minimum cost of trouble and time to himself.

LANDMARKS OF THE FANCIERS' YEAR. By Claude St. John.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed": that is the keynote of this splendid article, which shows how, by judicious treatment beforehand, many of the troubles and ills which are the commonest cause of the failure of bird-breeders and keepers may be averted.

MULE BREEDING FROM CANARY HENS. By C. E. Truscott.

The easiest and most profitable form of Mule (or Hybrid) breeding is with the Canary hen and cock Finch. This contribution explains the best and simplest procedure to attain success in this fascinating branch of the Hybrid-breeder's art.

THE FEEDING OF FOREIGN BIRDS. By F.Z.S.

A contribution which points out how a more varied diet than is usually offered may be given to foreign birds to their undoubted benefit.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

Departures from health in the bird-room are common sources of anxiety to fanciers, and cause much racking of brains to find the best remedial agents. This unique article fully explains the properties and uses of the medicinal agents which have been proved by bird-keepers to bring successful results in combating the ailments of their pets. Broken limbs, egg-binding, fits, constipation, inflammation, moulting, bird-lice, red-mite, the care of the claws, etc., etc., are also fully dealt with.

In addition "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910 contains:

A Monthly Calendar, with Tables when Eggs are due to hatch; Hints on the Formation of a Cage Bird Society; A Year with the Wild Birds; Standards and Scales of Points of Exhibition Birds; Alphabetical Directory to the Cage Bird Societies; Dictionary of Fanciers' Terms; Directory to the Bird Trade; Review of the Exhibition Year; Directory to the Judges of Cage Birds; List of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors; Useful Postal and other information; Cash Account Columns, etc. Also

A lovely coloured plate and many art, etc., illustrations of Canaries, Hybrids, British and Foreign Birds.

ALL FOR SIXPENCE: Of all Newsagents or Bookstalls; OR POST FREE, 8d.

Secretaries of Societies, Bird Dealers, and others engaged in communication with Birdkeepers, should take up an Agency for retailing our Publications.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to The Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 151, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

EGGERTINE

IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF CANARIES IN THE WORLD,

That should prove it is the best; because, if I knew of anything better, I should, for my own benefit, use it for this large collection. I have not used a chopped egg for Thirty-five Years. Eggertine only. It will strengthen your hens, bring them into laying condition, and you may safely rear from the nest without any other Egg Food of any kind. It never turns sour, and is always ready for immediate use; saves time, trouble, and even money (although in a food I look upon this as only a secondary consideration). It will also strengthen the cocks, and keep them on song if occasionally given before hen lays. It is made from new laid English eggs and other valuable ingredients. Prices, post free, 1/3 and 2/6 per tin; a saving is made by purchasing the larger tins.

The purchaser has to hear the birds sing before buying; is that honest dealing? Fresh consignments of Norwich every Friday at 3.30 p.m.

34, Springfield Road, Markhouse Road, Walthamstow. March 1st, 1910. Sir,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 28th inst., and in reply accept your esteemed offer. I must state that during the years I have had transactions with your firm they have given every satisfaction, and I am more than pleased to recommend you to my friends, and I must state they have bought some dozens of birds, and I trust everyone who have dealings with you are satisfied with their purchases. Now as regards your offer, I will place myself entirely in your hands. Will you select a cock Canary for me, and I will send for it on Friday or Saturday, for I know I shall be satisfied with your selection, for I have the utmost confidence that you have treated everyone satisfactorily, for my friends are satisfied with their purchases. More so, I have several more who want birds, and I have no hesitation in recommending your name to them. Thanking you for your esteemed offer. I remain, yours sincerely, G. W. Dillingham. P.S.—You can make any use you like of this recommendation.

The above is only a fac-simile of hundreds of others. Orders by post are given every attention, and satisfaction guaranteed.

SILK'S Champion Norwich.

The primo factor of true economy is not price but

QUALITY.

Not so much what you pay as what you receive for your outlay. Cheap birds always prove the most expensive in the long run, and are really dear at any price. I

and make it my aim to supply only

FIRST-CLASS BIRDS.

It is annoying after spending your time and labour, to find that instead of spending your money profitably, you have lost by breeding with cheap and worthless birds. This strain has no equal. Matched Pairs, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/0 per pair. Single Cocks, yellow and buff, 15/6 to 40/0 each. THERE NOW
It's not anything I say, but the opinion of my thousands of customers who with one voice acknowledge my birds the best in quality, and yet the cheapest. The following are just a few of the many received last week. Just call and inspect the originals along with thousands of others. 34, Marlborough-st., Dublin, 21/2/10: Received birds in sound health; they are a grand pair, and so very cheap; thanks for the honourable way you treated me. Your methods are great credit to you.—W. Walsh. 22, Bulow-rd., Fulham, 21/2/10: The birds arrived safely; I am pleased with it, and shall certainly send to you again.—F. Hender. Newark, 22/2/10: Roller received safely; it is a good one, commenced singing on arrival; I could not have picked a better bird myself.—R. Fletcher. 62, Woodbury-st., Tooting, S.W., 21/2/10: Birds arrived safe. I am pleased with them. Thanking you for straightforward dealings.—M. Good. Stafford-st., Market Drayton, 21/2/10: Bird arrived safe, in good health; started to sing immediately. Many thanks.—T. Walker. Beacon-st., Letchfield, 21/2/10: Bird arrived safely, am very pleased with it. You do give good value for money. —F. Allsopp. 223, Camden-rd., London, N.W.: Roller received safely, a very nice bird, started singing even this morning. Carman said he was singing in the van. Thanks for prompt attention. —F. Stamp. 17, Beechwood-ave., Chorlton-cum-Hardy. 21/2/10: 2 birds arrived safely; they are very satisfactory. I am so pleased.—H. Yates. 9, Murray-pl., Lamlash, 21/2/10: Received bird in good condition and very lovely; am highly satisfied with it.—W. Hislop. 2, Park-ave., Mansfield, 21/2/10: Received birds in splendid condition; am highly satisfied with them.—L. Ashby. 98, Hunger-ford-rd., London, N., 21/2/10: Birds arrived safe; am more than satisfied with them.—A. Lloyd. I could fill the whole of this paper with such letters from delighted customers, but the above samples will convince you that the name Storey stands for quality. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/8, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/3, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. AS A CUSTOMER of mine (whose letter is given below) so aptly remarks, the Leipzig Rollers are undoubtedly "top of the bill." If you want to possess the best singing Roller Canary it is possible to obtain, I want you to particularly peruse the letters given below, and at same time remember that you are not reading what I say, but what people say who have purchased a Leipzig Roller from me. I have repeatedly asked intending purchasers the have a Leipzig Roller from me, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhese, at any higher price, test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not far better value for money, return it to me and back comes every penny of your money. I take all risks and send every one on full week's trial on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds." I have an enormous stock now on hand, and every cock is guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or any other objectionable or harsh notes whatever, price 7s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. each; special handmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell notes, 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have grand lot of genuine Seifert contest Rollers, in magnificent condition and song, at 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each; few Seifert hens, 4/- each; these are guaranteed real Seifert strain, and are exceptionally low and mellow in tone, and their song is like a cascade of everflowing melody. As these are the last lot of Seifert Rollers to arrive this season early application is imperative, otherwise disappointment may result. Splendid lot loud free singing Hartz cocks, every one warranted in full and vigorous song, 5/6 each, seven for 31/6; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple; Leipzig Roller hens 3/- each, 5/- couple; singing box cages, 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each; special Roller singing cabinets, with loose fronts and folding doors, made specially for Rollers, 2/6 each. Please note, following letters have not been solicited. Full name and address given in each case, and all open to inspection at any time:—"50, Lyndhurst Road, Luton, February 27th.—Sir, just a line to say I am perfectly satisfied with Roller; it sings beautifully; it was no worse for long journey; thanks for prompt despatch. —Yours, B. Rayment." "Tonge Moor, Bolton, February 28th.—Sir, received Seifert contest Roller all-right, and am highly satisfied with it.—Yours, J. Shepherd." "6, Thornton-rd., Stanwix, Carlisle, Feb. 26th.—Sir, I am quite satisfied with Roller you sent. He has started to sing, and is at it nearly all day.—Yours, J. Smith." "8, Emanuel Fold, Holton-lane, near Bolton, Feb. 24th.—Sir, received Seifert Roller in good health; he is a good bird, and no better could be got at double the money. Thanking you for honest dealings, your, W. Parkinson." "7, Batley-st., Mossley, Manchester, Feb. 24th.—Sir, birds arrived safe, and cock is very free singer.—Yours J. Gee." "40, Parker-st., Bradford, Manchester, Feb. 22nd.—Sir, please send Roller as follows; the two I had from you last December are both singing a treat; in fact, two friends came and heard them and would not rest till I had sold them one each.—Yours, J. Fisher." "Kentsford, Kentsbank, Feb. 23rd.—Sir, we are all delighted with the Roller you sent on trial a week ago; am well satisfied and thank you for straightforward dealings.—Yours, H. Hutchinson." "17, Nantylear-st., Cymmer, Port Talbot, Feb. 20th.—Sir, I am well pleased with Lelpzig Roller. I never thought to get so good a bird for so little money; he is singing day and night.—Yours, J. Matthews." "8, Chapel-st., Chirton Village, North Shields, Feb. 10th.—Sir, received Roller safe and sound, and in ten minutes he showed us what he could do in way of singing, and he delighted us all: such sweet trills, a pleasure to hear; and since then he has gained the honour of 'pet of the household.' Please send following birds.—Please send following birds.—Yours, G. Hill." On October 20th Mr. Hall again writes as follows:—"Sir, birds arrived safe, and I am very pleased with them. I have had to part with the Leipzig Roller, as a friend was so delighted at his melodious song that he insisted on me letting him have it, and now I have word from him that he is simply reigning the household by his winning song. I should not have parted with him, but know I can get another from you at my convenience. I am confident that if people only knew the beauty of your Rollers' song no other singing bird would be kept in their homes. —Yours, G. Hall." "Bar Hill-rd., Madeley, Staffs., Feb. 19th.—Sir, Lelpzig Roller arrived safe. Please allow me to thank you for such a remarkable bird; it is a most splendid songster, and I am well satisfied. Anyone in want of a real downright good singing Canary cannot do better than have a Lelpzig Roller from you, as they cannot be beaten.—Yours, S. Jackson." "17, Harcourt-st., Hopetown, Darlington, Feb. 17th.—Sir, please send following. I am delighted with Lelpzig Roller cock you sent; he is a champion, and is 'top of the bill'; everyone admires him. Thanking you for such a good bird, yours, J. Rolls." "28, Oswald-terr., Gildard-rd., Leeds, Feb. 14th.—Sir, bird arrived Saturday, and has turned out as good as advertised. I am well pleased, and thank you for honest dealing.—Yours, H. Goddard." "44, Commercial-st., Abergwynfi, Feb. 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe and am well pleased with him. He is a lovely songster. I have had birds from other people, but never had such lovely birds as yours for the money. I had a Roller from your three years ago, and he has never stopped singing, not even when moulting. They are both singing together now like Nightingales.—Yours, R. Palmer." "William-st., Castlederg, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, Feb. 15th. — Sir, please send another Hartz cock; the last one I had is best singing bird ever heard in this part of country, and the Goldfinch is also singing well.—Yours, J. Keenan." Every bird is safely and warmly packed, free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time, on receipt cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded in full. If any person would like to hear one of these Lelpzig Rollers sing, I shall be pleased to send one on week's trial, even if he has no idea of purchasing, providing cash is deposited with Editor and reasonable care taken of bird. I am the only importer of this particular strain, and every bird is stamped under wing "Hans Weber Lelpzig," so send your orders to me to insure getting the real article. See British Bird Column for further advertisement.

SPECIAL INVITATION

To SOCIETIES to COME AND SEE the WORLD'S GREATEST SHOW OF CANARIES.

I shall be glad to arrange with any society of fanciers to pay a visit to my rooms and inspect my stock. It would be a day well spent and of absorbing interest to every true lover of birds.

I have thousands of high-class specimens in stock, in every variety of Canary or Mule. My rooms are all scrupulously clean, and well-ventilated, and the birds in the pink of health and condition. I use no artificial heat of any kind. I am always pleased to welcome fanciers from any quarter, who can prove for themselves that my Advertisements are absolutely true in every detail. If you cannot come, however, and are in need of any variety of Canary or Mule, or any requisites for the bird-room, don't forget to sent a Post Card for my FREE illustrated catalogue and advice to breeders FREE.

Every customer, whether able to come or not, receives the same honourable treatment and the same personal attention.

I Submit a few Testimonials out of Hundreds Recently Received.

Cecil St. Limerick., March, 1910.—Dear Mr. Thomas,—Just a few lines to let you know how very pleased I am with the splendid pair of NORWICH you sent me, and which arrived here quite safely on Friday. They are both fine birds, very nicely matched, and, as usual, splendid value.—Yours faithfully, George F. Manders. West Parade, Hull, March 5th, 1910. Mr. Thomas,—Dear Sir,—I received the bird this morning all right and was very pleased with it. It is in splendid condition and good feather.—Yours truly, W. H. Parker. Arksey Lane Doncaster, March 5th, 1910. Dear Sir,—I have received bird alright, and I am highly satisfied with it. I can tell you that you will have further orders from this part. I have had 5 fanciers to see it.—W. T. Swain to J. Thomas. West Street, Eckington, March 4th, 1910. Dear Sir,—The birds arrived quite safely and I am very pleased with them. There has been a lot to see them and they all say they are the best they have seen for the money. H. Gent to J. Thomas. Burnside Cott, Carstairs Junction, March 3rd, 1910. Dear Sir,—Birds arrived all right this morning and am highly pleased with them. Also the Goldfinch that you sent is looking fine.—William Blake to Joe Thomas.

I WILL STAND OR FALL

by the result of fair and unprejudiced public opinion on my system of doing business. My Birds and Bird appliances are no "catch-penny" items of trade. Everything I sell is sound and genuine. I give you the opportunity of a fair and honourable trial. I want no man's money with any man's grumble. I make my business friends—and (what is not always quite so easy) I KEEP THEM! My specialities in Cages, Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, etc., for all Cage-birds have something more than merely "a local habitation and a name." They are known all over the globe. They please all and disappoint none. My Foods for Cage-birds are ever sound, serviceable, and satisfactory, and my prices all-round are based on terms of both merit and moderation. I sell no rubbish. I have neither time nor room for that class of business. It will afford me pleasure to send you my 58-page Illustrated Catalogue, and if you are interested in Bird-life, this work will aid that interest.

THE STOCK IS BY FAR THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

THE FOLLOWING ARE NOT

— BUT —

THE RULE.

Splendid Type.

8, Albert Place, off Grand Canal Street, Dublin. March 3rd, 1910,—I am very thankful to you for the bird which you sent me. It is a splendid type. I shall do all in my power to recommend you to others. Mr. Tolle to W. Rudd.

Most Certainly.

South Bank, Caterham Valley. March 3rd, 1910,—I have had the birds a week. I thank you for the lovely Roller singer you have sent me; he began to sing as soon as the paper was removed. I am more than satisfied. This is my first order; if requiring more birds, shall most certainly sent further orders. S. A. Sholl to W. Rudd.

The Very One.

John's Street, Wexford. March 1st, 1910,—The bird arrived safe. I am very thankful to you for sending me such a fine hen. It was the very one I was wanting. It is a pleasure to do business with you. J. O'Brien to W. Rudd.

Very Highly Satisfied.

66, Back Row, Nettlesworth. March 1st, 1910,—I have received the birds all right, and I am highly satisfied with them, and thank you very much. The cock is singing well. It started as soon as it was put into the cage. M. Blamson to W. Rudd.

A Grand Pair at a low price.

Harforth Grange, Richmond. March 1st, 1910,—Birds arrived safe and in the pink of condition. I am more than satisfied with such a grand pair at so low a price. They have been greatly admired. E. Jefferies to W. Rudd.

Wellington House, Belgrave Road, Ventnor, Isle of Wight. March 6th, 1910,—Received Canary safely. It is a real beauty, and an incessant songster from morning till night. I think it is the best bird I have ever heard or seen at the price. It could not have been better had I paid 30/-. G. Dowling to W. Rudd.

Tried Others, etc.

Wear View, Frosterley, Co. Durham. March 2nd, 1910,—Roller cock, started to sing yesterday, and he gives every satisfaction. I may say that the pair are real beauties, and cheap at the money. Have tried other dealers before, and can truthfully say your birds are worth double of what others have offered me at the price. Thanking you for prompt attention. J. R. Bousfield to W. Rudd.

His First—But Not the Last.

433, West Street, Crewe. March 3rd, 1910,—Bird to hand, I may say it is my first deal, but I can assure you it will not be my last, as it gives me every satisfaction. I also thank you for prompt despatch. A. W. Ellis to W. Rudd.

What More do we Want?

Marshside, Southport. March 3rd, 1910,—The two birds received all right. I am more than satisfied. They are good value for my money, and I can strongly recommend you to all who are in want of a bird. It is honest dealing and good value we get from you. What more do we want? J. Forshaw to W. Rudd.

Business Methods, etc.

21, Mansfield Avenue, Thornaby-on-Tees. March 2nd, 1910,—I received the birds safe and sound, and am highly delighted with them and your straightforward business methods. F. Tunnicliffe to W. Rudd.

Plainheaded Norwich.

All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 6/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Ticked or variegated, 5/-, 6/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards.

Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 8/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 8/-.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

Five champion pairs for sale from £1 a pair upward; inspection invited, stamp reply; approval: Harry Gennings, 3, Arme-st., Great Horton.

L. C. CASEY.

I have some real gems of Yorkshires for sale at a reasonable price, cocks, from 7/- to 40/-, hens 5/- to 20/-; approval, cash or deposit: 7, Plimsoll-st., Bowling, Bradford.

OVER 200 PRIZES THIS SEASON.

Pairs from 20/-; odd birds from 10/-; clears, cinnamon, green marked: Wm. Richmond, Mayfield-grove, Harrogate.

JOHN MACE, SHEFFIELD, FOR high-class Yorkshire cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6; hens, 3/6 each, on 6 days' approval. All other birds in stock. Cash or deposit: John Mace, Naturalist, Barnsley, and Blank-st., Sheffield.

J. WILCOCK,

Having selected my breeding stock, I have some real gems to part with, either cocks or hens, all cold room bred; sent on 3 days' approval: 14, Chapel-st., Eccleshill, nr. Bradford, Yorkshire.

RARE OPPORTUNITY

To those wanting high-class Yorkshires, bred from and including winners of cup, 1907, outright challenge cup winner 1907, cup winner 1908, outright: Baily and Ambler's strain; only a few for sale; cocks from 10/-; hens, from 7/6; approval: cash or deposit with Editor: A. Flint, High-st., Tideswell.

YORKSHIRE HENS CHEAP

Related to my winners of 20 1sts and other prizes at the Crystal Palace (1910) and other principal shows; also a few cocks; approval on deposit: Apply W. Binns, 9, Albert-ter., Blackpool.

H. H. TOWERS

Winner Crystal Palace, 1910, championship diploma and Palace medal, two 1sts, three 2nds. The above successes, following on my winnings at Yorkshire Union and other leading shows, prove the excellence of my strain; pairs from 15/- upwards; state wants; on approval; cash or deposit: Address, Colne-rd., Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

J. C. BARNES,

149, Duncombe-st., Sheffield. Few grand birds to spare; true position, very lengthy, feathered to perfection, and well on leg; correctly matched pairs, 30/- to 60/-; odd cocks, 10/- upwards; hens ditto; approval with pleasure; stamp reply; winners of numerous cups, medals, etc., at leading shows; all my winners guaranteed own breeding.

SUTCLIFFE & SON.

Our winnings in Cinnamon-marks and Green-marked Yorkshires for the past ten years exceed those of any other fancier. We have a few show birds and stock birds for sale, also a few clears, price from 15/- to 60/- a pair; approval; if not satisfied, your full money returned; stamp for reply.—1, Back Kitson-st., Windhill, Shipley, Yorks.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

LINDSAY'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Few champion pairs, 15/-, 20/-, to 30/-; also some slashing buff cocks, 8/- to 30/-; no better blood to be got; some can win amongst them; inspection invited; approval: 202, King James-st., Sheffield.

HARRIS'S WINNING YORKSHIRES are well known on the show bench, and need no puff. Grand pairs, properly matched to breed winners, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single birds from 5/-: Arthur Harris, West Haddon, Rugby.

BAILEY'S STRAIN

is bang at the top again, over all other so-called champion strains, having won this season the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea challenge trophy, and Naylor's challenge cup, at the Yorkshire shows, with fifty per cent. less entries than nearest competitor; have also won at Y.C.C. competition, Ramsden's challenge cup and Sandiford's challenge cup, only showing at eight shows, and my nearest opponent showing at ten shows, finishing at Palace with more 1sts than any other fancier in open section. I think this will convince you that the Sandy Lane stud are clear away from all others. Have few pairs same strain as above at 20/-, also few pairs extra quality from 60/- to 80/-; odd hens, either colour, feathered like paint; stamp reply: South View Terrace, Sandy Lane, Allerton, Bradford.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Desiring to clear season's surplus stock (about 150) before end of month, I offer 50 pairs at reduced prices, viz.: 10 pairs each at 9/-, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single stock cocks, 7/-, 9/-, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; hens, 4/-, 5/6, 7/-, 9/-, 12/-; these are guaranteed bred from same stock sold at 50/- to £5 the pair. Owing to past indifferent health conditions, have also decided to limit my coming season's breeding stock, so I offer a few specially selected pairs, intended for own use, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/- to 30/- pair. My past 30 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshires only is sufficient guarantee for purity of breed, combined with up-to-date style and qualities; all cold-room bred, reared, and kept; all approval, cash or deposit; price list and particulars sent on receipt of stamp for postage: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

WINNING YORKS & STOCK BIRDS

Fanciers, now is chance to get what you require; giving up; I have finest collection in West of England; winners and stock birds: cocks 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 17/6, 20/-; hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; breeding Goldfinch, father 15 Mules, and mother, 10/6 pair; Siberian hen Bullfinch, laid 10 eggs, with cock Linnet, father of hybrids, 20/- pair; cock Goldfinch and hen Bullfinch, father and mother of hybrids, 20/- pair; this is chance of lifetime; don't miss it; week's approval with pleasure: Baker, Proprietor of Maltsters' Arms, Philip-st., Bedminster.

THERE'S MUCH

There is much to gain and nothing to lose by sending your order for Canaries direct to Miss Storey. The practical bird specialist. She has undoubtedly the finest collection ever seen in England. Yorkshire and Norwich Canaries of the best quality, bred from and directly related to noted winners, correct in type, tight in feather, sound in health, and in good breeding condition. Birds that will do you good service, and breed strong, healthy, typical youngsters for next season's showing. You have no need to purchase wasters that are almost useless, and breed nothing but wasters, for I offer you good quality, sound, typical birds, at half their value. The high quality of my birds is proved by the many thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from my customers, praising the superiority of my stock. Just you call and inspect this wonderful collection of high-class birds; it will delight you; or let me send you any of the following, carriage paid to your door, on seven days' approval, at my sole risk. I guarantee to give you every satisfaction. Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Hartz Rollers, champion songsters, cocks, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 8/-, 9/-; St. Andreasburg Rollers, the king of all singers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; illustrated list, 1d. All Canaries carriage paid, on approval: Miss E. L. Storey, Crowle, Doncaster.

is the only real safeguard against unscrupulous dealers. My Yorkshires, Norwich, Rollers, Borders, 10/- per pair. Deposit 6/- balance by instalments, Crests 12/6 pair, deposit 7/6, balance as others. Cocks, Norwich, Yorks, Rollers, Borders, 6/- 7/- 8/-, deposit 4/- balance by arrangement. Hens, Buff 3/- 3/6, Yellows 4/- 5/-; Cash only. EDGAR BROADBENT, "The Millhouse," 57, Lime Street, SHEFFIELD.

Amblers' Champion Yorkshires

Also Special for Best Yorkshire in Show.

Thus beating all other so-called champions. Don't be misled by bunkum, Ambler's Yorkshires are unbeatable, and the most reliable strain in the Fancy. See our winnings at leading shows for 30 years. We can still spare a few real gems. Pairs, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- and 60/-; matched to breed the biggest winners; single birds proportionate. These are wonderful type, feathered to perfection, and of the highest possible breed; cold-room bred; approval; satisfaction guaranteed.

138, WESTMINSTER ROAD, MORECAMBE.

C. MABEY,

Yorkshires; have a few hens left from his winners, from 7/6; stamp: 5, Anerley-st., Battersea.

CINNAMON MARKS

We still hold the largest stock of cinnamon marks in England. We have bred, won, and sold more winners during the last ten years than any other breeder of this variety of Yorkshire. These birds being our speciality, we have at present a grand stock of birds for disposal. Clear and marked, either matched in pairs or single birds in the best of condition; single birds from 10/-, pairs from 20/-. Write to us, and state your requirements. Stamp for reply to Victoria-st., Huddersfield.

MALLINSON & SON,

SHACKLETON'S CHAMPION YORKS.

Having won the Yorkshire challenge cup four out of five times competing, the amalgamation 25 guinea trophy, the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea trophy, the cinnamon-marked trophy, the Naylor challenge cup twice in succession, also twice championship for best cinnamon-marked, and three times championship for best Yorkshire in show Crystal Palace; my record of 28 1sts and special prizes in two successive years at Palace still stands unbeaten. I have bred more noted winners in a single season than some of the self-styled champions have bred in a lifetime. I do not buy 20 per cent. of my winners and advertise them as my own breeding. I breed my own champions, such as Paragon Perfection, thrice winner of championship for best Yorkshire in show, Crystal Palace, and scores of other prizes and specials; also Paragon Eclipse, twice winner at Palace and 50 1st and special prizes; also Paragon Victor, winner of 30 1sts and special prizes; other noted winners, too numerous to mention. I may mention that one client who had all his birds from me won 65 prizes and specials at six shows in the keenest competition; further comment would be superfluous. Having selected what I require for own use, I have for disposal some of the finest and most typical birds ever offered to the Fancy; for length, style, position, and quality of feather, they cannot be equalled; cocks, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- 30/-, 40/- upwards; hens, 7/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/-, 30/- upwards; pairs, 15/6, 17/6, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- upwards; all in the pink of condition; 3 days' approval, cash or deposit, stamp for reply: Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

GEO. & ALBERT BROWN,

ACKNOWLEDGED FOR GENUINE VALUE FOR MONEY.

No impositions whatever; we are commonly called by all leading exhibitors and working classes "The Straight Firm." The firm where you can hear your birds sing before buying; call and see for yourself, seeing is believing; the proof, the birds have to sing before you are allowed to purchase. Is that good enough for straight dealings? We offer this week in Yorkshire cocks, buffs, 7/6 each; yellows, 8/6; greens, 8/6; hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, each; matched pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- per pair; good, typical birds, no Dutch substitutes for the original whatever. You have tried the champion firms, now purchase from us, and compare our prices and birds; once served you will always patronise; 60 pairs sold weekly retail at the firm with a long life experience with birds, which cannot be denied. Fresh consignments every Thursday, 9.30 a.m.

A. Parker, E. Parker, and G. Mellingan. After the match we had a contest sing in the gaslight, which proved a success. Winners: 1st, W. Howard, 46; 2nd, T. Statham, 19.—A. Parker, Sec.

USE OUR PICTURE POSTCARDS

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The solicitors acting for Messrs. Preston and Flowers have made very considerable progress towards getting the case in order ready for the appeal to be heard, and we hope in a week or so's time to be in a position to make a definite statement as to the date (or thereabouts) on which the case will come up for hearing, and to give other interesting particulars.

The ninth list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday afternoon last is as follows: Per Mr. W. Riley Myers (collected at the great prize-distribution at Bradford on March 5), 15s.; Hull C.B.S., 10s. 6d.; Ashton-under-Lyne O.S., 5s.; Lancaster and District C.B.S., 3s. 4d.; Coxhoe C.B.S., 2s. 6d.; Hartlepools C.B.S., 2s. 6d.; per Mr. G. Reed (collected at Durham Linnet Singing Association contest), 2s. 3d.; Morley C.B.S., 1s. 6d.; Mr. J. Hinson (Cambridge), 1s.; and L. Burborough (London, S.W.), 1s. These amounts total £2 4s. 7d., and, together with the sums already acknowledged, bring the aggregate subscriptions received up to £59 12s. 10d. The acknowledgement of the King's Head Ramblers' Society, 7s. 6d. (in our issue of February 26), should have read, The King's Head (Leicester) British Bird and Mule. Club (incorporated with the King's Head Ramblers' Society, Leicester).

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

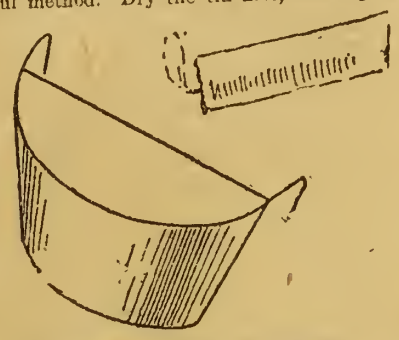
We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

GRIMSBY AND DIS. O.S.

At the monthly meeting held on February 28th, Mr. A. Towl presiding, it was decided to alter the club meeting nights to Thursday, instead of Monday as heretofore, to meet the convenience of members. The following gentlemen were elected to judge at the forthcoming nest feather shows: May 26th, Mr. W. Clews (Grimsby); June 25th, Mr. George Harland (Hull); July 21st, Mr. W. T. Pepper (Hull); and August 18th, Mr. Jesse Calam (Hull). It is to be hoped our friends will come forward with specials for competition at these shows. At our next monthly meeting, to be held on March 31st, it was decided that each member bring a written question appertaining to the Fancy, the whole of such questions to be placed in a hat and drawn out by each member present, who will endeavour to answer same, when a discussion will be taken thereon.—MOORE AND HARDING, Secs.

MORPETH AND DIS. C.B.S.



Monthly meeting held in the Temperance Hotel on March 4th, Mr. A. G. Marshall in the chair. A very fair number put in an appearance, and three new members were enrolled. The principal business was whether we should still belong to the Cage Bird Union, or sever our connection with that body. After serious consideration it was unanimously agreed that owing to the Union's unsatisfactory state of affairs as at present constituted (rendering it utterly useless to us as a society), we withdraw and run our next show on October 15th independently of the C.B.U. It was further decided to hold a first feather show on June 25th. Mr. Clark was appointed to look after the management of same, and as I shall not be free to undertake, at that time, any responsibility, Mr. J. Moore, a promising young fancier, was appointed secretary. It will be confined to members. We are still open to accept new members, and I shall be pleased to hear from anyone wishing to join. Will members who were not present please note change of meeting place—Temperance Hotel, Bridge-street?—E. COWLING, Hon. Sec.

Device for Temporarily Stopping Leaks.
Sent by Mr. W. Spencer.

I have found the following an easy way of stopping a crack in the corners of zinc or tin drinkers, if you suddenly find one leaks and do not have a spare one handy. It is a very useful method. Dry the tin first, then light a

A Novel Finch Steadying Cage.
Sent by Mr. C. Lees, 107, Monk Street, Derby.

Enclosed you will find a sketch of a steadying cage for Linnets and other Finches. I have had the same cage in use with success. First of all make a frame as shown in sketch; then get a piece of looking-glass for the back, an ordinary window glass for both ends, and a piece of wood for top. With this cage you have the advantage of the wood box cage, because when you place your bird in the cage the bird can see you no matter which way you go. You do not, therefore, drop on it too suddenly as you do in the case of the wooden box cage. Any fancier wishing to try one can do so, if he will deposit 2s. (with the fee, sixpence, in addition) with Editor, which will be returned when done with same, and sent home. These cages are not for sale. I think the sketch will give anyone an idea of same. The perch used is a spring one, fixed to the front of cage.—C. LEES.

WATFORD AND DIS. C.B.S.

The Annual Dinner.

The annual dinner has now become quite an institution with the local firms and societies, and not to be behind in the fashion, the Cage Bird Society, doubtless in pardonable elation after the success of their recent show, decided to organise such a pleasant social evening. Thus their first annual dinner came off recently in the Swan Inn, High Street, and was a most gratifying and encouraging success. The Dinner Committee, Messrs. R. J. Watts, P. Hedgeman, with Mr. W. Quantrell as hon. secretary, had all the arrangements efficiently carried out, and a most pleasant evening was spent. Mr. C. Watson presided over a large company. A select musical programme was discoursed by Messrs. Pycroft, Stuart, Leighton, Pearson, with Mr. P. C. Kluht as accompanist. The toast of "The Watford and District C.B.S." was proposed by Mr. J. Goodall and responded to by Mr. R. J. Pretty. The health of "The Chairman" was given by Mr. W. Quantrell, and that of "The Secretary and Treasurer" by Mr. E. T. Bailey. Mr. G. Swain proposed "The Sub-Committee," which was suitably responded to. At an interval the presentation of cups and medals took place. The Sears Challenge Cup went to Mr. R. J. Watts, and the Novice Challenge Cup (presented by Mr. Partridge) to Mr. F. Wright, with a gold medal to the previous holder, Mr. E. Wright. A medal presented by Mrs. Willison Ewans was carried off by Mr. T. Wright, and the Ramsden trophy by Mr. Buckingham. The cup presented by Mr. R. J. Pretty for best bird bred in the current year was awarded to Mr. Sear, and the Gleeson Challenge Cup to Mr. W. Quantrell, who also took the prize for gaining most points during the year. After this interesting ceremony another pretty function took place. To mark their appreciation of the work done by Mr. R. J. Pretty as chairman, and Mr. W. Quantrell as hon. sec., the members decided to prepare a surprise for them. This took the form of two illuminated addresses, richly mounted, expressing the recognition and appreciation of the services of these two officials on behalf of the Society. Amidst a scene of tremendous enthusiasm the presentations were made by the Chairman, who, as secretary of the West Herts F.A., paid a high tribute to both recipients, and incidentally referred with pleasure to the removal of any differences that might have arisen between what were once rival Associations. Messrs. Pretty and Quantrell were again loudly cheered on rising to respond. All the speeches to the toasts during the evening emphasised the great progress the Society had made, and the foremost and respected position it now occupied among similar societies within the London radius. A graceful compliment was paid to Mrs. Quantrell by having her name coupled and drunk with the toast of "The Secretary and Treasurer." This was in fitting recognition of her hospitality to the committee at their meetings at her house. The one address presented read as follows: "This address is presented to our Chairman, Mr. R. J. Pretty, by the members of the Watford and District Cage Bird Society as a token of esteem and of their appreciation of the valuable assistance which he has on all occasions rendered to the Society from its foundation to the present day. December 16th, 1909." Mr. Quantrell's address was couched in similar terms.

Wild Bird Life.

Concerning Nest Boxes.

Bird lovers who have good-sized gardens or orchards may induce many interesting birds to nest upon the premises by the simple device of supplying suitable nesting boxes for their accommodation. The most simple form is one made with a sloping roof, which is easily removable for the inspection of the interior; this may be covered with cork for the sake of ornamentation, but this exterior decoration is not absolutely necessary, as I do not think it is in any way an additional attraction to the feathered race. Of course, there is no nest box in existence that in the eyes of a bird is equal to a hole in an old tree; but hollow trees are scarce, that is, trees with the exact sized hollow required by the house-hunting Tit or Robin; and as many of our British birds nest in holes in trees and cliffs, there is generally pretty keen competition for choice sites. Our nest-boxes, therefore, should be made to take the place of the natural sites, and should be hung in positions sheltered from the roughest weather, and free from interference by vermin and cats.

The various species of Tits are generally the first to avail themselves of these boxes, and to prevent their being turned out by stronger rivals the entrances should be small—that is, too small for a Sparrow or Starling, but just large enough for the Tit. The size of the box is not of much consequence to a Tit; he will easily collect enough material to fill up a box of reasonable size, and once installed the owner may safely reckon upon his annual visit for nesting purposes. The familiar Wren will occasionally condescend to patronise an artificial nesting site, but is not satisfied with the roof supplied to the box, but will proceed to build a dome nest in the same manner as she would in the open. Sometimes the owner of a few boxes will be fortunate enough to get a visit from the handsome Wryneck, which will be heard in the neighbourhood some days before it is seen; but should it at length appear to favour the vicinity of any particular box, and this box is occupied the occupant must be bundled out neck and crop, or the box replaced by another; for Tits and other birds, however interesting, are somewhat common, and Wrynecks are rare and still more interesting. Of course, our nest boxes are frequently inspected and occupied by the common House Sparrow and Starling, but unless a brood of these latter are required for hand-rearing, they are not allowed to take up the quarters designed for others.

The Constant Daws.

Crows, Jackdaws, and Rooks evidently pair for life, for an observer may frequently notice signs of it, even in winter, when the 'Daws and Rooks flock. A pair of Jackdaws will often leave their fellows and visit the cliffs or tree where they nested the previous summer.

Coming Events.

In consequence of the mildness of the season many species are far advanced, and in fine condition. The Starlings are already hunting among the old trees for nesting sites, running in and out the knot holes, and inspecting suitable positions. The Rooks' nests have increased considerably during the last week or two, and one can frequently see them out in the open collecting sticks and other building material. They do not always carry it away at once, but handle it in a playful fashion, as though there was still plenty of time before spring. As for the Sparrows, as usual they are far in advance of all other species. They have been building for some time, and it is quite on the cards that Mrs. Sparrow is already incubating her first clutch.

Tits in the Garden.

C.C.C.—(1) I have hanging on one of the trees in our garden a cocoanut, and a few Tits have been at it I believe. Is there, in the spring, any likelihood of their nesting in it? (2) What I could see of them was that they had black heads, with white cheeks, and a brown and white striped back, with grey under. Would it be better to hang the cocoanut in the creeper on the wall, than leave it on the tree?

They were no doubt Tits, but it is doubtful if they will build in the shell. But you might give them the opportunity, and for that purpose I think it would be better to hang it against the wall, as they would be more likely to take to it there than in the tree. You could also place near it a box about eight inches high and four or five inches wide and deep; bore a hole one and a half inches in diameter, three inches from the top, and just below it place a small perch. Make the lid to slope and work on hinges, so that you are able to inspect the interior. The birds are very likely to take to this if it is placed in a suitable position and out of the reach of cats. You should also hang a piece of fat or suet close to it, to entice them to visit the spot.—H.N.

MENAI BRIDGE SHOW, Mar. 28, 1910, Cage Birds & Pigeons.

Clitheroe C.B.S. Draw

Winning Nos. 1st 9393, 2nd 3132, 3rd 2352, 4th 3879, 5th 5647, 6th 8373, 7th 2700, 8th 6278, 9th 7047, 10th 2749.

The Ardwick and District C.B.S. have fixed June 18th for their First Feather show, and December 3rd for the annual show, writes Mr. J. Spencer, the hon. secretary.

On Easter Monday, Mr. C. A. House will judge Bangor show throughout, writes Mr. J. O. Williams, particulars of which will be found in the advertisement columns. Good classification is given, and special in almost every class. We hope that North Wales fanciers will make a special effort to ensure this show being a success. We are pleased to understand that the Fancy in our neighbourhood is in a flourishing condition. Two novices, Mr. H. Jones and Mr. D. Walford, of Bangor, have both taken up Yorkshires (some well-known winners). That well-known fancier Mr. W. H. Williams (Llangoed) has taken up Norwich once more, with some of the right sort. Also Mr. W. R. Roberts has added a few of the same variety to his stock. We should like to see a few more Lizards and Scotch Fancies shown, also the Belgian and the Lancashire added to the list.

Twitterings.

Our First Feather show has been fixed for July 2nd, writes Mr. J. Shaddock, hon secretary, Coventry O.S.

Will show secretaries kindly send all communications in future to me, instead of to A. and H. Parker? writes Mr. Adam Parker, Nellfield Place, Head of Muir, Denny.

The Great Horton O.S. are holding two First Feather shows, the one on June 18th and the other on July 30th, besides shows on September 24th and December 10th. Schedules of these shows may be had of the secretaries, Messrs. Chubb and Worsnop, 227, Great Horton Road, Bradford.

In the death of our friend, Mr. J. E. Brotherton, we have sustained a great loss, writes Mr. H. Martin, hon. secretary, Shipley O.S. At the last meeting our members passed a vote of condolence, expressing their sincere sympathy with Mr. Brotherton's relatives.

The London and Counties O.S. Finch show will be held on April 2nd, with Mr. C. Prior as judge; our First Feather show on July 9th, judge, Mr. J. S. Clarke; and our annual show on November 11th and 12th. The rule book with arrangements for the year will be ready shortly. —W. GILBERT, hon. secretary.

We regret to hear of the indisposition of Mr. A. C. Brotherhood (Newport, Salop), who writes: I am confined to my bed with a severe attack of catarrh. I was far from well when judging Wellington show, and found some "teasers" of classes to get through. I have not been out of bed since I returned home.

To ensure birds getting into that high condition so essential to success in the breeding season, the "High Condition Food" and "Samsonic Tonic" of that noted firm, Messrs. Mackley Bros. (Aylsham Road Aviaries), Norwich, have attained a great reputation, and are two articles which can be thoroughly recommended.

The rendezvous for all London bird lovers today (Saturday, March 12th), from 2 till 9 p.m. is the City and Suburban British and Foreign Bird Show, comprising over 130 entries from England's noted exhibitors. These splendid specimens cannot fail to be a subject for absorbing discussion upon the finer exhibition points and correct artistic staging. The Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, Marylebone, is within five minutes' walk of Baker Street (Metropolitan), and Regent's Park (Bakerloo) stations, and 'buses pass the Baker Street corner of Paddington Street.—(ADVT.)

TWO SUPERB STANDARD WORKS.

"Our Canaries."

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th.

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

We have engaged Mr. H. W. Battye to judge at our open show on Octoher 7th and 8th, writes Mr. W. Howe, hon. secretary of the Wellingborough and Dis. C.B.S.

Kindly note that my address is 76, Hartington Terrace, having removed from Marlborough Street. I am continually having letters sent to the old address.—JAS. BARRASS, secretary, South Shields C.B.S.

Readers now thinking of their gardens should note the advertisers in our columns, who are offering exceedingly good value in seeds and plants, and they may order from these firms with every confidence, mentioning CAGE BIRDS when writing.

A handy "Fanciers' Handbook and Diary" has been published by Messrs. Symes and Co., Church Lane, Hornsey, London, N. It contains some useful recipes for foods, etc., information on bird-stuffing, etc.

A sample of the nesting moss which he is advertising in our columns has reached us from Mr. C. Barwell (Grendon). It is a very clean material, and looks as though it would prove very successful in use.

Our Table Show for pairs of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Hybrids, A.O.V., Novice, Single Bird, and Selling Class, writes Mr. F. Brown, sec. of the Crook Original C.B.S., has been fixed for March 19th.

The North London C.B.A.'s 1910 Manual is an exceedingly neat production, and includes, in addition to a list of the officers and the members (with their addresses), and the rules and regulations, a list of the fixtures for the year, which includes lectures on all branches of the Fancy, besides numerous "special events." The secretary is Mr. R. P. Harper, 26, Brighton Road, Stoke Newington, N.

Before the London and Provincial O.S., Mr. J. Robson will give a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead, at the "Raglan," on Thursday, March 17th, at 8.30 sharp, writes Mr. J. W. Ramsden, acting hon. secretary. All visitors heartily welcome.

Our Nest Feather show has been fixed for July 9th, and we are trying to get Mr. A. Brown (Gateshead) to place the cards, writes Mr. E. Woodhead, secretary of the Hartlepools C.B.S. There will be open classes for Yorkshires, Norwich and Linnets.

Mr. S. H. George (32, Fisher Street, Swansea), writes, that he has been appointed secretary of the Swansea and Dis. C.B. Society (with Mr. Fred Heal as joint secretary), and that all correspondence in connection with the society should in future be sent to the above address.

To save any slight misunderstanding, I wish to state that Mr. A. E. Rogers and myself dissolved partnership in November last (1909), and that in future the birds will be bred and exhibited by myself and in my name, as I have secured all of the valuable stock.—C. L. S. MAZZONI (East Dulwich, London, S.E.).

I called in at the Market Tavern on Saturday, writes Mr. John H. Jowett (Bradford), to see the Great Yorkshire distribution of prizes, and am sorry I happened to be a late caller. I took 3 or 4 private breeders just to let them witness this grand affair. It must have been an immense success indeed. I went prepared with a few wigs and several songs to give Mr. H. Hill a few rounds (in addition to the programme), but unfortunately the evening closed just after 10 (no doubt for the benefit of distant comers). The gathering was a sight to remember, and a credit to Bradford.

We hear from the secretary, Mr. Wynn, that there promises to be a magnificent display of birds at the City and Suburban Society's "British and Foreign Bird Show" being held to-day (Saturday). Mr. C. Prior judges. Further particulars will be found in the advertisement in these columns.

The catalogue issued by Mr. Enoch Tams, of Church Street, Longton, is full of good things for the fancier, and our readers would do well to consult its pages when making their purchases. Mr. Tams also states that he has on view the largest stock of Roller Canaries (arrived this week) that has ever entered the Potteries.

I have won the challenge cup (presented by Mr. F. Kelly, of Holly Court, Sheffield, to the Hoyland O.S. in 1905) outright, writes Mr. A. H. Waters (Wombwell Main, near Barnsley). I was successful in winning this cup four times in five years. The final contest was at Hoyland on February 19th, when Mr. W. H. Lindley, of Wombwell, placed the cards.

You can judge of my surprise when getting my CAGE BIRDS on Friday last to find on the front page a lifelike reproduction of the picture of my Goldie-Bullie. It may interest many of your readers to know that I have sold him to a well-known North Country exhibitor at a good figure. I wish your splendid paper every success.—ALF. SHELLAM (Cardiff).

Owing to the clashing of dates the annual show of the Dublin P., Cage Bird, and B.A. will be held on October 27th and 28th, and not on November 16th and 17th, as previously announced. I will, even at this early date, be pleased to hear from any fanciers wishing to come forward and guarantee classes in the cage bird or other sections.—J. GIBSON, sec.

Our show dates are as follows, writes Mr. R. P. Harper, hon. secretary of the North London C.B.A.: British and foreign bird show, March 16th; young stock show, June 25th; and the annual show, November 4th and 5th. We have been presented with a handsome challenge cup for most points, to be won three times, not necessarily in succession, and a smaller cup for runner-up, to be won outright.

OBITUARY.

Mr. JOSEPH CHISNALL.

I regret to have to inform you that my former show colleague, Mr. Joseph Chisnall, passed away after a few months' severe illness on March 5th, writes Mr. Chas. Houlton (St. Helens). It is now some 14 years ago since "Houlton and Chisnall" ceased to show birds, but no doubt many old fanciers well remember how successful they were on the show bench, and they will be sorry to learn that one more bird enthusiast has joined the great majority.

Mr. J. DALZIEL (Birkenhead).

It is with great regret, writes Mr. J. Richardson (Birkenhead), that I have to announce the sudden death of Mr. J. Dalziel, a fancier well known in Birkenhead and district. He was interred at Bromboro' Church on February 23rd. Mr. Harris and Mr. Porter represented the Birkenhead Society, and Mr. Parry the Chester Society. His death will be much regretted by the members, as he was very popular.

I must thank you for sending me the postcard giving me the good news that I had won first prize at the Crystal Palace Show with my Bullfinch hen. This is, I may say, my first attempt in England.—R. WATSON (Glasgow).

I wish to thank Mr. G. E. Weston for his kindness in explaining in CAGE BIRDS the mating problem I recently asked, writes Mr. F. George (Gosforth). I have received much good advice about British birds from the same gentleman at various times under different noms de plume. I always cut out anything useful and paste in a scrap book for further reference. I wish CAGE BIRDS every prosperity.

It is with the utmost satisfaction I have to record the new enthusiasm that has arisen in the society, writes Mr. Wm. Maltby, hon. secretary of the Bramley and District C.B.S.; and with the same spirit continuing the society will soon emerge from the gloom that has so persistently hung over it for the past season or two. There was a good attendance at our last meeting, and there would have been more but for the great Yorkshire prize distribution at Bradford.

I wish to thank your correspondents, Messrs. Wm. Todd and Edward Floyd, for the kind manner in which they answered my query, re "How to make and use egg cake," writes Mr. F. George (Gosforth). I am sure they are both useful recipes, and it is through the kindness of such gentlemen as these answering questions through the medium of CAGE BIRDS, that the path of the novice is made comparatively easy. Living in Northumberland myself, I shall be able to follow Mr. Floyd's suggestion easily enough, as the time is drawing close for the "bairns" to get their "peast eggs," which they are looking forward to.

The Southern Norwich P.C.

The Southern Norwich Plainhead Club's distribution of prizes will, we are informed, take place at "The Raglan," on March 17th, the night Mr. Robson is giving his lecture on the Norwich Plainhead.

The Southern Yorkshire C.C.

The annual meeting of the S.Y.C.C. will be held at the Feathers Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, W., on March 23rd, at 7.30 p.m. The novice teapot at Southend was won by Mr. Franks, and the medal by Mr. Creamer. Mr. Ramsden's cruet was won by Mr. Whittome, not Mr. Angeaur, as previously announced.—J. W. RENNIE, hon. secretary, Junction Hotel, Andover.

Helpful Hints to Beginners in Canary Breeding.

By M. HOPPER.

In taking up cage bird keeping as a hobby there are a few things which ought to be taken into consideration, and which when dealt with will greatly lessen the difficulties at the beginning. The first question is to decide what variety takes your fancy. Having decided this point, the next is how many pairs to have. This must be governed by the accommodation at the beginner's disposal; also by the amount of time he will be able to give to his hobby. Overcrowding is a step in the wrong direction, and would in all probability bring about early disasters. There is also the question of how far the pocket will go. But it is advisable to obtain a few good specimens rather than crowd the space at one's disposal with cheap, undesirable stock.

Obtaining One's Stock.

Another question concerns how to go about obtaining the stock. The best way is undoubtedly to go to some prominent fancier in your district, one whose reputation can be relied on; tell him what you want, and what you are prepared to pay for the birds; and be guided by him in the selection of what you require.

Should you be unable to obtain what you want in this way, you will find plenty advertised in the columns of CAGE BIRDS. Above all be sure and see that the birds you buy are healthy and sound, as it is a waste of time and money to start off with unhealthy stock. It is not advisable to go to the cheapest market; the main object is to get full value for your money.

It is important to pay special attention to cages and appliances. If the new recruit to the Fancy be a handy man he will be able to furnish himself with what he will require in the way of cages, seed hoppers, etc. He may also at little cost obtain what he requires through the advertisement columns of CAGE BIRDS.

Where to Keep Your Birds.

Having purchased your stock birds and cages, you have next to settle the question as to what part of the premises you intend to carry on operations in—and this is not always an easy matter to settle. Of course, if there be a spare room at your disposal you are "in clover"; but this is a luxury which is not always met with in the cottager's home. Where a spare room is not at your disposal you must make the best arrangements you can. Select the part of the house where there will be no disturbance for the birds and where they will be free from draughts and not too warm.

I would also advise you to join some cage bird society, and keep in touch with older fanciers; also visit any show that may be handy, and as many fanciers' rooms as possible; you will pick up much valuable information in this way which you will find of great assistance, and it will also make your hobby more interesting.

Feeding and Management of Stock.

There is also the important question of the feeding and managing of one's stock. First obtain and give regularly the best Spanish Canary seed, which can be bought in bulk or from a local seed merchant. A teaspoonful of hemp seed can be added now and again, also a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week during winter. Give no green food, as it is not suitable owing to the frost. A slice of apple or a little boiled carrot placed between the wires, also some grated raw carrot mixed with bread crumbs, may be given now and again during the winter months, in place of green food.

Now and again a little bread and milk may be given with advantage, made as follows: place what bread is required into a pot, pour on boiling milk, and after the bread has been well scalded pour off the milk, and when the bread is cold serve to the birds with a sprinkling of sugar on the top. It is best to give a little egg food now and again during winter, as it will help to keep the birds in good condition; and this is important, as those which have been in good condition during the winter give the best results during the breeding season.

On no account over-feed; this is almost as bad as under-feeding, bringing the birds on too soon or causing them to be too fat, which is not a desirable thing and very often upsets the whole breeding season.

Keep a nice supply of good sharp grit in the cage. Some fanciers give it in tins or pots, covering the bottom of the cages with pine saw-dust; others use grit. A piece of cuttlefish bone should also be placed between the wires for the birds to pick at. A show-cage should also be kept, and the birds run into it now and again; this will help to steady them and get them used to their attendant.

When the Breeding Season Arrives.

As the breeding season comes on special attention must be given to stock and appliances. Cleanliness is of the greatest importance, and all cages, seed hoppers, and perches should be thoroughly washed, and where needed painted or whitewashed, and all repairs seen to and put into order.

A little extra feeding of stock will be required; hemp may be given more freely, also a pinch of maw seed and a teaspoonful of egg food given twice a week. This will depend on the condition of the birds; some will naturally come into condition on little or no extra feed, and others will be a little backward and will require more liberal diet. Where a bird seems backward in condition egg food can be given more often, and a little Parrish's Chemical Food mixed with the egg food. Also now and again add a little to the drinking water (one teaspoonful of chemical food to two tablespoonfuls of water).

The time for pairing, should the weather be suitable and the stock in condition, should not be earlier than the middle of March, so if all conditions be favourable a start can now be made. All breeding cages ought to be fitted with wire slides, also a blank slide, and if possible a double set of sand trays, having one set always clean and ready to take the place of those in use. Also have a few extra perches.

Being satisfied which of the stock is most forward in condition, run them in the breeding cages with wire slides for a day or two. Give them a little summer rape seed and some egg food, also hemp as soon as they show signs of pairing; draw out the slide, and run them together; and place in the cage some nest pans and some nesting materials. Fix all perches securely, and see that they are so fixed that the droppings do not fall into the nest, as this is the cause of a good many eggs not hatching, as when the nest gets fouled the eggs get fixed to the nesting materials and so become broken, or the hen is unable to turn them. It is best to have a few spare nest-pans lined with moss or swansdown, removing the one that has been in use during the time the birds have been paired up, and substituting the clean one when the hen is about to lay.

When the hen commences to lay, it is best to take away the eggs as they are laid, and have a box partly filled with bran to place the eggs into. Then return them in a clean nest-pan the evening she has laid her third egg.

When setting the hen, it is a practice with a great many to shut off the cock bird, and leave the hen to look after herself. Some don't. Personally I have had good results both ways; also the reverse. The egg food should now be discontinued, and the hen supplied with plain Canary seed. Incubation lasts from thirteen to fourteen days. On the sixth or seventh day you may peep at the eggs. If you hold the eggs to the light it will be seen whether they are fertile or not; those which are light are unfertile, and those which are dark are fertile.

Shortly before the eggs are due to hatch a little egg food must be given to the hen, and after the young have made their appearance egg food must be given regularly and hemp and summer rape seeds added to the Canary seed. When the young are about three or four days old dandelion leaves can be given, or watercress, chickweed, or lettuce, but I prefer young shoots of dandelion. If watercress be given, be careful to avoid all thick stems, as they are very juicy and may set up diarrhœa. When the young are about seven or eight days old they should be put into a clean nest. When about three weeks old the young will be ready to leave the nest, and will be thinking of having a look round. Be careful to see that the water holes in your cages are not too big, or you may find one of the young will venture out on the floor

The Hen's Perverted Fancy.

It is about this time that trouble often begins; the hen may take a fancy to some of the plumage of the young, not at all an uncommon thing, as the hen will be thinking about the making of her second nest. Many birds seem to prefer the soft downy feathers of their offspring to any other material. It is very difficult to overcome this plucking without shutting off the young with the wire slide, and letting the hen feed them through the wires. The cock can also be run through to the hen, and he will assist her to feed them.

When the young are about thirty days old they may be taken from the parents and put into a flight cage, and the egg food given with a pot of crushed hemp. Also now and again give a pot of scalded summer rape mixed with bread crumbs. A pot with Canary seed can also be given, but the young will not be able to crack sufficient seed until they are six weeks old, and then it will be necessary to continue to give a little egg food daily. But as they get older and stronger they must be weaned off the egg food, which must only be given now and again. It will also be found very beneficial to give scalded bread and milk. This I have found very good for young about this time.

It is not wise to give green food until the young are through the moult. It will happen occasionally that one of the young may be found puffed up and in a bad way in the bottom of the cage, and will require immediate attention. Catch the bird, blow up the feathers, and should the bowels be swollen and inflamed, place the little patient in a separate cage by itself. Then put a pinch of Epsom salts in the drinking water and take away all seed and give a diet of bread and milk, changing the water within twenty-four hours. Continue the bread and milk for about another day, giving a little scalded rape on the third day and replace the Canary seed. On no account give egg food until the bird is quite well.

Moulting Time.

The next important stage is the moult, and by now a few possible Palace "cracks" will have been spotted. These must be separated off for special attention, more so if the variety selected requires colour feeding. The young begin the moult when from eight to twelve weeks old. It will be advisable to call in an old fancier and get his opinion, but on no account be disheartened if his views are not quite the same as your own with regard to his champions, as they are not found in every nest, only coming up here and there. He will be able to give you a few wrinkles touching on the moult, how to get the birds through and up into form.

Canary Breeding for Beginners

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.
Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

All the details of bird-breeding explained, while it shows the way out of all difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS. 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to mon't the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. O our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Batty (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild birds of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

Some Interesting Canary Problems Considered.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

The Eternal Egg Question.

"Is there any substitute for egg that is just as beneficial in rearing, and cheaper than eggs?"

This question has become fairly common all through the breeding season, yet, curiously enough, it is but few who seek this knowledge from a hygienic point of view in order to avoid the septic risks attendant upon the use of egg. It is a most difficult subject to deal with to the welfare and satisfaction of all classes of fanciers. I am fully prepared to admit the tremendous risks which physiology teaches are attached to the use of eggs as food for rearing young birds, on account of the great encouragement it affords to the growth and development of the bacilli, and I know that these give rise to that most common, and at times fatal, disease known as septic fever. But I am forced to admit, too, that in real practice I know of nothing which I can conscientiously say can take its place, be generally employed in its stead, and give equally good results all round.

Let me not be misunderstood. Since eggs have been tried, found guilty, and sentenced by scientific investigators, many substitutes have been employed, to take the place of the egg, but even now the use of such substitutes in a general way is still very much in the experimental stage, and although we have records of birds reared and kept without the use of the least amount of egg in their diet, such instances are comparatively very few, and if I am not mistaken relate mostly to a fairly hardy and robust class of bird. If I am wrong in this surmise I am open to correction, but I cannot call to mind any single case of high-class exhibition Canaries being reared on the new plan, if I may so term it. Doubtless I may be told that what is physiologically good for one strain or variety is good for all. So far, correct; I will not attempt to quarrel with the assertion. But on the principle that practice is worth far more than precept, I must have proof of the results of a much more general adoption of substitutes for rearing really high-class exhibition specimens of, say, such varieties as Crests, Belgians, Scotch Fancies, Yorkshires, or Cinnamons, before I can honestly advise beginners to pin their faith to them. Experiments on a larger scale are wanted in this direction, but the value of high-class stock combined with fanciers' unbounded faith in the old well-tried method, is a serious obstacle to their being carried out. It is one thing to launch out in experiments on an unknown and untried method with birds worth a few shillings, or, perhaps, a sovereign, per pair, but quite another to do the same thing with birds worth as many pounds as the former were worth shillings. For my own part and to my regret I feel compelled to postpone such experiments until some public-spirited millionaire rises up to finance the undertaking.

Substitutes for Experiment.

As I have frequently pointed out, in making use of any kind of substitute for the usual egg food, one of the chief difficulties to be encountered is the old birds' refusal to take kindly to the new food, and when this is offered for the first time (when the breeding season is in full swing) the chances are greatly in favour of the parents absolutely refusing to give it to the youngsters. For this reason it is most important that the birds should be accustomed to the new food some time before the breeding season commences.

An insectile mixture, invented, I believe, by the worthy "leader of the opposition" (consisting of a mixture of crushed unsweetened biscuit, ants' eggs, and dried flies, in equal parts) should occupy first place. This mixture should be given dry, or at most very slightly moistened with a drop or two of moisture. To this may be added a little soaked rape seed in a separate vessel, in addition to the usual dict of dry seeds and a liberal supply of green food.

Next to this I would place scalded puppy biscuits, preferably those without meat, but cod liver oil as an ingredient need not be objected to. This substitute has been very often used, and with much success, so that it may truly be said to have had a better trial than any other method totally devoid of egg.

Then there should be no reason whatever why a mixture consisting simply of crushed biscuits either plain or sweetened, but without flavouring essences, made just crumbly moist by the addition of a little soaked rape seed to add somewhat to its palatability from the birds' point of view should not prove an unqualified success as a pabulum for rearing young birds. Similarly, in theory, at least, bread scalded in milk and then reduced to a crumbly consistency by the addition of a sufficient quantity of biscuit meal, or a mixture of this, and game and chicken meals, as used for poultry feeding, should form an excellent and wholesome food for rearing Canaries.

Most other substitutes which one comes across are such in name only, as they usually contain a greater or less proportion of egg in a cooked state used in the manufacture. Crushed sponge cake, for example, which is almost if not quite as much liked by the birds as any form of egg food, is, in fact, composed very largely of eggs and sugar. Eggs also enter largely into the composition of Madiera cake, and practically all the biscuit foods which are offered as substitutes for egg food.

Step by Step.

Finally, before leaving this question I would repeat the caution frequently given: do not go "the whole hog," nor put all your eggs, figuratively, into one basket, when you wish to enter upon experiments of this kind. Honest experiment in breaking up new ground I admire and applaud but let it be undertaken in the true spirit of experiment for its own sake, and proceed cautiously, as one would in a new and strange country, opening up the ground step by step, and being sure of every foot as one proceeds. Do not dream of commencing these experiments with the whole of your stock at once, unless indeed you have already watched the result of your proposed new method worked out on some other stock. Far better set apart a certain proportion of your total stock—say a quarter, or a third, of your birds—for the new treatment, and keep the whole of the stock under precisely similar conditions and management save only that the selected pairs are given only the chosen substitute for egg food, while the remainder of the stock have the usual supply of egg food. Then by comparison of the results of the two sections at the close of the season one may be guided best how and in what direction to continue the experiments. Then, if egg feeding is found to possess no advantage over the no-egg system, do not fail to put the fact on record for posterity to benefit by your work—and bless you.

A Working-man Fancier's Mules.

His Breeding Experiences and Methods.

By W. J. STAGG.

I hope this account of my experiences in the Fancy will be read by those for whom I intend it; I mean those who do not know there is a way by which to become a successful keeper and breeder of Canaries and Mules, no matter how big a "mug" one may be (like I was when I first started, in 1907, to keep birds). I did not know the difference between a Canary and a Sparrow, as I might put it; but thanks to CAGE BIRDS I know a lot more now about Canaries and wild birds.

Success at the First Venture.

I am writing this to show how I learnt to keep birds, and also to breed Goldfinch and Linnet Mules at the first try. I had my knowledge by reading CAGE BIRDS, and buying two books from the Manager (one was "Canary Breeding for Beginners," and the other "British Bird Manual (Hardbills)." I did not know any breeder whom I could get advice from, and all I know I owe to CAGE BIRDS. So, my readers, you will see you can be a breeder, even if, like myself, you do not know a kind fancier who will give you a little help.

It was in 1909 that I made up my mind to have a try to breed Goldfinch and Linnet Mules. I put up one pair of Norwich Canaries, one Goldfinch and hen Canary, and one Linnet and hen Canary in double-breeders just after Christmas (1908), with a wired slide between them. I left them like this until the hens showed signs of wanting to nest; then I let them go together. I put the nest-pan in, and stuff for them to make the nest with. I removed the eggs as they were laid, putting crock one ones in their places until the third egg was laid. I then started the hens to sit, removing the cocks and leaving the hens to sit the eggs and hatch and rear the young themselves. I let each hen have two nests, after which I broke up my breeding pairs, so that I had six nests in all. Two of the nests were clear eggs and four good ones—one with three Canaries, one with three Linnet-Mules, and two with Goldfinch-Mules. I had three young in each nest, making a total of twelve young birds.

This, I think, was not bad for my first start, and to make things better, three of the Goldfinch-Mules were light ones, but were hens; the cocks were all dark ones. The Linnet-Mules were two cocks and one hen, all dark. The Canaries were one cock and two hens. My Muling hens were clear yellow, with the Goldie and clear buff with the Linnet, and the Canaries were a pair of Cinnamons (yellow cock and buff hen).

Now, I had to buy the Canary through the sale columns of CAGE BIRDS on the deposit system; this is the best thing anyone can do who does not know with whom he is dealing; you see then what you are getting for your money. The Finches I bought from a dealer close to me, seeing his advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. I should like to say that neither the Goldie nor the Linnet was house-moulted, but wild caught, the Goldie being full coloured, and the Linnet red-breasted and red-headed. They were bought in November, 1908.

Now, you will want to know how I knew when the birds were in breeding condition. Well, out came "Canary Breeding for Beginners"; this told me about all the signs of the Canary's wanting to nest. Then off went a letter to Mr. Weston, of CAGE BIRDS, to tell me about the Finches, and all I wanted to know about Mule breeding.

The Method of Feeding.

Here is my way of feeding before pairing up: For the Canaries, plain canary seed; for the Finches, one part each of hemp, canary, linseed, and teazle. Then when pairing I added one part rape to the Canaries' diet, and started giving the tit-bits to the Finches recommended in the "British Bird Manual." Then when they were paired, I added a special make of egg and bisenit to their diet three times a week for the cocks and twice for the hens. They were fed like this till the hens laid. The reason I used the egg food was that I had very little spare time, and could not find the time to make egg and bread-crumb. I used this food throughout the season, and had good results from it. Then when the hens had laid their third eggs, and I started them sitting, I stopped the egg food until one day before the eggs were due to hatch out. Then I gave the egg food again until the young were four days old. I gave them a little soaked rape, about half a teaspoonful to two teaspoonfuls of egg food. This is all they had until the young were six days old. After this I gave green stuff, viz., watercress, giving them a spray of it each day until the young left the nest. Then I got them off this and the egg food at the same time by adding crushed seeds to the egg food, and seed (not crushed) in the seed pot until the young knew how to crack the seed for themselves. Then I took them out of that cage and put them into another and let the cock and hen start again. I almost forgot to state that I give watercress to all my birds once a week until they are paired; then I give it three times a week until they commence to sit, and if the birds are backward I give a little dandelion leaf in between. I might say it was the last week in April that the first hen laid, and the first week in July, when the last nest of young left the nest; so you see that if I was a little behind I was well rewarded.

Now, the cages I made myself out of boxes I bought, each being made box pattern—36in. long, 16in. high, and 11in. back to front; they were divided in the centre for wire and wooden slides. The nest-pans were earthenware-lined, and were hung between the perches facing the cage doors. The egg dishes were crock, as also were the finger drawers for tit-bits.

So don't let anyone think that this hobby is a dear one because of one's having to spend a lot of money to buy birds, cages, seeds, etc., for it is not. If you get good, healthy birds to start with, right seeds to give them, and also clean the cages for them, it will surprise you when you come to see how little you have spent, for the pleasure and enjoyment you get out of the birds and the hobby.

A VISIT TO SOME MIDLAND AVIARIES.

Lecture delivered recently by Mr. H. J. L. Williams before the Hartlepools C.B.S.

The above was the subject of a most interesting lecture given to the members of the Hartlepools C.B.S. by Mr. H. J. L. Williams. Owing to severe illness, it was necessary last summer for Mr. Williams to take a holiday, and in answer to a par in CAGE BIRDS "Twitterings" he had numerous invitations from the most prominent exhibitors in the Midlands. Making Alfreton his centre, he had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of such fanciers as Messrs. Vardy, Mitchell, Jackson Bros., Smedley, Adnitt and Driver, Messrs. Norwood Bros., and others. Messrs. Jackson Bros. were found most courteous, and the aviary of the one and the rooms of the other were visited, and the stock found in splendid condition. The miniature fountain in the former was quite novel. A cock Bullie was in fine form and wonderfully tame, as not only would it feed from the hand, but it would run daintily up the owner's arm and take the kernel of a sunflower from his tongue. Not much cruelty in the keeping of that bird! It was "protected" with most loving care.

The rooms of Mr. Vardy were a real treat, and a most interesting conversation turned on a pair that were put up for double-buffing. Never had the visitor seen such birds—perfect in condition, feather, type, and quality; they made a picture. The owner stated that the hens produced from such mating the following season would be paired to yell. cocks, and the offspring would turn out 80 per cent. yellows.

In every room visited, green blood predominated, and the result was high colour and splendid quality. The evolution from the old type of bird with strong, wiry feather, long body, flights and tail, to the satin-like coats of Mr. Vardy's stock was most clearly demonstrated in every case. The present-day standard was fixed in every bird. At Messrs. Norwood Bros.' a magnificent collection of crests and crestbreds were on view, and the lecturer was favoured to an unusual extent, inasmuch as they make it an almost invariable rule never to allow visitors in their rooms when arrangements had been completed for the breeding season.

Mr. Butler was called upon, and here was found the magnificent specimen that stood first in the unfligbted yell. class at Nottingham. There was not a large number in his rooms, but all were real good ones. The derelict strain of the once-famous stud of the late Mr. Simms was seen, and it was regrettable that such valuable materials should be allowed to remain dormant. From this stud two birds were at one time sold for £40.

Mr. Marshall (Mr. Vardy's late partner) was paid a visit, and again the same high standard was found; and a most fitting climax to a grand holiday was in the visit to Messrs. Adnitt and Driver. Theirs is not an attic merely. The front parlour is used, and the lecturer believed that if the house had contained a better room the birds would have had it. What about the missus? Why, she is a fancier, and a fancier's wife, and that explains everything. Whilst going over the stock Mr. Driver called in. There was a splendid collection of Norwich. The name of Messrs. Adnitt and Driver is a household word in the Fancy, and after 20 years running in double harness, they were not in the least lukewarm.

The kindness received on all hands was overwhelming, and if the cranks and faddists could have been in the lecturer's company during that tour, they would have been converted to at least one thing, viz., that in every house visited there was perfect harmony among the inmates, without exception scrupulous cleanliness; and more than one case could be cited where the tending of beautiful birds in their homes had at least brought a ray of sunshine in their lives, which would otherwise have passed them by.

Mr. Woodhead moved, and Mr. Pillar seconded, a voto of thanks to the lecturer; and Mr. Williams, in responding, stated that the notes made while away had been mislaid, otherwise he would have been able to give more details.—E. WOODHEAD, hon. secretary.

At the last table show of the season, a large number of members and friends were present. The majority of the birds were well-known winners in open competition; which has made competition so keen that three of the competitors had equal numbers of points, and had to ballot for their position in the final list of specials, which was one of the best ever given in the district for this kiud of show. BORDER CITY (Carlisle) O.S.

Second annual pair show held at headquarters, on February 24th. Forty-seven cages were put before the judges, Messrs. J. Dolan and G. Davidson, and their decisions gave entire satisfaction. The premier sections were Norwich and Borders, both containing some grand pairs, whose progeny should be heard of later. The Mule and Hybrid pairs were forward in goodly numbers, and were hard to place for quality. The British and Foreign birds did not come up to expectations, but what was shown was good. All the birds were staged in fine time, and we had many visitors.

NOTTINGHAM (Permanent) O.S.

The open table show held on February 26th was a decided success, a large number of fanciers being present. The entries in the British bird class were a record for Nottingham, no less than thirty facing the judge. The Goldfinch was first favourite, no fewer than six being staged, all of them first-rate specimens. Some grand Bullies were also on view, with a miscellaneous collection of Crossbills, Larks, Yellowhammers, etc. With such a large entry, and considering that judging had to be undertaken by gaslight, the placing of the awards was no light task. The entries in the Crest aud Norwich stock pair classes were a little below expectations, but the proximity of the breeding season no doubt accounted for this. However, the quality was of the highest grade. The three special prizes (consisting of a plated teapot, clock, knives and forks, respectively), were won by Miss Scattergood, and Messrs. Holmes and Hill. Mr. T. Barker kindly judged, and great credit is due to him for the way in which he performed his difficult task.

CREST STOCK PAIRS: 1, Wood, grand pair, well matched; 2, Holmes, pair of Greens, beautiful specimens; 3, Bowers, fine pair, close up; vhc, Bowers; hc, Wood. NOR. STOCK: Some of the finest specimens ever seen on the show bench; 1, 2, 3, Hill, 1st yell. mkd. ck., cl. buff hen, good type and quality; 2nd cl. yell. ck., huff tkd. hen, close up; 3rd cl. buff ck., cl. yellow hen, fine pair; vhc, hc, c, Smedley, three grand pairs. BRIT: 1, Miss Scattergood, Goldfinch, grand specimen, perfect markings, shown in beautiful condition, credit to the owner; 2, Wood, Chaffinch, large bird, typical specimens; 3, Harrison, well known Blackbird; 4, Stopper, Starling, nicely spangled, beautiful polish; vhc, Nuttall Bros., Bullfinch, first-rate; c, Goode, Bramblefinch, typical specimen.—J. WALMSLEY, sec.

WEST BROMWICH & DIS. C.B.S.

A large number of visitors were present at the Dartmouth Arms Hotel on March 1st, it being the third annual pair and British bird show of this very flourishing society, and it must be voted a huge success. The birds were of exceptional merit, and there were some well-known winners. It being so near to the breeding season the committee did not expect such a large entry, aud tho members are to be complimented on the splendid show. No charge was made for admission, and fanciers from the surrounding districts turned up in full force. Sixteen classes were provided, all sections being well watered for. The entries were a great surprise to the esteemed secretaries, Messrs. Jennings and Viles, who worked like Trojans. Norwich and Crests were very good, and came up in strong force; the three classes contained about 40 birds. The Hybrid and Mule classes received a very fine entry, including a Greenie-Bullie, a Linnet-Bullie, a Redpoll-Canary, and a Siskin-Canary. There was also a nice collection of British birds, Mr. Tonks taking all the prizes in the Hardbills and Mr. Capewell those in the Softbills. The classes for novices did not come up to expectations, but the birds were nicely shown. The special given by Mr. Green for best colour-fed bird was won by Mr. Cooper. Mr. Joseph Jones (Dudley) judged, and his awards were well received.

NOR. YELL. CK., BUFF HEN: 1, H. C. Cooper, leaders nice pair, should produce some good birds, the ck. being the pick of the two; 2, Beck, hen a little on the small side, good pair though; 3, Viles, nice pair; vhc, Key. B. CK. AND Y. BRIT., NOVICE: 1, Taylor.

GLASGOW & WESTERN COUNTIES N.M.B. AND F.B.C.

Usual monthly meeting, held in the Good Templars Hall, Ingram Street, Glasgow, Mr. J. Ramsay presiding over a good attendance. The rules were the first business. Mr. Pettigrew moved that they remain as they are, which was carried. Two new members were enrolled, viz., Messrs. J. Liddell and J. Mann. The classes for our next show were settled, viz., Goldfinch British, Goldfinch Foreign, Linnet, and Greenfinch. It was carried that we have a judging competition on one class at next meeting. The chairman asked for specials for pair show, when the following gentlemen responded:—Messrs. Pettigrew 3/6, A. Malcolmson 2/6, W. Munro 2/6, J. Reid 2/6, A. McInnes 2/6, A. Roulstone 2/6, C. Small 2/6. The judges appointed were Messrs. A. McInnes, D. Johnstone, and J. Liddell.

WATFORD C.B.S.

A capital little show was that of the Watford C.B.S., which was held in the Victoria Schools on March 5th. The quality in the Canary section was quite the best we have seen at Watford, and with one or two exceptions the same could be said about the British section. In champion Norwich Plainheads, Mr. Buckingham won with a splendidly-matched pair, but he was closely pressed by a rare-shaped pair shown by Mr. Goodall. The winners secured the special for the best pair in the Canary section. The novices were a strong lot, and very little divided the exhibits of Messrs. Groves and Swain, each of which were most typical. In the Yorkshire, which were a great advance upon anything we have seen at this society's fixture, Mr. Gilbert's novice winners beat Mr. Buckingham's champions. In the Muling section the special fell to Mr. Quantrell, who staged a magnificent Greenie-Bullie pair, and the same gentleman led the way in the British Hybrid class, with a lovely Goldie-Greenie pair. Amongst the British birds, Mr. Quantrell had quite a field day, winning the premier ticket in every class except one. The manner in which this enthusiastic fancier staged his birds was simply splendid. The veteran Johnnie Goodall captured the Linnet class with a nicely-marked, good-coloured bird. Mr. Watts, as usual, took the cream in the Foreigners. The birds were nicely staged, and all their wants attended to by Messrs. Goodall, Watts, Shirley, and Wombwell. Mr. Quantrell, as secretary, was, as usual, in rare form. Mr. C. A. House judged.

WALKDEN AND DIS. C.B.S.

Pair show, held March 1st, in the I.L.P. Rooms, Cecil Street, when a good number of birds turned up. Some very good pairs were staged. We had a large number of spectators, and among them were fanciers from Bolton, and a couple of local gentlemen, who promised to be patrons. Mr. Alex. Donnelly (Swinton) judged, and his awards gave great satisfaction.

CAN.: 1, Howard, pair of Yorks.; 2, 3, Gaskell Bros., Nor.; 4, F. Tate. MULING PAIRS: 1, Multineux, Goldfinch and Can.; 2, Gaskell Bros., Greenfinch and Can.; 3, Yates, Linnet and Can.—HENRY HOWARD, Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Pair show, held 5th March, at Lockharts. There was a very good attendance of both members and visitors, and during the judging the following three gentlemen were made members: Messrs. J. Sykes, A. Rhodes, and J. Crossley. Forty-nine pairs were shown in five classes. Mr. F. Farrar, our vice-chairman, placed the cards, his awards meeting with general approval. Most points specials were won by Mr. J. McDade, 18 points; and Mr. W. A. Wilson, 16 points.

WELLINGTON (Salop).

The Wellington (Salop) P.P. and C.B.S. Show was held in the Town Hall on March 3rd and 4th. The room in which it was held is a splendid one for the purpose, being spacious, well lighted, and free from draughts. The entry was a splendid one, averaging about fifteen per class, which must have been very gratifying to the executive for the first venture. And not only was the entry a good one numerically, but every class was simply teeming with quality. Many Palace birds put in an appearance, and some had to be content with commendation cards. The Mule or Hybrid class had no fewer than 21 entries, and not a bad one among them—three Canary-Bullies, four Goldie-Bullies, nine topping light Goldie-Canaries, most of them big winners, one Bramble-Chaffinch, and the remainder good dark Goldie-Canaries. No doubt the splendid solid silver cup and gold medal to be won outright were an immense attraction. The cup winner turned up at the head of the Mule or Hybrid class—a delightful specimen of the Canary-Bullie persuasion, belonging to Mr. J. M. Walsh. The gold medal for best bird other than cup winner was secured by Mr. Davidson's charming Waxwing, after a good fight with Mr. Andrews' Goldie-Bullie. The management deserve the highest congratulation upon the success of their initial show, it being admitted on all hands as the finest ever seen in these parts; indeed, it does not fall to the lot of many provincial shows to be favoured with the presence of four Canary-Bullies, not to speak of other rare and most delightful exhibits. They were splendidly staged on the three-tier system, and were well attended to by a capable body of stewards, consisting of Messrs. Callear, Campbell, Potter, and Edwards. The society is very fortunate in having such a man as Mr. Geo. Hitchman to fill the post of secretary; he is a thorough worker, and richly deserves the success achieved under most trying circumstances, having had the misfortune to get his foot severely crushed some weeks ago; but he gallantly stuck to his post on both days, with the aid of crutches. Mr. A. C. Brotherhood made the awards, and little fault was found with his selections.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The third and last table show of the season of Muling pairs was held March 1st, at Onward Hall, Ashton Old Road. Mr. A. G. Smith (Moss Side) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. A discussion was held on the awards, and Mr. Smith replied to several questions. A presentation to the secretary's wife, Mrs. Spencer, of a beautiful umbrella, was made by the members in recognition of the secretary's successful management of the first annual show. Dr. Kinlon handed this to Mrs. Spencer with a few remarks. Mr. Spencer thanked the members on his wife's behalf. Result of show:—1, 3, Downing; 2, vhc, Fryer; 4, Simpson; hc, Fulcher. —J. COULSON.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Usual fortnightly meeting, held at Boar's Head Hotel, a good number of members being present. A table show of Norwich and Yorkshires was held for amateurs only. Mr. F. W. Nelson judged, and gave every satisfaction. Some very nice birds were staged, and Mr. Nelson spoke very highly of Mr. T. Mason's Yorkshire hen and unflighted Yorkshire, also of Mr. Clough's unflighted yellow Norwich. Mr. T. Mason won a very nice egg stand, scoring 40 points; Mr. R. Clough, a gold centre medal, 35 points; Mr. J. Lee third with 27 points. Both the above prizes were given by the president, Mr. J. E. Davies.

DONCASTER AND DIS. C.B.S.

The second members' show was held on February 26th in the Victoria Rooms, where over 60 birds were staged, and were well patronised by the public. This new society is making good progress in the hands of Mr. Bescoby, the secretary, and his energetic committee. Some excellent specimens were shown in the Yorkshire, Norwich and British sections. Mr. Stocks took 1st and special for best Yorkshire, Mr. Crundall 1st and special for best Norwich, Messrs Lee and Pollard that for best British. Mr. A. Spencer (Doncaster) judged, and gave general satisfaction.

"ADMIRAL DUNCAN" (Nottingham) O.S.

A very successful table show was held at headquarters, on March 5th. Competition was keen in the three classes provided. There were twenty entries in the last class—for Britishers. Each bird was almost good enough to win anywhere; consequently several deserving ones stood cardless, and more would have stood so, but that four consolation prizes were given. The secretarial duties were in the capable hands of Mr. William Healey, who again proved to be most competent in the discharge of his duties. Mr. J. H. Scothern judged.

NOR. STOCK PAIRS (11): 1, 2, 4, 5, Hill, very creditable team; 3, 7, Birch; 6, Moore. CRESTS, STOCK PAIRS (9): 1, J. Goode, fine green Crest mated to a yell. Crest-bred, decidedly the best-balanced pair; 2, 7, Wood, leading pair very good; 3, 5, Bowers, both useful pairs; 4, 6, Holmes, very creditable. BRIT. (20): 1, Harrison, Blackbird, in perfect plumage; 2, Stopper, Crossbill, faultlessly staged; 3, 6, 7, Goode, large, well-pencilled Twite; 4, Boult, grand Goldfinch, fine, square-cut blaze; 5, Wood, beautiful Chaffinch. Consolation prizes were awarded to: W. Goode (Yellowhammer and Bullfinch), W. Stopper (Starling), T. Harrison (Wheatear). Special prizes were won as follows, for most points: Nor., G. Hill; Crests, J. Bowers; Brit., W. Goode.

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

A very successful show was held in the club-room Red Lion Hotel, on February 26th, this being the first of a series, and competition was very keen throughout. Entries came up very well, over 100 birds being staged, and the judge, Mr. E. Smith (Allerton) had no light task in finding the winners; but his awards gave entire satisfaction. Special for best bird in show went to Mr. W. Crabtree with his clear yellow. The following is a list of points gained in each section:—Champion Section: I W. Crabtree 22 points, 2 J. Clark 19, 3 A. Cooper 18, 4 W. Cowgill 17, and 5 G. Wellock 17; Novice Section: 1 A. Bennett 24 points, 2 F. Western 20, 3 G. A. Bennett 20, and 4 A. Pratt 20.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

BRAMLEY AND DIS. O.S.

Pair show and monthly meeting, at the "New Inn," on March 5th. After two unsuccessful attempts to hold a pair show, I am pleased to say that a very successful one was held, and although the number of birds staged was not as large as could have been desired, the quality was excellent. The clear Norwich class contained some very nice pairs. The Greens were also very fine birds. Messrs. Richmond and Maltby won the two specials. Mr. Woot (Armley) placed the cards to the entire satisfaction of all, and a word of thanks is due to him, for so generously giving his services.

LONGTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held March 1st at the Castle Inn, when there was a grand attendance. We held a table show, nearly 40 birds being staged. Mr. J. Edwards, who judged, gave every satisfaction. Mr. R. Smith won special for best Norwich; Mr. H. Perrins that for Yorks.; Mr. A. Hallam that for Goldie; Mr. E. Tams that for Linnet; Mr. A. Goostry that for Hybrid pair; and Mr. J. Davis that for A.O.V. COVENTRY GODIVA C.B.S.

Pair show, held on February 26th, at the Chequers Hotel, Little Park Street. Mr. J. Corrall judged, and give every satisfaction. The entries did not come up to expectation, but it is rather close on the breeding season, which kept a lot of exhibits away. These shows seem to be very interesting. I might say they are getting us several new members, and I hope to get several more. Fanciers wishing to join can have information from me or at any of our shows.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

Pair show held at headquarters, Public Library, Stoke Newington, on February 23rd. This event took place on our ordinary meeting night, and considering it was only an evening show, the entries came up splendidly, and far above expectations, there being nearly 80 pairs. All sections were well represented, and competition was fairly keen, especially among the novices. The birds were staged down one side of the hall, and there was a splendid attendance. Mr. J. Robson judged. During judging the chairman announced that two challenge cups had been presented to the association for most points. These were on view, and were much admired, several expressing their intention of competing for same. The larger cup was presented by two of our patrons, Messrs. Percy and Walter J. Nutter, and has to be won three times, not necessarily in succession. The smaller one (presented by the secretary) is for the runner-up, and is to be won out right this year. The proof of electro for our suggested diplomas was handed round, and gave every satisfaction.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

The seventh annual show of pairs matched for breeding and table show of British was held at the new headquarters, the Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane Peckham, on March 1st, and proved in every way a success. The room is well adapted for the purpose, and being in a central position, is easy of access from all parts. The wisdom of the change was manifest on this, our first night, the show being crowded for the greater part of the evening, both with fanciers and the general public. No fewer than nine gentlemen handed in their names for membership. The birds were quite up to the standard of our past shows. The novices ran the champions very close. Norwich were a grand lot, and some excellent pairs were shown in both sections. Some nice Yorkshires were also put down. The British were also grand. The birds entered by our worthy chairman, Mr. H. E. Tringham, were unfortunately absent. The arrangements, as usual, were in the hands of the hon. secretary, who was ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee. Mr. J. Cole had catalogues with awards on sale a few minutes after judging. The following were the winners of the specials:—Messrs. L. J. Richardson, J. Cole, D. Reeks, C. Bolting. Mr. J. Robson judged. The proprietor of the Reindeer and his manager, Mr. Harris, were enthusiastic over our first venture at their house, both gentlemen becoming members, with a promise to do all in their power to assist the society.

LEEDS. C.B.S.

At a special meeting held on 26th February, it was decided to run a one-day open show on 15th October, at St. George's Schoolroom. Messrs. T. Flint and W. Bristow were elected members.—J. CHAMBERS, Hon. Sec.

OTLEY O.S.

Meeting held February 23rd. It was decided to hold a First Feather Show for members, June 18th, 35s. to be given in three prizes for most points gained at this and the winter show. Entrance fee, 2s. 6d. per annum. I shall be pleased to enrol any new members.—C. THORNTON, Hon. Sec.

REDRUTH F.A.

Annual meeting held in the Masonic Hall on March 2nd, when Mr. F. Collins (Camborne) presided over a good attendance. The hon. sec., Mr. Opie, gave the report for the past year, which was very satisfactory. The officers for the coming year were then elected:—Chairman, Mr. F. Collins; hon. sec., Mr. R. G. P. Nelson; committee, Messrs. Ferrill, Kemp, Opie, Sherman, and Allen. The show is fixed for July 6th and 7th, with W. G. Poole (Stratford-on-Avon) judge. It was also decided to withdraw from the Cage Bird Union. Mr. Opie, the retiring hon. sec., received the heartiest thanks for the splendid services he rendered during his tenure of office.—F. COLLINS, Chairman.

BARNSLEY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held February 26th, Clarence Hotel. Mr. J. Eyre presided over a good meeting. The balance-sheet was submitted and passed as read, showing a splendid balance in hand to December 31st, 1909, of £6 17s. 6d., which is a credit to those who have been connected with the society's affairs. Officers duly elected for 1910: Mr. J. Eyre, chairman; Mr. A. Green, vice-chairman; Mr. E. Carlisle, treasurer; assist.-sec., Mr. G. Hencliffe; auditors, Messrs. Race and Jackson. A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring officers. Any fancier wishing to become a member can do so by communicating with the secretary, when all information regarding this society will be gladly given. Honorary members, 2s. 6d. per year.—F. C. SIMS, Hon. Sec.

OPEN NORWICH P.C.

Second annual meeting held on March 5th, at Market Tavern, Godwin-street, Bradford, Mr. T. Hammond (chairman) in the chair. Business transacted: A vote of thanks to Mr. Carl for his generosity in providing a souvenir in the form of a flower for button-hole for each member present. Balance-sheet adopted. Mr. Percy Illingworth again elected president. Vice-presidents to be elected by committee. Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington) elected as chairman for ensuing year; Mr. O. Mitchell secretary and treasurer; Messrs. Simonette and J. Wilcock auditors. Vote of thanks to retiring chairman. Decided: "That the following be added to Rule 15—'That all societies will be required to give all particulars in reference to money prizes, and that no society receive the club's patronage who award less than four money prizes equivalent to 22s. per class.'" Also decided, "That the following bye-law be inserted in rule books, 'That the secretary of each society receiving patronage be required to forward to the club secretary, free, a catalogue with awards marked by first post possible after judging has been completed.'" Decided: "That ballot papers be forwarded to all members for election of committee." Arrangements for a prize fund, with a suggestion that each member try his best to contribute to same. Already promised: Mr. Hammond, 10s. 6d.; Mr. Waters, 10s.; and Mr. Grey, 5s. Owing to shortage of time we decided to leave other business to committee. A hearty vote of thanks to all retiring officials brought meeting to a close.—O. MITCHELL, Hon. Sec.

CAGE BIRD UNION (District No. 7).

Annual Meeting.

Annual meeting of delegates of societies in District No. 7 of the C.B.U. held at Saracens Head Hotel, Leicester, on February 26th. Present: Messrs. R. Rhodes (Nottingham and Notts O.S.) in the chair; Howe (Wellingborough C.B.S.), J. H. Jennings (West Bromwich C.B.C.), Pass (Hucknall Torkard C.B.S.), T. Smith (Ilkeston C.B.S.), J. A. Tyler (Leicester C.B.S.), F. J. Weaver (Wolverhampton C.B.S.), J. E. Wood (Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S.), J. H. de Maillet (Birmingham C.B.S.), district secretary. (1) The minutes of previous meeting were passed. (2) Mr. Tyler proposed, "That Mr. Rhodes be appointed chairman for the ensuing year. Carried unanimously, and Mr. Rhodes returned thanks. (3) The next item on the agenda, "To consider the proceedings at the annual meeting at the Palace on February 5th, 1910," caused a most animated discussion, in which Mr. Tyler and the secretary (who were present at that meeting), and Mr. Rhodes thoroughly thrashed out the various matters relating thereto; and it was resolved, upon the proposition of Mr. Tyler, seconded by Mr. Weaver, and carried unanimously: "That in the opinion of this meeting, the Cage Bird Union has done, and is capable of doing, good work; that such a Union is necessary, and should be supported by all fanciers having the welfare of the cage bird Fancy at heart, and desiring to stamp out the malpractices which are known to exist; and in other ways raise the status of the Fancy. This meeting places on record its adherence to the Union, and its desire to support and strengthen it as far as is necessary to carry out the objects for which it was formed; but in view of the unsatisfactory termination of the recent annual meeting at the Crystal Palace, it is desirable that a meeting of the Executive Council be held at an early date." Mr. Tyler remarked that, in his opinion, the Palace is not the most desirable place for the annual meeting. (4) With a view to putting a stop to Union members showing at non-affiliated or non-licensed shows, Mr. Wood proposed, "That the secretary of each affiliated society in this district be asked to send in a list of their members' names and addresses to the district secretary, the latter to obtain through the nearest affiliated society a catalogue of all unlicensed or unaffiliated shows in the district (at the Union's expense) for him to compare with his lists and so bring the offenders to book"; seconded by Mr. Howe, and carried. (5) The applications for show dates were considered, and the following fixed: October 1st, Longton; October 8th, Admiral Duncan, Nottingham; October 7th and 8th, Wellingborough (agree to clash); October 15th, Coventry Godiva; October 22nd, Burton-on-Trent; October 28th and 29th, Hucknall Torkard and Wolverhampton (agree to clash); November 5th to 7th, Leicester Hand-in-Hand; November 12th to 14th, Nottingham and Notts O.S.; November 19th, Coventry O.S.; November 24th, Stamford; November 26th to 28th, Ilkeston; November 30th and December 1st, Birmingham; December 2nd and 3rd, Leicester C.B.S. Eastfield Side applied for November 5th, and were requested to fix another date. Tideswell and Sutton-in-Ashfield societies both applied for November 19th, and were asked to confer with Coventry O.S. with a view to getting the latter's consent. (6) It was left to the district secretary to arrange for delegates to visit the various shows. (7) Mr. de Maillet was appointed district secretary for the ensuing year. (8) Mr. Weaver raised the question as to whether the Union could not do something regarding railway charges for carriage to and from shows; also reduced fares for fanciers attending shows. Further, that he thought the Cage Bird Union should come to some arrangement with the Yorkshire Union. Mr. Weaver and the secretary spoke against Rule 22 respecting members being debarred from showing at non-affiliated shows, and suggested that either this part of the rule should be done away with, or that non-members be debarred from exhibiting at affiliated shows, and thus bring them into the Union. The chairman remarked that this matter had been discussed several times, while Mr. Wood said his society would object to non-members being debarred from exhibiting at Union shows. A question was asked referring to prize money won at a licensed show in 1908, and the meeting suggested that any further application for a license be refused that society. (9) A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Rhodes for his services in the chair, and Mr. Tyler asked Mr. Rhodes to accept nomination for the office of president to the Union. Mr. Rhodes returned thanks, and regretted he could not see his way owing to pressure of business. (10) A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. de Maillet for his services during the past year. A member suggested that the district secretary accept nomination for secretaryship of the Union, but the honour was declined, and the meeting terminated after a two hours' sitting.—J. H. DE MAILLET, District Sec.

PRESTON O.S.

On March 3rd, at the Tokio Cafe, where Mr. T. H. Dent's (the chairman's) son is manager, we held what might be termed the happiest evening within the memory of the oldest members. About thirty sat down to a good supper, after which we adjourned to another room for a concert, for which all the best local talent had been procured. Mr. R. Wyard's rendering of "Our Old Dutch" was a treat. Mr. H. Simpson sang "The Yeoman's Wedding," and Mr. T. Gregson gave us "Love's Sweet Song." Mr. F. Issott, Mr. T. Leeming, Mr. J. Yates, and Mr. T. Burrows also obliged. Messrs. R. Wyard, H. Simpson, J. Yates again favoured us in turn. Mr. F. Issott, the local funny man, commenced to tell the company something about how Paddy Nolan missed the flood; and such a screaming, rib-splitting tale was nearly too much for several of our members, and if it had not been for the chairman grasping the situation, and calling time, there would have been very few left to carry on the business of the next general meeting, to be held April 7th, at the Tokio Cafe, at 8 p.m.—R. TAYLOR, Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Annual general meeting held at Workman's Hall, Romford Road, E., on February 24th, Mr. J. Smith in the chair. The Secretary, Mr. W. Maxey, read the annual report, which gave general satisfaction. It showed a balance on the year's working of £1 4s. 3½d. Both the young stock and annual shows were a success, a profit of £1 4s. 5d. being made on the former, and 9s. on the latter. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Maxey for the able manner in which he had carried out the work of the society during the past year, to which Mr. Maxey made a suitable reply. A proposition that the meeting nights in future take place once a month, instead of twice, was put to the meeting and carried. Members are therefore requested to take note that both committee and general meetings will be held the same night, viz., the second Thursday in each month, meetings to commence at 8 p.m. Next meeting, March 10th, when all show and lecture dates will be fixed. The following new members were elected. Messrs. G. Eke, J. H. Priestman, N. Abbot, H. Hiscocks, and J. Simmonds. Any other fanciers wishing to join are requested to send their names at once, so that they can be inserted in the 1910 annual. The officers for 1910 were elected: President, T. H. Harrison, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, T. Threlford, Esq., H. Mason, Esq., F. A. S. Stern, Esq., Dr. Buchan, F. Jayne, Esq., Miss G. E. Jay; Chairman, Mr. John Smith; Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. H. Collings; Cage Bird Committee: Messrs. Cooper and Reed; Hon. Auctioneer, J. Bussey, Esq.; Hon. Solicitor, F. A. S. Stern, Esq.; Auditors, Messrs. H. Mason and T. H. Houlding; Hon. Assistant Secretary, C. A. Redcock; Hon. Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Maxey, 16, James'-place, North-street, Poplar, London, E.—W. MAXEY, Sec.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Adjourned annual meeting held at Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger-street, Mr. J. Shepherd in the chair. Correspondence was read from the president, A. J. Haggie, Esq., intimating his willingness to remain president; from Mr. Currah (chairman) regretting his inability to be present; and Mr. Vanner, resigning membership, as it had been intimated to him that dealers should not be members of societies. A resolution was passed requesting Mr. Vanner to reconsider his decision, as he had given far more than he had ever received through his connection with the society. New members admitted were: Messrs. Douglas (Bedlington), and F. J. Storey (Heaton). It was decided that the members approve of the action of the committee in giving the secretary a selection of judges to write to for terms. Before commencing the election of committee, Mr. Maddison wished to draw attention to a letter in the Press of the preceding week, as some of the members had taken it that he was the Mr. M. referred to; he wished to state that he was one of four stewards on the section, and all looked for the bird, which could not be found, and to that day he had not seen the ticket on the cage. The secretary pointed out that the "Mr. M." referred to "memher," which had occurred previously in the letter. The following gentlemen were elected to form the committee, in addition to the officers already announced: Messrs. J. W. Reed, Coxon, MacPartling, Coutts, Tindale, Holden, J. McKenzie, Atkinson, Coltman, Chapman, Potts, Milne, Young, Bertram, Grieve, Scott (W.), A. Storey, Patterson, Robson, T. Taylor, MacDonald, Ellis, Little, Hutchinson, E. White, H. Dowson, G. Allinson, G. B. Vanner. The rules, with a few slight alterations, chiefly verbal, were passed. Votes of thanks were given to all the retiring officers, especially to the late secretaries. Mr. Coltman proposed, and Mr. G. Taylor seconded, that Mr. Hutchinson be appointed show manager, as Mr. Currah had stated he wished to be relieved of the position. The meeting proceeded to select the judges for the coming show. The following was the voting:—Norwich Section: Mr. J. H. Roe; Crest: Mr. W. E. Greeves; Borders: Mr. Patterson; British: Mr. Dewar; Yorkshires: Mr. Bailey. So that our judges are Messrs. Roe, Greeves, Dewar, Patterson, and Bailey. A special meeting will be held on March 17th to discuss our attitude towards the Cage Bird Union.—T. C. CRAWHALL, Hon. Sec.

This amount has been added, pro rata, to the winners of first, second, and third prizes in the Yorkshire Union section, according to rule.

BIRD BREEDING BARRED BY THE BRADFORD CORPORATION.

Remarkable Stand Taken by the Health Committee.

A number of the tenants of houses in the five streets off Faxfleet Street (Bradford), owned by the Corporation are very uneasy in consequence of a notice that they received this week from the Health Committee as landlords of the property. This document states:

"It has been reported that many of the tenants of these dwellings are using part of the premises for the keeping of birds. This is contrary to the regulations, and I am instructed to see that the practice is forthwith discontinued. If you are an offender in this respect I must ask you to dispose of your stock at your early convenience, otherwise the tenancy of your house will be terminated."

On behalf of the Health Committee it is stated that there are about fifteen occupiers of the Corporation houses who keep birds in the large attic which goes right across these houses, and that in consequence the family have not always sufficient sleeping accommodation, while the neighbours complain about the breeding of birds in attics as likely to encourage pests.

No complaint is, of course, made about the keeping of a bird as a pet, and the notices have been served upon those tenants only who are known to breed birds.

Bradford is, of course, the home of the Yorkshire Canary, and enquiry shows that the breeding of the cheerful songsters is quite an important local industry. In all the outlying district are scores of breeders, and one working man not far from the city is said to have made no less than £80 in one season by the breeding of the popular cage birds.

In this particular district of Bankfoot are a number of men who keep 20, 30, or even 50 birds, and who make £20 a year by breeding and showing birds at local shows arranged by various cage-bird societies.

Enquiry does not confirm the contention that the breeding of birds leads to overcrowding, for all these houses have two bedrooms in addition to the attic. A large number of those who appear to have violated the regulations of these Corporation dwellings are employed on the trams, and have taken up the breeding of cage birds as a hobby.

In view of the hours at which they are employed, there certainly appears to be considerable truth in their contention that it is the only hobby they could take up, for they often finish work too late in the day and are too tired to work, for instance, on an allotment.

"It keeps a man steady and straight," said one breeder to our representative to-day, "and we take a great interest in it. Not only so, but it is a most profitable hobby, and many of us could not afford to pay 6s. a week rent without the little income which the Canaries bring."

The housewives concerned are also highly indignant at what is considered an interference with the right of the tenant. They point out that following a hobby like this often keeps a man from worse things, for the time now spent in attending to the birds would in many cases be spent in the public-house.

A few of them declare that they will remove should the regulation be enforced, and we surmise that their intention will be announced with a bit of "plain Yorksher" to the gentleman who collects the rents.

In one house the occupier, who has been confined to the house for two or three months with a broken leg, has relieved the tedium by following this hobby, and both he and his wife asserted that during a trying period of family sickness they could not have paid their way and paid the rent regularly but for the help afforded by the income from the birds.

In another house our representative found the birds cleanly and comfortably housed, and the flood of melody in the attic was astounding.

All the ailing birds or those a little "off colour" were housed in what was jokingly described as "the consumptive sanatorium." There can be no doubt that the breeders of Canaries get a great deal of innocent pleasure out of their hobby, and that it is also very profitable to them, and it seems rather hard that tenants should be driven out of houses in which they are comfortably settled if no harm is being done.

We understand that the Yorkshire Union will probably endeavour to put the breeders' side of the case before the Health Committee.—"Bradford Daily Telegraph."

We are certainly astonished that so presumably enlightened a body as the Health Committee of an important centre like Bradford, should take action in the above manner. The question of the absence of proper sleeping accommodation for the humans by reason of the presence of the birds is one which, of course, we are not in a position to discuss. But that interference is justified on the score that the birds affect the health of tenants, or create a nuisance by means of "insect pests," is absurd, and we are surprised how this particular health committee came to entertain such notions. We feel sure that the proposed deputation from the Yorkshire Union will establish the matter in a more favourable and correct light, and that this latest form of official interference with the rights of citizens will be nipped in the bud. —EDITOR.

Under the White Rose.

THE annual prize distribution and social of the Amalgamated Societies and Specialist Clubs took place on Saturday last. The dinner attained huge dimensions, no fewer than 148 individuals sitting down to a splendid repast provided by the popular host, Mr. W. H. Mitchell, who pleased everybody by his catering. Mr. D. Sunderland occupied his usual position, for which he is well fitted, and under his chairmanship everything passed off as merrily as a marriage bell. (No, I don't mean thee, Luther, this time.)

AMONGST the company were Mr. and Mrs. Carl, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ramsden, Mr. Pretty, and a friend from London. Mr. Ridley, hon. secretary, Hull C.B.S., Mr. Fredk. Handley, chairman of the G.C.A., Liverpool, Mr. Lindley from Hoyland, and many others—in fact, close on 400 people must have attended at some time or other during the evening. The gathering was voted to be "perfect," every item passing off successfully, while the talent secured was of a very high order, and the prizes resembled a display in a jeweller's shop, so numerous and costly were they.

HOYLAND Society had a nice gathering the other week. The members got up a grand social and supper, and during the evening the members' cup was presented to the successful winner, Mr. A. H. Waters. They were a jolly lot. Nobody to see them would have thought they had had to face a severe loss at their last show. Hoyland fanciers have some grit, and will easily pull through.

THE Hull C.B.S. is forging ahead. This year they have put a grand syllabus together, which embraces all branches of the Fancy from Canaries, British, and Mules, to colour-food, washing, and a ramble, not forgetting an excursion to the Scottish National Show, and a whole host of other events. One is very novel and interesting, viz., a "Wild seeds and berry competition." Here the members have to gather wild seeds, etc., then in September they will be classified and judged by an expert, who will describe their different varieties and uses. This is a really good idea, and worth copying widely, especially in districts where British fanciers are numerous, for it must be very instructive.

LEEDS C.B.S. had a grand pair show on March 5th, no less than 49 pairs being staged in five classes for Mr. F. Farrar, of Leeds, to judge. A notable achievement was the securing of 1st, 2nd, and 3rd in one class, where 9 pairs were entered, by Mr. J. McDade. This society has also issued a handy little book containing a list of patrons and officers, syllabus of members' shows, lectures, discussions, etc., etc., members' specials, names and addresses of its members, with a key to denote what variety each member is interested in; a very handy card to put in one's pocket when on a round of visits. The special list is a good one, and should provide some keen competition amongst the 60 odd members of the society.

THE CAGE BIRDS special buttonhole was in great favour on Saturday last at the prize distribution, and many thanks were given the proprietor of the paper, Mr. Carl, for his thoughtfulness in providing them. The flowers lent an appearance of gaiety to all, and to the surroundings.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

We have received a copy of the splendid 1910 catalogue issued by Rudge-Whitworth, Ltd. (Coventry), the world-renowned makers of cycles, etc. It has been increased in size from 68 to 76 pages, and each page is full of information of value to every cyclist. It is well called the "Cyclist's Encyclopædia," and this issue is graced by a superb coloured frontispiece. In addition to the "Aero-Specials," "Specials," and "Crescent" models of Rudge-Whitworths which are so well-known throughout the kingdom, they have this season re-introduced the "Standard Models," and to meet enquiries for an extra strong machine have introduced the "Standard Imperial Roadster," built the requirements of heavy and rough riders. On pages 54 to 61 every separate part of a bicycle is separately illustrated and the price given. These charts are of inestimable service to cyclists, who may have occasion to require a replacement. A copy of this fine catalogue will be sent post free to all readers who mention CAGE BIRDS when sending their request.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Grit, Seed and Mating.

C.H.D.—(1) The grit is excellent, and you may quite safely use it for the floors of your cages in the natural state. Washing it in fresh water would not be any improvement—rather the reverse—and to break up oyster shells to mix with it would reduce instead of improve its value for small birds. (2) The Canary is very small and thin, and not very well ripened. It is, however, sweet and clean. Whilst not seriously harmful it is undesirable. (3) It depends wholly upon circumstances. Reduce the question to your means of combating any adverse influence that may arise. If you are able to counteract any sudden spell of frost or cold, or have the birds in a cosy room, such as a kitchen, or regularly-heated living room, and the birds are in very high condition, you might mate them up now. But if the conditions named are wanting, do not be in a hurry for another fortnight or three weeks.

Heaving and Panting.

Aeolus.—I suspect she is beginning to pay more than the usual amount of attention to the commissariat department, and perhaps might have contracted a chill. As a staple diet give two parts of Canary to one part summer rape, mixed together. Every second day for a week give a scrap of bread and milk, about the size of a hazel nut, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure on it. Give a spray of green food each day, and see it has a regular supply of clean gritty sand.—Limit the diet to this for a week or fortnight. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and every second day for the remainder of a week, and on the alternate days during the latter period give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. In the next week after this give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid, every second day. See that she is quite protected from cold draughts.

Varied.

J.H.—(1) If you had said how you fed and treated the hen last year whilst breeding, I should have been helped. There was probably something wrong with your feeding. Briefly, give a plain seed diet during incubation; give only a small amount of egg-food during the first three days after hatching, and fresh at least twice a day. Begin giving green-food on the fourth day; slowly increase egg-food also, but do not give enough for the old birds to overgorge themselves. Do not begin to give hemp seed until the young are 10 or 12 days old. If the hen does not then do better, write again, and give full details as to your feeding and management. (2) A Crest-bred is the plain-headed offspring of Crests, or, rather, of a Crest and Crest-bred. For Crest breeding a Crest-bred is mated with a Crest, and both Crests and Crest-breds are reared in the same brood. The Crest-bred differs from the ordinary Norwich by being much larger, more profusely feathered, and especially in having an unusual quantity of dense long feathers on the head; but it has no crest. (3) Right, again. A "plainhead," unless prefixed by "Lancashire," is simply the ordinary Norwich. (4) Canaries do not naturally lose the large quill feathers in the wings and tail until the second moult. Sometimes they are removed at the first moult, when the bird is said to be "flighted"; when not removed, they are termed "unflighted."

Hen rather Backward.

G. Howard.—It is nothing at all unusual for the adults to be rather more backward in coming into condition than the young stock. You should be treating these old hens more liberally now. Begin at once, and give first as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of syrup of rhubarb in the drinking water daily for three days. As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, or Madiera cake, with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts of gold of pleasure and sesame seed mixed int it, and on the alternate days give a small pinch of mixture of equal parts hemp, teazle, inga, and linseed. Every second day give a crisp young leaf of dandelion, and gradually increase the allowance until in a week's time they are each having two fair-sized leaves daily. Repeat the above dose of salts and rhubarb about every third or fourth day for a fortnight if the birds do not show signs of brightening up quickly.

A Trio of Them.

Y.O.R.K.S.—(1) You may mate the one cock with both hens instead of procuring another cock to make up two single pairs, so to speak. You must not, however, put them all in one cage. Cage each hen separately in a single breeding cage, and when the proper time arrives and the birds are ready to begin, mate the cock with the hen that seems most forward. When this hen has gone to nest and commenced sitting, remove the cock and mate him with the other hen, leaving number one hen to hatch out and rear the young herself. When the second hen has commenced sitting, remove him again, and leave her to do likewise, and cage the cock by himself until hen number one is ready for him again for the second brood. (2) It is quite probable there was a mistake made in the sex of this bird. Treat him the same as advised to "G. Howard," and if he does not assert himself more actively in a fortnight or so get the breeder to have another look at him to see if it is a hen. (3) Treat these hens also the same as advised to "G. Howard," but do not overdo it when you see them freshening up, unless the cock also is getting forward as rapidly as they.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Loss of Voice.

Anxious H.—Your first step must be to see the adverse conditions are reduced to a minimum. Place the birds in a position quite free from damp, and also strictly avoid all cold draughts, extreme fluctuations, and heated and impure air. Let the position be fairly comfortable, but not necessarily very warm. Feed on plain Canary only as staple, and every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape. On the alternate days for the next fortnight give a scrap of bread, not larger than a hazel nut, soaked in hot milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, and strewn with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Give a spray of green food every second or third day. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, ten of lemon juice, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week. On the alternate days give ten drops of glycerine, six each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, and continue giving this each alternate day for a fortnight. Do not give the bath, save on quite fine days, until birds are better.

Swelling on Throat.

D.M.—In the event of this bird dying, have a post-mortem on it to ascertain beyond doubt whether the swelling is of a contagious description. I think it very probable it is of that nature, and you have done quite right to isolate the bird. Do not mix up the birds out of the other cage, where this hen has been, with your other birds until you see how this case terminates, and thoroughly disinfect the cage, and also the show cage, before keeping any other birds in them. Your feeding is very good, and needs no alteration except in the case of this hen, where you would do well to avoid the egg-food. Stop this and give instead a similar quantity of stale sponge cake crumbs with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, or the crushed biscuit (given dry), you now use with the egg, may be given without egg. On the alternate days give a spray of green-food, which should now be procurable. Paint the swelling every second day with a feather dipped in tincture of iodine for a week, and if swelling is not then considerably reduced, prick it with a clean needle, gently press out contents, bathe in warm water, and anoint with boracic ointment. In the drinking water give ten drops of dandelion juice, and as much Epsom salts every second day for a week as will cover a sixpence, and on the alternate days a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a split pea, and six drops of dilute sulphuric acid, in the water, continuing the latter for a fortnight.

Dropping Feathers, etc.

F. H. B.—The hen will not be of any use to breed with as long as the condition of things you describe lasts. It is possible she has been accustomed to a much warmer room, in which case keep her in a comfortable temperature for a few weeks until the weather is milder. If this surmise is incorrect, the bird has certainly been kept under bad conditions since last moult. Keep her, as suggested, in a cosy place, but not too warm, quite free from draughts and extreme fluctuations, but well ventilated. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, as a staple. Every second day give a half teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and on the alternate days give a pinch of hemp seed and a morsel of banana, or two leaves of dandelion. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for one day, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the feathers cease dropping. On the alternate days give in the water twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, until the sneezing is cured. The reason the cock stops singing is probably that he is so overpowered with the hen's charms that he can only look and admire. There is nothing wrong. It is a peculiarity of some mere males.

Brevities.

Three Briefs (Incubator).—(1) Probably 102 deg. F., though I have not yet thoroughly satisfied myself during the actual process of incubation. At other times, however, the temperature ranges between 108 deg. F. and 110 deg. F., so the above will be pretty near the mark, if not absolutely correct. (2) About one week is the limit, in my opinion. In some cases they may be kept rather longer, but there is always a great risk of the germs being seriously weakened. (3) The less variation of temperature the eggs get during incubation the better. The range of variations cannot be definitely stated. It depends a great deal upon the strength of the embryo and the stage of development reached. Eggs may sometimes get quite cold to the touch, and yet hatch out satisfactorily; but do not try the experiment.

A Recommendation (G.K.).—Am very sorry, but cannot possibly recommend any individual here, for reasons which must be obvious. Consult our advertisement columns, and insist upon using our deposit system, which should be an efficient safeguard.

Helping to Make Nests (W. Sturge).—Most cock birds swagger about with nesting material, more or less, and make a big display before the hen commences to build; but it is all "make believe," and intended to convey a hint of what is required of the "missus." They are just as apt to fetch their supply of material out of the box or pan, as out of the nest bag supplied. As a rule, the less they potter about the nest the better.

Cinnamon Crests (Bert).—Thanks for further letter. Do not imagine I wished to discourage your experiment; but I certainly did think your first letter indicated that you were probably expecting success earlier than I knew it would come. Hence my warning, which, I am glad to note, does not discourage you. By all means go ahead; keep your eye on the two main points, as suggested in last reply, and success will be gained. A hearty wish for your success.

Age to Breed (A.M.).—Your last season's bird, bred at end of July, would doubtless breed if mated. I do not, however, consider it advisable to get all you can out of such birds in the first year. If it is one of the larger breeds, I should advise you to take only one nest from it, or, if a small breed, not more than two at the outside limit this season. Mate it, if quite ready, from the middle to the end of April, and let the hen be not younger than 1908 bred. See next issue for reply to Mule query.

A Bashful Wooer (W.A.P.).—Maybe, the arrival of a lady-love upon the scene set the Yorkshire thinking so furiously that singing was out of the question. It is not a very uncommon occurrence for a cock to cease singing as soon as he is mated. It does not necessarily affect their fertility, and there is no reason at all why the pair should not do well. Alter your diet to three parts Canary to one part rape, give a small quantity of egg-food every second day, a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga on the alternate days, and a little green-food, including a leaf of dandelion, daily. When the hen commences to sit, stop all the extras, and when young are hatched feed as advised in first part of reply to "J.H."

Bare Around Eye (A. and B.).—Try and give me a few more particulars as to how the bird appears to be affected, and the symptoms exhibited; then only can I give you a really satisfactory reply. Meantime, as your diet is wrong, feed on a staple mixture of two parts Canary to one part rape. Twice a week give a small piece of bread soaked in hot milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar; each of the remaining days a spray of green-food. Limit diet to this for two or three weeks, or until you get the next reply. Keep cage perfectly free from insects and well strewn with clean, gritty sand. In the drinking water give ten drops of dandelion juice, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day during following week. Let him bathe daily if he is willing.

Partial Success (Hilda).—Continue treatment advised for another month, if necessary; but give in the drinking water, instead of the gentian and steel, six drops of dandelion juice and fifteen drops of sherry and quinine, prepared by dissolving as much citrate of iron and quinine as will lie on a shilling in two tablespoonfuls of sherry. Give this every second day, instead of two days in every three, until the feathers cease dropping. There is no necessity now to move the bird about. Touch the bare places with warm olive oil once a week. Keep a sharp look-out for mites, as I still feel inclined to think they may be at the root of the trouble. You might try raking out the cracks with a pin on to a sheet of white paper during the daytime.

Crest-bred in Moult (W. Johnson).—You have probably hit upon the correct cause. Keep the hen in a comfortable place, not very warm, nor yet on the cold side; see that draughts and sudden or extreme fluctuations are quite avoided in future. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape, and every second day give a half-teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a scrap of banana and a pinch of hemp seed. Give a leaf or two of dandelion, or other green-food—the former preferably—every second day. In the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel two days in three for a week, and every second day afterwards until the moulting ceases..

Wasting Seed (J.E.H.).—You ought to have given more details of feeding, and said what seeds, besides Canary, and how much, and how often you give. Have the birds you have previously lost died in this cage? If so, I should advise you, in the event of this one dying, to burn the cage at once. To treat, give a mixture of three parts Canary to two parts summer rape in the seed box as a staple. Every second day, until it begins to eat the seed freely, give a piece of bread soaked in cold milk, and sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure scattered about it. On the alternate days give a spray of watercress, or one or two crisp dandelion leaves. See all the seeds are sweet and good, keep cage clear of red mites, and well strewn with clean, gritty sand, and free from draughts or foul air. In the drinking water give six drops syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts daily—for three days as will cover a sixpence, and every second day for the remainder of the week. During the latter period give on the alternate days six drops tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid in the water, and continue this throughout the next week.

Strange Behaviour (H. Moore).—What position does the bird assume? Does he stand at right angles across perch, crouching low, and his beak pointing towards you? If so, I am inclined to think it nothing more or less than tameness, and the bird merely challenging you to a fight. But if you usually attend to the needs of the birds, and do things about the cage frequently, and these attacks only occur when you clean out the cage, it is doubtless sheer fright, and all you can do is to go about these occupations quietly and methodically. Give a choice bit of green-food in the top part of cage before starting to clean it, in order to attract its attention somewhat. It may be a little overfed, which would help to aggravate this condition. Stop the mixed seed, or materially reduce the quantity, also the egg-food, for a time, and give in the water a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of syrup of rhubarb every second day for a week; then miss a week, and give again for another week. No reason why it should not breed all right.

Best or Worst (Ked.).—If you cannot avoid the continual disturbances in the dining room, and also the daily removal of cage to another room, which, by the way, I should say is quite unnecessary, you would certainly succeed better in the unheated room, where all these disturbances can be avoided. Keep the birds in the room where they now are for another three weeks or so, and then take advantage of the first spell of nice mild weather to remove the birds to the other room, and leave them there permanently. Do not mate them up until after the removal. If the weather is favourable, you should be able to get them transferred, settled, and ready to mate by about the second week in April.

Points of Dutch Frill (A. Cooper).—The following are the chief points in the standard collated by a prominent continental breeder:—Length, 7 to 8 inches; attitude, a little curved, but without high shoulders, standing well up on legs, and very elegant. Plumage, fine and silky, well separated on back and frilled evenly outwards, falling down on the wings and forming the mantle. Frill on breast, and at both sides of the thighs, the latter curling upwards, and joining the mantle. Tail, 3fins., with slight curl of small feather at base. Wings, carried well up, a slight crossing of tips permissible. Head, medium size, without crest, but if hooded it will be an improvement. Legs, slightly curved. Colour, similar to the Norwich in colour and variegation.

We Two (Novice, Shettleston).—(1) About four and a half or five inches from each end. To a certain extent the size of the birds regulates the distance. I prefer to place perches so that the tails clear each end of cage by about half an inch or an inch when bird is standing at right angles across perch. This gives the greatest amount of clear space for exercise. They should rest upon the middle cross-bar of front, and this should be rather less than midway between top and bottom; say, in a cage 16 inches high, the cross-bar, and consequently the perches, should not be more than 7 inches from the floor. (2) Give a pinch of Epsom salts first for one day only, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian, and six of mucilage of gum arabic in the water for a day or two. Also give a pinch of crushed plain dry biscuit for a day or two.

Not Singing (J.R.L.).—It is nothing unusual for some cock birds not to come into song again after moulting until spring is at hand, after their first few seasons. No doubt this is the case with yours, as he seems in such perfect health. Try moving him further away from the hen for a week or two. Hang his cage on the wall immediately facing the fireplace, and let it be a box cage in order to avoid any possible draught from the door. In addition to the usual staple diet, give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, and linseed, every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days a wee bit of bread and milk dusted with soft sugar, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure.

To Get Colour (Cinnamon).—I hardly think you did quite right to introduce cinnamon blood, as there should be any amount of colour, and to spare, available in the pure Norwich. Fortunately, as you wish to breed it out again at once, you used the Cinnamon hen, so you are not likely to find any serious difficulty in working it out so long as you avoid any mating with a cock which has any trace of Cinnamon blood. You will certainly be taking the shorter road to get rid of it by keeping the variegated hen and rejecting the cock. Mate her with a clear yellow cock, bred from a tickled and a clear pure-bred for preference. The result will be green tickled and variegated young, with perhaps a few clears.

Cages (no nom-de-plume).—It is quite a matter of taste whether enamel or whitewash is best for the insides of cages. The former can be washed over its surface from time to time, the latter can be washed right off and replaced with new. Enamel gives a nicer appearance, and is more durable. The appearance, but not the durability, can also be secured with sanitary coloured distempers. Try to see a few cages of each kind and choose. As regards black paint for the outside, try lacquer, similar to Brunswick Black, or even the latter itself; put on thinly, so that it is absorbed into the wood, and finish with copal varnish. I have had excellent results from this method. The cages never stick together.

Cages Again (T. Frost).—(1) No, the cage made of pitch pine will not prove harmful to the birds in any way. Whether it will prevent red mites remains to be seen. (2)—I really cannot say whether making cages with cedar wood would prevent red mites, as I have had no practical experience in this matter. Cedar wood is said to prevent clothes moth getting into drawers or boxes wherein chips of the wood are kept. If it does so, its properties are probably more or less evanescent, and whether they are such as to prove a deterrent to red mite experiment only could show.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Foreign Finches.

Rawston.—You would greatly increase its utility if you could have an outside flight to same; it only needs a few standards covered with half-inch mesh wire netting. Try half a dozen pairs, say, as follows: Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Common Avadavats (Tiger Finches), Green Avadavats, Zebra Waxbills, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins—average price, 3/6 to 7/6 per pair. Do not put them out before May, though. Hay and long grass will suffice for nesting material. Diet: Canary and white millet, unlimited supply, with oats, hemp, paddy rice, and sunflower seed as extras; green food, such ripe fruit as they fancy, cuttlefish, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. They would require a saucer of some good soft food mixture when they hand young to feed. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" very helpful, see advertisements.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free, a mine of information of use and interest.

Amazon Parrot.

"Novice."—You are feeding wrongly. Get a bottle of Dinneford's magnesia from your chemist, and give the bird a weekly dose (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) so long as the bottle lasts. Do not give any tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts—a little boiled potato (dry) is permissible, and some Amazons are very fond of it. Well colouring the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food, two or three times a week would also be a help, and if the bird craves for sop at all, a stale crust of household bread or plain biscuit moistened in the chemical food water is quite wholesome. For a healthy bird already talking a little, 40/- is not an excessive price.

A Feather Plucker.

Parrots.—You give me but few details, but the bird must have a cooling aperient—say, Dinneford's magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) twice a week, so long as the voidings are not watery. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps or any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: Seed mixture, Canary and white millet seed two parts each, and one part each hemp, dari, oats, paddy rice and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a supply continuously in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit and nuts, with, of course, cuttlefish, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. Re your friend's Amazon, a dose or two of Dinneford's magnesia will also be advisable here, and the same dietary, at any rate for the present, as advised for your bird. If the bird rejects all large seed, it will be none the worse for this providing it eats heartily of the small seed; in such case supply Canary and white millet seed in equal parts. As soon as the bird gets a little brighter, a course of Parrish's chemical food would be advisable.

Birds for Outdoor Aviary.

H.A.S.—Cockatiels, Budgerigars, Rosella Parrakeets, black-cheeked and blue-wing Lovebirds. The Java Sparrows and Weavers should be all right, as they will have plenty of space, but if you do pick one up with a broken leg or wing occasionally, you can safely put this down to the Budgerigars or Lovebirds. There should be a good prospect of all the Parrakeets breeding, and I should really advise you to add Redrumps to the series, and leave out the Java Sparrows and Weavers. The Black-cheeks, Rosellas, and Redrumps would cost you from 20/- to 30/- per pair—the latter price would, I expect, be really the cheaper; the other kinds not more than 10/- the pair. The birds should do well in your aviary, but Parrakeets do not always settle down to breeding the first year of their occupancy.

Brevities.

Parrots Laying Eggs in Cage (R. J. McC.).—This is not uncommon, but there is rather a risk of egg-binding on such occasions, and I should advise a piece of cuttlefish and a lump of old mortar rubbish being kept in the cage.

What Bird and Value? ("Umpire").—It is a Roscute Cockatoo, and its value about 10s. 6d.; its value will increase in proportion as it becomes talented and in fine condition. I have heard of some really talented birds of this species, but the majority do not make great talkers. Keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, also talk to it and teach it words and short sentences by constant repetition. Keep it out of draught, yet where it will get light and air. See other replies re warning about slops and table scraps, etc.

Birds for Crystal Palace Cage (Seaford).—See reply to A. H. Hall for list of birds, and reply to "Rawston" for food and treatment. No, with the birds named I should advise pairs, the birds will be happier, and your cage of pets more interesting to yourself. Hang up a cocoanut shell nest in each compartment, pushing a little bay into each, and the birds will use these as night shelters, as well as retiring places during the day—it will add greatly to their comfort and your pleasure.

Breeding Budgerigars (P. O. Dawson).—All that is necessary is to hang up the husks longitudinally as received, with the openings towards the light. The birds will fashion the inside to their liking—no nesting material is required. The yellow and green varieties may be crossed, and the bulk of the progeny will be green, with only an occasional yellow. It is necessary from time to time to introduce fresh blood into your strain, or the size, texture, and hue of plumage soon deteriorate. Glad to note you find our little booklet on this species helpful.

Outdoor Aviary Matters (Mere Novice).—The items of your seed mixture are all right, but I should certainly advise you to make two mixtures, one to consist of equal parts of Canary and white millet seeds, and the other of the remaining seeds you mention, in about the proportions given. I should also hang up one or two millet sprays; also supply cuttlefish, green food ad lib., and such ripe fruit as they fancy. Variety in the menu adds greatly to their well-being. If you put in hen Canaries in same proportion as the Continental and British Finches, you may get some nice Mules; otherwise the cocks will simply spend their time quarrelling over the hens.

Small Foreigners for Cage (A. H. Hall).—Foreign Finches and Waxbills, when kept in a cage, must be placed in some position where they are free from draught, yet where they will get light and fresh air. The following would all agree together providing you do not overcrowd: Zebra Finches, common and green Avadavats, orange-cheek, Zebra, St. Helena, and grey Waxbills, grey and green Singing-finches, are good songsters, especially the former, and a cock of each or either might be added for this purpose. "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/- plus postage (see advertisement), gives full instructions as to diet, treatment, etc., and you would find it very helpful.

What Parrot? ("Parrot Lover"). — It is an Alexandrine Parrakeet, and should certainly prove a talking species. Many individuals whisper over their words before articulating clearly. The bird is not yet fully accustomed to you; as it settles down it will screech less. Keep it in your midst, yet not where it will get scared by sudden movements. Talk to it, pet it, and make a fuss of it generally, and what it hears of your conversation, etc., it should soon commence talking. Your diet is satisfactory, and the bird should do well. Only patience and kindness can train it. Some are more teachable than others, but all Alexandrines usually make fair talkers, and if you persevere, yours is practically sure to do so.

Cardinals and Pekin Robin (V.A.G.).—Give this bird an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (but the voidings should not be watery), and also frequently colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Diet: Canary and white millet seeds, with a few oats, little hemp and sunflower seeds, ripe fruit, and two or three mealworms daily or other insects. Two cocks will agree in the one cage providing it is fairly roomy. I cannot recommend your keeping the Pekin Robin and Cardinal together, unless the cage is a very large one; I fear they would mutually harass each other. By all means spray the bird, being careful to keep it out of a direct draught till dry. A leaf of fresh lettuce will also be appreciated and be very beneficial, as also will a piece of cuttlefish.

Seed Mixture for Budgerigars (J.C.S.).—You do not give me the conditions under which you are keeping your Budgerigars; if indoors, and the temperature is variable, this alone is quite sufficient to throw them into moult. Feed as follows: Canary and white millet seed in equal parts, with a tablespoonful of oats every other day; a millet spray is a wholesome and agreeable change. Also supply green food, cuttlefish, grit and water, and when you can get it free from frost, seeding grass (grass in flower) ad lib. should be given. The best way to give them a bath is to keep a turf, well water it, and then put it for them to roll about on—this is their natural way of taking a bath, viz., rolling in the wet herbage.

Roseate Cockatoos and Quaker Parrakeets (M. L.).—Unless their quarters are very confined they will agree together well enough; see that two or three good sized logs are hung up, as far apart as your space permits, and I do not think you will have any trouble with them. The sexual distinctions, so far as plumage colouration is concerned, are infinitesimal, but the area of grey in the female is a little smaller than that of the male. There is no difficulty in telling if you have a true pair; they are very affectionate to each other, though able to take care of themselves in any company, and feed each at intervals throughout the day. The Quakers are one of the few nest-building Parrakeets, and you must supply them with twiggy branches, about the size of besom heads, for the purpose; they are a hardy species, and will do well out of doors.

Breeding White Java Sparrows in Cage (Howard W.).—(1) Yes, both sexes take part in the duties of incubation. (2) Possibly, but it is very unsafe to keep an unmated hen with a breeding pair, as the two hens will quarrel as fiercely as two cocks would under similar conditions. (3) Probably, but it is not wise in the confined quarters of the largest cage; the better plan would be to put in a pair of some other species, say, Zebra Finches; but you must contrive to have three or four nest boxes about, or they may quarrel. You must not, however, introduce others till the present brood has left the nest. (4) I have had two, three, and even four broods in the year, perhaps two is the more usual number. It largely depends on how early they begin to breed in the year, and the constitution of your stock.

Pekin Robins (L.W.).—Yes, your birds are Pekin or Japanese Robins. The cocks are mostly good songsters, and both sexes are handsome birds when in good feather. Providing they have room for exercise, and are kept free from draught, these birds are hardy and enduring, and not difficult to keep in good condition. Diet: Soft food (see our advertisement columns), take the required portion and make crumbly moist for use, ripe fruit ad lib., and one or two mealworms per bird daily; in the summer, when insect life is plentiful, supplement the mealworms with any beetles, smooth caterpillars, spiders, etc., you can capture for them; a teaspoonful of white millet seed may be given weekly, and is mostly appreciated.

Grey Parrot Ill (Rhosite).—Your diet is all wrong; make a change at once. You will find the correct diet given in our reply to "Parrots" in this issue. Also give Dinneford's magnesia under same conditions as stated in that reply. Also give every other day for a week, and then after a week's interval repeat for another week, three grains of bromide of potassium dissolved in a little syrup. If this bird calls out for table scraps when you are at meals, you had better have a piece of plain biscuit to hand; just moisten this in water, and it will meet the case. Note our warning re sops, etc., in other replies. A piece of boiled potato (without fats of any kind) is permissible if the bird has been accustomed to same.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

An Alien Goldfinch.

Rochester.—It is difficult to form an opinion without seeing the bird, but judging from your description as "hardly bigger than the British bird I have," it can hardly be a genuine Siberian, but probably a small Russian. You are wrong in assuming it will require different treatment to a British Finch. The tastes of both are very much alike. A good stock mixture for your Russian (or Siberian) Goldfinch, assuming him to be newly imported, would be: Hemp, niger, and teazle one pint each, canary half a pint, linseed a quarter pint; with just a little sprinkle of summer rape and charlock. A feed of cracked sunflower seed should be offered daily, and as the bird gets on to it, the niger in the stock mixture should be gradually lessened. Maw seed is also relished, and very good for a tit-bit. Russian Goldics relish the same wild foods as our English Finch, viz., thistle, teazle, and hard heads, dandelion, groundsel, etc. Many also get very fond of an occasional mealworm, once they have been induced to taste of them. Keep him in the usual Finch stock cage.

Cages and Mule Breeding.

Trooper P. T.—A 16in. breeder is not long enough, in my opinion. I am a stickler for roomy breeding cages, and know from experience they are far and away the best. A cage which is only cheap because of its very small size, is in reality very dear to any fancier, and the sooner the young fancier realises this the better it will be for him. My minimum length for a single muling cage is 20 inches, and 24 inches is a much better size. Any yellow Norwich hen should be a grand mate for a Linnet; you could not get a better kind. When the Linnet is in stout song, and his beak has turned a distinct deep slate-blue colour, you will know he is quite fit for breeding purposes. The hen, when ready, will be noticed bouncing vigorously from perch to perch, flapping her wings, and frequently calling in a shrill voice. Give her a little wool, nesting moss, or even a little teazed-out string, and she will carry it about in her beak, and be looking all over the cage for something to pop it in so as to commence to nest. When you see these signs, you can start your hen off with confidence. You need not trouble to put the cock Linnet with the hen until she lets you know she is ready; but let him hang close by, within sight of her, if you can manage it. Should he "sing at her," with wings down and heaving throat and chest, you can shake hands with yourself, and almost venture to ignore the old proverb about counting your chickens before they are hatched.

My Hybrid Breeding Methods.

A Starter.—Yes, I will give you an outline of my methods, with pleasure. The single Hybrid breeding cages I myself use are about 30ins. long, 17 or 18 high, and 14 deep (one or two are larger). I am dead against smaller cages, for they get very dirty in next to no time, and occasionally it would be very bad policy to disturb Hybrid-breeding couples by cleaning them out, and in a large cage a few days' neglect in this respect makes no matter. I have two perches in, on the crossbar, the birds feeding from the cage bottom. There is one large door in the centre of the front, at the bottom (as usual), made extra wide. A "platform" of wire-netting runs from the crossbar to the back of the cage. It is 5½ to 6 inches wide, and the netting is tacked to a piece of wood, which is screwed to the cage back, and wired to the crossbar at front. This "platform," if thickly interlaced and strewed with sun-dried grasses or chickweed, etc., affords a fine place for the hen to lay her eggs on; or on which to lodge the favourite old Thrush or Blackbird nest, for the Bullie hen to re-line (some don't trouble to do the latter). A more or less cup-shaped depression is easily contrived in the dry grasses, and the latter may be easily removed (or so much as is necessary) as required, being get-at-able through the door. If I know my hen, and have no fear of eggs dropping on bottom of cage, I cover the latter with fine peat-moss litter. If a strange hen, or one which behaves doubtfully, I use a thick layer of dried grasses, as above. The latter has great advantages over sawdust, etc., as it is not easily swept aside by the movements of the birds, thus leaving patches of the cage-bottom uncovered. (It can be used over a layer of sawdust). It is very "springy," too, and catches an egg safely. The perches, by the way, ought not to be placed very high up in the cage. My favourite way of screening the nesting site is to hang a strip of thick, stiff brown paper over the particular corner of the cage. If one's room is dark, a light material (such as muslin) should, of course, be used.

Foster Mothers.

H. Martin.—If you cannot afford to buy hen Canaries, you can certainly try as foster-mothers the hen Mules you have bred. You will find that the hen Mules will accept the attention of male birds (whether other Mules, or of some distinct species) in the same matter as do other hen birds. However, the eggs they lay all prove infertile—at least, I have never seen a Mule bred from a Mule, though I have read of it being obtained. I did not always trouble to provide with a mate the hen Mules I intended using for foster-mothers. Give them a nest and some building material, and they will, when they feel they must (so to speak), put up a nest and commence to sit. It hurries them up, however, when one permits them the attentions of some high-conditioned, pushful male bird. I always found hen Mules—most of mine were small to average-sized Goldie-Canaries—devoted mothers and excellent feeders. A lot of latitude is permissible in the changing of the eggs, etc. I have put eggs under a hen Mule which have hatched out after she has been sitting but three or four days, and she has fed and brought up the young quite as if that were the usual thing. They are not particular as regards sitting a day or two over time, either. Young, common German hen Canaries make good foster-mothers, too; likewise Border Fancy hens; and both are cheap. The trouble when leaving a hen Canary and cock Finch together through the winter and onwards, is that she invariably goes to nest before the Finch is ready, when the result is clear eggs, and one nest wasted.

Finches for Breeding.

Silex.—As I have oft-times written, to get Finches into high breeding condition pinches of hemp, niger, maw, gold of pleasure, sesame, dandelion, and similar "wild" seeds are invaluable. Note other replies given this week. You must also look out for tender dandelion leaves and the flowering and seeding heads, and give the bird a free supply, seeing they are never in a frosted condition when offered. This is invaluable as a "conditioner" for breeding birds. For early supplies, look on sheltered banks (railway embankments, for instance) which face south. Also let the bird have sprigs of seeding shepherd's purse, and chickweed, and flowering groundsel tops, looking out for the earliest possible supplies.

Getting Goldfinch into Condition.

Constant Reader.—This is now quite a familiar topic. First of all, don't forget that the Goldie is naturally a late breeder, May generally being the month he selects to "keep house" in. House-moulted birds come into breeding condition earlier than those in field plumage. Feed your bird on the following lines: This is the seed mixture I am using at present for my own Goldies: Teazle four parts, Canary and hemp three parts each, linseed one part, sunflower, saf-flower, summer rape, and charlock half-part each. The sunflower and saf-flower I crack lightly by passing them through a seed-crushing machine. In addition I have two other mixtures, of which I give a small teaspoonful daily—one, one day, the other the next day, and so on. They are (1) niger three parts, and maw one part; (2) thistle three ounces, dandelion and sesame two ounces each, lettuce, gold of pleasure, and corntlower one ounce each. All the others are mixed by measure. These seeds are those I have found by long experience the Goldfinch is particularly partial to, and as "tit-bits" they help to bring them into song and condition quicker than anything else I know. Plenty of dandelion, young tender leaves, and flowering and seeding heads are essential also, to bring them along into breeding condition. When they are in full, vigorous song, and drooping and spreading their tails and wings as they "sway" to and fro on the perch in the manner so peculiar to this species, then Goldfinches can be looked upon as "fit" for pairing up, especially so if they have a clear beak (free from any dark mark at the tip of the upper mandible).

Rejected Addresses.

W. S. Payne.— I most certainly think that the cause of your trouble lies in the fact that you have paired up the two birds before they are ready. This would account for the Goldfinch's "bad fits of temper," and for the hen turning the tables now and again by chasing him round the cage. If she were in amorous mood and he were equally willing, she would most likely be accepting dainty morsels of food from his beak instead of blows. Some Canary hens absolutely will not accept the attentions of cock British birds; such are rare, it is true—but I have had them myself, and so has many another fancier. Still, it often happens when two birds are rushed together, and one of them is not ripe for breeding, that serious fighting ensues, which embitters the couple for the rest of the season. The Goldfinch and the hen Canary should be introduced in a double breeding cage, having the wired slide down the centre—that is, one bird in each compartment. When the hen begins to carry nesting material about in her beak, and appears to be looking for a receptacle in which to deposit it, hang up a nest-box, withdraw the slide, and let the Goldfinch run in with her. Before this takes place, I fancy you will find him (if, as he ought to be, in condition) both singing to her and feeding her through the wires. If so, you can shake hands with yourself on a rosy outlook. A great deal more depends on the proper mating of Muling (and other) couples than the majority of breeders seem to credit. Some do not even seem to worry about whether the birds are in breeding condition; when they think the time has come for them to breed, pop they go together. Then there is trouble should one of the twain happen to be rank and its partner contrariwise.

Brevities.

Do Mountain Linnets Sing? (A. B. Newton).—By Mountain Linnet I take it that you mean the bird more commonly known as the Twite. This is a very happy, sprightly little bird, with a cheerful ditty, which it is constantly uttering, but it can hardly be designated a "song" in the true sense of the term—it consists of a string of notes of very circumscribed range, and jerky utterance.

Linnet Muling (P. Kent).—A two-year-old Linnet and a last-year Yorkshire hen Canary would be a quite suitable couple to mate up. There is no reason why you should not get Mules from them. I presume that by "ordinary breeding cage" you mean a single-compartment one or box pattern; if so, this should answer very well. If the Linnet misbehaves (interferes with the eggs, or the hen while she is sitting, or pulls the nest to pieces), you will have to remove him, and let him in with the hen only for a short time (half or one hour) night and morning, after she is building, and until she begins to sit. Look out for CAGE BIRDS coming book on "Hybrid Breeding."

Two Points (M. W. B.)—You can try the Goldfinch again, certainly. Often at the second season of trial a Goldfinch will fertilise eggs, notwithstanding the fact that the year before he proved a failure. He needs to be in breeding condition, of course. And it is of no use to part him from the hen Canary too quickly; he must be given a fair chance. Often second nest eggs prove full after those of the first round have been clear. Canaries hatched last June can certainly be bred with during the coming season.

A Loss and a Mating (Novice).—Cases have been put on record of birds fretting for a departed mate, and pining away. It is very difficult for me to say, of course; still, there seems to be the possibility that your hen Bullie died of a "broken heart." Birds when ailing often turn very spiteful. The only bird I could recommend as a mate for the hen Chaffinch with any certainty (judging from past records) of producing young, is a cock Bramblefinch. The suggested cross with the cock Linnet would be most interesting, but has never yet been tried with success. Feed as recommended "Trio" last week, giving the hen Chaffinch a little soft food containing ants' eggs.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Catedonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 2s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

A. T. W.—Replied by post.

Miss E. Liman.—I gather more from the history you give me than from the actual post-mortem examination, the reason for the the cause of the death. It is what is known as over-sweating, which occasionally occurs when the young are early hatched, and the hen is apt to nest too long, from early evening on becoming dark, until late next morning. To obviate this trouble it is advisable to provide some artificial light during the evening or night, and I take it you did not adopt this precaution. The dieting was perfectly correct in every way, and had nothing whatever to do with your loss; but I think that the white as well as the yolk of egg might be advantageously used, with an equal part of bread-crumbs from the first. This is a method condemned by many fanciers, but personally I have no fault to find with it. Other authorities, again, suggest using only half the white and the whole of the yolk. It is not at all an easy matter to differentiate the sexes. Not infrequently I have birds submitted to me as cock birds, which on autopsy prove to be hens. Some breeds, of course, are very distinctive, and their sex readily recognised, whilst others, again, are most confusing. The disappearance of the fourth egg in such a mysterious manner savours something of legerdemain, for very few Canaries ever interfere with their eggs, whilst Finches are very guilty in this respect; so I am afraid I am unable to solve this problem for you.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Shows and Societies (Captain Starlight).—The show season proper is at an end, and the only fixtures between now and next October will be those of such agricultural, etc., societies, which provide a few classes for cage birds. Watch our show advertisement columns (and reviews of schedules) for particulars of these. The secretary of Windsor C.B.S. is Mr. C. A. Stickland, 38, Alma Road, Windsor; and of the Reading C.B.S., Mr. W. H. Pyke, 25, The Grove, Reading. Either of these gentlemen will give you particulars of his society. If you become a member you will be able to stage a few birds at the members' shows, which affords valuable "training" for the attempt to capture prizes at the open shows; further, you will be able to discuss the merits and failings of the birds with your fellow-members, and pick up many valuable hints in so doing. Glad to hear you "swear by" our paper. Competition result will appear shortly.

Cage Front Making (F. Western). — Many thanks for your helpful letter; we will have a drawing made to accompany it.

Mule Breeding (W. J. Stagg).—Thanks for your interesting communication. Pleased to hear from you at any time. We hope you will have luck with the birds. Readers will enjoy the account of your experiences.

A Cutting (R. W. Higginson).—Thanks for the newspaper cutting, and your kindly remarks.

Stocking an Aviary (Beginner).—In a place like yours you could keep either hardy Canaries or Foreign birds, or British birds, or a suitable mixed series. The choice depends entirely upon your own taste. If you will decide, then one or other of specialists will be glad to assist you.

A Photograph (A. F. Fifield).—Thanks; we will certainly find a corner for it in one of our supplements.

A Cutting (J. A. Taylor).—Many thanks.

Collection (W. Priest).—We are very much obliged to you.

A Change of Secretary (J. Graham).—Your letter is of much too personal a nature; we could not publish it in its present form.

Prizemoney and a Returned Cheque (J. H. Barber).—We have communicated direct with the secretary and await his explanation.

Illustrated Ideas (A. B. Allardyce).—Have given this method before; it appears, too, in one of the books we publish. (H. T. Kelsall).—We have given a similar perch before; many readers send this in, almost weekly.

The Preston and Flowers Fund (W. Burbidge).—We shall have pleasure in making it clear that the society is a Leicester one. We have not got out any collecting forms or other printed matter in connection with this fund. We did not think it would be necessary to incur the expense; the response has been very gratifying.

A Thrush and its Food (G. Smith).—If you obtained a copy of our "Nutshell" booklet on the Thrush (2½d. post free) we think you would find in it all the information you seek.

THE ART OF STAGING.

A Lecture Delivered by Mr. H. NORMAN before the City and Suburban A.C.B. on February 28th.

"A Cage Bird Staging Competition" was the title given to a small evening show held by the City and Suburban A.C.B. at the Church Institute on Feb. 28th. The prizes were: Two silver medals and one bronze, and a bronze medal for the usual judging competition. There was a goodly number of entries, including several varieties of Canaries, and British and Foreign birds. The judge for the evening was Mr. H. Norman, who, previous to commenting upon the exhibits, made a few remarks respecting the subject of staging.

The Art Analysed.

He said he had visited many shows and gatherings connected with the Fancy, but this was the first competition of the kind he had ever attended, and it was with considerable diffidence he undertook the task of awarding the medals. Staging, he said, was the art of showing an exhibit to the very best advantage, and placing it before the judge in such a condition as to command and compel his attention. The bird must be clean and in high fettle, the perches placed in the best position to enable the bird to show itself off to the greatest advantage, and the cage must be perfectly clean and fresh. The bird and the cage, as a whole, should make up a perfect picture. It is not desirable to place a clean bird in a dirty cage, or a dirty bird in a clean cage; the two must go together.

Frequently Overlooked.

Staging is a branch of the Fancy frequently overlooked, especially by novices. Many of them hardly realise the importance of properly exhibiting a good bird. It is no uncommon sight to see exhibits at shows securing third prize or v.h.c. card which would have stood higher if shown as they should be. The speaker mentioned a case where he was judging a class of hybrids. Two grand Goldfinch-Bullfinches were among the exhibits, but they were so dirty and badly shown that he was compelled to leave them cardless. The owner of the birds afterwards expressed surprise at this action, saying that he thought such rare crosses should win without washing or without his having anything special done to the cage. At the next show this exhibitor was more successful, as he made a fairly creditable attempt at showing his birds to the best advantage. A badly-staged bird forced itself upon the attention of the judge quite as much as one properly shown, and he almost unconsciously gradually worked a badly-staged one down the row away from the leading birds.

Considerable Progress.

The speaker ventured to express an opinion that the art of staging had made considerable progress during the last ten years, for which fanciers had in a great measure to thank the Fancy Press, and the increased number of shows where visiting exhibitors were constantly having the need of good staging brought before them. The competition now in all branches was so keen that any little item likely to advance an exhibit should not be neglected.

During his visits to shows in different parts of the country, the speaker had had ample opportunities of studying the subject, and his impression was that the Northern fanciers were slightly ahead of those in the South in the matter of cleaner staging.

The Best and Worst Staged Birds.

In the Canary section he thought the Border fanciers were slightly in advance of others. There was such a levelness of typo and general excellence of feather, and absence of competition in size (as existed in the cases of Yorkshires and Norwich) that condition and staging played a very important part, extra cleverness in this direction frequently turning the scale. Another variety that needed proper staging was the Yorkshire. The bird was nothing if not shown at its best. This fact undoubtedly kept the exhibitors of this handsome bird alive to all the advantages gained by skilful exhibiting, the number of shows in the Yorkshire district enabling novices and amateurs to study easily the best ways of showing their birds.

London fanciers staged their birds well, especially the British and Hybrids, also some varieties of Canaries. He thought that the Irish exhibitors had still something to learn in this branch of the Fancy. This he attributed in a great measure to their shows being patronised only by Irish fanciers; they needed outside competition and example to enable them to improve in the art.

As the Borders and Yorkshires were the best staged varieties, so he considered the Norwich the worst. Unsuitable sized cages, perches too high or too close together, with backgrounds to the cages that did not show the inmate to the best advantage, were common everyday failings. A Norwich Canary did not require to be up in the roof of the cage, nor did it need two perches to rest on, one for its feet and one for its tail. It was very doubtful, he said, if the exhibition cage were now quite suited to the modern Norwich Canary. Within the last ten to fifteen years there had been a great advance in the size and bulk of the bird, but no corresponding improvement in the cage. This was a matter that should receive attention at the hands of the specialist clubs of this popular variety.

A Practical Suggestion.

In the British bird and Hybrid sections, too, there was room for more individuality and taste in the matter of staging than in the Canary sections. There was such diversity of colour, shape and size in the exhibits that a clever fancier could considerably enhance these qualities by skilful staging. The importance of correctly-coloured backgrounds was felt more in this section than in any other, and fanciers could not study the matter too closely, nor make too many tests before deciding upon the most suitable one. For this purpose he advised a cage with a movable back, so that different tints could be tried; this cage would only be for trial, and not for exhibition purposes..

Commenting upon the exhibits of the evening, he said the first prize was given to a Goldfinch shown by Mr. Thrower. This, he thought, was well shown. The cage and perches were of suitable size, the seed trough placed in such a position as not to cramp the bird, and the exhibit as a whole was a satisfactory one. Second prize went to a Mynah shown by Mr. W. Shepherd. The cage, Mr. Norman thought, was a trifle too large for the bird, and appeared somewhat out of proportion to the size of the inmate, although the lightly-tinted background suited it admirably. Mr. W. Sanders annexed the third prize with a nicely-shown clear Crest-bred, in a cage with a richly-coloured background, which showed up the bird to perfection. The judge thought the front rail might with advantage be made half-an-inch deeper to raise the perches a shade higher, so as to keep the bird's tail clear of the floor. The v.h.c. card went to Miss Rose Shephard for a Zebra Finch, very tastefully shown with a suitable background to the cage and natural twigs. The wires of the cage, however, were a shade too close together to allow an uninterrupted view of the bird. The h.c. card was won by Mr. S. Turner, for a Yorkshire, nicely put down, but which required a new set of perches; commended, Mr. F. Curry, for a Goldfinch, a good exhibit, the cage of nice size for the bird, which, however, hardly appears in such good condition as the winner.

In answer to questions the judge said the Greenfinches were shown in cages with unsuitable backgrounds. For non-fed birds he considered light grey blue grounds the best, and these should be flat, all the polish being required on the bird. The same background did not suit a buff and a yellow Norwich, as the buff bird required a greater contrast to show up the quality of feather and meal. A uniform colour for Norwich birds was, in his opinion, quite a mistake, as some took the feed better than others.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Birds and their Friends.

We were one year very fortunate in possessing two birds, one a pretty little Whitethroat, and the other a Starling. The Whitethroat flew into our front door, and, of course, we caged it up. The Starling flew in the shop in which my father works. It had evidently just left the nest. Needless to say, they received every attention, and became two pets, and quite reconciled to their home.—Sent by John Nicholson (age 14), 6, Weardale Place, Stockton-on-Tees.

*Parental Regard.

A number of school boys were wandering about the great park near here recently, when one of them found a Blackbird's nest, with young ones in it. He soon made prize of it, and was taking it home, when the cry of their young was heard by the old birds, and notwithstanding the noise of the boys, they did not desert the helpless young, but kept near them for three miles, flying from tree to tree. This circumstance made the boy place the young birds in a cage, which he hung outside the house. Here they were fed by their parents. As the birds grew the boy sold them, until they were all disposed of. The morning after the last bird went, the female Blackbird was found dead beneath the cage in which her young ones had been confined, as if she had been unable to survive their loss.—Sent by David T. Dyer, Mountain Hare, Pencoed, near Bridgend, Glam.

Bobbie's Fearlessness.

One morning as I was alone reading by the fire, the door ajar, a little Robin hopped just in. I sat quite still, and he flew on to the picture and looked round. I thought I would catch him, but he looked so happy and bright. I set the door open wide, and he flew out again. —Sent by May Johnson (age 11), Poplar Gardens, Aylsham Road, Norwich.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—I use linen thread (Knox's Kilburn 22a), 3s. lb.; ask your draper for same. I make my nets of ¾in. mesh, 70 mesh wide, 10 yards long, using a 4ft. 9in. staff; and I dye them brown with cutch, which I get at a chemist. These nets take 1½lbs. of thread, take 5 hours to make a yard, and last for about ten years. I should be very much obliged if some of your readers would give the working of Lark night nets.

Prize-money at Oakengates Show.

SIR,—I thank the secretaries of Oakengates Show—Mr. G. Ward and Mr. A. Brothwood—for their kind offer to pay my prize money out of their pockets. Of course, I cannot entertain this offer, neither would I retain the money even if the society itself paid me, as I now quite believe the money was sent to me. One of the rules in the Oakengates schedule stated that prize-money would be paid within 28 days, so, of course, I did not think of writing until that time had nearly expired, that being the reason they did not hear from me sooner. I know neither of the above gentlemen personally, and when I say I only received one single postcard on the subject, I think readers of CAGE BIRDS, will agree that I was quite justified in stating my case in the Fancy Press. If the secretaries desire it, I will send them privately the name and address of the gentleman who told me of another person who had not received his prize-money. I could not doubt this gentleman's word, as I believe he is well respected where he lives; but if the person whose name he gave me has not complained to the secretaries, all I can say is that he is not acting in an honourable way. I might state that if I am not exhibiting elsewhere when Oakengates hold their next show, I shall certainly support them and that their society may be a success is my sincere wish.

WILLIAM P. BELL.

Father and His Canaries.

SIR,—My father has a great many birds, such as Canaries and Goldfinches, and also a Mule. He has mostly Canaries, and they are all Norwich. He says he likes them better than any other breed, because they are more beautiful in colour and shape. My mother often says he is "bird mad"; she tells him she will get a bed and an easy-chair and put in his bird-room, because he spends so much of his time in watching them. When they come back from the shows with prizes she cannot help smiling, and my father looks as if to say, "Now I have got my own back." Every year he carries away a great many prizes, and only two birds this year came back from the shows without cards on their cages. Before he shows them he has to wash them, and the first time I saw him wash them I thought the dear little things were going to die; but when they are put by the fire to dry they are very soon lively again. Very often he has let one loose, but he has always had enough luck in catching them, and brings them home in his pocket. Last year he let one fly away, and it took him a long time to catch it, but the very same bird had 1st prize at Swindon. He feeds them every day on Canary, rape, hemp, niger, lin. and maw seeds, and gold of pleasure, etc. They are very fond of sweet apple, and in the summer they have other green food, such as lettuce, dandelions, groundsel, and watercress. As soon as my father sees one go a little puffy, he gives it bread-and-milk with a little maw-seed on the top, and they very soon recover. During their moult they are fed on eggs, Osborne biscuits, breadcrumbs, and colour-food mixed.

LILIAN SCHNEIDER (11 years.)

On a Sunday Afternoon.

SIR,—After doing justice to a good dinner I started upon an afternoon's stroll, leaving the tiny village of Astley Abbotts with its ancient church which bears the date of 1633, and which had its share of trouble during the troublesome times of Cromwell. I make towards the longest river in Britain, and to my mind the most beautiful, and I have seen a few. Before reaching its banks I pass the cottage of my nearest fancier friend, and here I am always welcome, and he being like myself a regular reader of CAGE BIRDS, many are the friendly chats we have over the show reports and articles therein. I journey on, and at last reach the River Severn, and take a walk along the river side in the direction of Coalport. Now I am getting among the birds; it is winter, but there are plenty of birds about. Some Longtailed Tits are busy looking for minute insects hidden away in the tiny crevices of the bare branches. I come to a house that once was a public-house, and gloried in the name of "The Wren's Nest" (that was in the time of the barges, when they used to ply on the river, but the iron horse has stopped all this traffic). But the good lady of this house keeps Goldfinches, that favourite bird of the proud Salopians, and called by them the seven-coloured Linnet. A little further on are some more Tits; this time they are Coal Tits. This Tit, like the Marsh Tit, is rather shy, and not so often seen as the Great Tit and the Blue Tit. The two latter are as bold and cheeky as militant suffragettes. Further on my journey I disturb some wild ducks, and away they fly further along the river. On I go, and at last Coalport is reached, noted for its famous china. Here the Severn is spanned by a bridge, nearly 100 years old, and to go over you have still to pay toll. It is now time for me to return home, and on my journey back I come across some Golden-crested Wrens, tiny feathered mites, busy searching among the branches for food before they go to roost. This bird and the pretty little Tree-creeper, I believe, suffer more than any other of our British birds during a severe winter, and I know for a fact that the little Gold Crests can be caught by your hands during a spell of hard weather. I at last arrive home in time for tea, having had a very enjoyable walk.

WILLIAM P. BELL.

The Making of Egg-food.

SIR,—I should like to ask Mr. W. J. Clarke whether he means the egg to be hard boiled or not boiled at all. If the latter, then I should think that, provided the young birds thrived on it, it would be the ideal way for fanciers who only have a few birds, and who do not use a whole egg every day, as what was left each day night perhaps be dried after the manner suggested by Mr. E. Floyd, and used after the young had left the nest and were getting on to hard seed or ready for colour feeding. An answer to this would add one more to the many useful hints I have obtained from CAGE BIRDS.

P. RAFFERTY.

SIR,—Re W. J. Clark's letter concerning the above; if he was highly amused at the account of the competition, it was rather amusing to me to read his remarks. He says the appliances used by the competitors were of a contaminating nature. I beg to inform him, as winner of the competition, that the appliances used by myself and other competitors were far different from what he surmises them to be. I very much doubt if Mr. Clark could describe the sieve used by me. I cannot see how he can criticise unless he was an eye witness; but if he was so, he had the opportunity of suggesting any improved method. Therefore, there was no need for him to air his views in the Press. Or does he think that by so doing he is popularising his name as the champion egg-food maker? There is no orthodox way of making egg-food. Every fancier has his own way, and each one, as in Mr. Clark's case, thinks his own the best. If Mr. Clark had some 60 birds to cater for, his method would keep him busy picking up the pieces from the floor, as there is not much room in a marmalade jar. Mr. C. is very confident on his winning the competition had he competed. I should advise him to join the City and Suburban A.C.B. and enter for the next competition; but I should like to inform him that the competition is not for method only, but for quality and time. I very much doubt if he would have been in the first six had he entered. I should like to advise him to use a large basin; he would have more room, and it would save a lot of time; unless the quality of the food depends on a 1lb. marmalade pot being used. Also, I should like him to give us fanciers a little idea of the drop required for the egg.

Substitutes for Eggs.

SIR,—In view of the coming breeding season, I think it would be very interesting to hear the experiences of some of your readers who have been successful in breeding birds without the use of the old fashioned food, viz., eggs and bread or biscuit, using instead some other preparations.

A. SLATER.

Is Early Breeding Disastrous?

SIR,—I should be glad if you would kindly allow me to state that in the last two issues of CAGE BIRDS I notice accounts of early breeding, and I think this is very misleading to novices. Two years ago I saw the same thing; I tried early breeding, and it proved disastrous. When fanciers are writing about early breeding, I think they ought to state if the room is heated, as I don't think you can breed good class birds in January or February in a cold room. I hope to hear of other fanciers' opinions.

H. BENNETT.

The New Society for Chopping ton and District.

SIR,—Seeing that Mr. Woollett in his letter of last week distinctly points to me as being the writer of the "Admirer" letter, I beg of him to understand he has saddled the wrong horse this time. "Admirer" is still at large. Perhaps Mr. Woollett can answer me a couple of questions: Why, firstly as a member, secondly as an officer of the society (treasurer), and thirdly as the principal financial supporter of the club, I was not informed of the change that was to be made, also, why he has taken possession of, and carried away, the books of the Choppington and District C.B.S.?

E. B. ATKINSON.

The New Society for Codnor Park.

SIR,—Seeing "Nom-de-plume's" letter in your valuable paper I can truthfully say that the members of the Selston Society (Cage Bird section) numbered ten, and seven of them resigned the same time as Mr. Mitchell, and that was fully a week before the formation of the Codnor Park Society (which I am pleased to say is flourishing). I hope this will convince "Nom-de-plume" that the majority did resign; also that Mr. Mitchell sent in his resignation which was read out before the members of the Selston Society at their meeting, but I venture to say that "Nom-de-plume" was not present at the time.

ONE PRESENT.

SIR,—I see in your valuable paper a letter from Mr. Mitchell in reply to "Nom-de-plume." It does not matter whether a majority of cage bird fanciers resigned or not. We are only a new society, having held only three meetings previous to the one referred to in Mr. Mitchell's letter. I can safely say that no 7 members who had paid their entrance fee resigned. And as for Mr. Mitchell giving up, it could not be termed a resignation. He simply sent a letter stating that if we did not take the society down to the Portland Arms, we could cross his name off the books. Now I consider this kind of letter very unfancier-like and unsportsmanlike. Had Mr. Mitchell sent in a respectful resignation, and not a threat, it would have saved all unpleasantness.

W. N. BOOTH.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Mitchell's letter of the 12th Feb., I am leaving it over till later, when I will state all the affairs between us. So I ask Mr. Mitchell if he will kindly send me the minutes from the first meeting up to Jan. 8th, 1910, with the list of names which was taken at the first meeting, and also the letter which was sent by him to be read out at the meeting on Jan. 8th, 1910. I shall be very much obliged if he will kindly do so, and then I will state whether I am wrong on the majority or whether Mr. Mitchell is.

F. MALTBY, Hon. Sec.

SIR,—At first I did not intend "entering the fray" connected with the above society, which seems to have arisen through want of forethought by Mr. Mitchell in regard to his first letter to your valuable paper; but on perusing his last pamphlet of inaccuracies I feel it my duty—as one of the committee to whom his challenge is thrown—to accept it, which I do with pleasure. Now, Mr. Mitchell, you say the majority of Cage-bird fanciers resigned our society (Selston and District) along with you, and you defy anyone to prove the contrary. This I do emphatically and absolutely. To be exact, the number of Cage-bird fanciers that had joined our society up to the time of your resignation, Sir, was four—i.e., Messrs. Simpson, Bacon, Maltby, and Mitchell. Messrs. Bacon and Maltby are still members, which equally divides the number, as it was then. Hence I congratulate you on your misrepresentation of the real facts. We are well aware of your letter containing your resignation being read out, and shall have pleasure in forwarding copy of same to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS if need be, which will enable others to judge of the spirit in which the above is couched, but we should like to know—1st, Is the secretary empowered to dictate to the committee, of which you give us an example; 2ndly, Who authorised you to get "The Portland Arms" club room for us?

Hints on the Rearing of Birds.

SIR,—Seeing in CAGE BIRDS that Mr. Priestley will give advice to any bird fancier who may write to him, I should be very glad if he would kindly give the same. I should like to know how he rears his birds, and also his method of Mule breeding. This is my first year, and I shall be thankful for any advice Mr. Priestley will give me.

A. FLACK.

SIR,—Having read Mr. Priestley's reply in CAGE BIRDS re "Can Canaries be taught the Nightingale's Song?" I should be ever so glad if he would give me his method of breeding and feeding Linnet and Canary Mules, as I am putting up three pairs. This being my first attempt, the information through CAGE BIRDS would be very thankfully received.

Mice in the Bird-room.

SIR,—The best preventive I ever had for mice I picked up in the entry at the rear of our house, and she was a beauty, "Tortoise-shell," and, as one of my neighbours once said, she was a "lady cat." I had her three or four years before I kept birds, and when I started with birds I put an empty cage on the kitchen table and put the cat on too, and just tapped her nose and said, What's going in there is not for you. She would go up to the bird room with me, and when I cleaned them out would sit on a chair and watch me. Should one get out of cage, she would watch it fly about but never attempt to touch it. I have shut her in the room for over two hours (not knowing she was there), and cages within 18 inches of the floor, but not a feather has she touched. I fed her well, and treated her like one of the family, and she well repaid me for it. Last year, I am sorry to say, I had to kill her for, owing to old age, she got vicious, and if any children came into the house she would scratch them. To those who would rid themselves of mice, I say, get a cat, treat her as you would your birds, and you will be well repaid.

Help Wanted from Skylark Keepers.

SIR,—Having read in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, Mr. J. Souls' (of the Midland Counties' Skylark Society) method of feeding his Larks, will he kindly state whether he cooks the peas when ground? Having followed his recipe I am told the peas ought to have been baked in the oven.

Wanted: a Roller Club for West Hartlepool.

SIR,—I have been much interested in the correspondence in your paper on the above subject. As secretary of the Hartlepools C.B.S. I give all interested in the movement a most hearty welcome to our next meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, on April 6th, at 8 p.m. I may state that I am leaving the meeting open (after the ordinary business) for the furtherance of the project, and all who care to come will find themselves amongst friends. I may state that I have been in communication with Mr. Lamb, Mr. Steel and others, and the feeling is in favour of adding a Roller section to the above society. Now then, Linnet fanciers, could you not do the same? One word, and I am there.

The Type of the Belgian Canary —Past and Present.

SIR,—Am writing to thank your able correspondent, Mr. T. Smith, for the remarks made in the last paragraph of his article re Belgian and Scotch Fancy Canaries. I consider that the time has arrived to decide what is to be done to preserve the Belgian proper as a distinct and useful variety. The treatment it is receiving and has received on the show bench is something all true fanciers may come to regret; in fact, so far as I know it has driven some of the breed's principal friends out of the Fancy altogether. One who spent hundreds of pounds in getting up a stock was thoroughly disgusted with the treatment his birds received at a leading Scotch Show; he remarked to me that the birds he showed against were nothing but first crosses with the Scotch Fancy. For the same reason another has not shown for two seasons. Nor is it surprising when the thing is so plain. Indeed, so distinct are the Belgian and Scotch Fancy breeds that a novice can distinguish them. Your critic's report upon one of the principal Scottish shows reads, re the Belgian classes: "1st, splendid bird, a first cross;" whilst I also had pointed out to me a bird that had been placed first in both Scotch Fancy and Belgian classes. Now, I contend that the judging is at fault; and till judges can be found with backbone enough to relegate all first crosses to the top shelf, the same will occur again until the breed is altogether destroyed. I may remark here that other fanciers use the pure Belgian for crossing the Yorkshire, for instance, but the first cross is never seen at a show. I understand that fanciers use it in a legitimate way, and do not try to steal the variety altogether. In writing this I have no other interest than the welfare of the old-fashioned type of bird. And Mr. Smith has my thanks for drawing attention to the matter. May judges of each variety henceforth relegate to their deserved places all first and second crosses, no matter by whom exhibited. I have little opportunity of meeting other Belgian exhibitors, but hope some of them may be good enough to give their views through CAGE BIRDS, so that means may be taken to preserve what the late Mr. Blakston called the "King of the Fancy."

How Nets are Made.

SIR,—In reply to "Amateur Catcher," the best nets I have found for practical use are the clap nets—two yards long and 5ft. poles, ¾in. mesh, with about a foot of lint (or loose net). You will find this size works well without the pulleys on, unless it is a very rough wind. I don't care for a shorter pair for Linnet catching, as when a flight swoops down you want to catch them on the wing, or you stand a good chance of not getting any. As to how much netting you can do in an hour, that depends on what rate you can tie the knots. I use the underhand knot the same as Mr. Biscoe (I don't like the over-hand one), and can tie 1,500 in an hour, using a ¾in. mesh. You will soon see how much if you calculate up a foot, and take the number of knots you can do in an hour.

The Scottish Plainhead Club Show Cages.

SIR,—Would you kindly allow me a few words regarding this club cage question? In the first place Mr. Aitchison has to be commended for the interest he takes in the S.P.C., but I do not think he has considered well what his motion involves to most of the members who do not trouble about the S.P.C. medals and specials. I for one do not care for the club cage. As a breeder and exhibitor, I think it is too large for the Norwich Plainhead; it encourages the long-sided bird in more ways than one; therefore I discard it altogether for showing my Plainheads in. If it is the case that the cage is judged, as Mr. A infers, why not adopt Mr. Macfarlane's last year's motion in regard to the cages? It seems it will come to that, as the club cage has not done away with the "marked" cage. I was sorry I could not be at the S.P.C. meeting last Saturday to have given a personal protest against Mr. A's motion, but I hope it was defeated. I have no doubt about Mr. Aitchison's sincerity towards the welfare of the club, but if the motion was carried, it would mean the loss of one-half the members, as I know plenty of members like myself who never use the cage. The hardship is if we remain as members we cannot be allowed to exhibit at any show except we use the club cage. Working men fanciers cannot afford to buy new pattern club cages every year or two. It seems to me that the evil is worked just the same as previous to the adoption of the cage. As an instance I have been told by a judge (while lifting down birds for medals) not to bring a certain bird as it got a medal at a show previous to ours, and he had never seen a catalogue. In my opinion it should have been out of the tickets for bad staging. It is no use trying to stamp the evil out; it will go on till the end of the chapter. Show committees can stop it to a certain extent, but a club cage—never.

How Should Eggs be Kept?

SIR,—I have read many roports in your valuable paper of lectures given on the breeding of Canaries, and in nearly every one the lecturer tells us that he takes the first three eggs away; but I have never noticed one say how he keeps them to give the best result, whether on their small ends or on their sides. I daresay many novices, like myself, would be glad to hear from some of the more experienced fanciers on this point.

The New Society for Polmont and District.

SIR,—Our first meeting was held on March 5, when a dozen fanciers responded to our appeal for members. It was agreed to make the radius 15 miles, and the entrance fee 6s., and no charge for exhibits at show. The society is to be called the Polmont and District Cage Bird Society. Our next meeting will be held in Ritchie's Tea Rooms, at 7 p.m., on the 19th March, when all intending members are requested to attend.

Is the Bullfinch-Chaffinch Cross Possible?

SIR,—Can any of your readers inform me if such a cross has been tried or produced as the Bullfinch-Chaffinch? Having purchased birds this season off a catcher, he came to see me on a recent evening, and during conversation informed me that he had one of his cock Bullfinches (caught about a month ago) crossed with a hen Chaffinch which he caught about a fortnight ago. I had some of the birds out of each batch. As the hen Chaffinch was seen to pick up and carry something about, some cotton waste was put in the cage and a nest was soon commenced. The cock Bullfinch was seen to pair off on several occasions. The pair have built a nest in a box made of deal about the depth of a cigar box. The cage is made from a box about 27in. high, 18in. wide, and about 12in. back to front. It is kept in a corner (rather dark and quiet) of a small room next to the living room of a cottage. The catcher has also a hen Bullfinch which he has been using as a call bird to catch with for some time. It is in an aviary in the garden, with wire netting front and side. It has laid two eggs, and built a nest in a box similar to the others, and with cotton waste. The catcher has two cock brown Linnets, a hen Bullie, and a cock Yellowhammer flying about in the same aviary. These birds have recently been caught. Is it a record for fresh-caught Britishers to nest so early, especially the Bullfinch and Chaffinch cross?

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—With regard to the above correspondence, in my opinion there are faults on both the judges' and exhibitors' sides. Here we have Mr. Fuller thanking a few fanciers for voicing their feelings at the Lancashire C.A. meeting on the Crest-cum-Lancashire being exhibited and winning at various shows under the patronage of the Lancashire C.A. Then we have Mr. Adams who distinctly states that, as a "test case," he exhibited one of these Crest-cum-Lancashires in the first instance, and was fortunate in securing a prize. Then I suppose, like Oliver Twist, he was longing for more. He sends the same bird out, I understand, four more times (as test cases), the fourth time he states that it was rightly put down. By the way, it would be interesting to know if the points this particular bird won were credited to him for the medal competition of the L.C.A.; if so, I consider that he knowingly exhibited at several shows a bird that was not a Lancashire show bird, according to rules. It ought not, therefore, to count for points for medals. Further, what is the use of insisting upon the judges to take particular notice of type when members of this society exhibit birds that ought never to be run in a show cage? By keeping this class of bird at home, they would invariably help to stamp out that ill-feeling which is caused through seeing a Crest-cum-Lancashire in the winners, also at the same time greatly assist the judges in their judicial duties. I must admit it is very curious reading that Mr. Adams, after exhibiting this bird, also moves that all secretaries have a standard list to present to the judge—I presume for him (the judge) to take more notice of points and type. Probably the show season of 1910 will see more upright and horseshoe coppies than in the last few years winning on the show bench. Then Mr. Fuller, who, I believe, is an old fancier, will be able to secure some prizes. But if I was Mr. Fuller (seeing that he has made up his mind to go in for Crest breeding), I should just experiment with a Crest and Lancashire. I guess he will be able to gather that introducing a leggy bird with plenty of head to a Lancashire comes in very handy at times. But don't show it until you have got the crest out of it again, or else it will be another "test case," and I should not like to see Mr. Fuller winning at every show with "test cases," no matter whether they be coppies or Plainheads, after his 20 or 30 years in the Lancashire Fancy.

HORSESHOE.

SIR,—I was glad when I opened my paper, CAGE BIRDS, to see there was one who took an interest in the Lancashire. Thanking Mr. Fuller for his remarks, I send you the standard and the type that the Lancashire C.A. work to. The typical Lancashire should be a large bird of good length and stoutness, and should stand boldly and well up on perch. The coppy differs from the crest, inasmuch as it should lie at the back of the neck, falling off so evenly as to leave no trace of roughness. The coppy must be neat and well packed with feathers, with no split or other break in its formation. The shoulders should be broad, the back and tail long, and the chest bold and wide. The bird should move with ease and elegance. Its legs should be long and sturdy in appearance. When standing upright in the cage the tail should droop slightly curved.

The properties of the Plainhead Lancashire are the same as in the case of the coppy, except as regards the head. This in the plainhead should be broad and long and have overhanging eyebrows, giving what is generally termed a sulky appearance to the bird. The feathers on the head should be plentiful and good in the quality (not to be wiped or tucked up behind the eye, because it is a bad fault). A good Lancashire should not stand across the perch nor should it possess a hollow, which means not filled in at the back of neck. I think I have given the Lancashire fanciers the correct type as near as can be got. I will now appeal to all Lancashire fanciers to join the Lancashire Canary Association, which I think it is their place to do to make one strong society. I will now give you our standard: Head, coppy, 25; neck, for fullness and thickness, 10; back, round, full and long, 10; wings, meeting at tips, 5; length of bird, 20; quality of feathers, 5; position, upstanding, 10; colour, 5; condition and cleanliness, 10; making a total of 100 points. I hope to see more fanciers take an interest in the grand bird.

Will Tame Bullfinches Breed in Captivity?

SIR,—With regard to tame Bullfinches breeding in captivity, I should like a few lines in your paper to place before your readers an experience I had some three years ago with a pair of tame but newly-caught Bullfinches and Hedge-Sparrows. I put them in a large aviary (6ft. by 19ft. by 6ft.) containing small shrubs and undergrowth early in spring. As time went on both the hen Bullfinch and Hedge-Sparrow built nests, and in due season their clutches of eggs were deposited. Then they began to sit, but in a few days the cock Bullfinch, intruding on the Hedge-Sparrow's preserves, went and destroyed both the eggs and nest. At this I was very annoyed, but it turned out to be a blessing in disguise as will be seen later. After the appointed time the Bullfinch hatched three chicks. These she tended with great care for the first day or two, then she became rather slack in her maternal duties, not brooding the chicks as much as she ought. Evidently the bereft Hedge-Sparrow saw this and took upon herself, at her own free will, the duty of protecting the young and helpless birds, brooding them continually. At this the pair of Bullfinches were quite satisfied, but continued to feed their young well, which, of course, the Hedge-Sparrow being an insectivorous bird, could not do. This continued until the young birds were able to look after themselves (thanks to the attention of their kind foster-mother). The Hedge-Sparrow was quite tame, allowing me to go and look through the bush at her, but unfortunately she could not bring herself to face the camera. To verify these statements I might quote the name of a well-known fancier, Mr. A. C. Brotherhood, under whose notice this strange quartet were brought.

THE CRISIS IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

SIR,—I beg to inform you that the Rochdale "Good Intent" C.B.S. have withdrawn from the Cage Bird Union. At a well-attended meeting called for the purpose, I may say it was unanimously (with the exception of two, one of whom was neutral) decided to withdraw.

WM. ADAMS,
Hon. Sec. Rochdale "G. I." C.B.S.

SIR,—A meeting of the Newcastle C.B.S. is called for March 17th for the purpose of deciding whether we retain our membership of the C.B.U. or not. A good attendance of members is requested, that the question may be considered in all its bearings.

T. C. CRAWHALE, Hon. Secretary.

SIR,—As a member of the Cage Bird Union I would like to know if the Executive Council are asleep. Wake up, ye sluggards. Know ye not the enemy is nigh? To arms! to arms! defend yourselves or ye shall surely die. Wake up! wake up; the North's aflame, the West's astir, the South deserts, the Midlands take the rebels cry. Have ye no valiant knight. Awake to take the fight? No warrior fit to give our foeman steel? Your cause is good, your cause is true; strike out, strike out, with all your might, Before the foe o'erwhelms you. Wake up, wake up, the Palace feed, Will surely give the strength you need To put the Rebels down. And if ye craven wretches fear To brave the fight, Get off this sphere; Dying the coward's death In sweet oblivion rest. Let others take your place To wield the sword, With might for right, To triumph in the end. I am not surprised at rebellion breaking out; I have been a member now for two years, and have never seen the rules by which I am governed, and no balance sheet. Where do the funds get to? Buying feather beds and blankets. May the Council rest in peace and no red mite break their sleep. But, in spite of all, I am in favour of the C.B.U. if they would get out of bed and bestir themselves. A lot of good work remains to be done, and if the members of the C.B.U. would gossip less behind each others' backs in the various bird markets, and would report what they say they know, the C.B.U. would flourish and become the power for good it ought to be in the Fancy. The man who knows and hides a crime is worse than the criminal. I find those who gossip most, and those who run the C.B.U. down hardest, are those who if they did their duty first to themselves and second to their fellow-fanciers, by reporting what they know, could do the C.B.U. most good. Hoping that some abler pen than mine (one from the Council) will with fortitude defend the right, to triumph in the end

FORTITER DEFENDIT TRIUMPHANS.

SIR,—I was very pleased to see in your last issue that District No 7 had decided to remain loyal to the Cage Bird Union, and that they intend to help carry out the rules. If all other districts will do the same, the officials will have a pleasant time of it. Of course, there will be plenty of work, but with the support of the members, work can be gone through cheerfully, because it will have a good result. "Apple Tree's" letter asks a lot of point-blank questions which are very deserving of answers by all concerned. Personally I think societies will find it will pay them to support the C.B.U. and help to carry out its rules. "Reason's" letter deserves careful thought, and I would commend it to Mr. C. J. Robinson, and Mr. W. McKail, especially the reference to the difference betwixt the Yorkshire Union and the proposed Lancashire Society. I should like to ask Mr. McKail if he has thought out the probable result of a series of county unions each working on its own? In one respect they would be very similar to the present system of District Committees, but they would have the disadvantage of not having a central court of appeal, and surely, Mr. McKail, you will recognise that it is very often advantageous that the trial of a case should be taken entirely away from local interests and prejudices? Again, if unions are to be multiplied, there is bound to be increased expenditure, as every union would cost pretty well as much as the present C.B.U. to work. Of course, there would not be the expense of a long journey to attend the general meeting, but there would be a lot of little expenses attached to each Union that would in the grand total be far greater than at present. I was more than sorry to see that Mr. McKail intends to move that the societies in his district sever their connection with the C.B.U. The C.B.U. was started in the Manchester district, and practically all the spade work was done by this district; it seems hard, therefore, that a motion of this kind should come from the very centre of the foundation so to speak. Presumably Mr. McKail was in at the beginning, and it reflects on him with the others that they did not found a perfect society. Would it not be better, Mr. McKail, to try to improve away the bad points in the present society, rather than make a new one which might easily have a lot of bad points? I am quite sure, Mr. McKail, that your energies would be better employed in rearing the chicken already hatched, than in trying to fertilize another egg that might not hatch out. You can rely on my help in building up the C.B.U. and in improving its working, but not in pulling down what you yourself say is needed—a ruling body.

Proposed New Cage Bird Society for Salisbury and District.

Why do Hens Refuse to Feed their Offspring?

SIR,—As a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, I don't remember ever reading of anyone asking the cause of hens refusing to feed their young; nor do I remember reading how it can be cured. I have been breeding Yorkshires for this last 20 years, and I was told by an old hand several years ago what is the cause of it, and I have never had a hen that refused to feed her young since. I would like to hear what others have to say on it.

How a Fancier Got Rid of Redmite.

SIR,—Just a word or two about our lodger, who, like the poor, is "always with us," viz., redmite. Just before the breeding season I thoroughly overhaul my cages, give the insides a good coating of distemper, well disinfect the floors, and rub the outsides and wires with creosote. I also treat the racks with a drink of creosote. If my birds won't bathe I give them a good syringe with quassia. I put a handful of chips in a jug and pour over them a pint of boiling water and let it stand overnight. I put some of the liquid in a bottle and fill up with water. By the above treatment my birds seem happy. I have been in bird room at midnight when one would expect the enemy to be on the prowl, but birds have been on the nest and have never stirred. I must give my wife a word of praise, for she helps me a lot.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR,—Respecting the letter, signed "Reader," in last week's issue, on perusing the report of Guisborough Show (issue, Jan. 8th), I find my own letter in your issue of February 26th was somewhat incorrect. I wrote from memory (as stated), which unfortunately failed me. For my slight error I wish to apologise to "Reader" and "Tyro." Mr. Hood stood 1st and Mr. Cuthbertson 2nd, also 3rd with a smart and good coloured Greenie Mule, this bird being the one said to be blind in one eye, which I did not detect if such was the case. The bird appeared to be possessed of good vision on January 1st, whatever is the case at the present time. As I mentioned in my previous letter, I detest a nom-de-plume, which both "Reader" and "Tyro" hide behind, and now I wish to add that abuse is the weakest part of argument. To sum the whole matter up, to my mind it is a case of "disappointed exhibitors" or of jealousy (the latter may be nearer the mark). In conclusion, I wish to inform both "Reader" and "Tyro," also the two gentlemen that "Reader" tells us he interviewed (?) on this matter, that I have the Fancy at heart, and that wherever I officiate as judge honest awards are dealt out—I am afraid of no man on that score. I am not in the Fancy to make a fortune out of it, as judging is no great catch, I can assure them. However, whatever society engages me as judge, and whatever fanciers show under me, the best birds will win as far as my judgment goes.

Unity and Good Fellowship in Yorkshire.

A Wonderful Gathering of Fanciers at Bradford.

This interesting affair took place at the fanciers' headquarters, The Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, on Saturday last, March 5, and resulted in a record attendance at both dinner and social. The societies taking part were the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S., the Yorkshire C.C., the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire C.C., the Yorkshire County British Bird and Mule Club, the Open Norwich Plainhead Club, and the National Green Marked Yorkshire C.C.; also CAGE BIRDS' Prizes for the Amateurs of Yorkshire were distributed and the "Bradford East" Challenge Rose Bowl was presented to the fortunate winners.

At 2.30 o'clock the various secretaries and officials were "hard at it" getting things in readiness. A multitude of parcels of varied dimensions and shapes having arrived from the several firms where orders had been placed, these were opened ready for presentation. At 4.10 o'clock the dinner gong sounded. The genial and accomplished chairman, Mr. D. Sunderland, took his position at the head of the table, with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ramsden and Messrs. Pretty and Pearce on his right, Mr. and Mrs. Carl, Mrs. C. M. Sunderland and Mr. J. Robson on his left, and a bodyguard of some 135 fanciers with their wives and friends in close touch at the three long tables. Others amongst those present were: Mr. R. Halliday (President of the Yorkshire Union) and Mrs. Halliday; Mr. H. Hill (Secretary of the Y.U.) and Mrs. Hill; Mr. F. Armstrong (President, Yorkshire C.C.); Mr. J. J. Bailey, L. Ogden, H. Simonett, S. Dean, W. Birkett, Hillary, West, Bedford, A. W. Hartley, J. Mann, H. Gledhill, E. Clegg, P. Drake, F. Rhodes, W. Walsh, H. Long, L. Hodgson, J. Wilcock, Warburton, Daley, W. Plowright, J. Isherwood, P. Parker, F. Self, J. Thomas, A. Cooper, and last, but not least, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ogden, who had only just "done it" in time to attend, having been "spliced" up during the morning; well! here's luck and much happiness. There were also present: Messrs. Hill, E. W. Johnson, A. Haigh, T. Tetley, W. Mundell, J. W. Turton, Inman, Whittaker, Dinsdale, Casey, L. Briggs, Copeland, Benn, Ormonroyd, Waterworth, Holroyd, A. Raistrick, M. Peel, A. Morley, M. Barraclough, Birkbeck, Musson, Crowther, Chapman, Hillas, Crossley, Lane, D. Sutcliffe, Clayton, H. J. Chittenden, W. A. Cowgill, J. Morley, G. Harland, J. Calam, Pepper, Ridley, A. Hirst, J. Eyre, B. Holmes, Greenwood, Pickles, Varley, Lindley, Mrs. J. Chippendale, and the Misses. Laycock and Whittaker, and others whose names unfortunately we could not get.

The dinner was a splendid one for 1s. 6d. per head, and reflected great credit on the host, Mr. W. H. Mitchell, who took great trouble upon himself to make everybody "at home" and comfortable. The dinner consisted of the following courses: 1st, Ox-tail soup; 2nd, boiled cod and parsley sauce; 3rd, boiled mutton and caper sauce or roast beef, with vegetables, boiled and baked potatoes, Brussels sprouts; 4th, ornithological pudding; 5th, cheese, butter and biscuits. Dinner was over at 5.15, when all present were bundled into the smaller room, so as to enable all being cleared away in the large concert room and the prizes arranged and ticketed ready for distribution. And what a show—cups, clocks, tea-urns, goblets, cruets, oil-paintings, jam dishes, bronzes, smoking-cabinets, easy chair, tea-set, blankets, copper kettle, knives, rose-bowl, medals in galore, cash in plenty, and other things too numerous to mention.

Mr. D. Sunderland opened the evening's entertainment with a few well-chosen remarks on various matters relating to the Fancy, including the talked-of amalgamation of the original Yorkshire C.C., its offspring, the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., and the newly-formed National Green Marked Y.C.C., to cater for the whole of the sub-varieties of the Yorkshire Fancy. He stated (with good grounds) that it could be worked on quite a small amount in comparison with what it now cost under the three managements. This is an idea well worth considering, and probably will be much talked of in the future. Next, he said a few words in reference to the Cinderella show, expressing great regret that for two years this had been allowed to lapse, and he hoped to see the matter brought forward and if possible some arrangements for its revival made. He added that as treasurer to the fund he had in hand a matter of a couple of pounds in cash, and hoped that the Y.U. would see their way to allow a date for the holding of this show.

The chairman called upon Mr. F. Armstrong to present the prizes of the Yorkshire Canary Club. Mr. Armstrong spoke of the great work done by the Y.C.C., which he considered was the parent of all the various Y.C. clubs now in existence, and hoped the Fancy would continue to support the club in its old age as they had done in the past. Then he had no fear for its good work in the future. The speaker touched upon the severe loss the Fancy had sustained by the death of one of its old patrons and upholders in the person of Mr. J. E. Brotherton, who died suddenly on the 25th of February. He proposed a vote of condolence with the widow and family in their sudden and sad bereavement. This was seconded by Mr. H. Hill, and was agreed to by all present by a sad and silent show of hands.

Mr. Armstrong now called upon Messrs. Thornton and Bower to accept the "Bailey Trophy," which they had won after a magnificent race with 128 points. "Jimmie," the senior member of the firm, came forward to receive the prize on behalf of himself and his partner, remarking in his usual brief and pointed style that they had tried and "done it," and, moreover, had bred the birds themselves with which they had done it. Mr. Bailey proved to be the runner-up with 125 points, and duly acknowledged being a tryer. He was followed by Messrs. W. H. Shackleton and Hartley for third and fourth places. The "J. W. Ramsden Cup and Money Specials Competition": first, Mr. J. Bailey; second, Messrs. Ogden, Bros.; third, Mr. H. H. Towers; fourth, Mr. J. Helliwell. Shaving Cabinet Competition: Winner, Mr. H. H. Towers. On receiving his prize Mr. Towers caused much amusement by remarking that it was something he specially required as, having very often to attend meetings on Saturday evenings, he forgot to get shaved, with the result that on Sunday his "better half" would not let him go out. Hard lines! Second, Mr. J. Helliwell. Novice Competition: First, splendid easy chair, won by Mr. W. Beaumont, and no doubt heartily welcomed. He will have some comfort now for the long evenings, though the writer hopes he won't neglect his birds by sitting too long. Mr. W. R. Myers (of British bird fame) could hardly be moved out of this particular chair when it was wanted for the homeward journey. The second prize-winner turned up in Mr. J. Lane, with Mr. T. Fortnam in third place. CAGE BIRDS prizes for the amateurs of the Y.C.C.: Leader, Mr. J. Helliwell, followed by Mr. W. Beaumont in second place and Mr. J. Lane in third position.

Mr. Sunderland now called upon Mr. Berry, the comedian, to oblige; which he did in fine style. His efforts fairly "brought down the house." After the applause had subsided Mr. Fred Hammond was called upon to present the prizes of the Open Norwich P.C.

Mr. Hammond said he craved the permission of the assembly to make a few remarks in general, and mentioned firstly the working arrangement, which at one time seemed probable, between the Yorkshire Union and the Cage Bird Union, but he was afraid that the time was now passed, as he regretted very much to see that the doom of the C.B.U. seemed imminent and termed it, in a way, "a case of suicide." It verified his thoughts that a Union for the whole country was too large an undertaking, but he hoped that, should various Unions be attempted in different districts the Yorkshire Union would do all in their power to assist by lending rules, ballot-papers, etc., to anybody desirous of perusing them. Next the speaker dealt with the matter of the Y.U. ballot-paper (now in the hands of the members), and pointed out for special consideration two new rules thereon in reference to show reporters being debarred from entering a show room before it was open to the public, and secondly, "that no reporter be allowed to judge a Union show." Mr. Hammond was of the opinion that these points were simply absurd, and sincerely hoped the rules would not be agreed to, as he could not see that any benefit would be derived therefrom. He then gave an outline of the great progress made by this club since its inauguration two years ago, the membership having now reached the 100 mark with further good prospects. The first two in the Champion Section were in the reverse positions of last year, Mr. A. H. Waters coming out on top, with Messrs. J. Haigh and Son, the old veterans, in second place. Mr. A. Haigh responded in good style and congratulated Mr. Waters upon his success. Messrs. Haigh and Son also won the "Percy Illingworth Challenge Cup," which is given for competition in the unflighted bird classes, they having quite a large number of points in hand on this trophy. Mr. A. Grey secured third place, Mr. J. Wilcock fourth, Messrs. A. Humphries and Pickering and Wright running a dead-heat for fifth position. Novice Section: First, Mr. H. Snowden; second, Greenwood and Pickles; third, J. W. Holmes; fourth, W. Markwell; fifth, T. C. Crawhall; sixth, A. Lloyd. Ramsden's Specials were won by Mr. A. H. Waters for Champion Section, and Mr. H. Snowden in Novice Section. CAGE BIRDS Amateur Prizes for the O.N.P.C.: Leader, Mr. H. Snowden; second, Greenwood and Pickles; third, A. Humphries. Mr. A. Haigh caused much amusement by stating that the medal given with the "Illingworth Cup" was the first gold medal the firm had ever had; they always took money in preference. Mr. T. C. Crawhall had won a pair of gloves as one special, and requested by letter that they be handed over to Mrs. Mitchell, the wife of the genial Secretary. Mr. J. W. Holmes had chosen a special alarm clock as his prize; this, he said, is to be utilised for awakening the hens at 3.30 a.m. during the breeding season—good hens, Holmes, don't require a clock.

Mr. Sunderland then called upon Mr. Stafford, whom I think we may term "the fanciers' favourite," to oblige. He is a grand singer, and no doubt on Saturday evening was in extra good form, his efforts being splendidly received.

Mr. Duncan was now called upon by the chairman to officiate for the British bird men, and had the great honour to present to himself the first prize. In his opening remarks he expressed great regret that no show in the Bradford district had applied for the patronage of the Yorkshire County British Bird and Mule Club, and he hoped next season some societies would see their way to provide the necessary classes and ask for their support. He also reported good results in the way of entries from members, they having shown exceedingly well all through the season. Champion Section. First, D. Duncan, junr.; second and third, tie between Messrs. Wilkinson and Danby and Mr. J. B. Stamp, with 77 points each; fourth, T. H. Inman. CAGE BIRDS Amateur Prizes: Mr. J. Meadows secured first by the narrow margin of one point from Mr. J. Isherwood, Mr. B. H. Wilson taking the third prize.

We were now in for a surprise. Mr. Sunderland gave out that we were to have a song by Mrs. Mitchell—"Daffodil"—which went down exceedingly well and was indeed a treat. But to the astonishment of the audience the "lady," on the last few words, removed the hair from off the top and disclosed to the gaze of the company, not a lady's head, but that of a younger brother of the Secretary of the O.N.P.C. It was, indeed, rich—the joke, we mean. "She" was quite a smart girl, tall and slim, with grand hair, complexion like a peach, and a voice that would "take anybody in." At the conclusion of the song the audience called for an encore, but Mr. Sunderland said the pleasure would come again later.

The chairman now called upon Mr. W. Richmond to present to the successful winners the prizes of the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. Mr. Richmond dealt shortly on the great advances made by this club during the last twelve months, the membership being nearly doubled. This, no doubt he thought, was due to their catering for the novice section. Open Competition: First, Ogden, Bros., who finished 9 points in front of Mr. H. H. Towers, after a tough and hard fight; Mr. A. Cooper came in for third position with only 7 points in the rear, and Mr. A. Jowett fourth. CAGE BIRDS Prizes for the Amateurs of the C.M.Y.C.C.: Messrs. Wright and Son, first; F. Townsend, second; H. H. Clark, third. Novice Competition: This, the first competition of its kind, was won in fairly easy style by Mr. W. Richmond, of Harrogate, who has put down some strong teams in these classes, second place being secured by Mr. E. Clegg, who has been a great tryer; third Mr. F. Gelder; fourth, Mr. S. B. Grayshon; fifth, Mr. E. Grange.

The company were next favoured by Mr. J. Hill, who sang that grand song, "The Mighty Deep," which he rendered in good style. Mr. Sunderland then made kindly reference to the CAGE BIRDS Prize scheme, and hoped that as Mr. Carl was with them, although he knew he was of a rather retiring disposition, he would say a few words to the great number of fanciers present.

Mr. Carl, replying, said the chairman had described him as being of a retiring disposition. He was afraid he could not plead guilty to retiring methods where CAGE BIRDS was concerned, and that fact, combined with the well-known hospitality of Yorkshiremen, was accountable for his presence there on that occasion. Never was there a greater need for union in the Cage Bird Fancy than to-day. We could see upon the one hand the funds and the influence of the Society for the Protection of Birds being utilised as a menace to the British Bird Hobby; or, on the other hand, the Canary fancier had been singled out for attack by faddists and fanatics of another kind. Dealing with an article which had appeared in the Bradford local papers that week with respect to the action of the Local Health Committee in giving notice to certain bird breeders living in houses belonging to the Bradford Corporation—that they must either discontinue keeping birds or consider themselves under notice to quit—Mr. Carl expressed the opinion that an autocratic and tyrannical attitude of this kind ought not to be taken up against such a pleasurable and innocent hobby as bird-keeping in Bradford, one of the chief centres of the Canary industry. He felt sure, however, that this matter was safe in the hands of the Yorkshire Union, who might be trusted to see that the interests of bird keepers in Bradford and of the Canary-loving community were duly safeguarded.

Mr. Sunderland had said many kind things about him, he continued, more particularly in connection with the CAGE BIRDS Prize scheme, but he, Mr. Carl, did not feel justified in assuming the attitude of a benefactor because his debt of gratitude to bird keepers as a class and to Yorkshiremen in particular, could never be wiped out. During that evening he had been approached by a number of professional exhibitors, staunch supporters of his journal, on the score of their being unable to participate in CAGE BIRDS competition, and as he did not think it would be fair to deprive the novices of any portion of their prizes for the sake of the professionals, he had, he said, decided to supplement the Prize Fund by another £20 to enable the competition to cover all sections. In conclusion, he extended his heartfelt thanks to Mr. Sunderland, as chairman of CAGE BIRDS Prizes Committee, to Mr. Fred Hammond, the Hon. Secretary, and to all the other members of that body for their work on the Committee and for their very excellent arrangements in connection therewith, all of which had been carried out to his entire satisfaction.

Mr. Sunderland then, as chairman of the CAGE BIRDS Prize Committee, handed over the prizes to the successful winners, and these were suitably acknowledged.

Mr. Stafford then, by special request, rendered that good old song, "Eileen Allanah" in his "great" style, the whole assembly joining in the chorus. The enjoyment of the evening seemed fairly to bubble over at this point, so well received was the singer's efforts—a right jolly good Yorkshire song.

Mr. W. H. Shackleton now held the company for a while on behalf of the latest youngster, the National Green Marked Y.C.C., which Mr. W. H. S. said had fully upheld his early views, as the success attained could compare very favourably with that of any club of its age. The membership had reached the respectable total of 110. (Cheers.) The premier honour in this its first year had been secured by those enthusiastic fanciers, Messrs. Ogden, Bros., who finished four points ahead of Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, Mr. E. Smith being third, with Messrs. W. H. Shackleton and P. Mason on an equal footing for fourth and fifth places. CAGE BIRDS Amateur Prizes were secured by Messrs. E. Clegg and F. Self in the order named. Novice Senior Competition: Winner of first prize, Mr. E. Clegg; second, Mr. F. Self; third, Mr. F. Townsend; fourth, Mr. H. Hill. Some of these winners appeared a little disappointed at having won some of the prizes so easily, and hoped the competition next year would be a little keener. Evidently they like a hard run.

Mr. Sunderland again called upon Mr. Mitchell, the lady impersonator, and this time he rendered "Your Eyes have told me so" in lovely style; it was a real treat.

Mr. Sunderland proposed that a hearty vote of thanks be given to all donors, specially referring to Mr. J. W. Ramsden for his splendid specials. This was seconded by Mr. W. H. Shackleton, and carried with every spirit of goodwill by the entire company. Mr. J. W. Ramsden, whose popularity in Yorkshire was amply shown during the evening, said it would give him great pleasure to increase his prizes for next year as he was supported nobly by the Yorkshire fanciers. He also referred to Mr. Hammond's remarks re Yorkshire Judges, and stated that he considered they were absolutely straight and quite fearless in their decisions. Next year he hoped to be amongst the Yorkshiremen again. Mr. J. Robson, responding, said it gave him great pleasure to see the sportsmanship and friendly rivalry between the Yorkshire fanciers, and he wished them every success.

Mr. Berry, the "comic," now held the boards, his song being "Don't you think he ought to see a doctor?" which was received with much laughter, the crowd fairly enjoying the fun.

Mr. R. Halliday was called upon by the chairman to present the prizes of the Yorkshire Union and the premier competition. The "W. H. Shackleton Trophy" produced a tight race, Mr. J. Bailey just getting home one point in front of Messrs. Ogden, Bros., Mr. W. H. Shackleton being placed third, and Mr. H. H. Towers taking fourth position. The "H. W. Naylor Cup" was won by Mr. J. Bailey, Messrs. Ogden, Bros., second, Mr. W. H. Shackleton third, and Mr. H. H. Towers fourth. Mr. J. W. Ramsden's Specials were secured by Mr. J. Bailey and Messrs. Ogden, Bros., the latter being only one point to the bad. CAGE BIRDS Amateur Prizes: First, Mr. H. H. Hill, Messrs. Drake and Son being second, and Mr. J. Chippendale third. The twelve £1 1s. Gold Medals for most points secured in Y.U. Novice Classes were won by the following; Yorkshire Section, Messrs. J. Thomas, T. W. Turton, T. Elsegood, E. Dinsdale, W. Stables, C. E. Hall, A. Whitley, L. C. Casey, E. Shepherd, O. Priestley, J. Hutton, and S. Haigh. The four Medals for Norwich Section were won by Messrs. J. Naylor, J. Horsfield, W. H. Ball, and W. Plowright.

The next song was by the favourite, Mr. Stafford, who rendered "When the heart is young" in extraordinarily fine style, everybody being delighted.

Mr. H. H. Hill next presented the "Bradford East Rose Bowl" to the fortunate winner, who, by the way, is one of their own members, viz., Mr. L. Briggs, who suitably responded.

We were now delighted by the rendering of "The Village Blacksmith" by Mr. Mason (who was singing, we heard, at St. George's Hall the same evening). He is the possessor of an excellent voice and knows how to use it. The song received well-merited applause.

Mr. R. Halliday at this point moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Sunderland and Mr. H. Hill for their services as chairman and secretary respectively, paying tribute to both for the great amount of work they had gone through and the splendid style in which they had done it. Mr. Hill responded on their behalf.

Mr. Berry sang his comic song, "Little by little and bit by bit" at this point, which fairly took the audience by storm, it being some time before the cheers subsided. This was followed by a song by Mr. Mitchell, as a "gentleman" this time, the rendering of which was a real treat. Then he and Mr. Mason gave a duct, which was beautifully rendered.

Mr. J. W. Ramsden's Novice Prizes for the Y.U. were won by Messrs. T. W. Turton and J. Horsfield. Mr. H. H. Towers' Special for most points in Yorkshire Novice Classes was secured by Mr. J. Thomas, and that given by Mr. F. Hammond for most points in Norwich Novice Classes was won by Mr. J. Naylor. Mr. Hammond's Special for runner-up in Norwich Novice Classes fell to Mr. G. Hoap. Mr. E. Clegg secured Special for most points in C.M. Novice Classes at Yorkshire Union shows.

Mr. Mason again "held the boards" and gave "Down the Vale" in splendid style. He is, indeed, a fine singer, and the Committee were fortunate in securing his services. This was followed by Mr. Berry's amusing song, "He was a married man," after which Mr. Sunderland declared the function ended. The hour being about 10.30, this allowed a little time for the successful exhibitors to pack up their valuable and numerous prizes ready for home. The Social was a record, and was voted the most enjoyable and successful one so far, the only drawback being that, if anything, the room was too small for such a crowd. It will have to be held at St. George's Hall if it grows much more, and really it should do.

SCOTCH FANCY (Nat. Derby) O.A.

Membership, 1910: Messrs. H. Crawford (Helensburgh), J. Shannon (Glasgow), J. Y. Millar, D. Black, and James Gaw (Govan), J. Dalgleish (Leith), W. Hart (Paisley), R. Wright (Greenock), Councillor J. Hogg (Oakley, Fife), E. B. Bullions (Glasgow), and T. Smith, Sec. and Treas., 56, Minard-road, Crossmyloof, Glasgow.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Monthly meeting, held on February 26th, in Oddfellows' Hall, Mr. J. Hunter presiding. For a new society we are doing exceedingly well—eight new members being added and four nominated at this meeting. The remainder of the time was taken up by the election of judges. We expect to have their answers in writing before next meeting, which takes place on the 26th March.—W. C. CLUBB, Sec.

SELSTON AND DIS. F.S.

Meeting held in the schoolroom on March 5th, when a good number of members were present. It was decided to hold a members' show on March 26th, three classes for the cage bird section—Stock Pairs, Muling and Hybrid Pairs, and British Birds. Entry fee to society, 1s. Fee in each class 6d., all entries to be made not later than March 19th. All exhibits to be in schoolroom no later than two o'clock. The radius of the society has been extended to seven miles.—F. MALTBY, Hon. Sec.

MUSSELBURGH C.S.

At the monthly meeting held February 26th, the following judges were appointed to officiate at the annual show on November 26th: for Norwich, British, Mule, and Foreign birds, Mr. Allen Chalmers (Kirkintilloch); and for Scotch Fancy, Yorkshire, and Border Fancy Canaries, Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso). We made six new members, viz.: Messrs. E. A. Meldrum, T. Gray, J. Dickson, B. Beck, Cossar, and Hynds. Fanciers wishing to join should lodge their names (with any of the members) before the end of March, as the books will be closed after February 26th.—WM. NISBET, Hon. Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meeting held on March 5th; there was a large turn-out of members. After the usual business it was decided that Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), and Mr. G. E. Russell (Birmingham) be the judges for our annual show on November 4th and 5th, for which all prize money is guaranteed. They further decided to withdraw from the Cage Bird Union. Also decided, to have a First Feather Show, date to be fixed later. We decideed to write for several patronages. Two handsome specials were promised, and four new members were proposed, making ten this year already; so you will see that the Fancy is beginning to "hum" about Blaydon.—GEO. HAVVER, Sec.

DALKEITH AND DIS. C.C.

Meeting held at headquarters, March 5th, when Mr. W. B. Smart (President) presided over a good turnout. The business was the hooking of hens. It was agreed to enrol members up to the end of April. The following members were elected as a Visiting Committee for the forthcoming season: Messrs. J. Thomson, J. Beveridge, J. Hamilton, W. B. Smart, J. Pearson, and J. Ewing. The President read a letter from Mrs. J. Steele asking the members to accept an antique silver jug for annual competition to be awarded to the runner-up of best bird in the Border Fancy section. The Secretary was instructed to write and thank Mrs. Steele for her handsome gift. A motion was tabled for next meeting to try and arrange a ramble.—JOHN EWING, Sec.

WEST LONDON F.A.

Monthly meeting held at Bush Hotel, Shepherd's Bush Green, on March 3rd, there being a big muster of members and friends. Business included the election of judges for the young bird and annual shows; Mr. J. Robson was elected to judge both, the former to take place in July and the latter the first or second week in November. Mr. Wright having been elected a member, the chairman called on Mr. Robson to give his promised lecture on the breeding of cage birds; which he did, first dealing with breeding in outdoor aviaries with the birds flying loose. He gave many valuable hints on the introduction of fresh blood, etc. An excellent debate ensued on selection versus pedigree. Mr. Robson explained that one could not do without selection, but that selection with pedigree was much better; which was the opinion of most members. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Robson and the chair.—J. DEWHURST, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Committee meeting, held at Wentworth Cafe, February 25th, Mr. A. Bradshaw (president) in the chair. The business was the classification for members' shows to be held during the year, and selection of judges for same. All the classes at the three shows are the same as last year, except the two selling classes, which are to be, single birds, 15s.; pairs, 25s., and not 20s. and 30s. Also that there be any variety Mule class instead of the usual two light and dark classes. Several gentlemen were named as judges, and it was left to our secretaries to secure their services. It was decided that 20s. be given in specials to each section, and the penny taken from each entry in each section, be added to that section. Also, the specials will be divided between the four highest exhibitors in each section instead of two. Also decided, that we advertise our open show in the Fancy Press. Ordinary monthly meeting held on March 3rd. The balance sheet for 1909 was read and adopted. The gain on the nest feather show was £2 11s.; gain on October show, 15s.; loss on the annual show, £9 12s. 10d.; loss on December show, £1 6s.; and on the year's working, 11s. 8d. The guarantors of our open show are being asked to pay 6d. each, so that we may start the year with a clean sheet. After a vote of thanks to our auditors, Messrs. Cowley and Thorpe, Mr. Kelly gave his report of the Cage Bird Union annual meeting, which, of course, was what we had read in the Fancy Press, as all the agenda was out of order. Some being in favour of our leaving the C.B.U., and others thinking it best to wait awhile and see how things turn out, it was eventually decided to write to other societies and get a requisition signed as per Rule 8 of the Union, and see what could be done; also to write to the Fancy Press inviting other societies to join us. The questions by ballot proved to be very interesting, the members discussing the various questions with much interest. Next meeting is: "Experiences of members." Messrs. G. Clarke, F. Dutton, G. Furniss, J. W. Parrott, Elliott, and Lewis, were elected new members.—J. WOOLHOUSE, Sec.

CHESTER C.B.F.A.

Monthly meeting held at Nag's Head, Cocoa House, March 1st, Mr. Bracegirdle presiding. One new member was elected. It was decided to have a lecture at next meeting on a subject of seasonable interest by Mr. S. Hadwin (Liverpool). The subject of the affiliation of the C.B.U. was next brought forward, and it was decided to continue the membership. We intend holding a First Feather Show, date and judge to be arranged.—J. SWINDLEY, Hon. Sec.

SHIELDS AND DIS. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at our new headquarters, Lockhart's Cafe, King Street, on March 2nd. Bro. W. Thompson occupied the chair. Our late show books having been gone through by the auditors, show a balance of 10d., thanks to the gentlemen who have been kind enough to give us an extra donation, as it has been the worst year we have experienced in regard to entries. We accepted four new members, namely, Messrs. W. Garrock, R. Beales, J. H. Brown, and R. Jolley. It was decided to have a table show at our next meeting, three classes: 1, Goldfinch, Bullfinch, or Greenfinch; 2, Linnet, Redpoll, Siskin, or Twite; 3, A.O.V. British Bird. We hope to have a good muster.—JAMES BARRASS, Secretary.

EAST HAM F.S.

On March 1st, at Earl of Wakefield, Wakefield-street, Mr. C. W. Mead (Walthamstow) kindly gave us an instructive talk on cage-making, and showed in a practical way how one could be made. Mr. Mead, before commencing, explained the use of the tools employed, and punctuated his work by answering questions and giving explanations. After he had completed the cage he kindly handed it over to the society for disposal. The chairman, Mr. J. Lee, moved a hearty vote of thanks, which was carried by acclamation, and a pleasant and instructive evening came to a close. Members please note next meeting, March 14th, at Earl of Wakefield, 8 p.m. Arrangements for first general monthly show to be held on March 21st, G.U.M.S. Subscriptions are due by March 31st, according to rule.—H. RUTTER, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting on February 28th, with Mr. A. W. Curtis in the chair. Letters were read from J. Burton, thanking members for sympathy; S. Gluckstein, accepting appointment as hon. solicitor; G. Bryant offering to give five per cent. per week to the Wynn Commemoration Benefit Fund on all new customers that the association recommends for laundry work; and others. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. W. Shepherd for being instrumental in procuring the services of the hon. solicitor. Messrs. E. C. Offord, W. Shepherd, and R. Stevens kindly offered their services as stewards for the Finch show. It was unanimously agreed that the association join the N.B.B. and M.C. in their annual outing. A "cage bird staging" competition took place, preceded by a judging competition. There were 15 entries, and the awards were as follows:—1st, B. Thrower (Goldfinch); 2nd, W. Shepherd (Larger Hill Mynah); 3rd, W. Sanders (Crested-bred); vhc, Miss Rose Shephard; hc, S. Turner; c, F. Curry. For the competition, two champions, five amateurs, and 17 novices took part (for result, see next week's report). Mr. H. Norman judged, and afterwards gave a lecture upon the art of staging, concluding with a review of the birds staged before him. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Norman for his services as judge, and for the intensely instructive lecture afterwards.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

THE CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

A meeting of the sub-committee elected at the annual general meeting of the C.C.C. took place in London on March 3rd. Present: Messrs. Rhodes (president), T. Heath, J. Robson, J. Tyson, and the hon. sec. The classification was duly drawn up and left with the undersigned for drafting and again submitting to the sub-committee for revision, if necessary. It will then be submitted to the general committee for approval and adoption. Will all societies, intending to apply for C.C.C. support, please do so? Full details will be published in the Fancy Press on March 18th.—J. S. CLARKE, Hon. Sec. and Treasurer.

We have also received the following report from an authoritative source:—A meeting of the sub-committee was held to draw up the rules, classification, etc., for the scheme initiated by Mr. G. C. Ley, of Nottingham, to make the Crested variety more popular, and to give an opportunity for exhibitors to send to shows their specimens that are at the present time kept at home through inadequate classification. It was decided to recommend the committee of the club to offer to guarantee during the coming show season nine shows against loss they may sustain, upon the following terms: One—the club—show to have not less than 14 classes (as drawn up by the C.C.C.), and eight shows with not less than eight classes. Show committees desirous of this guarantee against any loss upon the C.C.C. section as a whole, will pay to the club £1 for 8 classes, and 2s. 6d. per class beyond this number, and any loss they sustain will be refunded to them. Further, any societies wishing for this guarantee must give in prize money not less than 22s. per class for a 1s. 6d. entry fee, and not less than 26s. for a 2s. entry fee. The amount of the prize money named is to be exclusive of any special prizes offered. Messrs. Rhodes and Ley have very kindly agreed to find the money in case there should be any loss to the C.C.C. through this scheme. The club will offer their valuable silver bowls at their club show, and their other specials at the other shows held under their patronage and their guarantee scheme. This we consider by far the very best thing that has ever been offered by the C.C.C., or any other specialist club, and should greatly increase the popularity of this section, as the classification provides for every variety of Crest and Crested-bred, several of which up to now have been kept at home for the want of a class answering to their description. The yellows especially are provided for, these having been very much neglected on the show bench; and yet no successful breeding room can do without them for any length of time. Again, the C.C.C. valuable silver bowls will be given this year for the most points gained by birds that are not in the prize money. The above is only a rough draft of what is proposed, and it must be sanctioned by the majority of the committee of the C.C.C.; but as this scheme is recommended by the sub-committee appointed at the general meeting held at the Crystal Palace, no doubt it will be accepted. All show secretaries should make the necessary application to the hon. sec., Mr. J. S. Clarke, Sunnyside, Prospect-rd., Woodford Green, without delay, who will then submit their applications to the committee.

STRATHBOGIE P.P. AND C.B.A.

The first monthly meeting was held in the Temperance Hotel Hall on Mar. 3rd, when there was a very encouraging attendance, Mr. John Wilson, president, in the chair. He thanked the association for the honour conferred upon him by asking him to become president. He then in a few interesting remarks explained the advantages to be derived from having such an association in our midst. The members' cards were then put upon the table, when a goodly number were disposed of, membership being fixed at 2/6. It was resolved to hold an open show in December, date to be fixed at next meeting. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—L. DENISON.

GATESHEAD AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Feb. 16th at headquarters, Lockhart's Cafe, Mr. Almond in the chair. It was proposed by Mr. Maddison, and seconded by Mr. Johnson, that minutes of previous meeting be adopted. After some discussion, it was proposed by Mr. Reid, and seconded by Mr. Coutts that the minutes be rescinded, and on its being put to the meeting, it was unanimously carried by 15 to 2 "That the minutes be adopted as read." The next business was the enrolment of new members, when, in spite of adverse criticism about leaving the Cage Bird Union, 15 new members were elected. Next came the election of officers for the ensuing year. The following were elected to office: President, Ald. Gillies; treasurer, Mr. T. Taylor; the position of secretary was left over, as Mr. Buck, our present secretary, could not, on account of business, again accept that office. The committee was elected as follows: Messrs. Longstaff, Hodgson, Campbell, Moore, Rule, G. E. Robson, Hooper, Hawkins, Kent, Lowery, Holden, Smith, and Story. Mr. Hawkins was again elected show manager, Mr. Almond chairman, and Mr. S. Robson, vice-chairman.—GEO. BUCK.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A social evening was held on March 3rd in connection with the pair show prize distribution. Mr. G. Gardner was in the chair, supported by the new vice-chairman, Mr. G. Dickson, and the committee. During the evening the following artistes contributed, and were received with loud applause: Messrs. G. Jeffery, W. Armstrong, F. Pearce, G. Clatworthy, W. Martin, V. Todman, and C. Simkins, Mr. and Miss Gill, Miss Adelaide Allen, Mrs. Tatten, and Messrs. Wort and Mart. During the evening both the chairman and vice-chairman spoke of the very fine character of the programme, and of the pleasure they had derived. The two patter comedians, Messrs. Wort and Mart, were highly appreciated, the audience being in one continuous state of convulsions while they were on the platform. A hearty vote of thanks was given to all who had assisted in giving the members this delightful evening. The chairman said he hoped the society would hold many more such evenings. There were about 120 persons present. There were only 25 members present out of a possible 80; it was very disappointing to me as secretary, after having gone to such great expense and trouble, to find that my efforts were not appreciated by them. May I appeal through CAGE BIRDS to all my members (the only means I have of reaching them all) to support me at all our meetings during the coming year?—CHAS. W. LAW, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Annual general meeting held on 5th March, at 142, High-street, Edinburgh. Owing to the absence of the President (Mr. Arrighi) through the death of his mother, the Vice-President (Mr. Bald) was called to the chair. The balance sheet was read over and approved of, leaving a balance on the right side of about 14s., this being considered very satisfactory owing to the very large number of medals presented for competition amongst the members at the various shows. Owing to delay by the makers of the medals, same were not presented, but will be posted to the various winners when received. Owing to a few misprints in winners' names, Messrs. Craig and Cochrane were appointed to assist the Secretary to go over same again, a full list to be sent to the Press when completed. After a satisfactory explanation by Mr. Bald re a bird not "trophied" in catalogue at Avonbridge, he was declared winner of the trophy with 92 points, Mr. G. Henderson being the runner-up with 86 points. A letter was read from Mr. Livingstone suggesting an increased subscription, but this was not agreed upon. Election of office-bearers resulted as follows: President, Mr. A. Cochrane; Vice-President, Dr. Galloway, Messrs. Bald, T. Erskine, and Sykes. The Secretary then intimated that he could not see his way clear to stand again. Mr. John Allan, 57, Restalrig-road, Leith, was unanimously appointed secretary, salary to be same as previously, namely, £2. Auditors, Messrs. Watson and Craig. The following new members were admitted, namely, Messrs. J. Muir and C. Campbell (Glasgow). On the motion of Mr. Watson, seconded by Mr. Cochrane, the following rule was unanimously passed: "That all members entering birds for trophy competition at shows where trophy is granted, send to the Secretary a duplicate entry of birds nominated for same when making entry for said show." Edinburgh was agreed upon as the next meeting place for 3rd September. This being all the business, a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman and retiring office-bearers brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close.—JNO. ALLAN, Sec.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

INDIAN PARROTS.
All are young birds; make excellent talkers, 3/6 each two 6/-; few specials, commencing to talk, 5/- each; beautiful green birds; prompt live delivery: Mack, 32, Dames-rd., Forest Gate, Essex.

EXTENSIVE OUTDOOR AVIARIES
Breeding pairs, guaranteed healthy, approval, deposit; Budgerigars, green 6/-, yellows 7/9; husks, hole on top, or to order, 6d. each; Cockatiels, 11/6, nest 1/6; Lovebirds 3/6, Indian Parrots 5/- each, hen-marked Grassfinch 6/-, small foreigners' nest boxes, 3d.: H. Lewis, 154, Hatton-rd., Handsworth.

COKERNUT BREEDING HUSKS.
To breed Budgerigars successfully you must have the "Improved Secure" husks. All bird fancying papers have advised their readers to prefer them, because other kinds come to pieces and the young birds fall to the floor and die, and this is just why the "Improved Secure" husks have been "celebrated" for the last 18 years. They remain unequalled, competition and comparison always increase their popularity; the principal Zoo's, Parks, and breeders employ them, and "Cage Birds" has said:—"They are far superior to the old husks," so beware of worthless substitutes. Price 5s. dozen, smaller quantities 6d. each. Superior box nests for Cockatiels, etc., 1/6 each: Harper, Husk Importer, Wolverhampton.

A REAL EYE-OPENER

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

FOR 1910.

Many Special Features this Year.

CONSIDER THIS WONDERFUL LIST.

THE DISINFECTION OF BIRD ROOMS AND CAGES. By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL KEEPER OF BRITISH BIRDS. By G. G. Henderson.

Tells you all about the room, the cages, the appliances, the seeds, and other foods, and gives many hints which will bring you to the front rank as a successful British bird keeper.

AN EASY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By Cornelius Hoyle.

Explains how the author has very successfully and profitably bred Canaries at a minimum cost of trouble and time to himself.

LANDMARKS OF THE FANCIERS' YEAR. By Claude St. John.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed": that is the keynote of this splendid article, which shows how, by judicious treatment beforehand, many of the troubles and ills which are the commonest cause of the failure of bird-breeders and keepers may be averted.

MULE BREEDING FROM CANARY HENS. By C. E. Truscott.

The easiest and most profitable form of Mule (or Hybrid) breeding is with the Canary hen and cock Finch. This contribution explains the best and simplest procedure to attain success in this fascinating branch of the Hybrid-breeder's art.

THE FEEDING OF FOREIGN BIRDS. By F.Z.S.

A contribution which points out how a more varied diet than is usually offered may be given to foreign birds to their undoubted benefit.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

Departures from health in the bird-room are common sources of anxiety to fanciers, and cause much racking of brains to find the best remedial agents. This unique article fully explains the properties and uses of the medicinal agents which have been proved by bird-keepers to bring successful results in combating the ailments of their pets. Broken limbs, egg-binding, fits, constipation, inflammation, moulting, bird-lice, red-mite, the care of the claws, etc., etc., are also fully dealt with.

In addition "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910 contains:

A Monthly Calendar, with Tables when Eggs are due to hatch; Hints on the Formation of a Cage Bird Society; A Year with the Wild Birds; Standards and Scales of Points of Exhibition Birds; Alphabetical Directory to the Cage Bird Societies; Dictionary of Fanciers' Terms; Directory to the Bird Trade; Review of the Exhibition Year; Directory to the Judges of Cage Birds; List of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors; Useful Postal and other information; Cash Account Columns, etc. Also

A lovely coloured plate and many art, etc., illustrations of Canaries, Hybrids, British and Foreign Birds.

ALL FOR SIXPENCE: Of all Newsagents or Bookstalls; OR POST FREE, 8d.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

EGGERTINE

THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF CANARIES IN THE WORLD.

That should prove it is the best; because, if I knew of anything better, I should, for my own benefit, use it for this large collection. I have not used a chopped egg for Thirty-five Years. Eggertine only. It will strengthen your hens, bring them into laying condition, and you may safely rear from the nest without any other Egg Food of any kind. It never turns sour, and is always ready for immediate use; saves time trouble, and even money (although in a food I look upon this as only a secondary consideration). It will also strengthen the cocks, and keep them on song if occasionally given before hen lays. It is made from new laid English eggs and other valuable ingredients. Prices, post free, 1/3 and 2/6 per tin; a saving is made by purchasing the larger tins.

For all to test this marvellous Egg Food, I will send a trial packet 4d., post free. It can also be obtained from Gamage's, Holborn, as can all my specialities.

THERE ARE TIMES

which is already cooked and sterilized, only requires damping with cold water to make a reliable, efficient and genuine Egg and Biscuit Food, upon which the breeder may rely implicitly. Do not confound it with any other preparation on the market, for it resembles none of them in the least. Sold in 3d., 6d., and 1/- tins, by us, and all Corn and Bird Shops. It has been pronounced by publicly-recognised authorities to be by far the

of its kind on the market.

One hundred grand clear muling hen Canaries, suitable for mating to any of above birds, 2/6 each. Single breeding cages, 20 inches long, 16 high, 9 wide, 2/6 each; ditto 22 inches, 3/-; ditto, 24 inches, 3/6 each. Double breeders, 36 inches long, sliding partitions, 4/6 each; all fitted complete with pediment top, loose fronts, sand drawers, etc., and properly built by a practical joiner, not treacle daubed eye-sores made by boys. Hundreds of letters similar to the following have been published in this paper: "55, Carrfield-rd., Heeley, Sheffield. March 7th. Sir,—I received bird in splendid condition and am well satisfied with your straightforward dealings.—Yours, F. Brown." "Prospect-place, Copperhouse, Hayle, Cornwall. March 8th. Sir,—Received Siberian Goldfinch and am well satisfied to receive such lovely bird. It was singing well three days after arrival.—Yours, E. Farrell." "42, Princes-st., Deptford, London. March 9th. Sir, —Bird arrived safely. I am more than pleased with it. I think it good value and shall not forget you in the future.—Yours, T. Hemming." "Mount Pleasant, Newburgh, Fife. March 11th. Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safely. I am very well pleased with same. It is the best I have ever had from England —Yours, D. Wilkie." I can specially recommend the birds described above to all intending purchasers as being sound and genuine, well on hard seed, and properly caged. No fresh-caught rubbish among them, and I do not think I have ever offered a better lot of birds for sale than these during the whole 19 years I have been advertising. As the season is now over, this advertisement may not appear again, so make sure by applying at once. See Roller Canary column.

SILK'S Champion Norwich.

QUALITY.

Not so much what you pay as what you receive for your outlay. Cheap birds always prove the most expensive in the long run, and are really dear at any price. I

and make it my aim to supply only

FIRST-CLASS BIRDS.

It is annoying after spending your time and labour, to find that instead of spending your money profitably, you have lost by breeding with cheap and worthless birds.

This strain has no equal. Matched Pairs, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/6 per pair. Single Cocks, 30/6 and buff, 15/6 to 40/6 each. The Finest Hens living, guaranteed breeders, yellow and buff, 12/6 to 30/6.

Approval willingly, satisfaction guaranteed.

Plainheaded Norwich.

All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/8, 10/6, 12/6 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Clear Buff, 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/-, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6 15/-, 20/- upwards.

Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads, Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some.

Simply specimens of unsolicited opinions: A Beauty.

Eastfield Cottage, Harthill. March 12th, 1910.—The Norwich hen you sent is a beauty. Am very well pleased with her. Thanks for prompt attention. J. Wason to W. Rudd.

More Than Delighted.

10, Burns Road, Harlesden. March, 1910.—Just a line to you as promised, with regard to birds, I am more than delighted with them. The cock has been singing nicely all the time he has been here; in fact, he started as soon as he was taken out of the cage. H. Heath to W. Rudd.

AS A CUSTOMER

of mine (whose letter is given below) so aptly remarks, the Leipzig Rollers are undoubtedly "top of the bill." If you want to possess the best singing Roller Canary it is possible to obtain, I want you to particularly peruse the letters given below, and at same time remember that you are not reading what I say, but what people say who have purchased a Leipzig Roller from me. I have repeatedly asked intending purchasers the havo a Leipzig Roller from me, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhose, at any higher price, test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not far better valuo for money, return it to me and back comes every penny of your money. I take all risks and send every one on full week's trial on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds." I have an enormous stock now on hand, and every cock is guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or any other objectionable or harsh notes whatever, price 7s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. each; special bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell notes, 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have grand lot of genuine Seifert contest Rollers, in magnificent condition and song, at 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each; few Scifert hens, 4/- each; these are guaranteed real Seifert strain, and are exceptionally low and mellow in tone, and their song is like a cascade of overflowing melody. As these are the last lot of Seifert Rollers to arrive this season early application is imperative, otherwise disappointment may result. Splendid lot loud free singing Hartz cocks, every one warranted in full and vigorous song, 5/6 each, seven for 31/6; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple; Leipzig Roller hens 3/- each, 5/- couple; singing box cages, 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each; special Roller singing cabinets, with loose fronts and folding doors, made specially for Rollers, 2/6 each. Please note, following letters have not been solicited. Full name and address given in each case, and all open to inspection at any time:—"50, Lyndhurst Road, Luton, February 27th.—Sir, just a line to say I am perfectly satisfied with Roller; it sings beautifully; it was no worse for long journey; thanks for prompt despatch. —Yours, B. Rayment." "Tenge Moor, Bolton, February 28th.—Sir, received Seifert contest Roller all-right, and am highly satisfied with it.—Yours, J. Shepherd." "6, Thornton-rd., Stanwix, Carlisle, Feb. 26th.—Sir, I am quite satisfied with Roller you sent. He has started to sing, and is at it nearly all day.—Yours, J. Smith." "8, Emanuel Fold, Holton-lane, near Bolton, Feb. 24th.—Sir, received Seifert Roller in good health; he is a good bird, and no better could be got at double the money. Thanking you for honest dealings, your, W. Parkinson." "7, Batley-st., Mossley, Manchester, Feb. 24th.—Sir, birds arrived safe, and cock is very free singer.—Yours J. Gee." "40, Parker-st., Bradford, Manchester, Feb. 22nd.—Sir, please send Roller as follows; the two I had from you last December are both singing a treat; in fact, two friends came and heard them and would not rest till I had sold them one each.—Yours, J. Fisher." "Kentsford, Kentsbank, Feb. 23rd.—Sir, we are all delighted with the Roller you sent on trial a week ago; am well satisfied and thank you for straightforward dealings.—Yours, H. Hutchinson." "17, Nantylear-st., Cymmer, Port Talbot, Feb. 20th.—Sir, I am well pleased with Leipzig Roller. I never thought to get so good a bird for so little money; he is singing day and night.—Yours, J. Matthews." "3, Chapel-st., Chirton Village, North Shields, Feb. 10th.—Sir, received Roller safe and sound, and in ten minutes he showed us what he could do in way of siuging, and he delighted us all: such sweet trills, a pleasuro to hear; and since then he has gained the honour of 'pet of the household.' Please send following birds.—Please send following birds.—Yours, G. Hill." On October 20th Mr. Hall again writes as follows:—"Sir, birds arrived safe, and I am very pleased with them. I have had to part with the Leipzig Roller, as a friend was so delighted at his melodious song that he insisted ou me letting him have it, and now I have word from him that he is simply reiguing the household by his winning song. I should not have parted with him, but know I can get another from you at my convenience. I am confident that if people only kuew the beauty of your Rollers' song no other singing bird would be kept in their homes. —Yours, G. Hall." "Bar Hill-rd., Madeley, Staffs., Feb. 19th.—Sir, Leipzig Roller arrived safe. Please allow me to thank you for such a remarkable bird; it is a most splendid songster, and I am well satisfied. Anyone in want of a real downright good singing Canary cannot do better than have a Leipzig Roller from you, as they cannot be beaten.—Yours, S. Jackson." "17, Harcourt-st., Hopetown, Darlington, Feb. 17th.—Sir, please send following. I am delighted with Leipzig Roller cock you sent; he is a champion, and is 'top of the bill'; everyone admires him. Thanking you for such a good bird, yours, J. Rolls." "28, Oswald-terr., Gildard-rd., Leeds, Feb. 14th.—Sir, bird arrived Saturday, and has turned out as good as advertised. I am well pleased, and thank you for honest dealing.—Yours, H. Goddard." "44, Commercial-st., Abergwynfi, Feb. 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe and am well pleased with him. He is a lovely songster. I have had birds from other people, but never had such lovely birds as yours for the money. I had a Roller from your three years ago and he has never stopped singing, not even when moulting. They are both singing together now like Nightingales.—Yours, R. Palmer." "William-st. Castlederg, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, Feb. 15th. — Sir, please send another Hartz cock; the last one I had is best singing bird ever heard in this part of country, and the Goldfinch is also singing well.—Yours, J. Keenan." Every bird is safely and warmly packed, free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time, on receipt cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded in full. If any person would like to hear one of these Leipzig Rollers sing, I shall be pleased to send one on week's trial, even if he has no idea of purchasing, providing cash is deposited with Editor and reasonable care taken of bird. I am the only importer of this particular strain, and every bird is stamped under wing "Hans Weber Leipzig," so send your orders to me to insure getting the real article. See British Bird Column for further advertisement.

SANDIFORD, Bird Specialist a d Judge, PRESTON, LANCS.

I SAY NO!

I say no, and you well know that I know when to say no; so I say to you, No, do not trouble to read this announcement if you want to pay fancy prices, for I do not believe in them, therefore have nothing whatever to do with them. I have yearly during the past fifteen years, and honestly believe that I always shall sell as many or more birds than any opponent, for, you know, I have the confidence of the public. My sending you birds carriage paid to your door on seven days' approval, at my sole risk, and guaranteeing every customer satisfaction, allows you time to make sure the birds give you every satisfaction before deciding to keep them. Then, again, the high quality of my birds is unsurpassable, every bird being sound, astounding value for money, without any fancy prices, bounce, or brag. My matched pairs for breeders and amateurs are a marvel of cheapness. Yorkshires, Norwich, and Rollers at 10/6, 12/6, 15/- per pair are birds that will satisfy the most sceptical. The shrewder the buyers the more I like them, for they fully realise the high quality I give for the money. I yearly receive thousands of unsolicited testimonials from delighted customers, and could fill the whole of this paper with letters of praise, but you will be better satisfied, and can judge better, if you let me send you your requirements, carriage paid, on seven days' approval; you can then fully test the quality before deciding to keep the birds. My whole study is to give every satisfaction, and fullest possible value for money, that you may tell your friends of the high quality of my birds. If by chance you are not satisfied send the bird back; and tell me its faults. I shall only be too delighted to send you another in its place, for I take all the risk during time of approval. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. All Canaries forwarded to your address carriage paid on 7 days' approval, at my sole risk or deposit.

MISS E. L. STOREY,

SPECIAL INVITATION

To SOCIETIES to COME AND SEE the WORLD'S GREATEST SHOW OF CANARIES.

I shall be glad to arrange with any society of fanciers to pay a visit to my rooms and inspect my stock. It would be a day well spent and of absorbing interest to every true lover of birds.

I have thousands of high-class specimens in stock, in every variety of Canary or Mule. My rooms are all scrupulously clean, and well-ventilated, and the birds in the pink of health and condition. I use no artificial heat of any kind. I am always pleased to welcome fanciers from any quarter, who can prove for themselves that my Advertisements are absolutely true in every detail. If you cannot come, however, and are in need of any variety of Canary or Mule, or any requisites for the bird-room, don't forget to send a Post Card for my FREE illustrated catalogue and advice to breeders FREE.

EVERY FANCIER whether able to come or not, receives the same honourable treatment and the same personal ATTENTION.

I Submit a few Testimonials out of Hundreds Recently Received. Kindly note dates.

DECLINING the fancy, exceptional opportunity to secure some of the right stuff; no reasonable offer refused—all to go; 40 Yorkshire greens and few clear and marked, also breeding and show cages: Latham, 384, Hawthorne-road, Bootle, Liverpool.

GRAND long, slim yellow Yorkshire cocks (several winners local and members' shows), splendid breed birds, and ready for pairing up, only 10/6 each to clear; approval; cash or deposit. Stamp reply: Hodgson, Printer, Wakefield-rd., Bradford.

HENS, typical Yorkshires, all colour, 7/6, 10/6; also splendid yellow even marked cock, and good buff hen, bred even mks. last year, 17/6 pair; approval, deposit; also few good long buff cocks, 10/6 each: A. Hadley, Masonic Hall, Holyhead, N. Wales.

SELL following high-class Yorkshires: 3 yellow cocks, 10/6 and 12/6 each; 4 buffs, 8/6 and 10/6; 3 yellow hens, 7/- each; 3 buffs, 6/- each; 2 proved Muling hens, 4/- each; no better winning strain obtainable: Mr. Dodgson, 40, Priestman-ter., Bradford, Yorkshire.

GREAT sacrifice, through pressure of business, having no time to breed this season, must reduce my selected stock of Yorkshires of rare length and style, all left now have won honours, therefore make valuable stock birds; buff and yellow cocks, 10/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, 7/6, 10/-, 15/- each; 10 days' approval: Hawkes, Grove-green, Leytonstone.

"THAT ALWAYS GIVE SATISFACTION."

Just one testimonial I give out of scores similar received this last few days. From—40, Alfred Street, Waterside, Londonderry. March 12th, 1910. Dear Sir,—Birds to hand, and happy to state have arrived safe and sound, nothing the worse for the long distance they have travelled, and I am very well pleased indeed with them. They are in splendid condition; I only wish I had heard of you a few weeks ago, as I was badly taken in elsewhere. I ask for no week's approval, as your birds and your straightforward manner in dealing with me is approval well worthy of every recommendation, and which I shall do my utmost to do. Again thanking you, and trust to send you more orders shortly. J. Campbell to L. Dykes.

My Yorkshires need no recommending, as they recommend themselves wherever they go, and my winning this season of over 200 cash prizes, three Challenge Cups, gold, silver and bronze medals, and numerous other specials, prove the quality of the reliable strain.

Champion long, slim, Yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/0, 10/6, 12/0, 15/-, 20/- each. Buff cocks at 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and 7 inches long. Long, racy hens, either Yellow or Buff, and all in breeding condition and anxious to nest, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/0, 10/6, 12/6 each. Pairs, unrelated, and matched to breed winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; also few that can win in good competition, at reasonable prices. Clears, Ticked, Green Marked and Cinn. Marked. All guaranteed cold-rooms bred and kept, and feathered like wax. Travelling Cages 3d. extra. And Remember I send all orders off same day as received, either for cash, deposit with Editor, or on Easy Payments. All on a full week's approval at my risk, and I may also here state I have sent scores on deposit system, and never had one to return all season. Inspection invited at any time. Send for Price List, and hundreds of winning testimonials that I have received.

CHAMPION Yorkshire buff cock, 20/-, winner; matched pair, 20/-; three days' approval, cash or deposit. Parents of above winner of 7 1sts, 6 specials, including 1st and medal at Plymouth W.F.S., this being the champion yellow of the West: Bounds, St. Teath. Well-known winner.

POWICK'S champion Yorkshires, long slim typical birds, the same strain as the winners at all the leading shows in all classes; cocks, 7/6, 10/6; hens, 5/6, 7/0 each; a few winners, 15/6 each; no rubbish; ten days' approval at my risk: Wm. Powick, Eastfield House, Dewsbury, Yorkshire.

L. LANE has about 20 Yorkshires left, cocks and hens of rare style and quality, and feathered like wax, will take 10/6 each for cocks, and 5/- for hens, to clear; all my own breeding, cold room; approval; satisfaction given, or money returned in full; 16, Fountain-st., Barnoldswick, Yorkshire.

LONG, slim, typical Yorkshires, Bailey and Swanger's strain, few real clinkers for disposal, racey cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; upstanding hens, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; pairs, properly mated, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-; every bird a bargain; satisfaction certain; approval willingly: Hatton, Windmill, Belper.

CHAMPION Yorkshire Canaries, long, leggy, upstanding cock, both clear or ticked, from 7/6 upwards, hens ready to nest 6/6 upwards, pairs properly mated to breed winners, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-; cold room kept; 26 years' breeder and exhibitor; approval: Frank Stevens, Great Ayton, Yorkshire.

CHAMPION Yorkshires, long, slim, typical birds, all from winning strain, cold-room bred, at workingmen's prices, 10/6 per pair, worth 20/-; cocks, 7/6, 8/6; hens, 3/6, 5/6; call and see them any time; inspection invited; will send carriage paid on seven days approval; cash or deposit with Editor; travelling cages free: Marsh, Freemasons Arms, Mercerton-st., Brady-st., Whitechapel-rd., London.

AN excellent opportunity to secure some real bargains for the breeding season, all fine healthy birds, in breeding condition, owing to business pressure, I am compelled to part with my prize Crests, Crest-breds, and typical Yorkshires in one lot, or separate, all cold room bred, also breeding cages, show cages, and cases, and everything for the bird room, at very reasonable prices. Seen any time: Slade, 154, Broomwood-rd., Clapham Common.

LINDSAY'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

JOHN MACE, SHEFFIELD, FOR

high-class Yorkshire cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6; hens, 3/6 each, on 6 days' approval. All other birds in stock. Cash or deposit: John Mace, Naturalist, Barnsley, and Blank-st., Sheffield.

£14 EXHIBITOR'S BARGAIN £14

Owing to business, and want of time, I must dispose of my stock of Yorkshires and cages, 8 buff cocks, 2 yellow cocks, 6 yellow hens, 4 buff hens, 13 breeders, 6 show cages, 2 cases, 6 baths, and large flight; these birds can win their money back in one season; I gave £10 for 3, have won at the following shows: Manchester, Liverpool, Bolton, Chester, Ormskirk, Wigan, Warrington, Tideswell, Palace, etc.; inspection by appointment: Stout, 14, Neston-st., Warrington.

J. WILCOCK,

I have a few choice selected pairs of Yorkshires and Norwich Plainheads to part with from 20/- to 30/- per pair; these are great value to clear; three days' approval, with pleasure; 14, Chapel-st., Eccleshill, near Bradford, Yorkshire.

There are Testimonials — AND — Testimonials

Please read these, and ask if better are possible to be found—Sceptics especially invited.

Exceeded All Expectations.

Well Worth More Than the Price.

18, Winchester Buildings, Orange Street, London. March 11th, 1910,—Just a line to say bird arrived safely. I am fully satisfied, and think it is well worth more than the price which I paid for it. J. W. Barnes to W. Rudd.

Nothing Like Them Down Here at the Price.

Manchester. March 10th, 1910,—The two birds arrived all right, and I am quite pleased with them, nothing like them down here at the price. W. J. Wilson to W. Rudd.

First—but not the last.

33, Alma Street, London. March 14th, 1910.—Both cage and birds arrived quite safe, and I am more than pleased with both. Thanking you for the promptness with my first, but not the last, transaction, we will have together. J. J. Waymark to W. Rudd.

"A Record—Smart Work, Sir!"

Kilkee, Ireland. March 12th, 1910,—Birds arrived in splendid condition. Thanks for prompt attention to order. I think it is almost a record, three days from the time I sent the order, to the time I received the bird, taking into consideration that I live in the West of Ireland. Smart work, sir.—E. Southwood to W. Rudd.

More than Satisfied.

11, Wilson Terrace, Billingham. March 13th, 1910.—Received birds all right; I am more than satisfied with the grand birds you sent me. A. Cartwright to W. Rudd.

Never Expected Such.

32, Wilkinson Street, Warrington. March 13th, 1910,—Many thanks for sending me such a good Norwich; I never expected such a bird. He is a treat, a grand singer, and a nice bird. I thank you for treating me so well. You are a perfect gentleman. I am more than satisfied. R. Bibby to W. Rudd.

Cannot Speak Too Highly, etc.

3, Park Road, Radlett. March, 1910,—Birds arrived quite safe, I cannot speak too highly of the birds, and the prompt and careful way they were packed. It is really a pleasure to deal with you. I am more than pleased with my bargain. G. Hussey to W. Rudd.

Much Better than Expected at Price.

155, Liverpool Buildings, Station Road, Highbury, London. March 9th, 1910,—I received my two birds quite safely, for which I thank you; I am very pleased indeed with them. They are much better birds than I expected at the price. J. W. Redman to W. Rudd.

The Class for Money is Surprising.

11, Gardner Road, Guildford. March 9th, 1910.—I received the bird in fine condition, not even a feather broken. It is a splendid songster. It is surprising the class of bird you send for the money. F. Sherlock to W. Rudd.

22, South Parade, Waterford. March, 1910,—Just a line to say bird arrived quite safe a few days ago; I am delighted with it; it is a splendid singer, and good in colour. All that have seen him are delighted. Sergt. R. Chalmers to W. Rudd.

Long Street, Cerne Abbas, Dorset. March 3rd, 1910,—I am writing to say the birds arrived quite safe, and in perfect condition. The Roller is singing grand, and I am well pleased with Crested hen. Thanking you for prompt attention. I shall be wanting more birds soon, and will send you my order. A. Trim to W. Rudd.

35, Bamborough, Byker-on-Tyne. March 9th, 1910,—I received the pair of Norwich Canaries safely, and I am very pleased with them. They are a very nice pair, and I am well satisfied. I thank you for the straightforward way in which you have dealt with me. J. King to W. Rudd.

Another Surprise.

(Yes, they are surprises in value.—W.R.).

30, Totnes Road, Tidal Basin, London. March 9th, 1910.—Received the bird quite safe, with many thanks, and quite surprised to see such a bird for the money. G. Cutterham to W. Rudd.

You Take the Biscuit for Promptness.

18, Belle Vue Terrace, Consett. March 8th, 1910,—Bird arrived safely this morning, in good condition. Am pleased with them, and think them good value. You take the biscuit for your promptness. W. Barron to W. Rudd.

More than could be desired for the money, and that is more than a lot, etc.

1, Office Row, Barrington, Bedlington. March, 1910,—I received birds all right. They are more than could be desired for the money. Thanking you for the straightforward manner in which you fulfilled my order. That is more than a lot of these so-called breeders and specialists do. R. Harrison to W. Rudd.

Defy all Competition.

It is not enough to say the value cannot be equalled—it cannot be approached. A trial demonstrates it beyond all doubt.

THE

(WELL WORTH ATTENTION)

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 12/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 107; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/- (Five Shillings).

All birds on approval to any part of Great Britain. Cages in all cases 3d. extra.

For all others, please send for Free Illustrated List.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

AUTON BROS'. YORKSHIRES

Having selected our breeding stock, have few stock birds for sale; cocks, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6; hens, 4/-, 6/-, 7/6: 5, St. Thomas-rd., Spalding.

A. E. PATTRICK. YORKSHIRES.

Having selected my breeding stock, some extra good birds left, both cinnamon marks, green marks, cocks from 10/- to 40/-; hens from 6/- to 20/-; three days' approval, cash or deposit: 6, Essex-st., Southend-on-Sea.

H. H. TOWERS

Winner Crystal Palace, 1910, championship diploma and Palace medal, two 1sts, three 2nds. The above successes, following on my winnings at Yorkshire Union and other leading shows, prove the excellence of my strain; pairs from 15/- upwards; state wants; on approval; cash or deposit: Address, Colne-rd., Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

J. C. BARNES,

149, Duncombe-st., Sheffield. Few grand birds to spare; true position, very lengthy, feathered to perfection, and well on leg; correctly matched pairs, 30/- to 60/-; odd cocks, 10/- upwards; hens ditto; approval with pleasure; stamp reply; winners of numerous cups, medals, etc., at leading shows; all my winners guaranteed own breeding.

HENS. HENS. HENS.

These are the kind you require to breed champions, long, slim, upstanding birds, feathered to perfection, and showing that bit of breed so much admired in a true Yorkshire, position and type A1, clear, ticked, or marked, yellow or buff; also a few odd cocks, splendid stock birds, reasonable prices; approval; cash or deposit; stamp particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose-house, Lyttonrd., Bradford.

Ambiers' Champion Yorkshires

Also Special for Best Yorkshire in Show.

Thus beating all other so-called champions. Don't be misled by bunkum, Ambler's Yorkshires are unbeatable, and the most reliable strain in the Fancy. See our winnings at leading shows for 30 years. We can still spare a few real gems. Pairs, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- and 60/-; matched to breed the biggest winners; single birds proportionate. These are wonderful type, feathered to perfection, and of the highest possible breed; cold-room bred; approval; satisfaction guaranteed.

MESSRS. AMBLERS (late of Bradford), 29, Sefton Road, Morecambe, W.E.

LOOK HERE!

It is all right you paying fancy prices for ordinary, or even third-class birds, if your desire is to be rid of your money, but should you desire good value, 20/-, or even 30/- to the £1, you must use discretion in where you order your birds. I always have been, and still am, the leading trading fancier of high-class birds at most reasonable prices. My prices may be copied, but the quality I give cannot be equalled at anything like the prices. When you send me your order you get birds from the fountain head of high-class, typical clean, healthy birds. My stock may be (but I doubt it) outnumbered in count, but the quality stands supreme. Yet the prices are low. Just you have one of my matched pairs at 10/6, 12/6, or 15/-, on approval, and compare them with birds costing double the price. You will then be convinced that for style and quality, at reasonable prices, I stand alone. This is only explained by my breeding from the best any buying only first-class stocks, that are bred from, including, and related to winners at all the leading shows. I do not exhibit myself, therefore my customers get birds from me that other breeders would retain for their own exhibition. The prices and quality of my birds utterly defy competition, and I guarantee every customer satisfaction. Let me send you the birds you require, carriage paid to your door, at my own risk, for seven clear days, that you may be thoroughly satisfied before deciding to keep them. I am assured your trial order will enlist both you and your friends as my regular customers, for you will join with my thousands of customers in acknowledging that for style and quality my birds are unsurpassable. Border Fancy cocks, 6/-, 6/6, 7/- each, hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, matched pairs, 8/-, 8/6, 9/-, 9/6. Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each, hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each, matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, matched pairs 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Hartz Rollers, champion songsters, cocks 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs 8/-, 9/-; St. Andreasburg Rollers, the king of all singers, cocks 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, hens 3/-, 4/-, 5/-; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; illustrated list, 1d. All Canaries carriage paid, on approval.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Desiring to clear season's surplus stock (about 150) before end of month, I offer 50 pairs at reduced prices, viz.: 10 pairs each at 9/-, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single stock cocks, 7/-, 9/-, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; hens, 4/-, 5/6, 7/-, 9/-, 12/-; these are guaranteed bred from same stock sold at 50/- to £5 the pair. Owing to past indifferent health conditions, have also decided to limit my coming season's breeding stock, so I offer a few specially selected pairs, intended for own use, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/- to 30/- pair. My past 30 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshires only is sufficient guarantee for purity of breed, combined with up-to-date style and qualities; all cold-room bred, reared, and kept; all approval, cash or deposit; price list and particulars sent on receipt of stamp for postage: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

I consider CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL a most useful book. I have every one of the ANNUALS by me since they were issued, and I frequently find them handy for reference.—A. C. BROTHERHOOD (Newport, Salop).

Please accept my thanks for the splendid plato of my Border Fancy depicted in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I was greatly surprised to see it. I wish your ANNUAL all success. It should be in every fancier's home; no one should be without a copy, as it is the most useful article in the bird-room and secretary's office. It is like CAGE BIRDS: it has made rapid strides since the first copy came out.— W. SIMPSON (Fort William).

I beg to thank you for the splendid birdy paper, CAGE BIRDS, that you put out for our pleasure each week. I, like many bird lovers, await it each week. Many are the dull hours it clears away, and many a night when work is done, and I am in the easy chair with my breeding cage full of lovely Roller songsters, and I have CAGE BIRDS to read, I feel the happiest man in the world.—G. W. HALL (North Shields).

I think CAGE BIRDS a very good paper, and no bird fancier should be without it. It is very helpful. How I came to read it is interesting. One day I was walking down to business and found a paper lying on the ground. I noticed the words CAGE BIRDS at the top of the paper, and at once saw that it was a bird paper. I showed my prize to a friend, and he also was delighted with it, and gets it every week. I read it every week myself, because if you leave it off one week you don't know what you may be missing.—ERNEST FALKARD (York).

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL I find is again a mine of useful information, and every lover of birds misses a treat who has not bought one. I show CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL to dozens of people every week. When they come to my house people say "What lovely plates!" I have one wall with plates on, and real live songsters on the others. The amateur can find useful knowledge in every page of the ANNUAL. And if the advice is followed both man and woman can be the gainers by pounds. It is a sixpence well spent.— GEORGE TURNEY (East Ham).

The Man Who Won

Was the man who had good birds and the knowledge of HOW TO SHOW THEM to the greatest advantage. If you want to win you must also have this knowledge, and the best and cheapest manner for all Norwich Canary Fanciers to obtain the latest and most up-to-date information on BREEDING, MANAGING AND PREPARING their birds for the show bench is to purchase at once a copy of "Cage Birds" latest handbook, entitled:

NORWICH CANARIES

How to Breed, Manage and Exhibit.

By C. A. HOUSE,

Price - - 1s. 1d. post free.

This Handbook, complete and comprehensive in every detail, supplies in a concise manner all the information that it is necessary to know to become a successful breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Canaries

FROM THE EGG TO THE SHOW BENCH.

It explains fully the best methods of pairing up the stock birds; how to feed and treat when the young are hatched; the art of colour feeding, and the best methods of washing and preparing for show. It contains a coloured plate and numerous illustrations of the different varieties, and is a veritable encyclopædia on the Norwich Canary, which no breeder, whether novice or old hand, can afford to be without.

SPRATT'S PATENT (Limited) ANNUAL MEETING.

The 24th annual meeting was held on the 8th instant at the Cannon Street Hotel, Mr. Stephen Wingrove (vice-chairman and managing director) in the chair. The secretary (Mr. W. M. Dry) read the auditor's certificate appended to the accounts. The Chairman, at the outset of his remarks, referred with great regret to the loss they had sustained since their last general meeting by the death of Mr. John Batchelor, who had been a director of the company for 23 years. They had also to regret the absence of Mr. Baelz (chairman of the company), who had been ordered to take a rest. Dealing with the business, he said he thought that the shareholders would agree with him that the report was satisfactory, especially in view of the higher prices of raw materials last year, compared with 1908 for manufacturing. After explaining various items in the balance-sheet and other details, the Chairman spoke with regard to the allocation of £5,000 to form the nucleus of a pension fund for the benefit of the employees, many of whom had been in the service of the company for periods varying from 20 to 37 years. The company, Mr. Wingrove stated, had a most efficient practical staff in the factory managers and heads of departments.—The report was adopted unanimously; also the recommendation of the Board that Mr. G. M. Edwards of the London Corn Exchange (an original shareholder), and Mr. S. T. Lethbridge, sales manager, who has been in the service of the company since 1886, be appointed directors.—Mr. Thomas Southcott was re-elected as auditor.

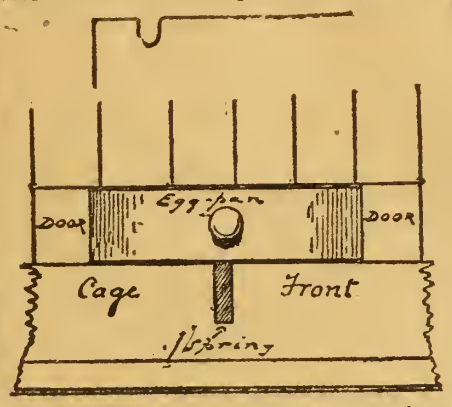
A WASHING EXHIBITION IN WALWORTH.

A washing exhibition was given at the "Queen Elizabeth," Morrow Street, Walworth, on March 9th, by Mr. S. Harris, of Walworth. A very nice room was kindly lent by Mr. Charles Mullally, and a goodly number were present, including many well-known fanciers, a very instructive and enjoyable evening being spent. Mr. Seyers, the chairman, on rising, said it gave him great pleasure to be present, as it was one of the most important items in exhibiting to show the birds scrupulously clean in order to be at the top of the class. He also gave good advice to the beginner, explaining how much better it was to buy a good pair matched by a breeder, than to buy a cock here and a hen there. He then called upon Mr. Harris to give his lecture.

Mr. Harris having his water, drying cage, and other utensils ready, commenced by washing a bird slowly, so as to give his audience a better chance of seeing how it was done, explaining thoroughly as he went along the correct way of proceeding with the least exertion to the bird. Several more were quickly washed, and while these were drying a discussion on colour food ensued. The birds now being dry they were handed round for inspection, and one and all expressed their appreciation.

Mr. G. Payne proposed, and Mr. Whatley seconded, a vote of thanks to the lecturer and chairman, also to Messrs. Mullally Bros. for their kindness in lending the room, to which all suitably replied, the chairman promising to give a washing exhibition at a future date.—W.B.

I was greatly surprised on obtaining my copy of CAGE BIRDS recently, to find such an excellent sketch on the front page of my buff Norwich cock bird, for which accept my best thanks. I have shown this bird thirteen times, and have been awarded eleven first prizes and about the same number of special prizes, besides winning the Sligo cup twice in succession. The only show where he was put down was at the Y.C.C. of Ireland, 1908 and 1909, once to third and this year to fourth. But one week later at the next show he had an easy win over the birds that beat him in Dublin. I wish CAGE BIRDS greater success than ever in the year we have just commenced.—J. STEWART (Belfast).



I am obliged to you and to your artist for the very pleasant surprise you gave me, by including such an excellent drawing of my unflighted yellow green Norwich in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I have only exhibited the bird on three occasions, when he stood first at the City and Suburban Young Bird Show, first at the same society's annual show, and second—not first—at Battersea open in the A.O.V. class. When washing the cage in which the bird was exhibited at Battersea, I found a first prize label under the second prize one, so Mr. Norman must have sketched him before the first prize label had been covered over, hence the mistake. I am somewhat surprised that this variety is not more popular in London, especially when one frequently hears fanciers complaining of the trouble and expense entailed in the moulting and colour-feeding of the lighter-plumaged varieties. My experience with the greens is that they are a hardy, prolific, and good feeding variety, and if not catered for on the show bench at London shows, it is because they are so few in number that it does not pay to run classes for them. At shows where no classes are given for greens, an exhibitor will generally find a place for them in the A.O.V. class, and a good specimen may be frequently found in the money.—A. W. CURTIS (Fulham, London, S.W.).

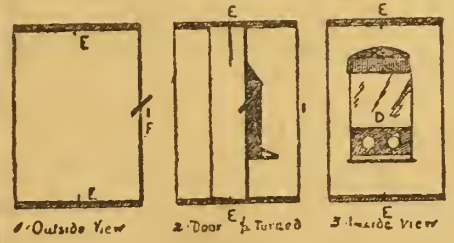
No. 392.
A Useful Egg-drawer Holder.
Sent by Mr. H. Freeman, 33, Air Street, Sculcoates, Hull.



I send a sketch of a simple but useful egg-drawer holder. When using pot egg drawers which fix under a sliding door, they hang downwards and loose. Get a piece of clock spring, and bend it over a lighted gas, to the shape shown in the top part of sketch. This piece of spring fixes on the cage front, and so holds the drawer quite firm as shown. These springs I find very useful, and hope my fellow readers will find them so too.—H. FREEMAN.

No. 393.
An Aviary Feeding Board.
Sent by Mr. W. Isherwood, 115, Greaves Street, Blackburn.

Enclosed is a sketch of an idea which I find very useful for aviaries or large flight cages. The device prevents your having to enter amongst your birds, which is often the cause of their not pairing up. Fig. 1 shows the outside view; Fig. 2, the inside view with seed hopper attached; and Fig. 3 the feeding board turned round. D is the seed hopper; E strong wire pins about two inches long; F is a catch on the outside. To feed your birds, all you have to do is to turn your board round and fill up the hopper. A water trough can be attached in the same manner.—W. ISHERWOOD.

Ruskin and Rare Birds.

The slaughter of rare birds visiting these shores during the winter has continued as usual. Ruskin once said that birds seemed to come to England for the express purpose of being shot. And so it seems.

A Non-drinker.

It is said that the Falcon never drinks. Some which have been kept in captivity have never been seen to do so, although carefully supplied with water and watched.

Vegetarian Birds.

During very severe weather Skylarks have been known to feed exclusively on vegetables. Their favourite is the tops of turnips, but cabbage leaves are freely eaten when no other food is obtainable. Some of the huge flocks upon the East Coast have been known to almost strip the gardens near the sea.

Pheasant's Strength in Flight.

Pursued probably by a Hawk, a full-grown wild cock Pheasant struck a window of the dining-room at Beaufort Castle, Beauly, with such force as to break through the plate glass, a quarter of an inch thick, and strike against the door on the opposite side of the room. The time was 5 p.m., and the dining-room is on the second floor. A remarkable circumstance is that the Pheasant appeared to be unhurt, and it is being kept at the castle. The glass is of such strength that some difficulty was experienced in breaking it by experimenting on it with a golf ball, standing well back.

A BUDGET OF OPINIONS FROM READERS.

We have to apologise for the belated appearance, owing to pressure upon space, of some of the appended paragraphs.

Your last Double Number excels all others.—C. J. MULLIGAN (Sligo).

CAGE BIRDS takes well in this district, and you will find it in every fancier's home here.—F. ANDERSON (Biggar).

I must compliment CAGE BIRDS and its staff on the magnificent Birthday Number. It is, in my opinion, a masterpiece.—D. BUCHAN (Falkirk).

I have taken your paper, CAGE BIRDS, for a number of years now, and find it contains some very reliable information.—FRED ARCHER (Huddersfield).

I have taken CAGE BIRDS in since its first number, and have always found an improvement each season. May it go on still more to perfection.—W. MUIR (Edinburgh).

What a budget of news the Palace Number of CAGE BIRDS contained! And the Coloured Plate is quite a study for Hybrid breeders, and simply grand in itself.—W. LOWNE (Gt. Yarmouth).

I think the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS with the Calendar and Plates, was a perfect treat. And so were the plates I have received from time to time.—W. H. WALKER (Hanley).

I think CAGE BIRDS a grand paper for all bird-keepers. I wish it every success.—E. MAYNE (Grantham).

Your coloured plate of Canary-Bullfics and parents was extra good. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—W. HOWE (Wellingborough).

Your Crystal Palace Show Number means another "first and special" for the Editor and artists of CAGE BIRDS.—W. NICHOLLS (Twickenham).

I was very pleased with the Crystal Palace Show Number of CAGE BIRDS. It was a splendid two-pennyworth.—J. W. ADAMS (Kings Lynn).

I thank you for your splendid plates and double numbers, and also for the valuable information I have got through reading CAGE BIRDS from time to time.—R. BOOTH (Ardwick).

I find a great pleasure in reading CAGE BIRDS; in fact, one wearies and longs for the next number. The Birthday Number was too good for words. I can only join with others in wishing prosperity and long life to our favourite paper.—ARCH. P. DALE (Beith).

This excellent medium (CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1910) has now reached its eighth issue, and each year the publishers seem to go "one better." It contains a full review of the cage-bird Fancy during 1909 in all its varieties: it is lavishly illustrated throughout, and the leading specialists of the day have contributed much literary matter on subjects interesting to the ornithologist. The book is a complete guide for all lovers and keepers of cage-birds.—THE DEWSBURY REPORTER.

I was very proud of the honour I received in a recent CAGE BIRDS in having my three winning Goldfinches (at the recent Crystal Palace Show) depicted on the front page. Many thanks to your artist for such good portraits. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—T. W. RICHARDS (Narberth).

I have received CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL from my newsagent, and I consider it a good six-pennyworth.—JOHN ROGERS (Afonwen, Flintshire).

I have been taking CAGE BIRDS for some time. It is good value for the money, especially to us fanciers in the Transvaal. The advertisements are also very useful to us.—J. F. EASTON (Turffontein, Johannesburg).

I was surprised at the ever-increasing superiority of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I congratulate you on the articles, which are most instructive to the novice. When I read it I thought about the phrase "live and learn."—F. COCKEREL (Stockport).

I thank you for the two copies of the CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, which I received safely. I find the ANNUAL most useful and instructive, and would miss it greatly. I have kept birds for a hobby for some years now, and during that period have regularly taken in CAGE BIRDS. I look forward to its receipt every Friday with the greatest pleasure. There is no periodical that I prize more, and all I know of bird-keeping has been learnt from its pages. May it be more and yet more successful as the years roll by.—A. W. HIGGINSON (Kendal).

Please accept my very best thanks for the splendid portrayal of my ticked buff Norwich in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1910. I consider the ANNUAL a perfect birdy encyclopædia, and I cannot understand any fancier being without such a valuable aid. How such a book can be produced, too, for sixpence is absolutely marvellous. The information it contains, the advice given (especially to young beginners), and the advertisements of all birdy requisites, and where to obtain them, are a veritable boon to fanciers. A gentleman from the Royal College at Osborne called on me this week and asked if he could see my birds, stating that he had seen the illustration of my ticked buff in the ANNUAL. Needless to say, I was delighted to show him my rooms containing over two hundred Norwich. He was amazed but very delighted, and assured me he had no idea there were so many birds in the Island. The fact of the CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL being so attractive as to induce people outside the Fancy to purchase and peruse its contents speaks volumes for its popularity. To those fanciers not possessing a copy, my genuine advice is, get a copy at once, and they will find it absolutely the best six-penny investment they have ever made. That this bonny little ANNUAL may receive the support it so richly deserves is my most sincere wish.—E. BAKER (Cowes, I. of W.).

Twitterings.

Mr. G. Gardner will judge the Hayle Cage-bird Show on November 2nd and 3rd, writes Mr. Hy. Ware, the hon. secretary.

Kindly note that my address is altered from Central Street to 30, Hasland Road, Hasland, near Chesterfield.—CHAS. H. NAYLOR.

We have removed to 29, Sefton Road, Morecambe, and shall be pleased to see here any fanciers at any time, write Messrs. Amblers.

Kindly note, writes Mr. Arthur Foulds, that I have removed from Brunswick Street, to 7, King's Parade, Fallowfield, Manchester. Will Roller exhibitors and secretaries of societies kindly note?

We have again removed our headquarters from the Fleece Hotel to the "Legs of Man" Hotel, Market Arcade, Wigan, writes Mr. W. Ridge, hon. secretary, Wigan and Dis. C.B.S. Meetings are held on the first Saturday in each month at 8 p.m.

The manual of the Ilford F. and F.S. (open to Essex) is a neat production, and contains a list of fixtures for the ensuing year, which includes a lecture by Mr. Skinner on cage-birds on May 10th. Mr. W. H. Drew is the secretary, and his address 37a, Romford Road, Forest Gate, E.

The newly-formed Brighton C.B.A. have issued a pretty little handbook which gives the fullest information respecting the association. There is a long list of members' names and addresses, and no doubt the secretary, Mr. A. T. Riddles, 29, Irwood Crescent, Brighton, will be pleased to hear of fanciers who wish to join.

We have been successful in arranging with the following gentlemen to judge at our open show on October 8th, writes Mr. Robert Whitton, secretary of the Broughty Ferry C.B.S.: for Scotch Fancies, Messrs. J. Dalgleish (Leith) and J. Fotheringham (Kelty); for Crests and Norwich, Mr. J. Young (Rutherglen); for Border Fancies, Mr. Gollan Hislop (Stirling); and for British and Foreign, Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow).

We have received from Mr. E. E. Pass (Annesley Road, Hucknall Torkard), a copy of his latest price list, replete with up-to-date cages, etc., specially designed for 1910 season. Our readers will do well to apply for one, as Mr. Pass has a reputation for good-class work, and his prices are extremely favourable to the purchaser. Cage racks, drying cages, travelling cases, seed, etc., mills, and other requisites are also supplied.

TWO SUPERB STANDARD WORKS.

"Our Canaries."
"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th.

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

The committee of the Forres and Northern O.A., writes Mr. J. Russell, have elected as judge for their show on December 3rd Mr. W. B. Mackie (Aberdeen); and the society is looking forward to a record show.

Mr. House, who judged our recent matched pair show, is giving us a lecture on "Inbreeding" on April 28th, and I want to get a good attendance on that night, writes Mr. H. W. Cook, hon. secretary, Poplar and Dis. C.B.S.

Mr. A. W. Watson writes that he has been appointed secretary of the Scottish National Cage Bird Society, and that his address will now be 58, Colinton Road, Edinburgh, Will members, secretaries, and others kindly note?

We should be glad if Mr. William E. Priestley, who wrote us a week or so ago respecting "Can Canaries be taught the Nightingale's song?" will communicate his address to us, as we have a letter which we are asked to forward to him.

Please state again in your columns, writes Mr. C. P. Arthur (Melksham), that I have given up Budgerigars and Cockatiels, as since the publication of my book on those birds I am inundated with applications from persons wishing to purchase them.

We have received from Mr. W. H. Mugford, the hon. secretary of the London Cage Bird Association a copy of the balance-sheet for 1909. From the figures given therein the finances of this society are apparently in a thoroughly satisfactory state.

Kindly note that I have been elected hon. secretary and treasurer of the Wood Green and Dis. F. and F.A., and that all communications in connection with the society should be addressed to me, writes Mr. Wm. G. Bruce, hon. secretary, 10, Watervillo Road, Lordship Lane, Tottenham, N.

The balance-sheet of the Wood Green F. and F.S. for 1909-10 reflects the highest credit on the secretary for the past year, Mr. Callegari, and the other officials, showing, as it does, a balance to the good of no less than £6 4s. 5d. This is the more creditable in view of the fact that the society is only a year old.

Whilst out for a walk on Sunday last (March 13th), I found a Thrush's nest with 4 eggs in it, and the hen closely sitting. Also I found a Robin's nest with four youngsters about two days old. Where the latter nest was I have found a Robin's nest for this last three years. Last year I found 5 young there on March 13th. —ARTHUR H. C. LEGG (Perth).

The following gentlemen have kindly agreed to judge at our next annual competition on December 10th, writes Mr. J. R. Meikle, secretary of the Edinburgh Open O.A.: Scotch Fancy section, Messrs. D. Black (Govan), J. A. Stewart (Glasgow), J. Carson (East Houses), and A. Paterson (Edinburgh); and Belgian section, Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh).

May I draw the attention of Metropolitan fanciers to the fact that we are having a lecture by Mr. Allen Silver on British Birds at our next meeting on March 21st, at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell Road, E.C., writes Mr. W. Gilbert, hon. secretary of the London and Counties O.S.? All fanciers and friends will have a hearty welcome.

We have formed a Linnet Club for Castleford and district for Saturday singing, writes Mr. A. Sweeting, 102, Carlton Street, Castleford, and if the secretaries of any other clubs will be good enough to forward a card of their rules it will be a great help to us. We intend to have the first sing on Easter Saturday. Our headquarters are at Navigation Inn, Lock Lane, Castleford.

We hear from Mr. H. Tams, of Warren Street, Longton, Staffs, that he is doing exceptionally good business this season with his well-known white pottery appliances. His catalogue, which can be had for the asking, contains a splendid selection of nest pans, egg drawers, and other novelties, and is well worth a careful perusal.

It is with regret we hear that Mr. Walter Driver has resigned the secretaryship of the Cambs. O.S. During his term of office he has brought the society to a very high place in the Fancy. The society have secured two good men to follow Mr. Driver, and Messrs. Unwin and Howlett may be relied upon to keep up the high reputation which the society has enjoyed during Mr. Driver's term of office.

The silver cups we have been trying to obtain by the aid of private subscriptions and socials, writes Mr. A. H. Meadowcroft, hon. secretary of the Heywood and Dis. O.S., have now been purchased. They are very nice indeed, and a credit to the society. We are not strong in numbers, but we are hoping fanciers will join us. We have a four mile radius for membership, and are in a good financial position. A few more members to our aid, and I think we are sure of success at our coming members' shows. Fanciers joining at our next meeting, March 22nd, will be entitled to show for cups.

It is with great pleasure, writes Mr. A. H. C. Legg (Perth), that I let you know of the success of the worthy president of the Perth and Dis. C.B.F.S., Mr. Wm. Evans, who was elected county councillor for Glamorganshire on March 7th. Mr. Evans received 920 votes, and his opponent 411 votes—a glorious majority of 509. Many bird fanciers worked on behalf of Mr. Evans, including the writer of this letter. We could not stand by idle, as Mr. Evans has done a great deal for the fanciers of this district. It has been for many years the ardent desire of many Perthites to return Mr. Evans to a seat upon one of our local governing bodies, and the present opportunity was too good to be missed, but hardly a soul dreamed of a majority of 509. I am sure fellow fanciers will join with me in wishing that Mr. Evans may retain his seat for many years to come.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. W. BROOK (Huddersfield).

With the deepest regret, writes Mr. Wm. Hardwick (Huddersfield), I have to announce the loss sustained by the Huddersfield O.S. through the passing away on March 11th, and in his 54th year, of Mr. John William Brook, who had been a member for over 28 years. His Fancy had been Norwich and Cinnamons. Of a gentle, kind, and lovable disposition, Mr. Brook had endeared himself to every member, and will be much missed by all, and especially by the writer, with whom for years he had been a close personal friend and companion. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved widow and family. He was borne to his grave in Salendine Nook Baptist Chapel, on March 14th, by a number of his old and sorrowing fellow fanciers.

I have read your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, for three years, and have received useful information from it; in fact, all my knowledge of bird-keeping.—ROBERT CAMPBELL, secretary of the Cage Bird Section of the Newburgh (Fife) and Dis. Gardening Society.

It is very gratifying to us to see our seed and nursery advertisers increasing their announcements with us, and we thank our readers for their support; without it no advertiser would remain in any journal. We would again ask our readers, when making up their list of garden requirements—a timely expenditure at this season—to look through our advertising columns, for therein they will find nearly everything they require, and at the right prices.

I see Mr. F. Collins has made a mistake in reporting our annual meeting, writes Mr. R. G. P. Nelson, hon. secretary, Redruth and Dis. F.A. The name of the society is "The Redruth Exhibition Society," and our meeting was only representing a part of it, viz., "Cage birds and fur section." The Redruth F.A. is a different society, and much younger, having been formed in 1909. Mr. Collins also forgot to mention that the assistant secretaries were Messrs. Kemp (cage birds) and Allen (fur).

The Yorkshire Canary Club.

The nomination of officers for 1910-11, latest date, March 31st. Nomination papers will be found in the centre of the handbook of the Y.C.C.—JOHN GREAVES, hon. secretary.

Crested Canary Club.

Kindly announce that the details of Mr. Ley's scheme are unavoidably delayed until next week.—J. S. CLARKE, hon. secretary, C.C.C.

The Cage Bird Union.

There will be a special meeting of the Executive Council of the Cage Bird Union on Saturday next, March 19th, in Room No. 72 of the Mechanics' Institute, Nottingham, at 4 o'clock. —J. RAYNES, secretary, 9, Richmond Road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, near Manchester.

Southern Yorkshire C.C.

The annual meeting of the S.Y.C.C. will be held at the Feathers Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, on Wednesday, March 23rd, at 7.30 p.m. Voting papers have been sent to every member. Should any member have been overlooked, I shall be glad if he will communicate with me at once. Mr. Robson has very kindly consented to lecture on the Yorkshire Canary (at 8 o'clock). I hope all members will endeavour to attend and bring friends, as all fanciers are cordially invited.—J. W. RENNIE, hon. secretary.

How Not to Keep Canaries.

By the Rev. BERNARD WILTON.

Much practical information is placed at the disposal of readers of CAGE BIRDS as to how Canaries can be kept with the greatest pleasure and profit. I propose, however, by giving a faithful account of my preliminary canter in the Cage Bird Fancy, to pose as an awful warning to budding novices; if, indeed, any are to be found as green as I was in those days.

The Awakening.

It is just twenty years since the stupendous fact first really dawned upon me, that Canaries were born, or hatched, shall I say? in cages. Previously, if I thought of the matter at all, I think I must have imagined that they were imported in an unceasing stream from the Canary Islands. But one day, while I was paying a visit to the village cobbler to get my catapult mended—the possession of this weapon seemed to indicate that I was already a fancier in a destructive sense—that worthy remarked, "them two bods did weel for me last year." I enquired his meaning, and learnt with interest that the pair of birds had had three nests the previous season, and that their fortunate owner had disposed of them for prices varying from 5s. to 2s. 6d., thereby realising, what seemed to him and me, a handsome profit.

Instantly the brilliant thought flashed upon me that I would go and do likewise. I had always been interested in wild birds; now I would keep Canaries and combine pleasure with much gain. The thought of delay was hateful. I must possess birds at once. The cobbler became cautious when I approached him with a view to purchase. The birds it appeared were not only Canaries, but Norwich Canaries into the bargain. I did not know what he meant by this, but concluded that they had been conveyed direct to his shop from that ancient city; and dimly apprehended that in some way this mysterious fact increased their value. The cock bird, it appeared, after further parley, was beyond price. In other words it could not be bought for less than 10s., a sum which I could not hope to possess until after my birthday; but I had 1s., and for that amount the hen became mine. As far as I can remember her, she was a long, loose-feathered, nondescript creature; in colour a heavily variegated buff. I should have confidently described her as a mule the day before, for at that time, in company with a large proportion of the non-birdy public, I classified all dark Canaries as mules. But now, after the information imbibed from my cobbler friend, I knew better. She was a hen Canary, and a female goldmine at that.

Dreams and Realities.

It was terrible to have to wait until my birthday in early February before I could provide her with a fitting mate; but it had to be done. With great forethought I had obtained a Crystal Palace aviary for a Christmas present, so that I was prepared for all contingencies that the future might have in store. At last the fateful day arrived, and I set off to York, whither I journeyed every Monday to a mathematical tutor, with 10s. in my pocket.

Someone had advised me to obtain birds through the advertisement columns of a certain journal (before the days of CAGE BIRDS). But there was a great difficulty; how was I to choose from so many advertisements? My eyes roamed helplessly over the columns. Presently the advertisement of a big dealer met my eye. I am glad to say that he is still advertising at much greater length in CAGE BIRDS. He was offering Lizard Canaries from 9s. a pair. Here was a chance indeed. Not only should I possess a cock Canary, but one with two wives. I had gathered from an ancient book I had routed out of my father's library that polygamy was possible among Canaries. In this way I argued I would make more money still.

And a Lizard Canary! What that was I had not the faintest notion; but I had a vague idea that I was about to go one better than the cobbler and his Canaries from Norwich by introducing a new element. My dealer lived in Norwich, too, so that the envious shoemaker would have to digest the fact that my cock bird was a Norwich native, as well as a Lizard, whatever that might happen to be.

I wrote to the advertiser forthwith in the waiting-room at York station. I pointed out to him that he offered Lizard Canaries from 9s. a pair, and that as I was sending him 10s. I should expect something rather unusual, and I awaited the issue with as much calmness as I could muster. In due course the Lizards arrived. I think they must have been good value for the money, but their appearance gave me rather a shock. They were very pretty, but were they really Canaries? And what sort of a husband would the cock (he was a silver) make for a floppy-looking Norwich hen?

A Handsome Tip.

It was at this juncture that a calamity in disguise befel me. Some mistaken person, I forget now who it was, gave me a handsome tip, which I promptly converted into birds and cages. I had resolved to seek fortune upon a large scale. I found another fancier in the village who supplied me with another "Norwich" cock. I can remember this bird; it was a ticked yellow, very small and very thin; in fact, almost everything which a Norwich should not be. I paid 1s. 6d. for this treasure. I compared it with my long ragged hen, and was much puzzled. The advertisement columns had by this time taught me that there were many kinds of Canaries, but the differences between my two Norwich were irreconcileable. Surely there must be a hitch somewhere! At last I came to the conclusion that if you didn't know what else to call a Canary you called it a Norwich—a rule somewhat on a par with that weird law dear to the novice whist player: "When in doubt, play trumps."

For cages I repaired to the local ironmonger, being no carpenter myself. An ironmonger, who is not a fancier, always keeps the same kind of cage. It is known, I believe, as the London breeding cage, which seems to me a slur on the metropolis. There are two little dark holes at one end on a platform, with small boxes on the floor for the birds to nest in. By this arrangement you make quite sure of breeding every kind of known parasite in myriads, so that success of some sort is assured. There is a little chamber underneath, where the young birds may be placed to be fed through the wires by their parents; but thanks to the arrangements up above the young rarely arrive at this stage.

With a good supply of these cages on my bedroom wall, I was ready early in February to commence operations. The earlier the better I thought. Why wait till the end of March if your birds would build in February?

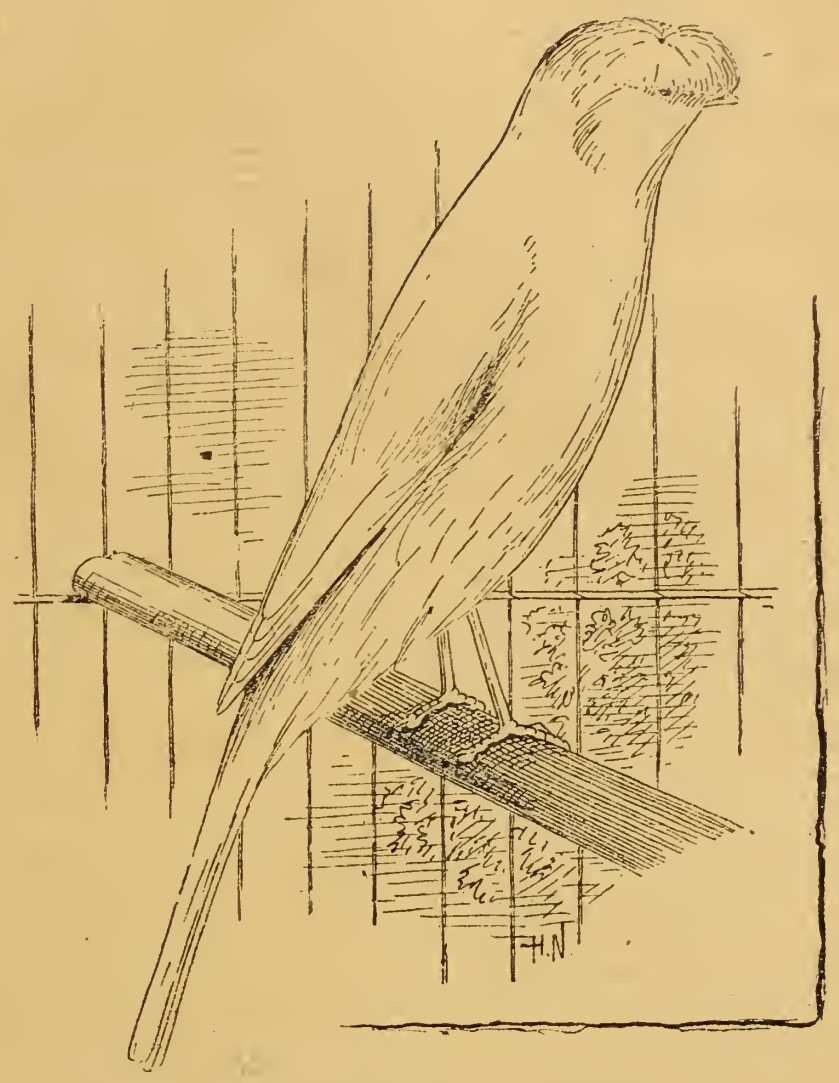
Youthful Excitement.

The Lizards were the first to commence operations. I had decided that the Lizard cock should be a bigamist only, and be paired with his own hen and the untidy lady from the cobbler's. For the Norwich cock I had far more ambitious views. But to return to the Lizards. They built a nest and the lady appeared to be about to lay. This was an intolerable state of things. Every time I saw the unfortunate bird upon the nest, I rushed to see if there was an egg. The last time I pushed her off my hopes were gratified in an unexpected way. She left the nest reluctantly, flew on to the perch, whence she dropped her egg upon the floor, where it lay a broken mass. This bird did eventually rear one young one, which was creditable under the circumstances. I next transferred her husband to the untidy Norwich lady, and this bird thoroughly maintained her reputation, and brought up four young ones.

Meanwhile I had provided the "Norwich" cock with six wives. This devoted bird went stubbornly on from one cage to another, leaving a prospective family behind him in each case, until at last I had no less than thirty young Canaries.

The Turn of the Tide.

It was at this stage that the young birds began to die with alarming rapidity. The mania was beginning to pall. The birds were cleaned out less and less regularly. The claims of the outside world became more insistent.



I purloined some long narrow ornaments from the drawing-room, which I thought would answer admirably for water vessels, for there would be no need to fill them every day. Happening to glance towards the cages on the third day, I saw two reproachful tails projecting from these water pots. The water had got low; the birds had reached down towards it, and overbalanced, and all was over. So ended two of the young birds I had managed to rear.

The young Lizard and the husband of six wives took advantage of an open window to join the Sparrows on the roof. Another young bird, the most promising I had reared, I placed under the counterpane of my bed for a moment to keep it quiet, before transferring it to another cage. I am a sufferer from chronic absent-mindedness, and before the removal was completed I sat on the bed. Then came an agonizing remembrance, a hasty search beneath the counterpane, and a flattened corpse as the result.

Repeated disappointments were now having a deleterious effect. The six children of one of Henry VIII.'s wives died in one day. I grew neglectful. Three birds escaped from their cages and drowned themselves in the washhand basin. I decided that my fortune must remain in abeyance.

The Cause of the Trouble.

I had six birds left. I advertised them at 11s. the lot. Even now my troubles were not over. Postal orders for 11s. showered in. Other people wrote demanding the birds without postal orders. I soon had these letters hopelessly mixed up, and in a few days infuriated would-be purchasers were demanding their money or my life. Eventually I succeeded in sorting out and returning everybody's money, and despatching my stock-in-trade to the earliest purchaser. So ended, at a heavy loss, my first essay as a Canary breeder. Had I been content with a couple of pairs to begin with I might have achieved a modest success, but greed and ignorance combined to wreck me, and it was sixteen years before I took up the Fancy again. But increased knowledge and better judgment have since put me on the right lines, and my former experience served as a warning to me which will not easily be forgotten.

Canary Breeding for Beginners

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.
Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

All the details of bird-breeding explained, while it shows the way out of all difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL

By C. A. House. Post free 1/2 (postal order).

A thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the German (or Roller) Canary.

An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style.

There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

A Successful Method of Hybrid Breeding.

By W. SMALLDRIDGE.

When starting hybrid breeding try and get your Finches in October. By getting them then you have most of them through the moult, and will have plenty of time to get them steady and matched when the breeding season arrives. Cage them in pairs, so that they may get used to each other—in the ordinary Canary breeder, all the winter; turn them out in April in flights or hutches, with about eight feet of ground space or more. Each pair should have a hutch to themselves.

Making a Hutch.

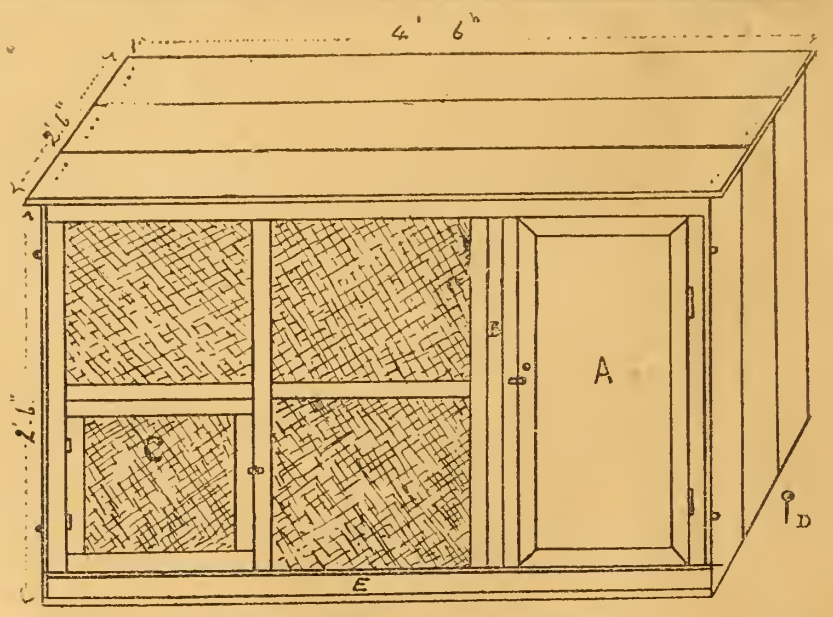
I make my hutches as follows: Get a packing case from the grocer, then put an outer cover of matched boards on each end, and a sloping roof made with two wedges, tapering from three inches down to a quarter, one each end, nailing the boards longways; by these means you get a square (inside) which enables you to run a sliding partition in easily, and being double, is always dry and cosy. For the front make a wooden frame with two doors and tack on ½in. mesh wire netting. Having two doors enables you to take the eggs by one, and to feed by the other. The sketch shows my ideal front.

Take Particular Notice.

The most taking hybrids at present are got from the Bullfinch, but whatever the hybrid you are trying for, always select the biggest and brightest coloured birds you can get. Take particular notice of this, as like begets like, and poor specimens are not worth the trouble of breeding. I have found the field-moulted hen Bullie the best, as most of the house-moulted ones get fat and have no "go" in them, not laying so freely as the field-moulted ones.

Having wintered your pairs, now comes the time to turn them out into their breeding quarters. If any of them have gone sick or a bit wild, give them their liberty, as unless they are a bit steady and in perfect health it is useless trying them. Feed your pairs liberally on groundsel, dandelion, chickweed, shepherd's purse, or anything, in fact, that is in a ripe, seedy state; I do not mean a spray or two, but as much as the birds will eat if you can get it. By feeding thus you will get your pairs into tip-top breeding condition, which is the only way to get Hybrids.

Nesting Sites.



For a nesting place, some use a small wicker cage, others a nest pan; but I have found that the birds discard everything for an old Thrush's or Blackbird's nest, or a new one. For nesting material use cocoa-nut fibre or fine roots. I get my fibre from an old household mat. If supplied with this, the hen Bullies will not use anything else for lining their nests with. Keep your hens well supplied with plenty of good gritty sand, oyster shells and shells of eggs from the domestic fowl, etc.; only let it be broken up small, or you may get soft-shelled eggs.

When your hen comes on to lay do not get too eager, or inquisitive, or you may disturb her. Let her alone, and if she gets a bit thick do not treat her for egg-binding, as you may upset her for the rest of the season. Most of the hens look a bit queer the day before they are going to lay, which is usually between six o'clock and eight o'clock a.m. If let well alone, they will lay most of their eggs in the nest, and often sit very well.

Let them sit for six or seven days if they will. By taking the eggs then and placing them under Canaries you will see if they are fertile or not. Never trust a Bullie hen to feed her young, unless you are bound to, as the majority of them are very bad feeders, although they will sit very close. By putting up three or four pairs you will find there is plenty to do in supplying them with wild seeds—that is, to be successful.

A Good Hybrid.

If you would like to try the cock Bullie, put him with a hand-reared hen Greenfinch. The cock Bullie is nothing like so prolific as the hen Bullie, but if you get a Hybrid from this mating you will be compensated for your trouble. You will possibly get a better colour and shape by this method. Also the hen Greenies will rear most of their offspring. They are capital feeders generally if given their natural wild food. I had a Greenie that reared two Hybrids on nothing but milk thistles, and her usual stock seed mixture, consisting of hemp, teazle, sunflower, Canary, and rape; and two nice Hybrids they were.

Mr. Smalldridge's Outdoor Flight.

Trust in Canaries.

But I should advise beginners to let Canaries rear the young whenever possible, as by so doing you have a better chance of assisting in the rearing, if necessary, by way of giving mealworms or small green caterpillars. Most of the Canaries will eat ants' eggs and mealworms. I have had them refuse good egg-food, while there have been any ants' eggs about. They do no harm, and I found that those which ate most were the most vigorous. The small live ants' eggs are those I use. I procured mine by going out in the summer to some piece of waste land and finding them under large flat stones on top of the soil, in thousands sometimes, and brushing them into a shovel ants and all. But if done quickly you will get the eggs practically free from ants. Then place in a tin with a tight lid, and warm over an oil-stove or fire just sufficiently enough to kill the ants. If giving these, and a good supply of chickweed, shepherd's purse, and egg-food, you will find that a feeding hen Canary will rear the most difficult Hybrids possible. I may say that with this method I have reared twenty-two Hybrids from various crosses, and have never had one go sick or die that I have had hatched.

Worms in Birds: Their Classification and Treatment.

By G. YATES, M.R.C.V.S.

Worm medicines may be given in a similar manner by direct or indirect methods, but preferably the former, where the result would be much more satisfactory, as many vermifuge and vermicide preparations are very unpleasant. I hope, in the near future, to introduce such preparations in a convenient pilule or palatinoid form in doses to suit all birds.

Vermicides, as I have previously stated, act by destroying the worms, also by rendering the medium in which they live an unsuitable habitat for their welfare when they leave their quarters. Vermifuges act by increasing the peristalsis or movements of the muscular coats of the intestine, and so act as expellants. Such include areca nut, which owes its property to the active principal Arecoline contained within it; whilst santonine is a good example of a vermicide. Other medicines include the vegetable bitters, such as gentian, calumba, kamala pomegranate root, etc., calomel as a mineral, whilst thymol, male fern extract, Fowler's solution of arsenic, sulphate of iron, lysol, assafœtida, cream of tartar, copper sulphate, etc., constitute a few others. The doses of each, of course, will depend upon the bird to be treated, and its species.

For the tœniæ, or tape worms, areca nut and the vegetable compounds may be used, whilst the mineral compounds and some of the vegetable are used. Many worm medicines require the prior or after use of laxatives, such as castor oil, olive oil, or glycerine, whilst drugs like areca nut are in themselves purgative, and do not call for previous preparation. Some, again, have an astringent action, following on this effect, which requires sometimes corrective treatment. To attempt to give a classification of the doses of these drugs for birds would entail too much space, and would not benefit the reader to any great extent. I should be pleased to enlighten the readers of CAGE BIRDS as to treatment and dosage for removal of same, or in cases where parasites are suspected to exist. Specimens should be sent as early as possible; this will ensure freshness, so as to allow of ready recognition.

Experiments have been carried out with the object of ascertaining the evolution of these parasites, pigeons being the subjects chosen. One of these cases is worthy of description. A small quantity of excreta—about 7 grammes—passed by a diseased pigeon, was found to contain about 12,000 eggs of the Heterakis. Some of these were placed on damp blotting paper in a flask, and in about 14 days their embryos were found to be well developed. These ova were then given to perfectly healthy pigeons, when they were in about three weeks transformed into adult Heterakes, the eggs of which were found in the droppings. On the other hand, healthy pigeons were given the ova immediately after the expulsion of these with the excreta, or the discharge from the oviducts, and they did not develop, being passed with the excrements intact, or slightly digested. The evolution of this parasite, therefore, can only take place beyond the intestine, without the necessity of an intermediate host. Infestation, therefore, takes place through the medium of the food soiled by the excrements of the disease.

I have given the result of this experiment, as demonstrated by Unterberger, to show the absolute necessity for a system of preventive treatment in co-operation with remedial measures as described. One without the other is useless, as it would only lead one into a sense of false security. Therefore, in order to prevent the extension of infection by this or other parasites, where possible the healthy should be separated from the diseased. The aviaries, cages, etc., occupied by them should be made scrupulously clean and disinfected with any of the ordinary disinfectants or parasiticides, such as Lysol, 3 per cent., carbolic acid 5 per cent. or Izal. The bird seed should be placed in proper receptacles into which the excreta is not likely to be deposited. By adopting such precautions the fancier should experience no difficulty in eradicating these parasitic diseases from his or her aviaries.

I trust this series of articles may result in some practical interest and value to readers of CAGE BIRDS, and hope at some future period I may have the opportunity of furnishing them with some further branch of parasitology appertaining to the ectoparasites of those affecting the exterior of the body.

*A Battle Extraordinary.

Recently a Blackbird and a Thrush were fighting a tom cat which belongs to a family in Newington. They were striking him on the back of the head with their bills. The Thrush was wounded. Puss had no doubt intended him for his breakfast on the same morning. Near the bird were found worms with which his friend had tried to tempt his appetite. The Thrush, however, died. It is no less extraordinary that two such birds should have the power to contend victoriously with a full grown cat.—Sent by W. Fox (age 10½), Victoria Villas, Stanningly, Leeds.

*A Knowing Robin.

I keep birds, and recently I was trying to catch a Chaffinch by a sieve and a bit of thread. Many Sparrows came round and went under the sieve, eating the food as fast as they could. At last a Robin came and tried to get some, but the cheeky Sparrows were too many, till at last the Robin flew up against the cotton, and the sound frightened them away. The Robin then went under and fed. The Sparrows soon returned, but the knowing Robin would repeat the trick, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy doing it.—Sent by Reggie Beaven (age 11), Taddington, Buxton.

The Starlings.

See here, my darlings,
How the brown Starlings
Cluster together,
In speckled rank here,
By the old tank here,
In the spring weather.
Apple-tree's flower
Makes them a bower
Where they may play;
No one to harm them,
Sunshine to warm them
All the bright day.

The Stock Book.

Our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register." By C. E. Weston.

Post free, 7d.

A well-known fancier has said of it: "It makes bird breeding easy." This book no breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred—keep account of their strong and weak points. It contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

A Chat about the Bullfinch.

By Wm. SANDERSON.

The Bullfinch is a general favourite with all who keep birds. Its beak is short, thick and black, and the legs are black also, but become white when it has moulted in a cage. The top of the head, the circle of the beak, the chin and the top part of the throat are a beautiful velvet black; the upper part of the neck, the back and shoulders, deep grey; the rump white; the under part of the neck and the breast are a fine vermilion (or red), which varies a good deal in different specimens. The tail is forked and of a brilliant black tinged with blue. This is a description of the male bird. The female is smaller, and where the feathers of the male are red hers are grey, often with a brownish-red tinge.

The Bullfinch is common in most parts of England, Ireland and Scotland (where it is called Coally-Hood). A much larger kind comes from Russia and Siberia, and the hens of these are much used in breeding hybrids. The Bullfinch breeds twice a year. The nest is made of twigs and fibres, and sometimes a few hairs, and is usually found in a thick bush or hedge. The hen lays from four to six eggs of a bluish-white colour, spotted with violet and brown at the larger end.

Rearing the Young.

The young are to be reared by taking them from the nest when at from ten to fourteen days old, and feeding them on scalded and crushed summer (German) rape seed; some people mix the rape with hard-boiled egg and crushed biscuit, or soaked stale white bread. The rape seed should have boiling water poured on it, and then be strained and washed in cold water; and only a small quantity should be scalded at one time, for it soon goes sour. As the young birds get stronger it is a good plan to mix a little hemp meal with the rape, but the hemp must be fresh-ground. As soon as the young can pick they should have crushed hemp and plenty of green food, and as they get older crushed Canary seed. Some soaked ants' eggs are good for them, and a few mealworms. Hand-reared birds I have found to be more delicate than wild-caught ones, but they make the nicest of pets and are perfect ladies' birds.

The young birds can be taught to pipe a tune, either by the employment of a bird organ, or by a person whistling the tune to them. Their lessons must be begun as soon as they are taken from the nest, and it is best to try to teach them the tune just after they have been fed, i.e., at meal-times. They are apt to forget the tune when moulting unless it is played over to them during that period. Both the cocks and hens will learn to pipe a tune.

Treatment in Captivity.

In their wild state Bullfinches can hardly be said to have a song, as their notes are harsh. They may be caught with a call-bird in a trap cage, and when caught it is best to place them in a larger box-cage, with crushed hemp and soaked Canary seed, and water placed inside of it. Put the cage close to the window. It is a good plan to place some dock, privet berries, the red berries of the whitethorn, or blackberries, inside the cage, as fresh-caught Bullfinches are often inclined to sulk, and by offering food they have been accustomed to out in the fields it encourages them to begin to feed.

A number of them together in a cage are more likely to feed than if they are at first caged separately. When they have got used to captivity each bird should (they become rather quarrelsome) be put into a box-cage not less than fourteen inches long and thirteen high.

Bullfinches often suffer from their feet getting clogged with sand and dirt. Owing to the formation of their bill they seem to have a difficulty in cleaning them. In that case the bird must be taken from the cage and its feet soaked in warm water, and the dirt removed when soft; but care must be taken or the feet may be injured. They should be given a bath frequently, as the use of it keeps them in good health, and they enjoy it.

In their wild state Bullfinches eat pine and fir seeds, all kinds of berries, weed seeds, and the buds of trees and fruit trees. In captivity they should be fed on Canary, summer rape, and teazle seeds, with a little linseed and sunflower, and hemp now and again. All kinds of green food, the pips of apples, flowering and seeding groundsel, chickweed, dandelion, plantain, and a branch of the white or blackthorn, when in bud, are greatly relished; never give branches of ornamental or evergreen shrubs, or of lilac or laburnum.

WASHING BIRDS FOR EXHIBITION.

A Lecture delivered by Mr. D. A. S. Longden, before the Felinfoel C.B.S. on March 5.

I must thank you for your kind invitation to spend the evening with you, and I hope this short address on Washing Birds for Exhibition will be a benefit to a few, if not all, fanciers present. In the first place I must say that I am not an expert on washing Canaries, as the birds I exhibit are mostly Mules and British birds, and very few of these require to be hand-washed if properly cared for and well looked after once they are through the moult. But with Canaries it is necessary to wash them as cleanliness has very much to do with one's success. Hence most Canaries have to be washed before being shown.

Don't Wash Too Much.

Of course, fanciers who live in the country have an advantage over town fanciers in that they do not have to contend with the smoke and dust of the city. Many a good bird has had to stand down owing to soiled plumage. But I do not advocate too much washing. Two or three times should be sufficient in a show season if thoroughly done and the birds are well looked after and cared for after it.

One evil of too much washing or tubbing is that the feathers seem to give way, and the fault generally shews itself at the back of the neck. In spite of this washing being an evil, I will endeavour to show you how to make the best of it, and in as simple a way as possible. Of course, different fanciers have different ways, and we all think our own way the best.

In the first place, I would advise you to get the assistance of your wife, or sister; also, if you have any children, get them off to bed before you commence operations, as washing a small bird requires great care and chatter will by no means assist the process. Also all the room round the fire will be needed. Now to the ways and means: get a good fire free from ash and dust, then get a large saucepan full of hot water on the hob ready and keep it simmering, not boiling. Of course, if you have many birds to wash plenty of hot water will be required. Next get an open wire cage (which has been thoroughly cleansed beforehand) to be used as a drying cage. Cover the bottom of same with flannel or other woollen material. Place the cage where a good heat from the fire can get at it, but be careful not to get it too close so that the wires of the cage will get too hot. Get your wife or sister to supply you with a few clean and soft cloths (these must be clean and soft, mind).

Three Good Sized Basins Wanted.

Then get three good-sized basins. Washing basins are very suitable as, being heavy, they are not apt to overturn. The first basin should be about half filled with warm water. Dissolve a piece of common soda, about the size of a small nut, in same. Then take a piece of good yellow soap in one hand and a nice soft brush (a shaving brush will do) in the other hand. Dip same in the water and keep rubbing soap until you have a nice basin of suds. Fill the other two basins with clean hot water, which get to about 90 degrees, or blood heat. Have soap handy. Place soap in a soap dish with flannel, as it will then not slip about when the brush is rubbed on it.

Ready to Begin.

With these preparations you are ready to begin washing. Take your bird in the left hand and hold it lightly, but firmly. Then dip the bird in the suds for a few seconds—all except the head. At the same time have the brush ready and get a good lather of soap in same and start washing the lower part of bird, the wings, and tail. Always work the brush the same way as the feathers lie, and occasionally dip the parts washed in the suds. Do this until all the dirt seems to have been got out. Then wash head and shoulders, and mind all dirt is got out from around the beak. As regards the eyes, you had better forget that the bird has any, as you cannot avoid the suds going in same. But be very careful that the brush does not touch the eyes.

Now turn the bird over and again wash the wings and tail. Open the wings as much as possible, and finish off with the throat and abdomen.

Then give the bird a good rinsing in the second basin and get all the soap out you possibly can, and then finish off with a final rinse in the third basin. But it is very essential that you should get all the soap out of the bird or the result will be very disappointing.

Then get all the wet out of the bird you can; take a cloth, which should be nice and warm by now, and wrap the bird in same and dab it gently in the hands until the worst of the wet is soaked up. Be very careful that the wet is well absorbed from the abdomen, vent, and under the wings. Use another couple of warm cloths as quickly as you can to get bird as dry as possible before putting it in the drying cage. Make sure you always use the cloths the same way as the feathers lie. The bird may appear dead by now, but very few do actually die.

In the Drying Cage.

Now place the bird in the drying cage on its back and with its tail towards the fire, where it will lie until the abdomen is pretty dry, when it will turn over suddenly and start shaking itself and hop about. In a very short time it will be up on the perch and will commence pruning itself. Care must be taken to see that the cage does not get too hot, and as it is drying you can remove the cage further back from the fire and cover it up with a light cloth for the night and leave in the room till morning, when you can give the bird a bath. But if it will not take a bath give it a slight spray with clean water. This will induce it to start pruning and the feathers will fall naturally into their places, and they should then have a nice bloom on them after finishing down.

One thing I would like to impress upon you, and that is to have confidence in yourself when washing the birds. It is useless to be timid; if you are, you will not make a success of same. With these few remarks I must draw to a close, hoping that this short address has interested you, as I have done my best to explain to you as simply as possible my way of washing. I thank you for your very kind attention and wish you all a very successful breeding season.

Wild Bird Life.

Birds in the Garden.

With the lengthening days comes increased activity in wild bird life. Somehow there appear to be more birds about. Many of the flocks have broken up, and others have been considerably reduced in numbers; consequently the bird population is now spread over a greater area, and is more frequently under notice. Bird music increases daily, both in volume and continuity. The Missel and Song Thrushes are incessant performers; the Lark's soarings are now continued to much greater height; and the sweet pipings of the Linnets, the warblings of the Greenbird, and the sprightly notes of the Chaffinch enliven every country lane, and the rich, mellow notes of the Blackbird have recently been added to the chorus. There are signs on every hand of early nesting, and should the mild weather continue we shall surely find in some sheltered thicket the neat mossy nest of the unobtrusive Hedge Sparrow, whose eggs for richness of colouring can compare favourably with those of any of our wild birds. The Hedge Sparrow is undoubtedly one of our most useful birds, and one that should be encouraged to sojourn in every garden; insects and wild seeds make up its daily fare, and of the former it must account for a goodly number. As a useful garden species it should certainly be given premier position. Unlike many other species, it does not appear to have any great affection for a fruit diet.

Most birds are undoubtedly very useful during the winter months, when fruit buds and garden produce are practically dormant; but as spring advances the buds begin to swell, and then the handsome Bullfinch and active Tits need careful watching. The old, vexed question as to the damage done by these birds crops up annually, and each season the birds find fresh champions to plead for them. My own opinion is that they are both useful and harmful, and that to seek for the insect the bird must in many cases destroy the bud. In this way the Tits would, perhaps, be more useful members than the Bullies, for the latter are exceedingly fond of a vegetable diet, and cannot resist the rich flavour of the currant bud. Of the larger birds the Song Thrush is to be greatly preferred in the garden to the Blackbird. The former does very little damage, and cares nothing for fruit, even in hard, winter weather. He fails to appreciate the sustaining powers of wild berries until he is absolutely obliged to do so. But with the Blackbird it is different; he rids the lawn of worms and larvæ, but takes a heavy toll of strawberries, currants and cherries. But he does his best to repay us with the most mellow birds music imaginable.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FALKIRK AND DIS. C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held in Oddfellows' Hall, President Robert Dickson presiding. Classes were fixed for next year's annual show; they are as follows: 12 for Norwich, 9 for Borders, 8 for Crests and Crest-breds, 1 for A.O.V. Canary, 2 for Mule or Hybrid, 13 for British birds, and 1 for Foreign birds. The judges are as follows: For Norwich, Mr. G. Scotte (Faulhouse); for Borders, Mr. W. Hamilton (Fiddlewood); for British and Foreign, Mr. R. V. Keane (Cathcart); show to be held on October 29th. Intending members are requested to send on subscriptions as early as possible, as they are now due. The annual fees are 2s. 6d., and 6d. entry per bird money, and the society is open to a 20-mile radius. The members will welcome any fanciers who care to become members. Nest feather show to be held July 9th.—R. HAMILTON, Sec.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE & DIS. O.S

A very instructive and interesting lecture on the British Bullfinch was given before the members on March 1st by Mr. R. Barron. Touching on the habits of this favourite bird in its wild state, the lecturer gave some very valuable, and, to many of his listeners, new information regarding the keeping of the "Bullie" in captivity. While strongly advising the use of as much of the "natural food" as possible, he was still able to give many good tips regarding the uses of the different seeds which are beneficial. He concluded his lecture with some practical hints on moulting. A very hearty vote of thanks was awarded to Mr. Barron. Several new members were enrolled, and an enjoyable meeting was brought to a close by making a grant to the Defence Fund.—J. R. COLVILLE, Assist. Sec. and Treasurer.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

Meeting held at the club-room on March 2nd, Mr. E. Padgett presided. Mr. Chittenden was asked to attend and illustrate to our members full details of his new system, which is on the Yorkshire Union's ballot papers re all affiliated society's open show schedules, being printed and published in the Union handbook. Mr. Chittenden gave us a very satisfactory report upon the subject, and in every way you turn it, it means money gained to both the society holding a show and to the Union. Mr. Hills moved that a vote of thanks be given to Mr. Chittenden; Mr. Marshall seconded. Mr. Chittenden said he was pleased he had convinced them that this scheme was a great benefit to all. We also decided to lower the subscription to the society from 6s. to 4s. per annum, so we ask fanciers to join us and make it worth our while to make the reduction.—J. E. HUDSON, Sec.

READING AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held at Palmer's Hall on March 2nd. It proved the best attended meeting we have had for a long time. It is very gratifying to find the members appreciate the meetings so much. Our first business was to elect two new members, and then arrange about our annual show. It was agreed that as trade was very bad it was not advisable to run a radius show, but to have a members' show as last year (only with a few open classes and Foreign bird classes added), probably on the last Wednesday in November; also to arrange a First Feather Show in July, as we have not had one for a long time. Mr. Yates has kindly promised us a medal for best novice Norwich. Mr. Maisey gave us his promised lecture on British Birds and Hybrids, and as it was packed full of practical information and tips it excited a great amount of interest. Mr. Maisey being a successful Hybrid breeder, told us about his successes and failures. It is certain that the first prize Hybrid at the Crystal Palace next year will be a Reading bird (perhaps). A very hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Maisey for his kindness, and we can assure him his tips will be acted upon, and are highly appreciated. The secretary intimated that at the next meeting, on April 6th, a washing display will be given, and members are requested to turn up again in good numbers, and to bring all their birds that want a spring cleaning.—W. H. PYKE, Hon. Sec.

CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

Annual dinner, held at the Sydney Arms Hotel, on March 2nd, when a large number of members and friends supported the chairman (Mr. G. Grant). Letters were received from the president (Mr. W. Theobald), Messrs. T. J. King, J. H. Boulter and H. Hope. Mr. J. H. Payne (Gloucester) in submitting the toast of the evening, said, as an outsider he could speak highly of the organisation and management of the society, and congratulated them on the splendid show held last November. Incidentally he mentioned the late entry nuisance, which he knew was a great bother to all secretaries. He had great pleasure in asking the company to drink to the Cheltenham Cage Bird Society, with which he coupled the names of Mr. Grant and Mr. Treasure. Mr. Treasure, in responding, thanked Mr. Payne for all he said and did for the society, and said it was run in a true fanciers' spirit, without any of the bickering and unpleasantness, which unfortunately occurred in some societies. Mr. Biles proposed the toast of kindred societies, and visitors. Mr. Houghton (Sec. Gloucester C.B.S.), and Mr Payne replied. An excellent programme was arranged by Mr. D. Lewis, the following gentlemen taking part: Messrs. Sherwood, Rogers, Yiard, Smith, and D. Lewis. Mr. Tibbles presided at the piano. During the evening Messrs. Birken and Lewis gave an interesting exhibition of weight lifting.—A. S. TREASURE, Hon. Sec.

HALIFAX O.S.

Annual general meeting, held on March 5th, at the Griffin Hotel, when the president, Mr. Ross, presided. There was a large attendance of members. Messrs. Lord and Dunn were appointed scrutineers of ballot papers for election of officers. Results: President, Mr. A. Ross again re-elected unanimously. Mr. Ross, without doubt, has the support of every member. Vice-presidents, Messrs. H. W. Walsh, P. Lee, and H. Lord, Mr. J. F. Thackray, secretary, and Mr. H. Whitaker, assistant secretary, were re-elected; auditors, Messrs. Lord and Sunderland. Delegates to Yorks. Union, Messrs. H. W. Walsh, H. Whitaker, and F. Townsend re-elected. Sub-committee, Messrs. Haigh, Lord, Clegg, Townsend, Lee, Ball, and Saville. The balance sheet for the past year was eagerly awaited by the members present, and when read, was met by a round of applause, and many smiling faces. It showed a balance in hand of £32 9s. 5d. The president, in moving the adoption of the balance sheet, congratulated the secretaries on their excellent work, having increased the balance, in addition to providing numerous specials for competition at the members' shows. Mr. Lord (one of the auditors) seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously. Messrs. Thackray and Whitaker responded and this brought one of the most enthusiastic general meetings to a close. We think we have good reasons for claiming to be one of the most progressive societies in the Yorkshire Union, seeing we made the largest classification in all the Y.U. shows, which was responded to by receiving the largest entry on record. Nine new members have been made at the last two meetings, and we shall be pleased to welcome any others desirous of joining.—H. WHITAKER, Assistant Secretary.

WEST OF SCOTLAND BIRD CLUB.

Usual monthly meeting, held on 5th March, in Nelson's Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow, the president, Mr. Peter Thom, in the chair. Mr. Webb, Mr. Kerr, and Mr. Wilson, were enrolled as new members. The judges for the annual show will be nominated at next meeting, and there will also be a discussion on egg-feeding, if time permits. The "nat night" then proceeded, and all manner of questions were asked and discussed on breeding, rearing, and feeding on green stuff, etc., and both old and new fanciers got a few wrinkles. New members are still being enrolled.—GEO. SMART, sec.

LOANHEAD AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held in Masons' Arms on Mar. 12th, Mr. A. Jardine, president, in the chair. The following new members were admitted:—Messrs. W. R. Dunn, A. and W. Thomson, J. Stirling, J. Ewing, A. Rowe, and D. Dalgliesh. The chairman then asked for nomination of judges. It was left in secretary's hands to write. A discussion took place on the holding of a First Feather Show, and it was decided that we hold same in Hall in Masons' Arms, and have a judging competition among members. At this stage the members thought it would be better if this came up at the June meeting for final arrangements, after which the secretary proceeded with the booking of lieus, which brought a very successful meeting to a close.—WALTER B. SMART, sec.

BURY AND DIS. C.B.S.

At our meeting held March 8th, Mr. R. Schofield (Heywood) a very successful exhibitor of the Yorkshire and Norwich, accompanied by Councillor McMurdo (Heywood), an ardent British bird fancier, gave a very interesting paper on the Norwich Plainhead, chiefly on the mating up. He believes in plenty of variegation. He brought two pairs of birds with him—variegated yellow cock to a clear buff hen, and a clear buff cock to a yellow variegated hen. He gave us to understand this would be the pairing for the coming breeding season. After the paper a discussion took place for about an hour, which was very interesting, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Afterwards the business of the society was gone through. It was decided to hold our F. F. Show on the first Saturday in July, that is the 2nd day, and Rev. R. P. Hudson, M.A., is to be asked to judge; also our autumn show will be held Nov. 26th, 1910.—H. JAMESON, Sec.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.A.

At annual general meeting held a little while back the following business was transacted:—The President submitted the secretary's financial statement which was adopted, the auditors reporting as to its thorough correctness. The office-bearers elected for next year as:—Mr. C. R. Drysdale, hon. president; Mr. W. Thornton, hon. vice-president; J. R. Meikle, 51, Lothian Road, Ediaburgh, hon. secretary and treasurer; acting committee, Messrs. J. McLennan, J. Dalgleish, A. Paterson, W. Allan, J. B. Kerr, A. Stavert; auditors, Messrs. Petrie, Whitefield, and Sinclair. It was agreed to hold another show in September, 1910, and that, as previously, each member be allowed ten entries for an annual subscription of 3s. The classification was decided upon as follows:—Scotch Fancy 8 classes, Belgian Fancy 2 classes. That all money left after meeting working expenses be divided equally per class in the proportion of four, three, two, and one, for first, second, third, and fourth. Our new membership tickets will be in the hands of fanciers before this report appears, and we hope they will extend to us their patronage and support in the same splendid way as before. Should any be overlooked on their making application for a copy, it will be sent on immediately.—J. R. MEIKLE, sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS. O.S.

We had a very pleasant meeting on March 2nd, attended by 24 members and friends. Formal business being over, a table show of British Hardbills was held. The entries totalled 14, and some very nice specimens were staged. Mr. T. Barker judged and his awards met with general satisfaction. The competition was keen, and the birds took a lot of separating. The first prize was awarded to Mr. W. H. Raven for a magnificent Hawfinch, and also won the special given by Mr. G. C. Ley of 5s. (one year's subscription to the society), and he was accordingly elected. The second prize went to Mr. A. Athey for a very nice Goldfinch, and the third prize to Mr. G. Alton for a beautiful Bramblefinch. All the other exhibits were fit to win almost anywhere, and the owners were congratulated on the excellence of the show. Mr. Athey and Mr. Moore joined, thus making three new members. Mr. Rhodes, the chairman, invited criticism on the judging, and a very interesting and profitable discussion ensued. The society is to be congratulated on the excellence of the show. It was arranged to hold an exhibition of Bird-Washing, by Messrs. Barker and Bertie at the next meeting, on April 6th, to be followed by a washing competition for novices who have not been exhibitors for more than three years. Five entries were made at the meeting, and the secretary will be pleased to receive further entries from novices residing within a radius of 20 miles of Nottingham. All fanciers and other friends interested are cordially invited to be present at the Mechanics' Hall, Burton Street, on this occasion.—G. E. WILKINSON, Hon. Sec.

SWANSEA AND DIS. C.B.S.

At monthly meeting held on March 8th, a letter of resignation was read from the secretary (Mr. Alf Hitchings). Several members spoke in the highest terms of the manner in which he had carried out his duties since he began to hold office, and were all glad to know that he would still remain a member of the society. It was proposed by Mr. J. Hocking, and seconded by Mr. R. Mugford, "that we accept our secretary's resignation with the greatest regret." It was then proposed by Mr. Ford, and seconded by Mr. D. A. S. Longden, that Mr. S. H. George and Mr. Fred Heal, of 32, Fisher Street, Swansea, act as joint secretaries; which was carried unanimously.

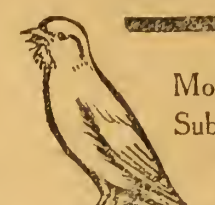
AYR AND DIS. C.B.C.

Annual general meeting held in Good Templar Hall, New Bridge Street, on March 7th, Mr. John Forbes (president) in the chair. There was a good attendance. The balance sheet was adopted, and showed a balance of £2 1s. 5½d. The officers for the ensuing year are:—President, Mr. Forbes; vice-president, Mr. J. Hyslop; secretary and treasurer, Chas. Irvine; auditors, Messrs. G. Hunter and J. Stitt; committee, Messrs. Cameron, Girvan, J. Brown, McKay, Bell, Campbell, McComb G. Hunter, J. and T. French, Lyall, Aitken, Lindsay, N. Brown, and R. Hunter. A few of the rules were altered. Four new members were enrolled. Next meeting fixed for April 4th, same hall. Fanciers desirous of joining will be welcome; full particulars may be had from me at 114, Prestwick Road, Ayr.—C. IRVINE, Sec.

BRISTOL C.B.S.

General meeting held at City Hotel on March 2nd, Mr. T. Keegan presiding. The balance-sheet, as audited, was presented and adopted. The following officers were elected:—President, Lieut.-Col. G. A. Gibbs, M.P.; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. T. Gale, W. Carter, B. Bowring, W. H. Stinchcombe, F. Stone, R. H. Crocker, H. Carter, J. H. Payne, Chamberlain, Pole, and Brent; hon. solicitor, Mr. W. F. Cooke; chairman, Mr. W. H. Manley; vice-chairman, Mr. O. Coggins; committee, Messrs. F. Burgess, F. Buckland, C. Tilley, G. Morgan, T. Keegan, C. P. Tilling, T. Taylor and E. Stonelake; auditors, Messrs. W. Clee and T. J. McIlwrath; treasurer, Mr. J. Tristram; joint secretaries, Miss L. G. Byerley and Mr. A. Carter. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. H. Manley for his services as secretary. It was decided that a lecture be given at the next monthly meeting.—Miss L. G. BYERLEY and A. CARTER, Secs.

WALLSEND AND MID-TYNE C.B.S.



Monthly meeting held at Station Hotel on March 10th, there being a good muster of members. Mr. Richardson in the chair. Business included the election of judges for our annual young bird show. Messrs. A. Hay (Berwick) and J. Maddison were elected judges for our annual show, and Mr. T. Robson (Newcastle) for young bird show. Two new members, Mr. Curran and Mr. F. Spall, were elected. It was decided to go on with the schedule of annual and young bird shows at our next meeting. A great deal of discussion took place in regard to the Cage Bird Union, owing to the action of one of our neighbouring clubs by which we are likely to lose a number of members. It was decided to leave the matter over for further discussion. It was also decided that the secretary call the attention of members to the fact that the levy of 2s. 6d. per member is now due, and should be promptly paid to enable the society to clear off all its liabilities before starting another year. After a vote of thanks to the chairman the meeting closed.

FELINFOEL C.B.S.

A very enjoyable and an interesting evening was spent at headquarters, Greyhound Hotel, on March 5th, where we had arranged to have a "knife and fork," and a lecture on handwashing birds, by Mr. D. A. S. Longden (Swansea). We were greatly disappointed by the absence of our president, Mr. H. G. F. Royle. The event was presided over by Mr. W. Bowen (chairman). After the "knife and fork" a hearty vote of thanks to Miss S. J. Roberts, was proposed for the way in which the table was laid out, and for the good things provided. The rest of the evening was spent in a capital manner; we had the pleasure of listening to an excellent lecture delivered by Mr. Longden, which was the first since the commencement of the society, and I think it won't be the last. The lecture was the principal item on our programme. After the lecture, which was fully appreciated by all the members present (numbering 24) a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Longden for his kindness in coming from Swansea to lecture to us. Many questions were asked by the members, with which the lecturer was delighted, and which he fully answered to every one's satisfaction. The remainder of the evening was spent by members singing solos, etc. We concluded at a very reasonable hour, and the event proved very enjoyable.—T. J. DAVIES, hon. sec.

HYSON GREEN (Nottingham) C.B.S

Washing competition held on March 1st, at headquarters, the Cricket Players Hotel, Lindsey Street. The room was well packed with enthusiastic bird fanciers and friends. A silver medal with gold centre was kindly given by a friend, which made the competition keen, and quite a large number tried their hand, some of them for the first time (so they said). With very few exceptions the work was done well. But one thing was very noticeable; that was the long time it took the birds to dry. Although a good big fire was provided, and the drying cage was placed close enough, the birds took a great deal longer to dry than they ought. This, no doubt, was due to the hurrying of the competitors. This is a big mistake indeed. In washing birds for show I take great pains in drying the birds well in the drying cloths before putting them into the drying cage. This to my way of thinking is half the battle. A bird that has had the water well taken out of its feathers before being put into the drying cage will in most cases get on to the perch and commence to plume its feathers right away. Consequently that bird is dried much quicker, and its feathers are much straighter than those of a bird that is put into the drying cage half soaked with water. The latter will in most cases lie at the bottom of the cage, or get into a corner and there lie shivering and shaking like a half drowned rat. I have seen birds that have been well dried in the cloth start to sing as soon as they have got on to the perch in drying cage—quite a contrast to his mate who lies in the corner with eye closed and trembling like a leaf on the tree in a gale. Novices at washing birds will do well to take note of this and try it on themselves. The following were the competitors:—Messrs. Walker, Cannt, Barnes, Wolley, Pratt, Sharp, Clifford, Wolfe, Saywell, and others. Mr. Wolfe won the medal, he being the quickest washer; his bird also came out the best. His time was 1min. 48secs. Mr. Clifford was second, 3min. 20secs; Mr. Wolley third, 2mins., 45secs. After the competition Mr. J. Birch kindly gave an exhibition of how to handle and wash a bird. Messrs. J. Bertie and J. Birch judged, and all present seemed well pleased with their decision, and the night's entertainment.—J. BERTIE.

NOTTINGHAM (Permanent) O.S.

The washing competition held on March 12th drew a large gathering of fanciers from the surrounding district, and proved instructive. Eight birds went through the tubbing process, the copper kettle being secured by that well-known fancier, Mr. T. Barker, the second prize falling to Mr. J. Birch, one of our foremost Norwich breeders. The society's thanks are due to Messrs. Ball and Clarke for kindly lending us birds for the occasion. It was decided that our next table show (British classes only), fixed for Easter Saturday, be postponed for a fortnight later, owing to the holidays, and we hope to see another big muster of fanciers then.—J. WALMSLEY, sec.

QUEEN'S PARK AND DIS. C.B.A.

At the meeting on March 10th, at the Enamel Hall, Harrow Road, after the ordinary business, which included the election of two new members and inspection of the specials provided for the three point competitions, Mr. J. Robson gave his promised lecture on "Judicious Pairing." A good muster of members and visitors were present, the seating accommodation having to be increased. The lecturer said he was pleased to see so many present, and at once commenced one of the most interesting and instructive evenings this society has had. He took all present through the different types, and the standard required, and explained how some of the faults crept in, and the proper course to take to try and breed them out. The evening came to a close only too soon, and a number of questions put to the lecturer brought out some very useful hints, and should prove valuable during this season. A very hearty vote of thanks, to which the lecturer suitably replied, brought a pleasant evening to a close.—J. C. BIRCH, hon. sec.

MANCHESTER & N. COUNTIES O.S.

General meeting held at Deansgate Temperance Hotel, March 7th, there being a large attendance of members and friends. After business, which included the election and nomination of three new members, Mr. Cowgill, of Bradford, gave us a splendid lecture on the Yorkshire Canary, having brought several pairs for illustration. Having described what a Yorkshire should be, he dealt first with the best birds for a novice, then with the introduction of Belgian blood instead of double yellowing, and then with the different stamps of birds for pairing successfully. The money value of exhibition Yorkshires, the training for show, moulting, tailing, and flighting, illustrating same, were dealt with in order. He did not advise flighting. Amongst the many questions asked were:—In introducing new stock, which did he prefer, a cock or hen?—A cock, as it could be run with several hens, but in some cases it would be necessary to introduce a hen. Why should he introduce Belgian blood instead of double yellowing?—In double yellowing you get long, thin feather and slimmer birds, but with the Belgian you get more figure, maintain quality of feather, and get more style. By adding Belgian blood do you get more frill?—The tendency was to get frill by introducing Belgian blood. Would you discard a big rough cock bird?—No, not if I knew it was bred all-right. Did pedigree show itself?—Yes; more winners were bred from stock birds than from show birds. Do you think a cock and hen well matched (no matter about pedigree)?—Pedigree was the surest method to work on. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Cowgill for his splendid lecture and the way in which he answered the questions.—H. BOOTHMAN, hon. sec.

We have received a copy of the 1910 syllabus of the Leeds C.B.S. from Mr. J. Chambers, the secretary, who states that he will be pleased to forward a copy to anyone who cares to write him at 22, St. Ann's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds. Besides the list of fixtures (which includes many lectures, exhibitions, etc.), there is a list of competitions, specials, and a list of members' names and addresses, with the varieties of birds bred or kept by each.

The "Avicultural Magazine" for March contains articles by Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, B.A. (on the Nesting of the Blackcap), Mr. W. H. St. Quintin (on European Rock Thrushes), Mr. T. H. Newman (on the Nesting of the White-throated Pigeon), and others. There are also a description of the British and Foreign bird sections of the recent Crystal Palace Cage Bird Show, the contributors being Messrs. F. Finn, D. Seth-Smith, and Allen Silver, and some interesting notes of his visit to Australia, by Mr. Seth-Smith. There are several capital illustrations.

ENTRIES CLOSE.

March 21.—Aberdare. T. J. Davies, George Hotel.

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The tenth list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows:—Falkirk C.B.S., 7s.; Queen's Park C.B.A., 6s. 9d.; Partick C.B.C., 1s. 6d.; Lowestoft F.S., 6s.; Bournemouth C.B.A., 6s.; South Manchester C.B.S., 3s. These amounts total £1 10s. 3d. Owing to a misapprehension as to names, the amount credited to the Harrogate Linnet F.A. (viz., 3s. 6d.) was acknowledged twice—once as coming from the association and once as coming from Mr. Hall, the secretary; so that the total funds are less by that amount. The aggregate funds, together with those acknowledged this week, therefore total £60 19s. 7d.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

The Leyton and Dis. C.B.A. have issued a capital little manual for 1910, in which are to be found a list of the officers of the association, a list of the fixtures for 1910 (which includes a grand number of lectures, shows, etc.), the rules and regulations, and the names and addresses of the members. The secretaries, Messrs. Forse and Sons, 31, Thornhill Road, Leyton, N.E., will be glad to hear from fanciers desirous of joining the association.

Black Mule on your front page of a recent Black Mule on your front page of last week's CAGE BIRDS. It was a perfect picture of it. I think every credit is due to your artist, and I find that I cannot answer the many admirers only by taking the liberty of doing so through your valuable paper. Kindly thank them for the many tempting offers I received by post and wire for the bird. It was claimed the first day of the show at catalogue price. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—MRS. H. J. MOORE (Leicester).

I have been in hospital since Christmas, writes Mr. A. H. Chambers, Warwick, and the greatest treat I get is on a Friday, when dear old CAGE BIRDS arrives. Although in awful pain, I can force a smile when the nurse brings it me. Am pleased to say it passes many an hour away, and gives me something to look forward to. I have now taken in CAGE BIRDS for over 4 years, and it goes without saying what a lot I have learned from it during that time. I wish it every success. [We are grieved to hear of Mr. Chambers' misfortune, and sincerely wish him a speedy and complete recovery.—EDITOR.]

Advertising that Pays.

We have done extra well with our advertisement in "Cage Birds."—R. SUTCLIFFE AND SON (Shipley).

My advertisements in "Cage Birds" recently were responsible for clearing out about 80 birds.—T. C. CRAWHALL (Newcastle-upon-Tyne).

I have had twenty-two replies to date to my last advertisement in "Cage Birds," and replies are coming in by every post.—PERCY WATSON (Codnor).

Kindly thank those who replied to my advertisement in "Cage Birds." They are too numerous for me to answer individually.—S. ENTWISTLE (Rochdale).

I find "Cage Birds" the best Fancy journal to advertise in. I soon sold the two Blackbird cages I advertised in it a short time ago.—E. FOLKARD (York).

I am extremely pleased with the results received from my last advertisement in "Cage Birds." I received five good replies from each.—H. BARNARD (Bude).

I had eleven offers by Saturday morning from my little advertisement in "Cage Birds"—only one day after it had been issued!—ALEX. GREENHORN (Midcalder).

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in "Cage Birds" of recent date; they were too many for me to answer individually.—F. H. COOK (Pembridge).

I had a good many offers in reply to my last advertisement in "Cage Birds," and effected a very satisfactory sale to a man at Redditch.—P. S. MATHERS (Heptonstall).

Up to now I have had 22 offers through my advertisement in "Cage Birds," which speaks well for your valuable paper. Long may C.B. flourish.—ARCHIE MCWATT (Bonnybridge).

I am delighted with the result of my advertisements in your most valuable paper, "Cage Birds," which I consider no fancier can speak too highly of.—EDWARD FAULKNER (Rochdale).

I have done splendidly with regard to the sales of my stock through advertising in "Cage Birds." I would never have believed that such success was possible.—J. W. WHARTON (Liversedge).

I should like to thank through "Cage Birds," which is the very best journal of its kind, the many enquirers for my Goldfinches, which were too many for me to answer.—F. ARCHER (Redditch).

Kindly thank, through your paper, all who have written to me respecting my advertisement in "Cage Birds," recently, as the replies were too numerous for me to answer by letter.—G. H. GOULD (Coventry).

I have had excellent results from advertising in "Cage Birds," having sent birds all over the United Kingdom. I have only two left out of twenty, as advertised. Your paper is a champion.—J. J. MCILWAIN (Glasgow).

My advertisement in the Exchange Columns of "Cage Birds," January 15th, brought to me dozens of offers; which says a lot for your paper. There were too many for me to thank all personally.—J. WILLIAMS (Aberdare).

I advertised a monkey recently in your valuable paper, "Cage Birds." Am pleased to inform you that I have had thirteen offers, one of which I have accepted. I have been a reader of "C.B." for years.—J. R. LEAF (Leeds).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in the Birthday Number. I could have disposed of three dozen instead of three only, which shows the value of "Cage Birds" as an advertising medium.—D. TURNBULL (Winchburgh).

Since advertising in "Cage Birds" I have exported wire fronts to the U.S.A., and pierced bars to the National Wire Works, Montreal, Canada. I now have an enquiry from South Africa. Success to "C.B."—W. PINM (Birmingham).

Through my last advertisement in "Cage Birds" (to exchange eight cock Goldies, and nine pairs of Bullies for cycle), I have had no less than 18 offers from all over England, and one came from Lanarkshire, writes a reader of "Cage Birds."

Through one advertisement in "Cage Birds," I sold £10 worth of British birds and Mules. I could have sold more if I had had the stuff. The bulk of the sales were to English fanciers, and not one bird was returned.—E. CARROLL DAWSON (Bandon).

I have had to withhold by advertisement in "Cage Birds" this last month, owing to my having had a great rush of orders through advertising only in your valuable paper, which I consider the best advertising medium in Great Britain.—J. MARTIN (Castle Douglas).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds" recently, as the numerous answers I had from all parts of the country, were far too many for me to answer all; which proves what a very good paper "Cage Birds" is to advertise in.—WALTER SALMON (London, N.W.).

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in "Cage Birds," as I could not answer all—only those who sent stamps for reply. I made an exchange with satisfaction, which speaks well for "Cage Birds." Offers came from all parts of the country.—J. CARRETT (Mitcham).

Kindly thank all who so readily replied to my advertisements in "Cage Birds" re Amazon Parrots; they were too many for me to answer personally, which speaks volumes for the paper's circulation. I find there is no paper like "Cage Birds," and I also find it a useful helper in the study of our hobby.—G. JOHNSTON (Carlisle).

I have found (and am finding more than I ever anticipated) that through the medium of your excellent paper, and by fair dealings with customers obtained therefrom, it is possible to build up around one's-self a really remunerative business. I wish "Cage Birds" the success it fully deserves.—H. ORFORD (Manchester).

I am glad to inform you that my last advertisement in "Cage Birds" brought me customers on the Friday night to buy birds. Almost before the ink was dry on the paper they came. And purchasers have continued to drop in since. So I have pleasure in again asking you to repeat the dose.—W. DOWNING (Manchester).

In reply to the advertisement I had in "Cage Birds" (pair of Crests for a pair of Border Fancies), I received 76 letters, and post cards. The birds went to a gentleman in Carlisle. When he saw the birds, he sent three instead of one pair, he was so highly pleased with them. "Cage Birds" is a good paper for advertisements; it must have a good circulation. I wish it all success in the future.—JAMES MCMILLAN (Port Glasgow).

Kindly thank all applicants in reply to my advertisement in last week's issue of "Cage Birds," they are too many for me to reply to. By Saturday morning's post I had quite a lot of replies, and from all parts of the country. It shows how people are always on the look out in your exchange columns, and I heartily recommend anyone who has birds to dispose of, to give "Cage Birds" a trial, and they won't regret it.—JAS. TOMKINS (Warrington).

I was very pleased to see the sketch of my Levaillant's Barbet so splendidly depicted by Mr. Goodchild, in your Crystal Palace Show Number. I sincerely hope CAGE BIRDS will always retain its great reputation and popularity.—S. T. BEATY (Alderley Edge).

It was a pleasant surprise to me when I got my CAGE BIRDS recently, to see the picture of my yellow Scotch Fancy, 2nd at the Crystal Palace, on the front page. I am extremely obliged to you for it. I must give credit to your artist, Mr. Norman, for such a good sketch. I must say I am the only fancier in Barrow to keep this variety, but this year I am proud to say two more young fanciers have made a start with the bird of position, and my best wishes go with them for a prosperous season. I mean to give them all the encouragement I can.—ROBT. WILLISON (Barrow-in-Furness).

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the querics refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped curclope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All querles must be addressed the Editor. "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only querics so sent will be answered. Post cards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Eats and Pants.

W. Twyford.—Am afraid you will do no good with this hen. I suspect she has been completely ruined by exposure to draughts and chills. Keep her in a box cage, in a comfortable position, quite free from draughts, damp, or extremes of heat and cold, and not above or near burning lights in the evenings, nor yet against the ceiling. See that the cage is perfectly free from red mite, and regularly supplied with clean gritty sand. Do not give cold baths until better. Limit the diet to the staple mixture you are now giving, and half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it. Give this latter every second day for a fortnight, and sprinkle it each time with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a spray of green food or two leaves of daadelion. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day, and on the alternate days twenty drops of whisky, five each of paregoric and ipecacuanna wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, continuing the latter on alternate days for a fortnight.

Cold and Cages.

Novice.—Keep the bird in a comfortable position, quite free from cold draughts and unwholesome heated air. In addition to the usual seed diet, as frequently detailed here, give half a teaspoonful, not more, of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed every second day for a fortnight. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of syrup of rhubarb daily for three days, and afterwards give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and if necessary every second day for another week after. If the sneezing disappears, and the bird is bright and healthy in other respects, there is no reason why you should not breed with him. As regards the travelling cages, I am not quite clear whether you mean cages for sending birds on a short journey, or cases for show cages. If the former, you cannot easily improve upon the ordinary travelling cage now in use by most dealers for all ordinary journeys, and for several birds the same type of cage of proportionately larger dimensions will do just as well. It would, however, be better to send not more than two birds in one cage, and to increase the number of cages, tying them together front to front for packing. If this is not what you require, write again, and give fuller particulars.

Two More.

P. J. K. (Dublin).—(1) You should have said how and where you have been keeping the bird since you purchased it. I suspect he has either been exposed to a chill or is now in a colder room than he has been accustomed to. See he is quite protected from draught and extremes of heat and cold, and do not allow his cage to hang above or near any lights. Keep him in a box cage, and in just a comfortable temperature. Give a mixture of 3 parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and every second day for a week a piece of bread and milk about the size of a hazel nut sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a small pinch of a mixture of hemp, inga and teazle, and two leaves of dandelion. In the drinking water give first a pinch of Epsom salts and 10 drops of lemon juice for two days, and afterwards 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. (2) It is not essential to have a three-compartment cage to run one cock with two hens, though it is a convenience sometimes. In this case you would place the cock in the centre and a hen on each side, and allow him to run with each hen alternately until each had gone to nest, and then confine him in the middle space again until ready to repeat the process. Or you might keep the hens in separate single breeders, and run the cock with one until she had gone to nest; then with the other, ditto, and then cage him by himself until number one was again ready for him. If a young, vigorous cock, there is very little fear of the fertility being reduced by this process.

A Cock and a Hen.

H. B.—I consider it most likely there is some internal derangement or displacement affecting the former, and I do not think you will be able to make any material improvement in his condition. Indeed, I doubt whether he will survive until this can appear, but if he does it would really be the kindest thing to mercifully end his suffering. Still, if you wish to try to cure him, feed on a staple of plain canary. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days for a fortnight about the same quantity, or its equivalent, of bread soaked in cold milk, drained off, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Give a little green food or a morsel of banana three times a week. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn each day until it produces a quite free and easy action, and afterwards 20 drops of whisky, 6 of oxymel of squills, and 5 each of paregeric and ipecacuanha wine every second day for a fortnight. At the end of this time write again, and report progress, referring to this reply. Is the hen constantly gaping, or gasping, as it were, or only occasionally yawning? If the latter, she should be quite fit for breeding when in condition. Give her 12 drops of syrup of buckthorn in the water for three consecutive days, and afterwards 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Three in Brief.

Lewis Pittam.—(1) This should have been on a separate sheet for our Mule expert. However, if the Linnet does not interfere with the sitting hen or pull the nest about, there is no necessity to remove him. If he is troublesome, remove him. (2) Provided you are sure of the sex and that the bird is perfectly healthy and active, it is not absolutely essential for a cock to be in full song before he can be successfully mated. It is, however, most advisable for him to be in good song. (3) You should have said how this hen was being fed. Try following treatment, and if not considerably better in a fortnight, write again and give full particulars. Feed on plain canary as staple. Every second day give a pinch of summer rape and a morsel of ripe banana, and on the alternate days a piece of bread about the size of a hazel nut sopped in cold milk, drained and sprinkled with maw seed. Give no green food until better. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a small pinch of Epsom salts for two days. After this give six drops of dandelion juice, ten of glycerine, and one of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week. Smear a tiny piece of boracic ointment on the vent every second day until the caking ceases.

Brevities.

Building Aviary (Enquirer).—If you will send a rough sketch of the aviary I will do my best to suggest an efficient system of ventilation, but I cannot do this without knowing something of what you propose building, and its size and aspect, and whether shut in by other buildings or exposed.

A Substitute (Mab.).—The food of which you send a sample will certainly rear young Canaries successfully. As to whether it is quite equal to the ordinary egg-food I have nothing to add to what I said on the question last week in the article on "Some Interesting Canary Problems Considered," to which I beg to refer you.

A Sudden Seizure (Ould Brum).—The bird had undoubtedly ruptured a blood vessel, probably on, or near, the brain (apoplexy). It may possibly have been induced by a sudden fright, though this is not necessarily the case, as it might just as well have been caused by undue excitement through excessive singing. You could have done nothing to save it.

Swollen Feet (H. C. W.).—The treatment previously advised was best calculated to give the bird the winning chance, but judging from your last letter it will probably prove unavailing, and as there is also every probability of the toes sloughing off, your kindest and best course is to chloroform the bird at once out of its misery. Am still inclined to think the swellings are due to bacilliary infection. Perhaps it would be more satisfactory to you to have a post-mortem on the remains and settle the doubt.

Yorkshire off Song (W. T.).—You do not say whether the bird is apparently in good health or not. If it is, I should say it is beginning to feel the weight of its years, and is probably waiting for the weather to grow brighter and warmer before resuming its song. So it is not exposed to any draught or chill, and in addition to the diet you now provide give a piece of bread and milk about the size of a hazel nut, sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle, and two young dandelion leaves. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week or so.

Squealing Noise (Thos. Buckley).—First see the bird is not exposed to any draughts, nor to extremes of heat and cold, such as having the room very warm during the day, and correspondingly cold at night. Every second day for a week or so give a piece of bread sopped in milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure strewn over. On the alternate days give a few grains only of linseed, and a morsel of paste the size of a pea, made by mixing as much chlorate of potash as will cover a shilling in a teaspoonful of honey, and making the whole into a soft paste with yolk of hard boiled egg or finely crushed biscuit powder. In drinking water give six drops each oxymel of squills, and mucilage of gum arabic, and every second day for a week two drops of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together.

Breeding with Mule (E. Griffiths).—It is absolutely useless trying to breed off a Mule cock Canary, if by this you mean that the cock is a Mule bred from a Canary and some other species. Therefore, if you do not wish to lose the season, though it is too early to talk of that yet, you had better get another cock, say, a German, Border, or Norwich. In either case let it be a young and vigorous specimen. It is useless mating a cock Mule with anything, unless it is done simply as an experiment, with the full knowledge that the chances of the result being absolutely nil are exceedingly great.

A Doubtful Tonic (Listleover).—Your informant was, to say the least, a little off the mark. The chief properties of buckthorn for all practical purposes are as a purgative and a useful liver stimulant. It is useful to give as an aperient if the birds are in rather too high condition from too stimulating food, and also before the birds are mated, when they appear to need any relaxing medicine. From 6 to 12 drops in two tablespoonfuls of water for drinking purposes is a good dose. The larger dose if the birds are constipated. As a tonic, 6 drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid is as good as anything for all ordinary uses.

Stage Fright (M. H. O.).—It is simply fright that makes the bird act thus, and there is always a risk of such a bird dying instantly when so affected. You can do nothing beyond treating him as gently as possible and getting him to understand that you mean no harm. Do everything about his cage quietly and methodically without unnecessary fussing, and always have a choice tit-bit of green food or some similar dainty to leave behind. Do not take him out of the room to clean out his cage. Gently draw out sand tray on to a sheet of paper, and thereby avoid taking the bird into new surroundings. By the way, does it see a cat or dog when taken out of the room? If so, avoid his doing so in future.

Sleepy Heads (W. T. F.).—There is certainly something wrong. Perhaps they eat too much. You should have said how you feed them, and also what condition of body they are in. Feed on plain canary only for a fortnight, giving just a pinch of rape every second day and a fairly liberal supply of green food daily. See they are exposed to no cold draughts or extremes of heat and cold. Give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and every second day for a week as much Epsom salts in the water as will cover a sixpence, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid, and continue the latter on alternate days for a fortnight. Write and report progress at end of that time, and give full particulars asked for above.

Laying Shell-less Eggs (Mab.).—It is not unlikely the hen is in an overfed condition. Reduce her to a plain diet of two parts Canary to one part summer rape for a fortnight, and give a fairly liberal supply of green food. In addition to providing a regular supply of shell gravel, also give a piece of cuttlefish to peck at. If she does not appear to eat this, though I expect she will readily enough, crush a little to powder and mix it with a little egg food, and give her daily after mating her, and also add from now until mated, after the first three days have passed, 20 drops of chemical food to the drinking water, two days in every three. During the first three days give instead as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and ten drops of lemon juice in the water. Do not give the egg so liberally as named above if the hen partakes of the cuttlefish freely, as this will provide all that is necessary for the proper shelling of the eggs.

Tired Hens (F. J. F.).—I cannot tell whether they are old or not without having seen them. If they have left youth far behind they will have coarse, thickened scales on the legs and toes, and probably much overgrown claws if they have not been clipped. Your feeding is none too good. Try the following. As a staple give a mixture of 3 parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a half teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, and during the first week well mix in it 4 drops of sherry and 2 of cod liver oil emulsion each time. On the alternate days give a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga and teazle, and two leaves of dandelion each. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and 6 drops of syrup of rhubarb every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid, and continue to give the latter on alternate days for a fortnight.

Three (I. O. W.).—(1) The adjective Norwich is quite unnecessary. Years ago, when Crests and Crest-breds were in a much less developed condition than now, it was commonly spoken of as a crested Norwich or Norwich Crest, but the term has been discarded long since. (2) If there was also a class for even or unevenly marked birds, the bird would have to go there, and would be ineligible in the class for ticked or variegated. (3) The term lightly variegated is discarded in Yorkshire show circles. To draw the line between a marked bird and any other variety you must simply take a two, four, or six-pointed bird with marks in corresponding positions, or even, without any other marking whatever, as a marked bird. A bird with two, three, or five technical marks, with or without other variegation about body, is an unevenly marked; whilst one with a single technical mark and other variegation on body is a ticked. If without a technical mark at all and variegated on body, it is still a ticked bird.

Is it Colds? (Mrs. Smith).—Your feeding is wholly in error and is probably the cause of the bird's condition, and not colds. Try following treatment: Let them remain in this room, but see they are quite free from cold draughts and impure air. Feed on a staple diet of plain canary only, and every second day give separately to each bird half a teaspoonful of summer rape. On the alternate days for the next fortnight give a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give also a little green food or a morsel of banana every second day. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards give 20 drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week.

Hens Unwell (Inquirer).—Your query seems to relate to a former reply, but I do not remember what it was about. You should have referred me to the reply or repeated all the former particulars. You ought not to have paired the hens until in good sound health. If they have not yet shown signs of nesting, separate them for a fortnight and feed on plain canary as a staple, with half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed, and a few grains of hemp given separately. Give no green food for the first week, but afterwards you may give a leaf of dandelion every second day. Limit food to the above and see all seeds are sweet and sound. When you mate the birds with the Finches again cut the linseed out of the seed mixture entirely. In the drinking water give a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulphate of iron about half as big, and six drops of dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Norwich Cock Soft (Scotia).—I do not think there is anything seriously wrong. You might see if your seeds—especially the rape—are above suspicion. Keep cage perfectly clean and free from red mite and strewn with clean gritty sand. Also give a small piece of cuttlefish stuck between the wires for him to peck. Give plain canary as a staple, and add separately half a teaspoonful of rape daily. Give a morsel of banana every second day instead of green food, and on the alternate days a small pinch of hemp, but see it is good and sound, and also for the next week half a teaspoonful of crushed biscuit without egg and sprinkled over with maw seed. Give a pinch of Epsom salts in the water for one day only, and afterwards six drops each dandelion juice and tincture of gentian and four of mucilage of gum arabic every second day for a week. I see no reason why he should not be quite fit for mating at end of month.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

For a Crystal Palace Aviary.

"Aviary."—It will hold a dozen, and you could not do better than get the following, all of which are beautiful, have sweet little songs, are very vivacious and interesting, and once they have got over the hardships of importation, are not difficult to keep in condition. Common and Green Avadavats, Zebra, Grey, St. Helena, and Orange-cheek Waxbills, pairs of each, value, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. a pair. Diet: Canary and white millet seed, millet sprays, green food (lettuce and seeding grain according to season). Blighty foliage is much appreciated, and a little ripe fruit; grit and water for drinking and bathing must also be supplied. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (see advert.) very helpful. Hang up two or three cokernut shell nuts, push a little hay and moss in each, and the birds will use these as night shelters. You must keep your cage where the birds can get light and air, but not where a breeze can blow directly through it—draught will soon kill the hardiest of birds.

Breeding Virginian Nightingales.

"Zeewekie."—I do not suppose you will have any difficulty in breeding these birds if you let them have the aviary to themselves, and I should only keep one pair. You will have to keep up a supply of live food, as for the first week or ten days they feed the young practically on nothing else. Supply mealworms, gentles, cockroaches, live ant's eggs (put the insects in glazed vessels from which they cannot crawl). With only one pair there should be but little difficulty in keeping up a supply—they will take almost anything alive. You must also supply soft food, ripe fruit and seed. Nesting material—hay, bents, and long grass. Put up a box or two in the covered-in portion of the aviary, so that they can use these if preferred, also a small platform or two—lids of small fruit hampers answer well for the latter. As regards trees and bushes, any of the following will do: Privet, fruit trees, box, spruce, conifers in variety, and sow the ground with grain, oats, wheat, canary, millet, etc.; also as creepers, hops and the like, which are very subject to blight. Wish you luck.

Cactus Parrakeet.

W. W. W.—From what you say, I fear there is little hope for your Conure; wasting away is difficult to check at all times, and your query arrived too late for reply to appear in our last issue; had there been an address on query I should have sent you a postcard. I fear the bird will be dead when you see this reply. If it still survives stop giving all sops, table scraps, etc., and diet as follows:—Seed mixture, three parts each Canary and white millet, and one part each oats, hemp and sunflower seeds; well mix and keep a supply in the cage; also give any ripe fruit it will take, plain biscuit and nuts; crust of dry toast may also be given; accompanied with the other essentials: grit, cuttlefish, and water. It may crave for a little soft-food; if so, just moisten a piece of biscuit in chemical food water, this will really be helpful for a time. For one day give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water, and repeat the dose after a week's interval. On other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food.

Birds for Outdoor Aviary.

"Novice." G. A.—(1) British species can be put in at once; Foreign species not till May, unless you see that you get them from some outdoor aviary. (2) It will accommodate 36 birds the size of a Norwich Canary, but if breeding results are required not more than half that number should be put in. (3) The following will all agree together:—Gold and Bullfinches, Siskins, Twites and Redpolls, Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Java Sparrows, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, Common and Green Avadavats, Gold-crested Orange-cheek and St. Helena Waxbills. (4) For Foreigners you must supply Canary, white millet, and millet sprays, and to cover the needs of the British species, teazel, rape, hemp, sunflower, oats, and in small quantities maw and linseed; also you may give occasionally "wild packet mixture." Both kinds would require soft-food when feeding young, green-food, ripe fruit, cuttlefish, grit and water must be regularly supplied. Budgerigars are not safe with Finches, and if your Canaries are all hens I should advise only including cocks of the British species. "Foreign birds for Beginners" (see advert.) would help you greatly.

Breeding Roseate Cockatoos.

M. L.—Your aviary will answer well for the purpose, but I should not put two pairs of Roseate (Rose-breasted) Cockatoos into the same aviary; the flight you describe would suffice for one pair each of Roseates, Quakers, and Ringnecks. Small barrels answer equally well as logs. An advert. in our columns would undoubtedly procure you the latter, or most nurserymen would supply you with a chunk of some tree (they are always grubbing up fruit trees, etc.), which you could easily get hollowed out large enough to enable the birds to get inside; they would soon fashion it to their liking. You will have to keep an eye on the corners of the woodwork of aviary, and if they attack it anywhere promptly cover such places with sheet zinc. I have mostly got my logs sent me by friends in the country, and have fashioned them myself, but you will find small barrels, hung up longitudinally, will be equally acceptable to the birds; a handful of pine sawdust may be thrown in each. I cannot in this column recommend any particular dealer, but here again I think an advert. in our columns would procure you the birds you require.

About Grey Parrots.

"C.B.Y.I."—King Grey is simply a dealers' name, given to those birds which have more or less pink feathers mingled with the grey of their plumage. As regards the sexes, tho bare skin round the eyes—at the back of the eye it is pointed or pear-shaped in the male and round in the female—tho head of the female is shorter, broader, and with the crown more arched than that of the male. Diet: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts in variety, plain biscuits, and dry crusts of household bread, or crusts of dry toast—the latter may be moistened with water, but not saturated. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sop, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Seed mixture: Canary and white millet to form half the bulk of the mixture, with hemp, oats, paddy rice, and sunflower seed in equal parts. Cuttlefish, grit and water must be regularly supplied. Diet for Grey Parrots appears almost weekly.

Budgerigars and Egg Binding.

Nameless.—In the first place, you would soon clear out tho mice by the use of two or three of the automatic well traps, which are always set. I think the error has been leaving the window open during the winter nights, laying hens being very susceptable to chill; by all means have it open during the day, but close it at night while frosts, sudden changes, etc., are likely to occur. The preventatives for egg binding are robust health and a continuous supply of old mortar, rubbish, crushed egg shells, and cuttlefish. I should also supply a little fruit (apple is usually readily eaten), and when convenient a leaf of fresh lettuce. I should certainly manage to hang the husks in such position that the mice cannot obtain access to them, or they would probably disturb the sitting hens and carry off some of the eggs. They will not attack the adult birds, but they are very objectionable from tho standpoint of fouling the food and water.

Amazon with Swelling.

G. W. Green.—The information you supply is too meagre for me to do more than suggest possible palliative remedies. I do not think it is all due to age. Keep its bowels moving freely (not loose) with an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water); when not giving the magnesia well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Put a little honey and borax twice daily into its mouth, over the tongue, etc., with a camel hair brush. Bathe the eyes with a rosewater and zinc eye lotion—all the above can be obtained from any chemist. Confine its diet to boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day), seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. If you have a local vet. it would be well to let him see the bird; he would at once know whether tho swelling is anything which should be removed with the knife. Report progress a fortnight hence.

Macaw Breaking Tail Feathers

E. B. Hawker.—First as to "proper side of the perch"; this bird evidently gets its tail feathers to the front of the perch to damage them to the extent of those sent. When such is the case, I should advise their being lifted over to the proper side, viz., the back of perch or stand. There is very little I can add to my previous query—it is more vice, I am afraid, than anything else, and nothing but patience can accomplish much in this direction. Most certainly, except in severe weather,

Foreign Bird Queriists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

I should spray the bird twice weekly. It does not matter much which you give—either Parrish's Chemical Food or Sulphate of Iron, it is quite immaterial. Be careful to what extent you give the oil—in some cases desperate remedies meet desperate cases; but I am very much afraid of the result if given for any length of time. As regards the application of oil to the quills, this can do no harm, but in the end, unless great care is exercised, the plumage will be in a sad greasy state. In such cases, as I said in my previous reply, you must give time for the remedies to act. The other items you ask my opinion about, viz., boiled maize, ripe fruit, and nuts in variety, were all advised in my earlier replies (I have replied to you more than once either in "C.B." or by post). Re flowers of sulphur, as you have been giving this for some weeks, it can be stopped with advantage for a time, but if in a few weeks the plumage is no better, then recommence giving same as before. There appears to me to be an improvement in the condition of the feathers to those previously sent.

Brevities.

What Bird, Value, etc.? (X.Y.Z.).—It is a Rosella Parrakeet; its value, according to condition, is from 15s. to 20s. Let it have as staple food canary and white millet seed in equal parts—with a few oats, little hemp and sunflower seeds as extras, also ripe fruit, and greenfood. Grit, cuttlefish, and water must be also supplied for practically all species of birds. It should have a good-sized Parrot cage, if it is so kept, but this species are usually kept in pairs, in outdoor aviaries, where they breed fairly freely Value, etc., of Sprosser ("Clemo").—I can add but little to what Mr. Teschemaker told you in the article. I have heard his bird sing, and I can assure you his eulogy is not at all overdrawn. This bird is occasionally advertised by English dealers, but the continent is the principal source of supply. Its value would be from 30s. to 40s.; probably more for one in full song. It would require soft-food, live insects, and ripe fruit. Probably if you watch the adverts. you may procure a newly brought over specimen cheaply, or obtain one by inserting an advert. yourself in our columns. In appearance the Sprosser is merely a large Nightingale.

Taming Budgerigars (A Lover of Birds).—Personnlly I have never attempted teaching these charming birds to talk, though in my outdoor aviary they have learned to come about my person when I enter the aviary. The sex would be immaterial, and you would need to commence with young birds fresh from the nest. However, as you have bought for ordered) Budgerigars and Cockatiels, and there is a chapter therein on this matter, I will ask you first to peruse the book, and then if the modus operandi is not clear to you, to repeat your query, when I shall have much pleasure in assisting you.

Parrots and Pigeons (F. Bailey).—The pigeons would undoubtedly incubate the eggs, but I do not consider there is any prospect of their rearing the young. I am rightly not allowed to name any special dealer; you must consult out advert. columns. Period of incubation varies, somewhere between 14 and 21 days. The usual corn, fruit, green food, etc., forming the daily menu of Parrots, would be sufficient for them when feeding young. Hardy varieties of Canaries can be kept in an outdoor aviary; but you must submit this query to our Canary specialist Mr. Claude St. John.

What Parrot? (H.P.).—It is an Alexandrine Parrakeet; you will find diet and treatment given in reply to other correspondents in this issue. Most individuals of this species make good talkers. As soon as your bird is sufficiently settled down not to be scared at your moving about round it, keep it in your midst, where it will hear plenty of conversation; also teach it by constant repetition such words and short phrases as you wish it to learn—there is no other way than kindness, patience, and perseverance—some individuals are more teachable than others; but sooner or later your bird will commence to talk and mimic various sounds which it continually hears.

Grey and Feather Plucking (Regular Reader).—Diet your bird as advised to "C.B.Y.I." in this issue. Give it several doses (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water), of Dinneford's Magnesia, with a couple of days between each dose; at the same time the bowels must not be kept continuously loose, merely moving freely. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Spray him occasionally with quassia solution; this can be obtained ready prepared from our advertisers. You are quite right in giving him wood, etc., to cut up and play with. If it is sufficiently tame, it would be a help to let it out of the cage as convenient. Keep it where it will get plenty of company.

Silverbills ("Silver Billy.").—Most certainly these birds are not delicate, for they have lived in my outdoor aviary all the year round, and the average span of their lives has been eight years. But all these small African birds are imported under such crowded and insanitary conditions, that they arrive in a more or less debilitated condition, and losses are numerous among new purchases. Cage the bird separately, and keep its bowels well moving (not loose) with occasional doses (1 part magnesia, 3 parts water) of Dinneford's magnesia, and when not giving the latter, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Diet:—Canary, white millet, and millet sprays, green-food, grit, cuttlefish, and water. At this season a little of any kind of ripe fruit the bird will eat is very wholesome. The difficulty in getting a good pair lies solely in the insanitary conditions of importations, and also some dealers' shops.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

A Muling Greenfinch.

Greenie.—My own Greenfinches have come into "breeding condition" now that we have experienced a spell of sunny, spring-like weather. They are "singing" hard, and one is feeding a Bullfinch hen. The following is the stock mixture you should use: Canary and teazle three parts each, white sunflower or safflower one part each, summer rape, charlock and linseed half-part each, by measure. Also use the following: (1) Hemp two parts, niger and maw one part each, (2) a good wild seed mixture, to which has been added a dash of thistle and dandelion. Give a small teaspoonful of these on alternate days. A very important point is that you should look out for the young dandelion leaves, and gather a daily feed; also for seedling chickweed (obtainable practically all the year round in suitable sheltered spots), shepherd's purse, and groundsel. These spring "salads" are invaluable aids in bringing all the Finches into proper breeding trim—especially the flowering and seeding dandelion heads. The earlier you get the latter, the better your chances.

Breeding Mealworms.

Pilot.—Yes; the spring is a good time of the year to commence mealworm boxes. Get a biscuit tin from a confectioner (about 2lb. size). It should not be too high, but should have as much "floor space" as possible. Bore with a bradawl two rows of holes right round the sides at the top, within an inch or an inch and a-half of the lid. Cut three pieces of coarse sacking so that they will, when folded once over, drop flat into the tin, leaving about three-quarters of an inch space between each edge and the sides of the tin. Dry these thoroughly before the fire. Get a supply (pennyworth or so) of bran. Put a layer on the bottom of the tin, about an inch and a-half thick. Put a folded piece of sacking on this. Then put another layer of bran; then another piece of sacking—and so on, arranging to fill the tin not more than three-parts full, and to have a piece of sacking at the top. Then turn a pint of mealworms (or as many as you feel disposed to invest in) into the tin. Put in a handful of fresh bran, occasionally, under the top layer of sacking. It takes about twelve months to get into full breeding swing, i.e., for the mealworms to turn into beetles, beetles to lay eggs in the folds of sacking, eggs to hatch, and young mealworms to mature. In the summer time it is often possible to buy a quantity of beetles from advertisers along with the worms, and one would save time by so doing. Many put beer-soaked rags (bung rags), dead birds, dog biscuits, bones, etc., in their mealworm boxes; but I never do so myself. Disturb the breeding box as little as possible, and always keep it in a fairly warm, dry place, such as a cupboard at the side of fireplace. The latter is the secret of success. In the winter change the contents into a new tin (when this becomes necessary), sifting the "dust" at the bottom of the old one and throwing it away.

Feeding A Blackbird

F. J. S. C.—Soaked chicken-meal (without grit) is excellent if a little of a good mixture specially designed for insectivorous birds is mixed in with it, and some suitable live foods given, also fruit and berries, according to season. But the best (though not the cheapest) method is to feed the bird on the following lines (any good corn dealer would mix you the stock food). Stock mixture (store it in tins): Finely ground chicken (or game or pheasant or partridge) meal, six parts; ground silkworm pupae, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Get the chicken (or other) meal without grit. If you have any difficulty in doing so, finely crushed puppy cakes (or puppy meal) makes an excellent substitute; or the "broken" biscuit obtainable from the grocer. If the latter be used, add an extra part of meat meal and silkworm pupae. Damp quantity required for daily use with grated raw carrot, or finely-chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, or cold boiled potato. Vary them frequently, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake, or half a hard-boiled egg, finely minced up, occasionally. Give some mealworms daily, and any other live insects you can lay hands on, also ripe fruit and berries frequently, and according to season. "Black-beetles" are very much relished. The cage should be 24 inches (30 if possible) long by about 16 high, and 12 wide (front to back). The larger it is the better for the bird

Muling with a Linnet.

H. H.—I have given a lot of hints about muling with Linnets and Goldfinches in the last few issues. Have you missed these? The stock mixture now should be: Canary and teazle three pints each, summer rape, charlock, and linseed one pint each. In the winter (if the birds are in a cold room) about one pint of hemp should be added to the stock mixture. A feed of maw and niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and flowering dandelion tops and the young leaves, also seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, plaintain and groundsel freely in the spring and the summer. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable variation from the ordinary stock mixture. To bring them in condition quickly the great "secret" is to give them a daily supply of the best old hemp, and crack it lightly, so that they feed well upon it. Also put in the "tit-bit" drawer daily, a teaspoonful of the following mixture: Two ounces each of gold of pleasure, niger, plaintain, sesame, and thistle, one ounce each of mustard (the golden-yellow seed), dandelion, maw, cornflower, and lettuce. This treatment will bring any bird into full song and breeding condition at the earliest possible moment.

British Bird Queriists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Dead Linnets.

Puzzle.—I expect the bird died of inflammation of the bowels. Treatment of ailing birds should commence immediately they are observed to sit looking "puffy" (that is, loose in feather), and dull of eye. A complete change of diet (say, on to niger, maw, and wild seed mixture), with a dose or two of saline medicine (as much Epsom salts as will lie on a shilling in two tablespoonfuls of water), or eight to ten drops of tincture of rhubarb, will then often serve to put them right. You appear to be putting fresh-caught Linnets direct on to dry, hard seed, a practice I am often warning fanciers against, as this often serves to set up internal trouble, with ensuing inflammation and diarrhœa. They should have a free supply of rape seedlings, seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, and plantain to commence with. Soaked seed can easily be prepared. Some of the stock mixture can be left in cold water through the night, in the morning being dabbed as dry as possible in a towel, and fed to the birds. It is troublesome, certainly, but need be kept up a few days only. Cracked seed (put through a mill) is also very useful. An occasional dose of saline medicine is an excellent thing.

A Pet Bullfinch.

Montrose.—Your Bullie will retain a great deal of his present fine colour if it is fed on rational lines. As a stock food at present you could hardly better canary and teazle three pints of each, linseed, summer rape, and charlock, half a pint of each. In a finger drawer (or separate dish), however, the following would need to be given, in addition, to provide the necessary variety: A small dessert-spoonful of sunflower seed every day, except when giving hemp, of which the bird may have a teaspoonful once a week, say, for a Sunday treat. In a tin you could keep a mixture of niger two parts, maw three parts, and give a pinch twice a week. Then you have thistle and dandelion seed and wild seed mixture, small feeds of which may also be occasionally given. Or the special mixture advised an enquirer respecting a muling Linnet this week would answer admirably. For green foods give any of the following, according to season: Shepherd's purse, dandelion, groundsel tops, chickweed, flowering grasses, watercress, lettuce, rape, or canary seedlings, etc. The seedling kinds may be freely given. Bullies are very fond of many berries (black, privet, etc.), also fruit, and the buds of fruit trees and bushes; on such things they feed largely when wild. Charlock, dock, thistles, hard-heads, and many other wild seeding plants, these birds are also very fond of, likewise mealworms. Treated on the above lines, your pet should thrive splendidly and moult a good colour.

Brevities.

Thrush Weak on Legs (A.B.C.).—I hope you are feeding the bird properly and generously; see reply concerning a Blackbird this week. Without this, medicine can help but little Get from a chemist one ounce of syrup hypophosp. co. B.P., and stir a small teaspoonful into three tablespoonfuls of drinking water (use a pot or glass vessel only) fresh daily for 10 to 14 days. This, and good food, should pull the bird together again.

Blackbird's Bad Foot (Blackie).—Wash the foot in warm water twice daily (morning and evening), dry it, and then gently rub in a little of Calvert's carbolic ointment. Keep the cage bottom very clean; coarse sawdust will be the best covering. By-the-way, you are feeding the bird very badly indeed; bread and crushed hemp is wretched fare for a Blackbird.

Siskin Matters (W.F.).—1. I am very much afraid that you will not find the "bib" moult out more pronounced. Rather the contrary. 2. Many Siskins which have no bib at all win prizes at the shows. They are handicapped, of course, if they run up against good birds which possess this excellent exhibition point. 3. It is not necessary to colour-feed a Siskin "as hot as possible." A little pepper helps a bird nowadays; but it is quite another thing to make a bird a red object, showing little of its natural colouration.

An "Albino" Greenfinch (A. Wilson).—Your bird is not an "albino," properly speaking, this being an all white bird with pink eyes. Your Greenfinch is a "pied" bird only. As a rule, the light feather areas tend to extend at each succeeding moult. Probably yours is an old bird, which will explain its excessive wildness.

Colour-feeding (J. W. Hunt).—This query seems to have gone astray; will you kindly repeat it, and I shall have pleasure in answering.

A Delicate Question (G.K.).—On the whole I do not think that Siberian hen Bullies are more delicate than British hens, providing they do not become unhealthy during the journey to England. They are liable to contract pneumonia en route; and this, of course, is a deadly complaint.

Two Wings (S. Handy).—The wings you send are those of a Greenfinch; apparently it was a nice specimen. Is this what you desire to know? I do not find your meaning easy to grasp.

A Muling Matter (Spivinis).—The answer to your query depends upon what sort of condition your Linnet is in. If he is singing stoutly, and his beak has turned blue in colour, there is no need to separate the couple at all. Let the hen go to nest as soon as she pleases. If the Linnet interferes with neither nest nor eggs, he can be left with the hen whilst she is incubating. If you have to separate them, I advise you to put the wood slide between the two compartments. In short, the procedure to be followed can (and should) be regulated by the behaviour of one's birds. Some cock Linnets feed the young and help the hen Canary greatly.

In an Aviary (P.A.S.).—In an aviary of the size you mention (really only a large cage), I am afraid British Finches would suffer during any lengthened spell of severe weather. Some cover for the front would certainly be necessary; the suggested glass shutters would be most useful, without a doubt. Keen winds, especially if accompanied by frost, make British Finches look very miserable; are often "the beginning of the end."

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

Goldfish Diseased.

Star and C.J.C.—It is rather difficult to see why your goldfish, kept in running water and fed on bread, ant's egg, and a little raw beef, should lose their tails and get fungus; but evidently the conditions are unsuitable to their health. Still water, if kept clear, suits these fish best, and they should have watercress constantly in it to feed on. Give also a few small worms, and avoid bread and meat if you stop the flow of water, as, of course, there is more danger of these going bad in still water.

Care of Doves.

Judex.—The treatment rather depends on what sort of dove you mean; but if, as I suppose, you mean the common tame collared dove, these will breed quite well either in a large cage (about 2ft. square) or an aviary; they are quite hardy outdoors. Give an open box for a nest, and some short straw or twigs for nesting material. Both parents sit and feed the young. Feed on small corn and bird-seed, and you can give some crumbled stale bread when they are feeding young, though they will rear them without any extra feeding. Give also a turf to pick at, and some crushed old mortar seasoned with salt, as well as grit. They should also have opportunities for bathing allowed them.

POST MORTEMS

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Camdenian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Rape Seed (F. A. Keevil).—It is not German summer rape, but winter (English) rape. The former is only half the size, and is bluish-red in colour.

A Photograph (A.H.C.L.).—Many thanks. We could not make a satisfactory reproduction of that particular photograph.

Reports in Shorthand (J. Buchanan).—It is good of you to make the offer, but we are afraid we could not undertake the deciphering of shorthand notes.

Illustrated Ideas.—(R. Peart).—Has been utilised before. (H. Beardnall).—Is not this the kind of drying cage generally used? (J. Bona).—We are under the impression that this kind of door is used on many cages seen in shops, etc. (James Toole).—We have given this previously. (J. Sims).—The same remark applies. (T. Dawes).—This idea is given in our "Canary Breeding for Beginners."

Cutting; and a Mate (A. M.).—Thanks for sending the newspaper cutting. As a mate for the cock Siskin, you could not beat a small to medium-sized, but stoutly-built, yellow hen (Norwich type).

A Hen's Failure (Unruly Hen).—Your query came too late for our Canary specialist to deal with this week. Separate the pair, give the hen a rest, and feed her generously. She will probably behave quite satisfactorily for the second round. You made a very early start; this may have induced the trouble.

An Address (E. Smith).—It is the only address we have. Will put in a "Twittering" for you.
